It is probable that the first monument to the memory of Confederate soldiers was erected at Romney. In 1866, while Confederate sympathizers were still under suspicion by the National Government and not allowed to vote or hold office, the people of that town decorated the graves of Confederate soldiers in the cemetery, and during the following year the monument was erected. It cost the citizens $1,400 in money and a large amount of labor.

According to the man in the restaurant, the name of Romney was taken from a town in England, and the name of the county of which Romney is the county-seat, was taken from Hampshire, a county in England.

The story is that Lord Fairfax, seeing a fine drove of hogs in Winchester, asked whence they came. He was told they were raised in the South Branch Valley. He then observed that when a new county was formed embracing that vicinity it should be called Hampshire, because Hampshire in England produced fine hogs.

Hampshire county is the oldest in West Virginia, and was organized in 1757 as one of the counties of Virginia and was taken from Frederick and Augusta. It has an area of 641 square miles and a population of 11,800. The Northwestern Turnpike cuts across it for 35 miles.

A little beyond Romney you come upon an oil well in a field—or perhaps it is just the machinery by which somebody tried to sink an oil well. In either case, if you know West Virginia, it strikes you as a bit odd and lonesome, for most of West Virginia's oil and gas wells are located much nearer the Ohio.

Then you come to the South Branch of the Potomac and a little further on you find a road that will take you up the South Branch Valley to Franklin, Petersburg and Moorefield. In the struggle between the North and the South, there was much bitterness of feeling in this section. The people on the South Branch were in sympathy with the Southern cause, while those farther west in the mountains were not.

And perhaps right here is a good place to mention that whilc the war was the occasion for the separation of West Virginia from the mother state it was not the cause of it. Even before the Revolution there was talk of such a separation, for the two parts of the State had little in common. The people in the eastern part were planters and held many slaves; the people in the western part were trappers and woodsmen and craftsmen of various kinds and neither needed or wanted slaves—except, of course, a few for household servants. The people in the eastern part of the state were rich; most of those in the western part were pioneers, and poor. Most of those in the eastern part were of English descent and of the same religious denomination; those in the western part were of several nationalities and religions. There were other matters on which there was a difference of opinion, due to the different conditions under which the people lived.

The people of the South Branch Valley leaned toward the people of Eastern Virginia. Many of them had originally come from Eastern Virginia and had kept in close touch with the people back home. Besides, they did their trading in Winchester. There was a road from Moorfield to Winchester early in the history of the valley. The people in Western Virginia were more inclined to turn their faces and their thoughts toward the Ohio.

Someone complains because prize-fighters make more money than senators. But to make money prize-fighters have to do something more than talk.

It is said that in some parts of rural Russia they use farm produce for money. Wonder what you could buy with a peck of spinach?

The employment situation is looking up. Just figure how many idle umpires and home run hitters have gone back to work this month.

ADDED TALKING ATTRACTIONS NIGHTLY

"Much More FOR OUR MONEY AT $4.38 A MONTH"

ELECTRICITY gives us much more for our money in comfort, convenience and pleasant living. It speeds the ironing and cleaning . . . keeps our food at safe, even cold . . . lets us enjoy such appliances as toaster, waffle iron, percolator and fan.

Then, in addition, it provides abundant, good light. Do you wonder that we think this is a great return for the $4.38 that we spend in an average month for about 88 kilowatt hours of current?—Mrs. H. L. R. (a Monongahela customer — Clarksburg).

In addition to these electrical conveniences, Mrs. H. L. R. could enjoy also that of electric cooking by using approximately 130 more kilowatt hours. Since she is using 88 kilowatt hours, the additional 130 would cost her $3.05. In 1924, this total of 218 kilowatt hours (which now cost $7.45) would have cost her $14.33.

It is our policy not only to decrease the cost of current, step by step, with increased consumption, but to study constantly how to improve our service.

Worked Hard and Kept Clean

By LEETE STONE

(WNU Service.)

BILLY MILES lived away up in the backwooda country of Maine; he and his widowed mother. The farm was not particularly productive; hnt they managed to eke out a scanty living, enough for necessities, from their large timber holdings, selling cordwood and now and then white pine on the stump to a neighboring mill.

Billy was a lot the sort of yonth that Lincoln must have been in character and mental bent. Physically he was almost as tall; filled ont more symmetrically, and a much handsomer man in a rngged yet classic way. They had always lived too far from a school to make it practical for Billy to go, and besides, as a youngster, when his father was alive, there had always been too mncb work for him to do.

All Billy knew he had dug ont for himself from books he sent away for with every dollar that conld be spared. He was both a dreamer and a doer, and he meant to make something of himself or know the reason why. There were few days that passed dnring which Billy did not call to mind his father's last faint, frail words, as the hoy bent over his bedside:

"Billy, you've—nothing to worry about. Keep clean, work and stndy hard and some day you may be pleasantly surprised."

And that is just what Billy had done. At twenty-one he was the equal, and in many practical ways the superior, in intelligence and knowledge that counts, of any inexperienced college man.

That summer there appeared on the horizon of Billy's life the supreme incentive. A little aristocrat; the prodnct of high lineage, wealth nnd every advantage that culture provides. And, strange to relate, this girl with the fascinating eyes and smile had come through it all sweet and true, and with a proper sense of values. She was summering .t her father's beautiful camp on Moosehorn lake; a few miles from Billy's farm.

There were a number of prominent people's campa snrrounding the diminutive triangular beach of the lake; and Billy had secured the job of general utility man for the summer. Dnring bathing hours he was life guard at the little beach—the water was bitterly cold, and already he had dashed in for several who had got a sndden cramp. He made camp life poasible for these people who were not inured to its rigors.

And in doing so, he and Virginia Valley became almost constant companions. His magnetic vitality, gentle charm, and self-tanght cultnre stirred her more than she was willing to admit. As for Billy, he silently worshiped her; frankly facing, however, the nndeniable fact that for him, a penniless backwoodsman, to aspire to the hand of a New York debntante was about the most ridiculous thing in the world.

Bnt often there would flash in his mind the pictnre of Hercnles, cleaning the Angean stables snccessfully. Nothing was impossible. His father's last words came back to him freqnently these days: "work and stndy hard—keep clean—and some day yon may be pleasantly surprised. So Billy never let the slender shaft of light that we call Hope flicker ont within him.

Virginia and Billy played abont; fished and a swam together all that snmmer until the day came for the departure of the Valley family. Billy sought out Mr. Valley, a notable New York lawyer.

"Mr. Valley, I've arranged for my mother to be in town for a year at least. I want to he a lawyer. Haven't you some sort of job in your firm I conld have while I'm studying nights and all spare time?"

Rudolf Valley wasted no words.

"I think I have, yonng man. I like yonr grit. Here's my card. Come in as soon as yon get in town."

And that was Billy's big step np. Mr. Valley gave him a position which involved general research, while the boy studied to fit himself for a clerkship. Billy literally ate work. He was indomitable; for he had vowed he would he a member of the bar in five years.

That year Billy seldom saw Virginia, except when she stopped at his desk for a smiling "Hello, there" on her way out from her father's office. Bnt her face was the shining torch toward which he strove. She it was he dreamed and worked for. As for Virginia, she lived her life of fashton; hut always, instinctively she turned a deaf ear to the pleas of her blooded suitors—waiting—waiting.

Then the great day, the day Rndolf Valley called Billy into his private sanctum and said:

"I want you to read that clipping and sign this paper, Billy."

Billy fingered the tiny clipping.

"Next of kin to William A. Miles please communicate Blanks; solicitors; London."

"Well, sir?" Billy's voice puzzled.

"You're his son. I saw this a month ago in the Times. Took it up, my boy—as a little surprise for you. Sign this," he extended a formidable document, "and you'll possess $2,000,000. By the way, want you to come out to dinner with me tonight. Virginia's been at me for a month to ask yon."

Billy stood limply, white and shaken. He finally murmured: "So that's what father meant!"

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE INTERDENOMINATIONAL SCHOOL OF MISSIONS HELD AT MT. LAKE PARK JULY 31-AUG. 6, 1931

By ALICE PARKER HALL

The announcement made at the last evening scssion of the Mountain Lake Park School of Missions that Mrs. F. I. Johnson, program chairman for the past four years, would return in this capacity for another year, was received with long and loud applause by the large gathering present, attesting to the love and esteem in which she is held, not only by the members of the school who are at the Park for the week only, but the summer colony and year 'round residents who help make up the evening audiences.

The Camp Gleam girls also greeted with enthusiastic delight the news that Miss Anna Shaw, of Severna, Md., would again direct the activities of the camp for next year.

Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, of Oakland, who has been local chairman for the school since 1927, and has worked tirelessly and unceasingly for its success, felt that she must retire this year, and her resignation was received with deep regret by her coworkers and many friends. After announcing the return of Mrs. Johnson and Miss Shaw, she introduced her successor, Mrs. C. Richard Hall, of Fairmont, who responded by paying a deserved tribute to the faithful and efficient leadership of Mrs. Sincell, under whose tutelage she said she had been taking training for several years, and upon whom she would depend for counsel in the future.

Although relinquishing the chairmanship of the school, she will still be a member of the executive board in two important capacities, as the list of officers will show, for she was elected treasurer and a member of the advisory committee. Other officers elected for the coming year include: Corresponding and recording secretary, Mrs. H. O. Smith, Parkersburg, W. Va.; registrar, Mrs. J. M. Knight, Charleston, W. Va.; director publicity, Miss Sarah E. Evans, Fairmont, W. Va.; secretary of literature, Miss Della Sherman, Baltimore, Md.; chairman of music, Mrs. E. W. Yates, Cumberland, Md.; chairman courtesy committee, Mrs. Elizabeth Talson, Mountain Lake Park, Md.; advisory committee, Mrs. E. L. Davidson, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Mrs. B. H. Sincell, Oakland, Md.; Mrs. A. A. Richards, Mountain Lake Park.

Mrs. J. L. Stratton, of New Castle, Pa., who has been treasurer of the school for the past sixteen years, was compelled to resign on account of ill health, and her help and presence was greatly missed. Other retiring officers are Mrs. C. Richard Hall, corresponding secretary and director of publicity; Mrs. Levi B. Harr, recording secretary, and Mrs. A. A. Richards, registrar.

The duties of the two secretaries will be combined, with Mrs. H. O. Smith in charge of the work.

A Growing Interest in the School

It required no stretch of the imagination on the part of those in attendance at the school this year to say, with the cheery little French philosopher, Coue:

"Every day, in every way,
The school is getting better and better."

For that was actually true, and when the climax was reached on Thursday night, with a most inspiring program presented by the girls of Camp Gleam under the direction of Miss Shaw, before a large and appreciative audience, and closing with a beautiful pageant, "The Message of the Cross," presented by the Girl Scouts of Oakland, Md., wearing the beautiful and colorful costumes from the Orient, assisted by the Camp Gleam girls, who numbered in all about sixty, with their lighted candles, formed a cross above which hung an electrically lighted cross, presenting truly a message of the cross in service, there was a general feeling that the school just closed had been, in many respects, the best one ever held, and all were made to feel more keenly than they had ever felt before their responsibility toward their fellowmen.

Instructors and Speakers

Mrs. Johnson, who, with Dr. Johnson, has just recently completed a ten months' tour of the Orient, brought to her lectures given at the night sessions, and to the review of the Foreign Missionary text-book, "Christ Comes to the Village," a wealth of information and inspiration gained first-hand in her travels, which will prove invaluable to her interested and attentive listeners when they, in turn, try to interpret to the societies at home the real needs and aspirations of the peoples in Oriental lands.

Mrs. Dan B. Brummitt, of Evanston, Ill., in her usual forceful and interesting manner, reviewed the Home Mission study book, "The Challenge of Change," by John Milton Moore. This book is appropriately titled, for it presents a real challenge to the thought and effort of Christian men and women to do their part in bringing about adjustments in social, religious and economic conditions that will help to meet the need of a changing world, and Mrs. Brummitt, who does not confine herself entirely to the "text" left her class plenty of food for thought which she had gathered from various sources. She also gave a splendid address on Home Missions at an evening session, which was based on travel and research.

Nowhere, perhaps, can be found a leader of Junior Methods who can surpass Mra. C. K. Lippard, of Philadelphia, a charming and deeply spiritual little woman, who, with her husband, served for twenty-five years as a missionary in Japan, and who, because of illness in her family, is now living in this country. In addition to her methods she gave an illustrated lecture on Japan at a night meeting and reviewed the Junior study book for the coming year, which is entitled "Open Windows." She made this book fairly alive with beauty and interest for workers with young people, and fortunate indeed will be the boys and girls who will benefit by the methods outlined by Mrs. Lippard for presentation of this delightful book.

With youth, personality and charm as a background, Mrs. William W. Grant, of Oakland, quickly won the hearts and attention of her hearers when she gave a well prepared and logical outline of "Story Technique," which was followed by a series of stories and readings that were admirably adapted to the use of both youth and adult groups.

The practical application of the teachings found in God's Word to everyday life, interspersed with bits of Christian philosophy gained from her own rich and varied personal experience, constituted the splendid talks given each day by Dr. Harriet B. Jones, of Glendale, West Va. She took for her general subject "The Christ Life," and each day discussed some phase of Christian living or the things that are essential to the development of Christian character. Both young and old listened intently to her helpful and instructive messages.

Besides the regular instructors already named quite a number of other speakers appeared on the program during the course of the week. These included Miss Lily Grace Matheson, field secretary for the National W. C. T. U.; Mrs. Nina M. Hardy, director of the department of Temperance and Missions of the West Virginia W. C. T. U., of Morgantown; Dr. William M. Danner, secretary of American Mission to Lepers, of New York City; Miss Edythe Lowery, Secretary of Council of Women for Home Missions, of New York City, who talked on "Migrant Work in the United States"; Mrs. Frances Clark Krug, of Baltimore, a former missionary to China, and Mrs. D. W. Lewellyn, of Morgantown, W. Va., whose son is a missionary in India. Mrs. Wesley A. Miller, of the Holloway Deaconess Home, Bridgeport, Ohio, a returned missionary from the Congo in Africa, told a thrilling experience of slavery and the cruelty inflicted upon these people by the slave traders.

Other features of the program were demonstrations, pageants and special musical numbers, which were contributed by members of the school and Camp Gleam, and all of which added much to the pleasure and profit of the sessions. Soloists who gave freely of their talent included Mrs. E. C. Rowand, of Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. J. Wayne Martin, of Uniontown, and her sister, Mrs. John Parks, of Gormania, W. Va., and Mrs. Wilmer, of Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Yates, of Cumberland, the pianist, always delights her audience with her music and in giving and finding talent ready and willing to supply the needs of the school.

An Oriental Tea

Oakcrest, the spacious home of Mrs. A. A. Richards, near the auditorium, made a beautiful setting for the lovely tea held on Thursday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, at which time the large and attractive collection of curios and other articles brought by Dr. and Mrs. Johnson from the Orient, were on display.

The receiving rooms and porches were artistically decorated with roses and Queen Anne's lace contributed by Weber's. The tea table, from which fruit punch and assorted cakes were served, was arranged on the side porch, and it was covered with an Italian lace cloth, over pink, and the color scheme was further carried in the large bowl of roses which served as the central decoration. The entire affair, which proved a great success both from an educational and social standpoint, was in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. E. L. Davidson, Mrs. E. L. Winchell, Miss Margaret Tytle, Miss Mabel Wyant, Miss Ida King and Mrs. Richards. Mrs. Johnson added much to the interest of the display by telling of the origin of the articles, and relating incidents connected with them.

A silver offering was taken during the afternoon and this will be sent to the Health Center, Seoul, Korea, for the purchase of a milk sterilizer. This institution is interdenominational.

Camp Gleam.

A report of the school would never be complete without giving a resume of the activities of Camp Gleam, and this can best be given by one who has been intimately associated with it, so we are initiating our new director of publicity, Miss Sarah Evans, by giving her the assignment of covering the Camp. She has a very intimate knowledege of life in Camp Gleam, both from the standpoint of one of the girls and as counselor, for she attended the camp for several years before being graduated from the rank of camper to that of counsellor.

Here mention should be made of the lovely floral decorations which transformed the auditorium into a bower of beauty, for there we saw gathered many lovely wild flowers artistically arranged by Mrs. Winchell and Mrs. E. L. Davidson, and which called forth words of admiration and praise of those in attendance during the sessions.

CAMP GLEAM AS SEEN FROM THE "INNER CIRCLE."

By SARAH ELIZABETH EVANS

"Living for Jesus" became a reality to the forty-eight girls in attendance at Camp Gleam, where, under the remarkable leadership of Miss Anna Shaw, of Severna, Md., Jesus Christ became a truly intimate Friend in their daily lives—from Morning Watch, through classes and playtime, until in the prayer groups held at the close of the evening sessions, each girl whispered good-night to God in her own way.

During the morning hours Camp Gleam joined in the class schedule of the adult school and enjoyed Dr. Harriet Jones' inspirational Bible talks; methods taught by the capable Mrs. Lippard, and the charming stories told by Mra. Grant. Mrs. Elsie Clark Krug, of Baltimore, presented most interestingly the foreign textbook, "The Rural Billion," while Mrs. Brummitt, who taught the home textbook in the adult school, captivated the girls with her lively interpretation of "God and the Census."

Youth's excess energy must be worked off somehow, and in the afternoons Camp Gleamers swam, played baseball, hiked, ping-ponged and other games in an attempt to win the coveted green and gold letters of felt, which were presented to a number of girls at the second annual Rainbow Banquet held on the last evening at camp. Announcement was made at the banquet that Ruth Dean, of Grafton, had been chosen by the girls as best typifying the "Spirit of Camp Gleam." Miss Virginia Cooley, of Charleston, was toastmistress at the affair, which was attractively arranged by the Misses Katharine Jones and Anna Schaultz, assisted by a committee of campers.

Then, too, there was the all-day trip to beautiful Swallow Falls, where certainly it was easy to find God in Nature. On their return, the girls sang their way around the Park on their annual lantern processional, one of the loveliest and most colorful events of the week.

On the last evening when everybody was reluctantly thinking of home, a never-to-be-forgotten candlelight service was held at Camp Gleam when each girl lit from the tall glistening taper symbolic of the light of Christ, her own wee light and pledged herself to follow His gleam. Preceding this service Mrs. J. Wayne Martin, of Uniontown, sang two solos.

Counsellors assisting Miss Shaw at Camp Gleam included Miss Anna Schaultz, of Frederick, Md., and the Misses Katharine Jones and Sarah Evans, of Fairmont, W. Va.

The spirit permeating the camp was most cooperative and this camp, the largest in the school's history, closed with each girl returning to her home with the essence of the Gleam which is to be her guide in months and years to come, in her heart.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

After breaking camp, I was sure I would have a thought or two to express, but my mind evidently has become expressionless. So I got Bill Butt to write an essay on hair, or the human cooling system, and here it is:

"A hair in the head is worth two in the comb, or on your shoulder, any old day in the year. With the help of Noah Fleshcob I have made some wonderful discoveries. It's appalling the number of good whiskers that are lost each morning. Man gives off heat in hot weather and hair grows faster in hot weather, therefore whiskers are given to man to radiate this heat. Whiskers not only save the expense of a necktie but act as an awning to prevent sunburn, a hide-out for revealing facial expressions and are convenient soup strainers. From experience I can say that a baldheaded man spends a lot of time mopping up water that's squeezed out of his head during hot weather, while these hairy apes have their skin cooled by nature.

" Most hot-headed men, you'll find are bald, and usually, too bald. Believe me, if I had my hair-cooled motor back again I would keep it, in spite of dandruff and exzema. What fools these mortals be to keep shaving off the original noiseless, costless, lifetime cooling system.

"I'd be in the House of David now if I hadn't been blackballed for being too bald."

UNCLE SAM AND LATIN-AMERICA

Throughout Latin-America the one big obstacle to chronic revolution has been the belief that the United States intended, in order to protect the Monroe Doctrine, to keep order in this hemisphere. Today the danger of disorder is greater than ever, because of the known fact, as published in the official communist press, that Soviet Russia has centers of revolutionary intrique in every Latin-American country, and that the chief purpose of this activity is to array the rest of the western hemisphere against the United States. President Machado, of Cuba, stated only what is an established truth when he declared in a radio address a month ago that back of the attempted uprising, the dynamitings and the attempted assassinations in Cuba was the world-wide conspiracy centering in Moscow. It is not surprising to learn that the Honduras uprising was a communist-led affair. The situation constitutes a strong additional reason for American firmness and vigilance at this time, in order that we may avoid more serious trouble.

Theodore Roosevelt declared that the United States had a vital interest in protecting all nations which commanded or affected the approaches to the Panama Canal. This especially means Nicaraugua, for there the United States is now conducting a survey, with a view to building, under treaty, a second isthmian canal.

Those who demand that the United States abandon all effort to save Latin-America from being plunged into the horrors of armed revolution and exploitation by military adventures, speak in no spirit of friendship to Latin-America or the United States. For the masses of the people in these countries are the chief victims of the irresponsibile military adventurers who live on loot and pillage, and who seek to rule only in order that they may enrich themselves and satisfy their lust for power.

It is customary for anti-Americans in the United States to inveigh against American capital invested in Latin-America. But foreign capital affords the only hope of that development in most of these countries which offers the prospect of orderly civilization or a decent standard of living for the masses. Some of this hostility to the United States is bought and paid for by European industrial powers which seek to destroy American commercial relations with Latin-America. It is a significant fact that one American national organization with a high-sounding name implying peace and piety, has printed pamphlets in Spanish which make inflammatory attacks on the United States and had these circulated in Mexico, Central America and South America in an effort to fan the flames of hatred of the United States.

It is unfortunately true that the masses of Latin-Americans have been trained first by Spain, and then by their own leaders, to respect only one argument, and that is force. Any failure by the United States to take a firm stand and back it up, in behalf of the doctrine that the person and legitimately acquired property of Americans must be respected, will invite serious consequences, because it will be taken to mean that we are afraid to protect American life and property. Ylelding to the pressure of those who would permit the taking of American lives and the seizure and destruction of American investments, will only hasten the time when the United States, for its own safety, will be compelled to take drastic naval and military measures on a large scale. Incidentally it would seriously affect American prosperity since we cannot permit the confiscation of large mining, agriculture and industrial investments without destroying returns from American enterprises operating there, and American trade which keeps hundreds of thousands of Americans busy in a commerce which profits Latin-America more than it does us.

The Cooperation of All Parties at the Park Is Asked By This Correspondent so That the Town May Improve and Larger Numbers of People Be Attracted to it.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

A meeting for the purpose of reorganizing the old Haymakers' Rifle team was held in Oakland on August 15. The team was so successful under Colonel Wardwell that Colonel Pearre was anxious for a complete reorganization. In the afternoon an impromptu rifle match was held, the range being 200 yards and the following took part: James Painter, William T. Steyer, T. H. Kimmell, J. F. Browning, R. S. Browning, R. T. Browning, George A. Pearre, R. S. Jamison, P. A. Chisholm, Samuel Johnson and William Newman.

Two men mounted on bicycles passed through Grantsville over the National Highway on Tuesday. They claimed to have left Pittsburgh on Sunday and were enroute to Baltimore.

Blackberries were selling in the Oakland market at fifteen cents a gallon.

A branch organization of the Baltimore Building and Loan Association was formed in Oakland with the following officers: E. H. Bartlett, president; John W. Hart, vice-president; John T. Mitchell, secretary; Gilmor S. Hamill, attorney. The directors were E. Z. Tower, G. S. Hamill, E. N. Casteel, D. E. Bolden, J. M. Litzinger, J. D. Hamill and William Hinebaugh.

Almost every day the town ordinance prohibiting fast riding or fast driving through the streets was being violated by someone, more especially by colored grooms having charge of horses brought here by summer visitors. It was remarked as being a dangerous practice.

At the Sunday morning service at St. Patrick's church, Cumberland, Rev. W. J. Brennan announced to the congregation that Rev. Thomas J. Stanton, of Oakland, had been appointed assistant pastor of the church. The pastor had alone performed the labors incident to the pastorate for two and a half years. An appeal to Cardinal Gibbons at Eastertime for an assistant resulted in the appointment of Rev. Fr. Stanton.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Charles E. Hilleary, 51, was found dead in a field on his farm. Indications were that he had shot himself. Mr. Hilleary was a prominent Republican of the county and had been a member of the Maryland Legislature. His interests were varied, for besides being a farmer on an extensive scale he was a stockman and was interested in financial institutions in the county. His death was sincerely regretted by his many friends, especially those in Oakland where he was well and favorably known.

Ralph Thayer, who was a graduate from the engineering department of the West Virginia University, Morgantown, was employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Maintenance of Way department and stationed at Pittsburgh.

Luther J. Brown, James Painter and George Pool were Democratic candidates for sheriff at the primary election, while the Republican candidates were C. A. Ashby, W. D. Dixon, L. H. Friend, W. A. Maffett, Bert C. Scott and George D. White.

An Interesting Fact

NEWS GATHERING PROGRESS

We venture the assertion that but few readers of this article have noticed the line carried on the editorial page of the Baltimore Sun, which reads, "Published by the A. S. Abell Company," or, if noticed, that it does not recall the step by step progress and development of news gathering and its presentation on the printed page in Maryland.

It will be recalled that the Maryland Gazette was founded in 1727 at Annapolis, and that the news presented to its readers was many days and sometimes months old, through no fault, of course, of the editor and those connected with the mechanical department of the paper.

Passing over the century in which there was no marked progress in news dissemination, we find that in 1833 there was established by the Baltimore merchants what might truly be called the first wireless signal system. This consisted of a watch tower located on Bodkin Point at the mouth of the Patapsco River, 14 miles from the city, from which vessels bearing a registered signal were sighted approximately 30 miles below that point and that fact flashed to "Telegraph Tower," situated on Federal Hill. From there the news was relayed to the dome of the Exchange. By this adaptation of the Indian signal fires, merchants were informed of the approach of their vessels when they were yet a distance of 40 miles from the harbor.

Then about the year 1837, there appeared in Baltimore a penny newspaper, established and published by Arunah S. Abell, called The Sun. Its advent marked the beginning of improved methods in the gathering of the news of the day. Mr. Abell established a "pony express" between Baltimore and Washington and later extended this method of "flashing" the news to include reports of the War with Mexico. Supplementing the work of the "pony express" Mr. Abell employed large numbers of carrier pigeons. These enterprising and up-to-date methods of news gathering were emulated by other newspapers of that day.

Then in 1844, an amazing thing happened. The first telegraph line was constructed between Washington and Baltimore, over which was flashed the first message: "What hath God wrought." The "amazing speed of the galvanic fluid propelled thru wires," as then expressed, soon caused the other and slower methods of news gathering to be abandoned as antiquated, in the same manner as the radio is now supplanting, in many instances, the telegraph and the telephone. But Mr. Abell did not lag behind and was not slow in adopting the speedier methods, for it was on May 11, 1846, approximately two years after the first telegraph line was finished, that Mr. Abell's Sun paper transmitted the first Presidential message ever sent by wire—that of President Polk.

And now the telegraph seems slow in comparison with the radio. Within an instant, quick as the drawing of a breath, news of the old world is sent to the new and of the new to the old, and in a few minutes it appears on the printed page.

SCHOOL CHILDREN SHOULD HAVE TEETH INSPECTION

Those Taking Up Studies Should Be Free From Dental Trouble

In order that you may be certain that your six-year old daughter or son will start to school free from the discomfort and handicaps of teeth that need attention, take the children this week to your family dentist for an examination and for whatever needs to be done, is the advice of Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the State Department of Health, to mothers and fathers whose youngsters will enter school this fall.

"Very few parents realize," Dr. Leonard said, "that tooth decay is a disease and that children with decayed, that is, diseased, teeth are actually ill children. Diseased teeth can set up a train of troubles that ultimately can undermine the health of the entire system.

"Even if the child is apparently free from tooth troubles, every growing girl and boy should be taken to the dentist at least twice a year. It saves time and trouble for one of these visits to be made before school opens. These regular visits will give the dentist an opportunity to note the condition of the mouth, to make corrections necessary to keep the teeth in good condition, and to safeguard the teeth so that they can perform the function for which they are intended, that is, to chew the food.

"Children who are just starting in to school need particularly careful inspection. They have their first or 'baby' teeth, and these teeth have several years service before them. Baby teeth should have as much care as is given to the permanent teeth. Then, in addition, the first-grader has probably just 'cut' the six year molars, the first of the permanent teeth. These teeth are four of the most important we have, and they should be most carefully safeguarded. Dentists call them the keystones of the dental arch.

"While you are having the children's teeth attended to, remember that these regular visits to the family dentist are just as important for the older boys and girls, as for the youngsters. See that they, too, start in to school this fall, with their teeth in as healthy condition as possible. Boys and girls who are going away to school or college should by all means visit the family dentist before they go.

"You want to remember, also, that no matter how well the dentist does his work, there are other factors that play an important part in keeping the mouth healthy. Tooth building food, is one of them. Milk, green, leafy vegetables, and fresh fruits, contain the substances that help to build the teeth capable of resisting decay. They should be included in the child's diet every day. And don't forget to give some hard foods to chew on, like crusty bread and toast, so that the teeth will get proper exercise.

"Another essential in keeping the mouth healthy is the thorough cleansing of the mouth. This should be done at least twice a day—before breakfast and before going to bed. Even a very small child can acquire that habit.

"Teachers all agree that the well child is not only the happy child, but is the one who makes the best progress in school. You will find that a healthy mouth has a gret deal to do with your child's health and happiness, and progress in school."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fundenberg, of Portland, Oregon, arrived in Oakland yesterday from their home in that city and are guests of Mrs. Eliza Fundenberg and Miss Thekla Fundenberg. They expect to remain here for ten days or longer. Mr. Fundenberg left Oakland many years ago and is a prosperous machinery dealer in the state of his adoption. His many acquaintances and friends in Garrett county will be pleased to learn of his presence here.

Mrs A. B. Leamer, of Charleston, West Va., who, with her husband, Dr. Leamer and daughter, Miss Ruth Leamer, spent Sunday, the 9th of August in Oakland with Mr. and Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, was killed in an automobile accident at a point in Iowa while returning home from a trip to points in Canada. Mrs. Leamer was elected president of the Women's Missionary Society of the Synod of West Virginia at a convention held in Grafton on June 16.

Miss Sara Huff, of the Federal Extension Service, director of music for the festival to be held at Somerset, Pa. September 5 and 6, will meet the people who have any musical ability and desire to take part in the festival this Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock in the M. E. church, Oakland. Miss Huff will direct the songs to be sung at the festival. Everyone invited, including those residing in the Deer Park, Loch Lynn and Ryan's Glade sectlons of the county.

St. Mark's Brotherhood held its August meeting Tuesday evening with Truman Bittinger, president. Final arrangements were made to entertain the Brotherhood Rally Sunday afternoon and evening, September 13, when the local Brotherhood members will have as their guests the men of the Brotherhoods of Clarksburg, Grafton, Morgantown and Fairmont. The afternoon rally will begin at 3:45, with discussions and a business session. Supper will be served at six o'clock by the men of St. Mark's. At the evening session Dean H. E. Stone, of the University of West Virginia, will probably be the speaker.

MARRIED

Speicher—Lawson—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Methodist Protestant church at Waynesburg, Pa., on Friday afternoon, August 14, when Miss Magdalena Holmes Lawson, of Bridgeport, W. Va., became the bride of Mr. John Arthur Speicher, of Accident. The ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Paul Holden. Mr. James Davis at the pipe organ played Lohengrin's Wedding March and during the ceremony he played "Call Me Thine Own."

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of flat crepe and lace and accessories to match.

Mrs. Speicher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse G. Lawson, of Bridgeport, W. Va., and a graduate of Western Maryland College. She has taught for several years in high schools in both Maryland and West Virginia. Mr. Speicher is the son of the late Jonas Speicher and Mrs. Allie Speicher, of Accident, and a graduate of Frostburg State Normal school. He has been teaching at Williamsport, Md., and this year will be located at Hagerstown.

Those who attended the ceremony were Mrs. Allie Speicher, mother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Jesse G. Lawson, mother of the bride; Miss Mary Speicher, Miss Grace Speicher, Miss Nelle Speicher, Miss Ruth Speicher, Clayton Speicher, James and Jane Browning.

After the ceremony the couple left for Niagara Falls and a trip through portions of Canada and other northern points. They will be at home to their friends in Hagerstown after September 1.

Boger Family Reunion Held at Ryan's Glades

Descendants and friends of the Boger family gathered at the Ryan's Glade Grange Hall, August 15 for their annual reunion. One hundred attended from Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland. The following program was much enjoyed by all, after which a very bountiful picnic dinner was served:

JOSEPH H. M'ROBIE

Joseph H. McRobie, aged 66 years, died Sunday morning at 2:45 o'clock at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. Death was due to pneumonia following an abdominal operation. He was taken to the institution on Thursday morning preceding his death.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home, Rev. Bernard Gibbs, of Terra Alta, W. Va., officiating, assisted by Rev. J. D. Dawson, of the Oakland M. E. church. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery, with members of the Knights of Pythlas in charge. The deceased had been a member of the organization for many years.

He is survived by his wife and nine children: Gordon, Coral, Clara, William and Austin, of Oakland; Mrs. J. T. Rush, of Detroit, Mich.; Wyant McRobie, of Luke; Loree McRobie, of Washington, D. C., and Walter McRobie, of New York City.

Mr. McRobie was born at McHenry, Garrett county, in 1865 and spent his life in the county. He was a lineman for the old Garrett County Telephone Company for about 18 years and for the past eight years was employed by the H. Weber & Sons Co., florists, of Oakland.

The pallbearers, members of the Knights of Pythias lodge, were Floyd Stahl, E. R. Jones, William Turney, Paul Kemphfer, W. Z. Hendrickson and W. M. Mann.

MISS SABINA BLOCHER

Funeral services for Miss Sabina Blocher, 61 years old, of Grantsville, who died Sunday night at the Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, were held from St. Stephen's Catholic church in Grantsville yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock. A requiem mass was solemnized by Rev. Father Cuthbert, of Cumberland, and Rev. Fr. Brady, of Meyersdale. Interment was made in St. Michael's cemetery, Frostburg.

Miss Blocher was the daugter of the late Wesley and Ellen Blocher, and is survived by one sister, Miss Mary Blocher, and three brothers, Urban O. and V. Llewellyn Blocher, all of Grantsville, and Frank Blocher, of Wayne, Mich.

Miss Blocher was stricken with pneumonia at her home, Dixie Tavern, near Grantsville, several days before being removed to Allegany Hospital on August 12. The Misses Blocher operated Dixie Tavern at Little Crossings for a number of years. The deceased sister was well known in the Grantsville section where she was highly esteemed for her many sterling qualities.

MRS. MARY JANE SCHWARTZ

Mrs. Mary Jane Schwartz, wife of A. F. Schwartz, of Gormania, W. Va., died at her home there of a complication of diseases. She was aged 62 years, 3 months and 4 days.

Funeral services were held this afternoon from the Gormania M. E. church, and interment was made at Red House. Mrs. Schwartz is survived by her husband and three children, Austin, Peter and Mrs. Emmett Williams, all of Gormania.

MRS. ANNA FRAZEE

Mrs. Anna Frazee, 71, wife of Lafayette Frazee, of Friendsville, died yesterday at her home there. Funeral services will be held in the Friendsville Methodist Episcopal church on Friday, August 21, at 2:00 p. m. The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Noah Humberson, who resided during their lifetime in the vicinity of Friendsville.

GUY D'WITT

Funeral services for Guy W. DeWitt, who dropped dead on Tuesday of last week at Elder Hill, near Friendsville, while engaged in working in the woods, were held from the M. E. church at Kingwood, W. Va., on August 13. Rev. T. E. Maness, pastor, conducted the rites and interment was made in the Kingwood cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his wife and five children.

Mrs. Berne Teter was hostess to the Thrsday night bridge club at her home on Alder street last evening. Five tables were in play, a number of guests being present.

Library Benefit Entertainment At Local High School

The people of Oakland will have an opportunity to attend an entertainment of unusual interest and merit on Friday evening, August 28, at the high school auditorium. Mrs. J. Gordon Mealy, of Baltimore, and other vocalists, will sing, and Misses Bolgiano, of Baltimore and Mountain Lake Park, will give an exhibition of dancing. Mr. W. B. Burruss, widely known as a speaker and lecturer, will entertain. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of the Free Public Library, and it is earnestly hoped that the auditorium will be filled to capacity to help this eminently worthy community organization. Everyone may enjoy the books from this library and all are asked to come and help to assure its continuance. The admission charge to the entertainment will be 25 cents and 50 cents.

Garrett County First Aid Teams To Compete

Entries for the State First Aid Meet, which will be held at Frostburg next Saturday afternoon on the Beall High School athletic field, have been placed with Frank Powers, district mine inspector.

The Union Mining Company Team No. 1, of Mount Savage, is comprised of the same group that has participated in meets for the past seven years, and is a logical contender for the silver cup which will be presented by Governor Albert C. Ritchie, as well as the State championship trophy.

Crellin Baseball Nine Breaks Even During Past Week

During the past ten days Crellin has been able to keep even in the race for honors in the second half of the Preston County Baseball League, and now is in third place, a game and a half behind the leader, Rowlesburg. Crellin has three games to be played with Rowlesburg and if able to more than break even has a fine chance to cop honors in the second half. Crellin lost to Tunnelton 1-0, and Rowlesburg 5-2 in the last four games played The Tunnelton game was a pretty pitching duel between Shaffer of Crellin and Braithwood, former Keyser B. & O. pitcher, now with Tunnelton. It was Shaffer's first loss of the season. Melouse was the losing pitcher against Rowlesburg on Friday but he evened this defeat by scoring a shutout over Borgman on Sunday by the score of 13-0.

Crellin's other win was over Newburg. Don Colaw pitched his first game since June, when he suffered a fractured arm, and let the Newburg sluggers down with seven hits and retired eight on strikeouts.

Crellin's next three games will be of importance, having one game with Rowlesburg and two with Tunnelton. Crellin will not play at home on Sunday, August 23, but will play Tunnelton on Friday evening at 5:30 on the local field.

Lesson for August 23

A GOSPEL FOR ALL MEN

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18.
GOLDEN TEXT—For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Gospel for Everybody.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Gospel for Everybody.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—First Steps in World Brotherhood.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel for All Men.

In the lesson for August 2 we saw the missionary program of the church broadened to include the Samaritans. We see in this lesson the program still widening and embracing the Gentiles. The conversion of Cornelius illustrates the breaking down of "the middle wall of partition" (Eph. 2:14).

I. Cornelius (10:1, 2).

1. His official position (v. 1). He was a Roman officer over a company of one hundred soldiers.

2. His character (v. 2). a. A devout, pious man. b. A praying man. c. A charitable man.

II. The Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-33).

1. Two visions were given (vv. 3-16). (a). The vision of Cornelius (vv. 3-8). While engaged in prayer an angel of God announced that his prayer and alms had come before God as a memorial and instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter who would tell him what to do. (b). The vision of Peter (vv. 9-16). This took place while Peter was praying (v. 9). He saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, "Rise Peter, kill and eat." This vision indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high.

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22). Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for messengers from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.

3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33). (a). Peter took six witnesses along (v. 23). He had the good judgment to know that on a matter of so great importance he must have witnesses. (b). Cornelius waiting for Peter (v. 24). He had such confidence in God's instruction that he called together his kinsmen and friends to be ready on Peter's arrival. (c). Cornelius about to worship Peter (vv. 25, 26). Peter repudiated his act and protested that he himself was but a man. (d). The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33). Peter explained to him how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudice and asked why Cornelius had sent for him. Cornelius explained that God had instructed him to send for Peter.

III. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43).

1. The introduction (vv. 34, 35). He showed that God is no respecter of persons but that in every nation those that fear God and work righteousness are accepted of him. This does not mean that Cornelius was already in a state of grace, and therefore saved, but that he was eligible to hear the gospel and accept the terms of salvation.

2. His discourse (vv. 36-43). In the discourse he touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus, showing that by means of his baptism and the anointing of the Holy Spirit he was qualified for his work as mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ: (a). In his life (vv. 36-38). He went about doing good, even casting out demons as a proof that God was with him. (b). In his death (v. 39). The just suffered for the unjust that he might bring us to God (1 Pet. 3:18). (c). In his resurrection (vv. 40, 41). God raised him up the third day showing openly that Christ was his Son (Rom. 1:4) and that his sacrificial work was satisfactory (Rom. 4:25). In this discourse is set forth (1) The basis of salvation—the crucifixion of Christ. (2) The scope of salvation—whosoever believeth in him. (3) The method of appropriating salvation—believing on him.

IV. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (vv. 44-48).

This was a new Pentecost. As the gospel was entering upon its widest mission, the Spirit came in new power.

V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18).

Being called to account for having visited and eaten with Gentiles, Peter rehearsed the whole story showing how God had set his seal upon the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

Ingratitude

The saddest example of ingratitude is the poverty of the thankfulness of those who are, in some measure, thankful for God's greatest gift. It is strange and melancholy that Christians should love, and love so little; should be thankful, and so tepid in it. —Alexander Maclaren.

The Heavenly Father's Love

Our heavenly Father is no Ell: He will not suffer his children to sin without rebuke. His love is too intense for that.—Spurgeon.

GORTNER

CHAPTER XLVII

The Thirty-second, Thirty-fifth, Forty-second and Seventy-seventh divisions were now in training under the recently organized Third corps. Especial effort waa being made to hasten their preparation in both staff and line in anticipation of an early call for more serious service.

I laspected these troops Jnne 19-22, 1918, and my impressions were favorable, althongh a number of officers were found unfamiliar witb the principles of tactical leadership. In such hastily trained nnits this was hardly snrprising, especially in view of the known defects of the instrnction at home.

Many were found with bnt slight appreciation of the natural defensive possibilities of a given position. Some battalion and even regimental commsnders had not thought to ascertain the exact location of tbeir front lines, and of course bad failed to work out the details of preparation against a possible attack.

My predilection for detailed instruction in minor tactics, growing out of my personal supervision of training in botb small and large nnits, led me quickly to discover deficiencies.

My diary notes the establishment of the militiary board of allied supply at this time, June 22, 1918. It was expected to study questions of supply and adopt proper measures for the coordinntion of nllied resources and utilities.

Col. Charles G. Dawes, who had charge in a more limited sphere of the co-ordination of our own supply departments, was detailed as the American member of the board.

Lauds Courage of Negro Troops.

Cables from the War department June 22 stated thnt the colored people at home were being told that negro soldiers in France were alwaya placed in the most dnngerous positions, belag sacrificed to save white troops, and were often left on the field to die without medical attention. It was not difficult to guess the origin of this sort of propaganda. As a matter of fact, none of these troops had been in line except in qniet sectors. Those I had recently seen were in fine spirits and seemed keen for active service.

The only colored combat troops in France were those of the Ninety-second division, then in a quiet sector in the Vosges, and the four infantry regiments of the Ninety-third, each attached to a French division. Several individuals serving with the French had already received the croix de guerre for conduct in raids.

Clemenceau at Chaumont.

Prime Minister Clemeneeau, General Foch and M. Andre Tardieu, witb Generals Weygand aad Mordneq, came to Chaumont June 23, 1918, for a conference on the increase of American man power.

M. Clemencean's popularity in France wns probably at its height. As this was his first visit to Chaumont the people turned out en niasse, crowded into the plaza and gnve him a ronsing welcome. His reception within the hotel de ville by the officials, civil and military, was marked by eloquent speeches. In his remnrks M. Clemenceau gave the people every encouragement, making special reference to the increasing forcea the Americans were sending over.

As we were leaving the widowed mother of a missiag soldier, her only son, came up in great distress and told M. Clemenceau of her sorrow. He spoke tenderly of her patriotic sacrifice, pnt his arm gently around her and kissed her cheeks, mingliag his tears with hers. The pathos of this tonched every heart.

As General Foch and the others were not arriving until later, M. Clemenceau and I, driving together, accompanied by Generals Wirbel and Ragneneau in a separate automobile, went to the headquarters of the Eighty-third division, Major General Glenn commanding, which was billeted at Montigny, not far from Chnnmont. We fell to discussing the probable situation of the various nllied countries and their relative standing nfter the war. M. Clemcnceau went to some length in his conjectures.

Thought Britain Finished.

"Great Britain is finished and in my opinion she has seen the zenith of her glory," he said.

"What makes you thiak so, Mr. Prime Minister?" I asked.

"First of all," he replied, "the Immense drain of the war will make it impossible for her to retain commercial supremacy, and, second, the experience of her colonial troops in this war will make their people more independent and she will lose her control over them."

I could not agree with M. Clemencean's view and said: "Mr. Prime Minister, I think you are mistaken abont the British, and I believe we ahall see her fully recover from the effects of the war."

Contiauing, I ssked: "What about France's future?"

"Ah! She will once more be the dominant power in Europe," he replied.

"But you do not mention Germany," I remiaded him.

He replied: "The Germans are a great people, bnt Germany will not regain her prestige and her influence for generntions."

Discuss Troop Shipments.

Shortly nfter our return to Chanmont, Generals Foeb and Weygand arrived nnd after lunch we all went into conference. The continuation of shipments up to one hnndred divisions, as alresdy recommended by the prime ministers, Lloyd George, Clemencean, nnd Orlando, formed the basis of French argument.

The whole aubject was thoroughly discnssed, and, coasidering the then sbortage of man power cisimed by the French and British, to say nothing of the possible lacrease of the German armies from Rnssian sources, the main question was to get over as many Americans as possible. It was finally agreed that we should propose an eighty-division program to be completed by April, 1919, and add to it the larger program of one bundred divisions to be completed by July, 1919.

CHAPTER XLVIII

Hospitalization and completion of three corps headqnarters and staff organizations occnpied my attention the last week of Juae, 1918.

Twelve of our divisions were then either in line or in reserve behind the French, five were in training in rear of the British army. Of those with the French, seven were concentrated in the vicinity of Villers-Cotterets and Chnteau-Thierry, between the French front and Pnris.

The British seemed to think the French unduly nervous about the safety of Paris, and that Foch was holding a greater proportion of American troops behind the French lines than necessary. They believed there was a strong probability of another attack agninst their front, and felt General Foch wns not paying enongh attention to their situation. However, they probably did not realize that a counteroffensive was contempinted on this front should the occasion present itself.

Corps Headquarters Organized.

The First corps headquarters, organized in January nnder Maj. Gen. Huater Liggett, with Col. Malia Craig as chief of staff, had become a smoothly working machine ready for active service anywhere, but events bad moved ao swiftly there had been no opportunity for the assembly of divisions. With the increasing size of our army it was evident that a greater number of divisions would be able to take part in operations at esrlier dates than we had thought possible. Consequently, the organizntion of the Second, Third aad Fonrth corps headquarters was at once completed.

The Second corps, Maj. Gen. George Read commnnding, with Col. George Simonds as chief of staff, and a limited number of staff officers, waa charged with matters of administrntion and command pertaining to the divisions behind the British front. The Third corps, temporarily nnder Maj. Gen. William M. Wright, Col. Alfred Bjornstad, chief of staff, continued to supervise training of divisions serving in the Vosges area. The Fourth corps was temporarily nnder the corps chief of staff, Col. Stuart Heintzelman, with headquarters at Toul. By the actual constitution of these corps they were expected soon to become efficieat enough to handle units in operations.

French Hospitals Deficient.

As to hospitals, when onr troops became suddenly engaged in tbe Chateau-Thierry region we hsd to rely largely npon the assistance of the French to care for our wounded. Althongh they had given us every assnrance that hospital arrangementa for those operations would be complete, and without question did their best, it was only through the mobile hospitals we hsd organized that we were able to give our casualties proper atteation.

In extenuation of tbe French failure to take care of our casualties properly it must be said that when the Germans swept over the Chemin des Dames to Chatean-Thierry the French lost 45,000 beds, included in some of their best equipped hospitals. We bsd no bospitals on that front and with limited transportation found it difficult to supplement the scant French facilities. In fact, the situation as to hospital accommodations for our troops waa about to reach a critical stage.

In this connection a cable wns actually submitted by Mr. Casper Whitney from the New York Tribune which wns scathing in its denunciation of our medicnl department. The censor immediately informed tbe medicnl representatives at my headquarters, and Generni Ireland, the chief surgeon, requested an investigation, which was nt once carried out by the chief of the inspector general's corps, General Brewster. Mr. Whitney was asked to be present at nll the hearings, aad when the actual facts were brought ont, showing the efficieacy of the medical department, he was most apologetic nnd thereafter was an enthusiastic supporter of the wisdom of the censorship.

Fourth of July Observance.

The Fourth of July found me in Chanmont. The French people there never missed an opportunity to show their pleasure nt hnving us in their midst aad their appreciation of our aid to the cause. The principal ceremony of the day was a reception to the officers of my headquarters by the locni French officials, both civic and military, and the prominent citizens at the Hotel de Vllle. This was an altogether delightful aocial gathering, lacluding a series of suitable speeches.

Tbe spirit of fraternity that prevailed made it easy to respond. In fact, on this, as often on similar occasions, I fonnd myself almost as enthnsiastic as the French speaker, though perhaps lesa content with my effort.

The allies elsewhere did not forget that it was our Independence day, and messages came from Clemencean, Foch and Hsig and many others from all over France.

Yanks in Hamel Attack.

Regardlesa of the distinct understanding that our troopa behind the British front were there for training and were not to be used except in an emergency, tbe British made continuous effort to get them into their lines.

They planned an attack by the Australians for tbe Fourth of July and requested Maj. Gen. George Read, commander of the Second corps then still in training, to permit some of the troops of the Thirty-third division to tske part.

At first the British suggested four companies, but later they wanted the number increased to ten. As the nse of Americans at this time was directly contrary to the arrangement, naturally it did not meet with my approval.

Having learned that such a combined attack was plaaned, I spoke to Marshal Haig about it when I saw bim in Paris July 3, and he entirely agreed with my point of view. It seems that General Read, afterwnrd, in accordance with my instructions, told General Rnwlinson that I did not want partly trained troops to participate. However, our troops had by this time become fully committed to it. Although the British chief of staff had consented to leave our troops out, when he learned from Rawlinson that it would compel them to defer the operation, he informed Read that no change could be made without orders from Field Marshal Haig, who, he said, could not be reached, and so the attack was carried out, as I learned the next day.

The fact that Geaeral Read and bis officers and aien were keen to get into the battle went far to excuse him. It seems needless to add also that the splendid behavior of the troops in the operation was a decided argument in favor of leniency. This division also afterward displayed the same eagerness to get at the enemy in several hard-fought engagements during tbe trying days of the Meuse-Argonne.

CHAPTER XLIX

A number of our divisions were qnite prepared to engage in any contemplated offensive and their location at the momeat lent hope for the early formation of one and probably two entire corps of Americans.

Liggett's First corps hsd taken its place in line July 4, with the Second division (Harbord), relieved on the 10th by the Twenty-sixth (Edwards), and a French division under its direction. The corps staff had been shaken down to the routine of its work and bad become in every respect an efficient group, performing its functions with the confidence and precision worthy of the more experienced ataffs of the allied nrmies.

During an inspection trip July 12 to the headquarters of the First corps I hsd lunch with General Harbord at Nanteuil-sur-Marne, where his division was resting. He told of a marine in his division who had captured seventy-five German prisoners single-handed.

Germans Attack Again.

Referring again to my dinry:

Chaumont, Wednesdny, July 17, 1918.—Another German attack broke Monday. Our Forty-seeond, part of the Twenty-eighth and the Third, became engaged. The latter counterattacked and captured 600 prisoners. Advised Foch that the Thirty-second and Twenty-ninth divisions are availnble at once.

Five other divisions have been placed at his disposal. Situation yesterday more favorable for allies. General Bullard assigned to Third corps and General Wright to Fifth.

The intelligence services of all the allied armies had been exerting every endeavor to discover the enemy's plans, with the result that for some days it appeared almost certain thnt his next move would be directed toward the sontheast, on the right and left of Rheims. On the evening of July 14 a French raiding party from General Gouraud's Fourth army, then holding that part of the line including Rheims, luckily captured prisoners who confirmed this belief and who gave the exact hour fixed for the attack, which they said was to take place the following morning.

Our Third division, still in line south of the Mnrne, faced the enemy between Jaulgonne and Chateau Thierry, and the Twenty-sixth, which, as we have seen, bad relieved the Second, held a sector between Torcy and Vaux. Infantry elementa of the Twenty-eighth were aouth of the Marne, serving with the two French divisions on either side of the Third; the entire Forty-second occupied a support position behind Gouraud's front; the First division was north of Meaux, and the Second and Fourth were in reserve near Chateau Thierry.

Surprise for the Enemy.

The German offensive was launched on the enrly morning of July 15, as expected, but it wns met with a surprise barrage put down hy General Gouraud's artillery half nn hour before the start. The Germnns' attack formations were thrown into confusion and their force seriously weakened to begin with. By evening, thanks to the strong resistance they encountered, the situation in that immediate sector was not unfavorable.

Our Forty-seeond division became eagaged and sustained relatively heavy losses. Its conduct on the first and snceeeding days brought high praise from the French army commander. Farther west the enemy crossed the Marne, penetrating in one place as far as five miles. He struck onr Third division, which was posted along the river, in a determined attempt to force a crossing between Mezy and Vsrennes, and the fighting became intense, some units of the Thirtieth and Thirty-eighth regiments holding this front being forced back. The stubbornness of their resistance, however, broke np the attack aa a whole, aad the Germans retired to the north bank.

Thirty-eighth Distinguishes Itself.

On this occasion a single regiment of the Third division (Col. U. G. McAlexander's Thirty-eighth) wrote one of the most brilliant pages in our military annals. It prevented the crossing at certain points on its front, while on either flank the Germana who had gained a footing pressed forward. Our men, firing in three directions, met the German attack with counterattacks at critical polats, and succeeded in throwing two German divisions into complete confusion.

Men from three different enemy divisions were captured by the Third in the fighting of this day. By noon of the sixteenth the attacks against its line came to a halt.

The Germans were stopped to the east of Rheims by Gouraud's Fourth army with bnt slight gains, while to the southwest they got across the Marne and made some progress toward Epernay. The failure of the attack in Champagne and the relatively slight gains to which the Germans were held to the west of Rheims on the first dny materially heartened the allies.

Although there were some ten divisions of the enemy remaining south of the Marne, the very evident conclusion, judging from the results of the following two days and the losses he had suffered, wns that he would he unable to continue the offensive.

Now that the allied armies were no longer in jeopardy it seemed opportune to push the formatioa of our own army near Chnteau Thierry for nse against the Mnrne salient in the counteroffensive I had frequently urged. The outlook for the nllies had changed mnterinlly since the crisis of early June. The enemy hnd been held in bis most recent attacks and his losses were presumnbly very great.

He was losing the advantage of numbers and his superiority was passing.

CHARACTERS ARE CHOSEN FOR TABLELAND FESTIVAL

is over," "I love to tell the story," "Sweet and low," first and last stanzas of the "Star Spangled Banner," and the doxology. Copies of the first two selections by Grunod may be secured from Rev. Shilke.

The Oakland Cominunity choir in charge of Mrs. Frederick Thayer, which is to have a part in the festival, hcld its first rehearsal Wednesday evening in the M. E. church, and will again meet Saturday evening when Miss Huff will be present. Dr. J. G. Robinson, head of Garrett County's committee, will meet with community groups at Accident and Friendsville in the coming week.

The transportation committee has announced that Cecil Ramsey will run hls bus, leaving Oakland at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, for $1, round trip, the amount to be reducecl to 75 cents should more than twenty go. Garrett county's part in the pageant will take place at 1:30 p. m.

Tremendous Stage Chosen

Tony Beaver, hero of lumbermen everywhere, fabulous character who could do anything in three times as big a way as anybody else, enters for the first time upon the stage as a living character at the festival. On a natural amphitheatre in the edge of Rhoads Flying Field, big enough to aecommodate not only Tony Beaver but Gulliver and Atlas besides, the loved Tony, upon whom timbermen have for decades and dccades heaped mystical honors, will stcp out of the realm of bunkhouse tales into reality.

Johnny Inkslinger, that paragon of timekeepers who kept a hose from two dozen ink barrels continually feeding into his fountain pen, and who, the ycar of the ink shortage, savcd 229 barrels of ink by neglecting to cross his t's and dot his i's, will be at the Music Festival pagcant in person. Ole the Swede, Sourdough Sam, Preachcr Moses Mutter, the Music Maker, the Truth Teller, Shanty Boy, the College Feller, Miss Betsy Beaver, Tony's sister, and a host of other mythical characters will also appear.

Tableland Dwellers Cooperate

The pageant, which will combine musicians, dancers, and tellers of tall stories from the eight counties of the Tableland, will bring together for the first time people from Monongalia, Preston, Tucker, Mineral, and Grant counties, West Virginia; Garrett county, Maryland; Fayette and Somerset counties, Pennsylvania, in the realization that they are residents of the Tableland, a high plateau country reaching into the three states.

Maple syrup and maple sugar, potatoes, buckwheat, blackberry jam, and other edibles for which the Tableland is already famous will have their inning in stories and in actual fact, as this first attempt to popularize the plateau as a social, cultural, recreational, and economic unit in Pittsburgh area is carried to its conclusion.

Extravagant though Saturday's entertainment may be, Sunday is to be devoted to religious music, in which it is planned to have choruses from dozens of communities unite until in the grand finale 5,000 voices will join in the closing numbers.

MT. LAKE PARK

Municipal Officers Have Qualified

The new municipal form of government of the Park is still a live topic of conversation. The Mayor and members of Council have qualified by taking the oaths of office as prescribed by law and are beginning to function.

At a recent meeting of the Mayor and Council Darwin B. Martin was appointed clerk and tax collector; Mr. E. E. Frlend, treasurer, and Mr. Neil C. Fraley, of Oakland, attorney. The tax collector has mailed out tax bills to all property owners and in order that these may be paid at an early day a discount is allowed on the tax bills of 3 per cent.

The meeting of property owners held at the auditorium a few evenlngs ago has given rlse to rumors of an actlon to be lnstituted in the equity court looking to the testing of the constitutionality of the Act of Assembly granting the present charter. So far as the general public is concerned no official statement bearing upon this matter has been made by those having charge of the Assoclatlon's interests.

White Family Reunion

Approximately two hundred and fifty people attended the White family reunion, held in Hardesty's grove, ln Loch Lynn, last Sunday. The Crellin Band delightfully entertained with music and song.

Mr. Murray Whlte, 91 years young, the oldest White livlng in this sectlon, was lntroduced to the famlly. In hls arms was Hoye White III, aged three weeks, the youngest member of the family.

Mr. Charles W. Ream, of Crellin, or rather of Garrett county, for C. W. has the lnterest of every sectlon of his home county at heart, was the principal speaker, his address being replete with witty incidents of the Whites of yesterday.

Mr. James A. Enlow gave a very interesting historical sketch of the family, his wife belonging to a pioneer family of that name.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Laughlin and daughter Miss Dean, spent a pleasant hour on the grounds. Mr. Laughlin, who is superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, made a short talk, especially appropriate, as about two-thirds of the male members of the White family are railroad men.

A bountiful dinner was served, followed by a business meeting, at which Mr. Hoye White was reelected president, and Mrs. J. W. Peyton, secretary. This was followed by a short memorial service for those who had passed away during the year, namely: Mrs. Rachel White, Mrs. Ella Tasker, Mrs. B. L. Hardesty and Mr. William T. White.

Rowdyism in the Park

The necessity for a police officer at the Park, with full power, is more and more apparent. Tuesday night sometime, some person or persons entered the bowling alley grounds, piling chairs and the remains of the tennis tournament reception decorations on the porches, threw a number of chairs down on the tennis courts and tore down one of the judges' stands.

While the damage amounted to little in dollars and cents, yet in view of the fact that the Junior Tennis Tournamcnt is scheduled soon, and portions of thc courts were dug up by the impact of thc chairs, it makes just that much more work to get the grounds in condition.

It is the spirit of rowdyism and the desire to destroy that burns us up and makes it necessary for an example to be made of those engaged in such practices. An empty pint bottle on the courts perhaps accounts for the occurrencc.

Mrs. Frank Seaman, of Unlontown, Pa., was the guest of Mrs. Wilson Camdcn during the tennis tournamcnt.

Miss Catherine Elliott, of Morgantown, is the guest of her brother, Reginald Ford, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Ford.

Mrs. U. P. Frey and son, of Keyser, were guests of Mrs. C. E. Hardesty on Sunday.

Mrs. Arthur West returned to her home in Cumberland after a visit with Mrs. G. O. Sweitzer.

Miss Loretta Carney, of Cumberland, is the guest of Miss Mary Sisk at her home in Loch Lynn.

Mrs. Jennie Heintzman, of Baltimore, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Frank Morgan, returned to her home Thursday.

Thoburn Inn has closed for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Fleming, who have been guests at the Comerford cottage for several weeks, have returned to their home in Fairmont.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham and son, Lawrence M., of Fairmont, spent Sunday in the Park.

Dr. and Mrs. F. L Johnson, of New York, who have been here as guests of Dr. Johnson's sister, Mrs. E. L. Davidson, since about July 20th, will leave this morning for New York City. After a few days there they will go on to Chautauqua Park, N. Y., where they will engage in the Mission School work scheduled to begin at that place in a few days.

Dr. W. C. Arthur, of Akron, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smyers and son Billy, of Washington, D. C., who are occupying Mrs. Spear's cottage, have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Arthur and daughters Mary Ellen, Anna Watts and Margaret, of Ben Avon, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Osborne, of Bridgeport, Ohio, are guests at the Allegany House. Mr. Osborne was a former sheriff of Belmont county, O.

Mr. Robert Carr Martin, of Orlando, Fla., is the guest of Mrs. L. P. Carr and Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr.

Miss Kathryn McLane and Mrs. Elizabeth Talson motored to Wheeling on Tuesday.

Mr James Pennypacker, of Washington, D. C., was the guest of Mrs. William Thompson Burch and family for several days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Willliam Searle and son have returned from a trip to Cleveland and other points.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fike are at Deep Creek Lake camping for a few days.

Superintendent Baker is suffering from a sprained ankle, the lnjury resulting from assisting ln moving a piano.

The Junior Tennis Tournament ls scheduled for August 25 and 26. Mr. Weber, in charge, anticlpates an increased number of entrants—sufficient to keep all four courts in actlon.

In Calcutta, India, lives Sir Chrandrasekhara Raman, "Einstein of the East," reciplent of the Nobel prlze ln physics, who has been lnvited to lecture ln various parts of thc world, lncluding the United States, but ls too poor to travel. He lives ln a dark Calcutta tenement.

FARM PEOPLE ARE URGED TO ATTEND MUSIC FESTIVAL

Rural Products Given Preference In Concession Booths At Somerset on September 5 and 6

LOCAL PLANS SHAPING UP

Farm people are particularly invited to attend the Alleghany Tableland Association Music Festival to be held at Somerset, Pa., Saturday and Sunday, Sepember 5 and 6, states J. B. Watson, chairman of the executive committee. Participants in the festival, both the pageant on Saturday and the religious sings on Sunday, will be almost entirely drawn from the rural districts of the eight Tableland counties, and those not taking part are asked to spend both days in Somerset as campers, picnickers, or as more formal guests in hotels or private homes.

Products of the farm sections of the Tableland will be offered for sale at concession booths at Rhoads Flying Field, including such articles as maple syrup, maple sugar, potatoes, potato chips, buckwheat flour, buckwheat cakes, apple butter, jellies and jams, home canned vegetables and fruits, country cured hams, hooked rugs, quilts, and various needlework and handicraft products.

Rural people are to be given preference by the concessions committee, no concession charge being made to rural, church, and parent-teacher organizations already members of the Alleghany Tableland Association. The only expenses incurred, aside from a membership in the association, will be erection of an attractive booth. Granges, Farm Bureaus, Farm Women's Clubs, 4-H Clubs, church organizations, and parent-teacher groups may obtain this special consideration if they desire to market their home-made and home-grown products by making reservations with John McCabe, chairman of concessions committee, in care of the Chamber of Commerce, Somerset, Pa.

Two Days of Music

Bringing together for the first time people from Somerset and Fayette counties, Pa., Garrett county, Md., Preston, Tucker, Mineral, Grant, and Monongalia counties, West Virginia, in the realization that they occupy a high plateau together, with common interests and problems, Tableland folk will be entertained Saturday by a musical pageant, in which Tony Beaver, gigantic and fabulous hero of the lumbermen, will be the central figure. It is expected that more than 2,000 persons will take part in this feature of the Music Festival. Darcy Wilson, of Morgantown, W. Va., is in charge of the pageant.

Morning and afternoon programs of religious music are planned for Sunday. Miss Sara B. Huff of the West Virginia University Agricultural Extension Division is expecting to have as many as 5,000 singers massed together for final chorus numbers Sunday.

Arrangements for the 25-minute episode Garrett county is to portray in the pageant on Saturday were made at a committee meeting in Grantsville last Saturday evening when Miss Huff met with Rev. C. A. Shilke, county chairman; John H. Carter, county agent; the Misses R. Holmes and C. Wallace, and a number of others from the Grantsville section. Mr. Wilson outlined the pageant to those present.

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland will give the introduction.

The pageant represents elements which go to produce maple sugar. The following characters are, namely: "Green Maple Leaves of Summer," Mary Helen Gnagey, Vera Miller, Lucile Patton and Helen Miller. "Autumn Leaves," Grace, Swauger Rosella Hanft, Margaret Gortner, Claudia Paul, Grace Hanft, Reta Blocher. "Snow," Rhoda Shumaker; "Rain," Florence Davis; "Figure of Indian," Bayard Keller, Jr.; "Court Jester," Claude Stanton, Jr.; "Heralds," Florence Broadwater, Mary Jane Beachy; "Queen Maple Heart," Betty Beachy; "Pages," Grace Beachy, Evelyn Spiker; "Maids in Waiting" are characters taken from other sugar counties.

Taken To Sykesville

John Durst, 22 years old, of Accident, was taken to the State Hospital at Sykesville on Tuesday, following an examination as to his mentality by Doctors N. I. Broadwater and Henry W. McComas.

SHEEP ARE SAID TO BE IMPORTANT FARM ASSET

County Agent Urges Sheepmen to Keep and Improve Flocks

"Sheep are paying just about as well as anything on the farm these days" states County Agent, John H. Carter. He says further that "This is the time to establish, increase and improve flocks rather than slow up or quit altogether. There are several good reasons why sheep should be kept on a large number of Garrett county farms. They utilize waste land and cheap feed that would otherwise be of little or no value. They are our best weed destroyers. The income from lambs and wool is received at a time of year when there is little else to sell. The ewe's fleece usually pays her keep. This puts the fat lamb on the market at a very low cost. Sheep manure is the richest produced by any farm animal. Every sheep on a farm adds about $2.00 worth of fertility annually to the land.

"One of the main reasons for the present low price of lambs is the large number of scrub bucks being used. Sheepmen who are using good purebred rams can produce lambs at a profit even at lower prices than prevail at present.

"My advice to every sheepman is to stay in the business, use a good purebred ram, cull your ewe flock, control parasites, and feed well. If you will do these things, you can sit in the shade more of the time and you will not have cause to worry so much. Your sheep can do the rest almost by themselves.

"Another thing you should do is come to the Ram Show and Sale at Oakland on September 12. Come whether you need a ram or not. The show and sale will be held on Sweeney's lot near the Oakland Creamery. A show of all the rams in the sale will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning. The sale will start at 2:00 p. m.

Civic Club Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Civic Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. B. H. Sincell, with Mrs. Arthur Naylor, vice-president, presiding.

Discussions concerning a proposed garden tour were indulged in by the members, and the proposed bridge spanning the Little Youghiogheny River leading to the public park, was also taken under consideration.

At the meeting it was decided that the garden tour, similar to the one of last year, would be made in the near future.

Mrs. W. W. Grant entertained with two highly interesting and entertaining stories and Mrs. J. Gordon Mealy, Baltimore, formerly of Oakland, sang two solos. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Selbysport Farmers Organize Boosters' Club

The Young Community Boosters of Selbysport will hold their regular monthly meeting at Selbsyport school house September 2, at 8:00 p. m.

The farmers and citizens in the Selbysport community organized early in the year and have been holding regular monthly meetings. Special subjects are discussed at each meeting and round table discussions held on community problems. Agricultural lime will be the topic for Wednesday, September 2.

All citizens who are interested in the development and welfare of the community as a whole are invited to attend.

Bon Ton Formally Opens Tea Room Addition Tuesday

Between 400 and 500 people visited the Bon Ton Confectionery between the hours of 8:00 and 12:00 o'clock on Tuesday evening, when the formal opening of the tea room and the recent addition to the confectionery was held. Ice cream was served to more than three hundred persons during the evening.

A short program was arranged with Frank Pugh, Terra Alta, W. Va., as master of ceremonies and announcer. Wilmer Brown played a few selections on his accordion; Miss Mae Jean Stedeford danced and Miss Sarah Burley sang.

With the additional floor space added, the Bon Ton is now able to seat 100 people. A number of booths were placed in the new room and a space for dancing reserved. There is also a balcony with booths in the new section of the store. A kitchen, to take care of orders for meals at all hours, has been added.

ATTENDANCE DATA SHOWS IMPROVEMENT FOR 1930

New Attendance Law Goes Into Effect This Fall

Attendance data on all elementary schools of Garrett county has been compiled by John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer, and shows an improvement in all departments.

The number of pupils enrolled during the past year was 4,336, as compared with 4,405 for 1929-30, but this decrease was laid to transportation of pupils to high schools, there being 149 more pupils in the county high schools last year than in 1929-1930.

Two hundred less pupils entered late in 1930, there being only 469 as compared with 669 for 1929. There were 97 less withdrawals from the schools, and the percentage of attendance increased from 90.5 to 92.5.

School was open on an average of 187.9 days, as compared with 185.5 days for 1929, a gain of 2.4 days. There were 206 pupils absent 40 days or more in 1930 as compared with 252 in 1929, an improvement of 46. Sixty-eight more pupils were promoted in 1930 as compared with 1929, when 3,493 were advanced.

New Attendance Law

A new attendance law goes into effect at the beginning of this year's school term, according to Mr. Fitzwater. Under the old law a child from seven to his thirteenth birthday was required to attend school every day, and from thirteen to his seventeenth birthday at least 100 days each school year, with possibility of working the rest of the time if a permit were given.

Under the new law, a child from seven to his fourteenth birthday is required to attend school every day, and if not a graduate of the seventh grade, must attend until his sixteenth birthday, unless permission is given him to work. The 100-day provision is taken out of the law entirely.

Sunday School Convention at Accident, September 4.

All Sunday school workers are being urged to attend the all-day convention to be held Friday, September 4, at Accident, under the auspices of the Garrett County Council of Religious Education.

The theme of the convention is based around "Our Teachers, their spiritual, their mental and their social equipment." Outstanding addresses will be made by Dr. Davids, Miss Lillian McCormick, Miss Jeanette Lampson, Dr. Jones, Rev. W. B. Brock and Maurice R. Hamm.

There will be department conferences in the afternoon with the addresses in the morning and evening. Officers will be installed at the evening session.

At 7:30 p. m. there will be a recognition service for students who have taken one or more courses for credit in standard training schools. It is strongly urged that every student be present at this session to receive recognition as one in training.

Relief Survey Declares Garrett County Hardest Hit

A snrvey of relief needs in Maryland's counties by Governor Albert C. Ritchie, showed that in one county the needs were 333 per cent greater this year than last year.

Although crop conditions generally had been excellent this year, officials of the Extension Service said that prices were so poor that farmers, although not lacking food for themselves and feed for their cattle, probably would be hard pressed for funds with which to pay taxes and to meet interest charges, to buy clothing, seed, fertilizer and other essentials.

Officials stated that Garrett county, because of its location in the mining region, seemed to be the hardest hit and its citizens more in need of emergency relief.

SEPTEMBER TERM JURORS DRAWN BY JUDGE SLOAN

Delbert M. Davis Named Foreman of The Grand Jury; Grand Jurors To Report Sept. 14

SELECTION MADE FRIDAY

Grand and petit jurors for the September Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court were drawn last Friday afternoon by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, in accordance with the law governing such practice.

At the 1931 session of the Legislature an act was passed changing the jury terms of the Court from December to September and from March to June, hence the coming September term will be the first September jury court since 1906.

The juries as drawn by the Court on Friday will be composed of the following citizens:

Grand Jurors

Delbert M. Dvais, Oakland, foreman; William J. Wilburn, Charles T. Frantz, Erwin Fazenbaker, Clarence E. MacMurray, Paul W. McIntire, F. W. Wildesen, Clarence J. Lashorn, James U. Stanton, Harbert K. Pope, Harry J. Black, George W. Weitzell, Lawrence M. Fraley, Nathan R. Selby, Errice O. Liller, John G. D. Spiker, George A. White, Charles E. Magruder, Charles O. Wolf, Harvey Friend, Wilbur L. Davis, Merritt S. Harvey, Milton E. Pritts.

Grand jurors are required to be in attendance at the opening of court—Monday, September 14, at ten o'clock.

Members of the Petit Jury

Harry F. Paugh, Lyman Folk, James F. Hamilton, Chester A. Green, Virgil T. Steyer, Asa A. Callis, Grover C. Stemple, Martin L. Groves, Donald L. Chisholm, Romanus L. Sebold, H. P. Harvey, Benton Hershberger, Chas. L. Lewis, Robert L. Emory, Franklin B. Shaffer, John Bishop, Daniel O. Harvey, Clarence O. White, Cecil Ramsey, Walter E. Waybright, Howard A. Skidmore, Roy V. Friend.

Petit jurors are required to be in attendance Thursday morning, September 17, at 9:00 o'clock, unless otherwise notified by the officers of the Court.

Automobile Ditched; None of the Occupants Seriously Hurt

Coming to Oakland Friday night to spend the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ault, the car being driven by Fred. Brown, of Cumberland, who was accompanied by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. John Smyth, son and daughter, skidded from the highway on King's Hill, north of Oakland, where the occupants were more or less shaken, only one of whom, however, suffered a painful injury, she being Mrs. Smyth, who had her shoulder-blade injured quite painfully. The car was badly damaged, the top and windshield being torn away. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Smyth are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Ault. The return to Cumberland, where Mr. Brown is employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, was made Monday.

To Make Inspection Tour

Twelve men of the county interested in dairying, including County Agent John H. Carter, will leave Friday on an inspection tour through the U. S. bureau of dairy Industry at Beltsville, the U. S. Department of Plant Industry at Arlington, and the University of Maryland at College Park. They will also visit important buildings of interest in Washington. The party will return to Oakland on Sunday.

Those making the trip will include Harry Porter, Ernest Friend, Paul Friend, Orville Bittinger, William F. DeBerry, William P. DeBerry, James F. Hamilton, O. T. Graser, John H. Carter, Claude Wilkins, and Ben. Friend.

SUMMER RESIDENTS OF LOCH LYNN ARE MISTAKEN FOR NEW YORK GUNMEN BY CUMBERLAND POLICE TUESDAY

To be mistaken for a couple of New York gunmen by the police, isn't the most pleasant sensation in the world, as can be testified by Castleman Chesley and Harry Brann, two youthful summer residents of Loch Lynn Heights, who were chased and captured at Cumberland on Tuesday, as they were enroute to attend the Cumberland Fair.

Cumberland police had been notified to be on the lookout for two New York gunmen, travelling in a Ford car, and when they saw Chesley and Brann's Ford car, carrying New York license plates, they hopped on their motorcycles and gave chase.

Wondering what crime they had committed, Chesley and Brann stepped on the gas, but were overtaken and detained as guests at the Cumberland police station until they telephoned to Oakland and were properly identified.

SENATOR MILLARD E. TYDINGS

MARYLAND U. S. SENATOR TO SPEAK ON LABOR DAY

Will Be Guest At Knights Of Pythias Event on September 7

United States Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland will deliver the chief address at the twelfth annual Labor Day picnic to be held at Oakland on September 7. The speakers' committee of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, under whose auspices the picnic is being held, has received a definite acceptance of the invitation from the Senator.

Senator Tydings is an orator of national reputation. He served in the World War for more than two years, entering the ranks as an enlisted man and through successive promotions for merit in the service, emerged as a Lieutenant-Colonel. This record is said not to have been surpassed by any other member of the American Expeditionary Force.

Senator Tydings' address will hold much of interest to all and his presence will be gratifying to members of the American Legion and those who had any part in the late war.

A number of Grand Lodge officers have accepted invitations to be present and others are expected. Those who have definitely stated they would be here include Joseph D. Boan, Baltimore, Grand Chancellor; C. Thomas Summers, Frederick, Grand Vice-Chancellor; A. Elwood Martak, Baltimore, Grand Keeper of Records and Seal; A. Charles Stewart, Frostburg, Grand Master-at-Arms.

Plans are being made to have amplifiers erected on the picnic grounds so that everybody will be able to hear Senator Tyding's address. Committees have been meeting each week to complete arrangements and the various stands will be erected next week in readiness for the great gathering.

There will be plenty of free parking space and members of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, will assist in parking cars.

Fire Destroys Home of Mrs. Mary Pysell, Near Deer Park

Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the frame dwelling occupied by Mrs. Mary Pysell, an aged lady, near Deer Park, last Friday night about 11:30.

When Mrs. Pysell awakened the flames were on the outside of the porch, she said, and it is believed that the building was set on fire by someone, but no clues as to his identity were discovered.

All the furniture, including a number of old relics, were destroyed by the flames. The building was insured for $1,000, which will go to Walter Flannigan, who holds a mortgage on the property.

Since the destruction of her home Mrs. Pysell has been sleeping in her barn. She was in Oakland Tuesday purchasing roofing and other material with which she expects to repair the garage on the property and use for a home this winter.

This is the second time that her home has been destroyed by fire.

To Give Entertainment

An entertainment for the benefit of the Oakland Free Public Library will be held in the Oakland High school auditorium on Friday evening, August 28.

There will be vocal solos by Mrs. J. Gordon Mealy, Baltimore; and Mrs. H. A. Brann, Loch Lynn; the Misses Bolgiano, of Baltimore and Loch Lynn, will give an exhibition of dancing; W. B. Burruss, widely known speaker and lecturer will entertain.

The admission charge will be 25 and 50 cents, and all are asked to be present.

COMMUNITY OF MT. LAKE FIGHTING INCORPORATION

Court Orders Mayor and Council To Show Cause Why Injunction Should Not Be Issued

HEARING SET FOR SEPT. 3

An order directing Mayor MacClellan Clayton and the recently elected Councilmen of Mountain Lake Park to show on or before August 31 why they should not be enjoined from asserting the power and authority alleged to have been vested in them by an act of the Legislature of 1931, and from assessing, levying and collecting taxes upon the assessable property of the owners of the Park, was granted in the Circuit Court for Garrett county last Friday afternoon by Judge D. Lindley Sloan.

The passage of the order followed the filing of a bill by Fred. A. Thayer and E. R. Jones, attorneys, representing the Community of Mountain Lake Park and several property owners, praying that the Court declare the act to incorporate Mountain Lake Park illegal, unconstitutional and void.

Complainants in the bill are the Community of Mountain Lake Park, a corporation duly incorporated under the laws of the State of Maryland, Charles W. Baldwin, T. Davis Richards, H. V. Leighton, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Talson, Mrs. Minnie O. Richards, A. D. Naylor and E. L. Davidson.

Parties defendant set out in the bill are MacClellan Clayton, Mayor; Wilson L. Camden, Thomas O. Schooley, Floyd R. Utterback, James S. Elliott and Albert F. Schrock, Council of the town of Mountain Lake Park, who were elected at the municipal election conducted under the terms of the recent act incorporating the Park, on Tuesday, August 11.

Reasons Given in Bill

The bill filed by the attorneys states that the act impaired the obligations of contracts contained in deeds and covenants under which the property is held by the Park Community, which is against the Constitution of the United States. Another reason given was that the act made eligible for civil office of Mayor and Councilmen citizens of other States.

The bill states also that the defendants threatened to take control of the streets, roads and alleys of Mountain Lake Park, its water supply and electric lighting and other public utilities, and in case taxes were not paid to sell properties of citizens.

Decided by Election

At a referendum election on July 14, under the power vested in the act of 1931, it was decided to incorporate the Community and adopt a municipal form of government. The incorporation was opposed by the Mountain Lake Park Association and the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which now owns and controls all the public buildings, two or three hotels and the greater portion of the unimproved real estate embraced within the Park boundaries.

At this referendum election all persons qualified to vote for members of the General Assembly, residents of the Park for six months and all bona fide property owners, holding title for twelve months preceding the election, and the wives or husbands and their children over 21 years of age, were privileged to vote under the act.

Founded as Religious Resort

Mountain Lake Park is known as a religious resort and was founded to afford opportunity for religious and literary instruction and education. The community's governmental affairs have always been in charge of an annual committee, composed of two members representing the Park residents, two from the Mountain Lake Park Association and one chosen by the four.

The action instituted in the local court has aroused considerable interest in this section.

The Court has set September 3rd for the hearing on the bill filed by the complainants.

Received Cuts and Bruises

Gilmor Hamill received a small scalp wound and other minor cuts and bruises when the Ford automobile which he was driving wrecked at a point near Dodge school house on Tuesday afternoon. Hamill was going northward and upgrade at the time of the accident, and it was thought that the steering wheel became stuck.

THE MISSION TO CYPRUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:25-13:12.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Starts on a Great Trip.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Begins an Adventurous Journey.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Missionary Adventures in Cyprus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity at Court.

I. Barnabas and Saul Return from Jerusalem (12:25).

The Christians at Jerusalem were in need because of a famine which had come upon the world. When news of this reached the believers at Antioch, they were moved with sympathy for them, and relief was sent at the hand of Barnabas and Saul. On their return from this ministry, they were accompanied by John Mark.

II. Gifts of the Church at Antioch (v. 1).

Young as was this new religious center, it had prophets and teachers. Such are essential to right church life. In Ephesians 4: 8-12 is enumerated the gifts which when Christ ascended on high he gave to men for the perfecting of the saints unto the work of the ministry. Gifts in the Church are not for the Church itself, but to enable it to perform service for others.

III. Barnabas and Saul Sent Forth (vv. 2, 3).

This marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the Church.

1. The occasion (v. 2). While the five prophets and teachers were fasting and praying, the Holy Spirit commanded them to send forth Barnabas and Saul. The work of evangelizing the world was laid so heavily upon these men that they refrained from eating in order to seek the will of God in prayer. This is the kind of fasting that has God's approval. The missionary enterprise is the index to the spirituality of a church. The emptiness of missionary treasuries and the falling off of missionary candidates reveal the unspirituality of the home base.

2. The divine command (v. 2). The Holy Ghost said, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul." The real call to Christian service comes from the Holy Spirit. The Spirit called, the Church responded by sending out those called by him. Spirit-filled Christians know the voice of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit called, and the best men which the Church at Antioch had were sent out.

3. The obedience (v. 3). After fasting and prayer, Barnabas and Saul were sent out. The men were ready to go.

4. Instant obedience was rendered. Those who have received the Spirit's call are not taken by surprise when they are commissioned by the Church. There should be no holding back on the part of the Church, nor of the workers when the Spirit calls. By the workers when the Spirit calls.

IV. Preaching the Word of God in Cyprus (vv. 4, 5).

We are not told as to why they first went to Cyprus, but we are left to infer that it was owing to the fact that Cyprus was the home of Barnabas. He was acquainted with the country and the people and could be thus assured of a respectable hearing among them. Besides, it was most natural that those who had heard the good news go first with it to their kindred and friends. Andrew first went to his brother, and the man out of whom the demons were cast was denied the pleasure of following Jesus in order that he might go and tell his kindred. As they went forth they carefully carried out their commission, for they preached the Word of God. Those who are faithful to God will preach nothing but his Word. The great need today is Spirit-called and Spirit-filled men preaching God's Word.

V. Withstood by Elymas, the Sorcerer (vv. 6-12).

Sergius Paulus, the deputy, invited Barnabas and Saul to tell him of God's Word. Elymas maliciously sought to turn his mind from the faith. He sought to bar the gospel as it entered upon its mission of converting the heathen. Paul came to the front and denounced Elymas in the most scathing terms. He called him the child of the Devil, denouncing him as full of guile and villainy, pronouncing him the enemy of all righteousness, and accusing him of perverting the right ways of the Lord. Surely a man is never more a villain than when he tries to turn a soul from God.

God Does Not Forsake Thee

Suppose that all men forsake or forget thee; God does not. His eye sees thee, his heart feels for thee, and his hand is able to deliver thee. Thou art not friendless, nor wilt thou be till the God of all consolation dies.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

The Resurrection-Life

It is the resurrection-life that is the truest as well as the highest form of life; the surest as well as the most glorious immortality; it admits of no reversal and no decay.—H. Bonar.

FROM WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA, TO PARKERSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA, ON THE NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This is the second of a series of articles describing scenes and towns along the Northwestern Turnpike, and includes that part of the highway which is between the South Branch Valley and Clarksburg.)

You leave the South Branch Valley and head toward a mountain wall, but you don't go over it. The road ferrets out a pass and you go through it and run along the other side of it for a mile or two before turning directly west again. But all the time the road lies between and among the hills—and if you make the journey in autumn they are hills that are aflame with color.

To the person unfamiliar with West Virginia, it is really amazing how much of the State is still uncleared and either bearing forests or capable of producing forests. The whole State lies right in the middle of the greatest hardwood producing section of the eastern part of the United States, and, according to the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, at least half of the State's area must always remain in forest.

Every county in the State has at least 25 per cent of its area in forest or woods. Several counties have more than 50 per cent; others go over the 80 mark. Three counties—Logan, McDowell and Mingo—have more than 90 per cent of their areas in forest land. Of the counties traversed by the Northwestern Pike you may be surprised to learn that 62 per cent of Hampshire is in forests or woods; 71 per cent of Mineral; 59 per cent of Preston; 41 per cent of Taylor; 38 per cent of Harrison; 62 per cent of Grant; 53 per cent of Doddridge; 58 per cent of Ritchie and 40 per cent of Wood.

After you pass through the village of Ridgeville, at the foot of Knobley Mountain, you come to a fork in the road, one branch of which will take you to Keyser, seven miles away, or to Cumberland and Frostburg, in Maryland, a little less than 30 miles away. Most people prefer, however, to continue a little farther on the Pike to New Creek and to proceed on the Keyser road from that point.

Keyser is a railroad town and many of its people are employed in the railroad shops there. It was named for one of the vice-presidents of the B. & O. When the town was just a village it was called Paddy Town, so named because Patrick McCarty operated an iron furnace there. The present population is about 7,000 and the town is the county seat of Mineral.

Between where you pass the road to Moorefield and where you pass the fork in the road near Ridgeville, you ride through a village on the highway called Burlington. A few miles from this village, on a tiny farm hidden away between two hills, was born Nancy Hanks, mother of Abraham Lincoln.

Before you get to Burlington you cross the dividing line between Hampshire county and Mineral. Where the latter name came from is not hard to guess, for West Virginia is just full of minerals.

Mineral is the second county formed by West Virginia after it became a separate State. It was organized in 1866 and was taken from Hampshire. The area is 330 square miles and the population is about 22,000.

Leaving the little valley in which lies Keyser you go over a mountain ridge. When I last went over it I didn't think of looking at the mileage when we started to climb, but the distance between the place where I did look at it and the place where we went over the top is seven miles. The ridges are not only high but they stretch away into the distance until the eye can no longer follow. Looking back at one of them, you will see a great notch, nicely rounded, as though a giant had taken a bite out of the ridge.

These ridges are not just bare and gnunt and ugly rocks, but are almost entirely covered with trees—a sea of green in summer and a coat of many colors in autumn.

The easterner whose life has been lived along the sandy shores of the Atlantic and the man from the plains country, where a tree is something to write home about, will open their eyes in wonder when they first look upon West Virginia's wealth of trees.

The road in Mineral county passes through practically no towns or villages. Look in any direction and you see only peaks and ridges. The roadside is clear of trees in many places and you can see a variety of mountain views. And still no advertising signs! What a grand and glorious feeling it is to be in the heart of the Allegheny Mountains!

You now dip down into a tiny corner of Grant county—named for General Grant—and immediately you are out of it again. For a few minutes you are also out of the State, for at Gormania the road crosses the North Branch of the Potomac and runs along inside the edge of Maryland for about nine miles.

Gormania—named for Senator Gorman, of Maryland—is chiefly known for its tannery.

If you have seen the Potomac below Washington you know that it is a majestic stream. It is part of my daily routine to cross one of the bridges over the Potomac at Washington and I could not help thinking of the long, high and stately Key Bridge as I looked back at Gormania from a hill beyond the town and saw a man walking across the Potomas on two planks.

Grant county was formed in 1866 and has an area of 478 square miles, with a population of 10,000.

While in Maryland the road passes through Red House over the Great Backbone Mountain and gets back into West Virginia at the Youghiogheny River. You can guess where the Great Backbone gets its name when you learn that the waters of the Potomac find their way into the Atlantic Ocean by way of the Chesapeake, and the waters of the Youghiogheny find their way into the Gulf of Mexico by way of the Ohio.

Red House is a crossroads village. From there the distance to Oakland, Maryland, is nine miles, and to Davis, West Virginia, it is seventeen miles. The first house in the town was built when the highway was put through, shortly after 1830. It was painted red and was used as a tavern. The house is still there, now used as a residence, and it is still painted red.

If you would like to see the Fairfax Stone, placed by the surveyors who laid out Lord Fairfax's western land, turn south at the Red House and run down toward Davis to a place called Thomas, in Tucker county. The stone marks the head of the North Branch of the Potomac. It also marks the place where several counties come together and the southwestern limit of Maryland.

Lord Fairfax, as you may recall, is one of the outstanding figures in the history of Virginia. Thomas, Lord Fairfax, Baron of Cameron, inherited through his mother, Catherine Culpeper Fairfax, the enormous estate of her father, Thomas, Lord Fairfax. This estate in America included all of the section of Virginia known as the Northern Neck and which lies between the Rappahannock and the Potomac. This land extended from the Chesapeake Bay to the headwaters of the Potomac, and the Fairfax Stone marked its northern and western limit. Quite a piece of land! Lord Fairfax lived for years in Virginia, prior to and during the Revolution, and died at his home in the Shenandoah Valley.

After leaving Red House, going west, you run along on a plateau for about ten miles, until you start down the steep grade, with 37 turns in three miles, that will take you into the Cheat River Gorge and over the river by means of a covered bridge at Dawson Camp. While you are on the plateau you pass through Aurora, a small mountain resort that was originally called the German Settlement. It has an altitute of 2,676 feet and there are several hotels and cottages.

You are now in Preston county, which was organized in 1818. It was taken from Monongalia and was named for James Patton Preston, then governor of Virginia. The county has an area of 653 square miles and a population of 29,000.

The scenery in the neighborhood of Aurora is particularly worth while. You ride through groves of spruce and chestnut before you start down the grade to the river, and as you descend on a road that slings to the side of one ridge you look across a deep and narrow valley at another ridge that is almost parallel.

The name of Cheat River comes from the fact that although it looks shallow enough to wade across, there are spots in it deep enough to drown an adult.

Between this point and Grafton, the next town, the scenery is plenty wild. You travel for miles without seeing people or houses. Just trees and hills. Not even a log cabin. If you are weary of people and things, the road along here ought to appeal to you.

When you ride along here you are looking at a different view every minute or so, especially on the grades that are five miles or more in length and as full of curves as a snake with a pain in his tummy. And if you are traveling westward toward evening you will see a dozen sunsets—a mountain temporarily hides the setting sun and you think it has shut up shop for the night, but the next opening in the hills shows you that it is still doing business.

It was in this part of West Virginia that Robert E. Lee first directed an army in the field. Shortly after he was made commander in chief of the Virgina forces he entered West Virginia in an attempt to save that part of the State for Virginia. On Cheat Mountain, in September, 1861, he had a skirmish with the Federals under General Reynolds. Among the Confederates who were killed during this campaign was Colonel John Augustine Washington, personal friend of Lee and the last private owner of Mount Vernon.

To the south of the country through which you pass after cutting across the tip of Maryland is the Monongahela National Forest, which lies in Pocahontas, Pendleton, Randolph, Tucker and Grant counties in West Virginia, and Highland county in Virginia, and which includes something like 177,000 acres.

About 18 years ago a movement was launched to have the Federal Government acquire forest land in the Alleghenies in order to conserve forest products, insure a supply of water and to protect cities and towns against floods. The national forests also aid tremendously in the protection and propagation of fish and game and furnish the people in the cities a place of recreation.

The ultimate area to be acquired for the Monongahela tract is 700,000 acres.

Nearly 60,000 acres of the Shenandoah National Forest are in West Virginia—in Hampshire, Hardy and Pendleton counties.

Somewhere between the Cheat River and Grafton you pass out of Preston county and into Taylor.

Taylor county was organized in 1844 and was taken out of Harrison, Barbour and Marion. It has an area of 177 square miles and a population of 20,000. While there is some doubt as to which Mr. Taylor was honored in the naming of the county, the gentleman is thought to be John Taylor, a prominent man of Virginia during the 50 years which followed the Revolution.

Grafton came into being as a railroad town and was named for one of the engineers in charge of the construction of the B. & O.

The part of the town which you first come to on the highway is called Blueville, and is perched on the cliff between the highway and the river. Grafton is on the non-navigable Tygart's Valley River, named for a pioneer who ventured in 1753 into the valley which bears his name.

The town has a population of about 10,000 and has several manufacturing plants in addition to extensive railroad shops.

You pass the railroad station—which is the turning around place for shoppers coming in the opposite direction—and enter the business section.

The reason for turning around at the station is that there is a plaza, and that is about the only place on the principal street where you can turn. With automobiles parked along one curb, and a street car coming along in the middle of the narrow street, there is so little room that one line of traffic must follow the street car, while the other line of traffic proceeds along on the wrong side of the street. A bit complicated for strangers, 'tis true, but the motorman usually signals to the distressed out-of-town motorist the proper course of action. I understand that the highway through the town is to be re-routed so as to avoid this confusion.

Grafton is spread out on both sides of the river, with several bridges connecting the two sections. On one of these I noticed a novel arrangement to keep automobile drivers on the proper side. Heavy pieces of wood, a little less than the width of a car, are nailed to the bridge floor. If a driver stays where he belongs his wheels straddle these pieces and all goes smoothly. If he attempts to get out of line his wheels bump over them and the result is not a joyful one for him.

The western end of the town, formerly a separate village older than Grafton, is called Fetterman. Here you can see a coal mine by the side of the road. Near it is a monument proclaiming that here was killed the first Union soldier during the War between the States. The Union army maintained a force in the town for a considerable period, as the B. & O. Railroad was closely guarded against Confederate attack. On the other side of the river may be seen the only National Cemetery in West Virginia. It is the last resting place of about a thousand veterans.

It is quite evident to the visitor that Grafton is a railroad town. In addition to the fact that the town is a junction point, large railroad shops are located there. In fact, the prosperity of several of the towns in the northern part of the State is closely tied up with the prosperity of the B. and O. This was the first railroad built in America, from Baltimore to the Ohio River, by way of Cumberland. It enters West Virginia at Harper's Ferry.

There are now two principal branches of the B. and O., one of them extending to Chicago by way of Pittsburgh, and the other to St. Louis by way of Cincinnati. These two branches separate at Cumberland. Grafton is on the branch that goes to St. Louis, and from Grafton there is a branch to Wheeling, a branch to Charleston and a branch to Elkins. Indeed, small branches of the B. & O. may be found all through West Virginia, acting as feeders for the two principal branches.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

I'm in for it now. Delbert Davis was named foreman of the grand jury for September court along with a couple of other guys, and they say they are going to summon me before that body and make me tell where I get my liquor, because they are certain that a sober fellow couldn't write such stuff as I do in this column.

I'll have to inquire where these fellows who expect to be summoned always hide during grand jury session, and make reservations for a bunk.

Epistle From George Kerins

George Kerins, the fire chief, who looks after Engines Nos. 1 and 2 like a bear looks after its cubs, is having a fine time fishing down on the Chesapeake. A letter from somewhere around Solomon's Island has come to Scoop and parts of it are taken out for the benefit of the readers. The rest is here:

"Well, we have been fooling around Solomon's Island now for a week, and running up and down the Patuxent and we haven't caught a thing. We had three rains and the creek looked like the tailings from the Oakland Creamery company on Wilson's creek, and every fish in the creek was on a milk diet and their local physician had put a ban on angleworms and grasshoppers.

"It has been a lifelong custom of mine not to allow a physician to beat us out, so one day we stopped at a meat market and told the clerk to throw us about eight of those trout he had on ice, and when he asked why he had to throw them I said, 'Well, so that when we get back to Oakland those Punks up there can's say that we didn't catch any.'

"To make a fishing trip successful you should have rain about twice a day to keep the grass and weeds along the creek wet. There should be plenty of mosquitoes at night so you won't get sleepy. The cream you put in your coffee should be sour to match your disposition, and your bathroom conveniences should be at least a block away so you have to dress at night when it is raining, and then, even though you don't catch a fish, you can tell your friends when you get home what a swell time you had."

Sorry, but that's all of the letter we'll print for you, George.

My fan mail has been so heavy, of late, that I can hardly keep up my correspondence. Since I started this column two or three years ago I have had at least eight letters from admirers. Before I started writing it I got only two letters in five years, so I consider this quite a boost. Another one came in last week from my handsome old friend Boric Acid down near the equator. They call him Boric Acid because he is a sight for sore eyes.

We holler up here in the mountains about the cold wave last week. Read this and be thankful:

"Speaking of hot weather. Yesterday it was 111 in the shade at a place 10 miles from here, but that's a Keyser's Ridge blizzard compared with this room I am writing in right now, for I am sitting on the third cake of ice and it is so durned hot that the seat of our pants isn't even moist. This may sound unreasonable to you, so we are leaving it to your option to believe it or not. We are very accommodating that way."

Since a dispatch from a point in Maryland says that two bulls charged a jazz orchestra and broke up the performance, a lot of people have gone in for raising a masculine herd.

The Modern Age

Mama said to papa, "Pa, you know our daughter is now fourteen years old and I am going to take her in the next room and tell her some things I think she ought to know." When she came back Pa said, "Well, Ma did you learn anything new?"

All jokes aside, you better get your horse and buggy, your automobile and your airplane in shape to attend the music festival at Somerset on September 5 and 6. Garrett county should be well represented.

Harry L. (Lollypop) Stemple, Walter E. (Erysipelas) Hardesty, David W. (What-a-man) Walter, Edward P. (Palooka) Kuhl, Milburn W. (Welcher) Mann, Alva G. (Gusher) Gortner, Alva R. (Raspberry) Martin, Wade H. (Horsecollar) Hinebaugh, I. (Ichabod) Romanus Rudy, and a number of others are practicing three times daily, to be in shape for the hog calling contest on Labor Day, and it is rumored that most of their wives are entering the husband calling contest. This means another big time in Oakland when the Pythian celebration holds forth on Monday, September 7. This is one time when we will be able to see knights turned into daze.

One-third of the folk of the country think they can beat the lawyer in expounding law; one-half think they can beat the doctor healing the sick; two-thirds of them think they can beat the minister preaching the gospel; four-fifths of them think they can beat the editor in running a newspaper; and all of them think they can beat me in writing this column—and the worst of it is they probably can.

The difference is this—You don't have the nerve to try, and send in your column. There, I knew you wouldn't.

CHEVROLET

Step out of any other low-priced car, step into a Chevrolet, and learn what a difference six cylinders make.

When you start the engine, and let it idle—the car remains steady, as well as everything in it. When you drop into low gear, and let the engine take hold—the power flows evenly. There's no semblance of strain.

This smoothness stays with you whatever you do. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty. Consistently, you get the same fine, smooth response. For six-cylinder smoothness is built in the motor—and objectionable vibration never gets a chance to start!

Yet smoothness is only part of your six-cylinder experience. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone, and with it a big source of squeaks and rattles. There's greater comfort, especially at low and high speeds. A six doesn't tire the driver or the passengers. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And response is more positive; performance more elastic. A six is much easier to handle!

And if you raise the hood and watch the engine running—you'll know what a difference six cylinders make to your pocketbook. Without vibration to cause friction and wear, the whole car must last longer, require less repair. Thousands of owners have found that this engine uses less gas and oil than any other.

Twenty beautiful models, at prices ranging from $475 to $675

All prices f. o. b. Flint, Mich., special equipment extra. Low delivered prices and easy G. M. A. C. terms.

You owe it to yourself to see and drive a Chevrolet Six now. Learn what a difference six cylinders make.

Third Anniversary of the Pact for Renunciation of War Today

Today the general pact for the renunciation of war, signed at Paris, August 27, 1928, by practically all nations, is three years old. The article agreed to on that day was:

The high contracting parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

The high contracting parties agree that the settlment or solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them shall never be sought except by pacific means. The world disarmament conference, called February 2, 1932, is the next step along this line.

Farmhouse Burned

Monday afternoon the dwelling on the farm of John T. Dixon, located in Election District No. 8, above Schell, was completely destroyed by fire, the cause of the blaze evidently originating from an overheated flue. Mr. Dixon and his sons were at work in a field some distance from the house when the fire was discovered by Mrs. Dixon who gave the alarm. Before the male members arrived from the field the entire upper portion of the dwelling was enveloped in flames and nothing was saved from that portion of the house. Some articles of furniture in the rooms of the lower floor, however, were carried out. The dwelling was a commodious house, well built and its loss to the family is keenly felt.

Examinations in merit badges prepared by fifteen second and first class scouts of Oakland troop while at summer camp will be heard.

To Hold Mass Meeting Thursday Evening of Next Week

A county-wide mass meeting, under the auspices of the Lord's Day Alliance, is to be held in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, Thursday evening, September 3, at 8:00 o'clock.

The purpose of this meeting is to lay before the Christian workers and friends of the Lord's day the facts in the fake "Home Rule" attempt to wrench from the church and the home the Lord's Day and give it to the market place, the halls of amusement and to the fields of sport.

Every pastor in the county has been especially invited and is asked to bring with him his official church body together with the Sunday school superintendents and officers and teachers and seven representative women.

There will be several outstanding addresses made on the subject, which will be followed by an open discussion.

School Matters Decided at Meeting of Board of Education

The Board of Education held a meeting in its office in the Court House in Oakland last Monday afternoon with all members of the Board present, as follows: H. A. Loraditch, president; Stuart F. Hamill, vice-president, and Norval Speelman, associate member.

George W. Pritts, Lester Adams and Walter Iman were appointed trustees of the Vindex school, and Harry Wilson was appointed as a trustee of the Kitzmiller school to succeed the late Joseph P. Weicht.

The Board passed an order authorizing the County Superintendent of Schools to proceed to work out the necessary details as related to the securing of ground and in having prepared plans and specifications for the construction of a two-room elementary school building at Red House, for the cost of which the Board of County Commissioners in its levy of April, 1931, provided the sum of $5,000.00

The contract for coal for Grantsville elementary and high schools during the coming school year was awarded to Norman Patton, Grantsville

Representatives of the Davis Coal and Coke company appeared before the Board and discussed plans for a building for high school purposes in Kempton.

In view of the declination of Joseph T. Glotfelty, Oakland, of the tuition scholarship in St. John's College, it was awarded to Gordon Boucher, of Grantsville, the applicant having the next highest percentage in the recent examination for scholarships.

DIED.

GRANTSVILLE

Sudden Death of Donald Simpson

Donald Simpson, a farmer, aged 67 years, well known in all parts of the county, died very suddenly at his home near New Germany, Friday evening.

Mr. Simpson had enjoyed his usual health since recuperating from a recent accident in which his leg was broken, but on the evening of his demise complained of an attack of indigestion after having eaten his supper. He walked outside the house and not returning after the lapse of a period of time, Mrs. Simpson called and not receiving an answer went in search of him. Near the porch of the dwelling she found his inert body lying upon the ground. His death occurred about 8:30 o'clock. Mr. Simpson was born in Canada, September 27, 1864. He came to Maryland when he was 18 years of age and followed the lumbering industry for many years, having been employed on some of the largest sawmills in the county during the lumbering period in the county. Recently he had devoted his endeavors to farming.

On February 24, 1887, he married Miss Mary Warnick, who, with ten children, survives him. They are Earl and Oscar Simpson, Mountain Lake Park; Elmer Simpson, Lonaconing; Forrest Simpson, Philadelphia, Pa.; George Simpson, Grantsville; Mrs. Arthur Broadwater, Mrs. Arch Cook, Lonaconing; Miss Almeda Simpson, Washington, Pa.; Mrs. Lulu Edwards and Miss Ethel Simpson, Grantsville, and 15 grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the M. E. church in Grantsville on Monday morning at ten o'clock, Rev. A. C. Bell, the pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the Grantsville cemetery.

Death of James Stark

James Stark, aged 73 years, died at his home near Bittinger on Monday, August 17, of paralysis. He is survived by his wife and three sons, William, Jacob and Raymond Stark and one daughter, Mrs. Harvey Bittinger, of Meyersdale, Pa. The funeral was held at St. Bethany Brethren church near Bittinger on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. A. C. Bell, of Grantsville, officiating. Interment was made in Bittinger cemetery.

Funeral of Miss Blocher

The funeral of Miss Savina Blocher, who died at the Allegany Hospital, in Cumberland on Sunday, August 16, after a week's illness, was held at St. Stephen's church, Grantsville, Wednesday morning, August 19, Rev. Fr. Cuthbert, O. M. C., and Rev. Fr. Brady, of Meyersdale, officiating.

low requiem mass was sung by combined choirs and Jack McGinn, of Pittsburgh, beautifully sang "Jesus is Crucified."

The pallbearers were Daniel Miller, Byron Bender, C. O. Keller, Lee McMahon, J. F. Fahey and John Boyle. Interment was made in St. Michael's Catholic cemetery, Frostburg. Relatives and friends who attended from a distance were Mrs. Jane Bevans, Mrs. John Collins, Connellsville; Mr. and Mrs. Leon Adanis, Mrs. Julius Henry, Steubenville, O.; Wren Blocher, Akron; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blocher, Wayne, Mich.; Mrs. Lillie Ambell and son William, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ambell, Jack McGinn, Daniel McLaughlin, Pittsburgh. There were present also many friends from Frostburg, Meyersdale and Salisbury.

Warnick Family Reunion.

Providing for the Licensing of all Open Air Amusements for which an Admission Is Charged.

CHAPTER 388.

AN ACT to add a new section to the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," to be under sub-title "Amusements," said new section to be known as Section 18A and to follow immediately after Section 18 of said Article, to provide for the licensing of all open air amusements for which an admission is charged.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That a new section be and it is hereby added to Article 12 of the Code of Public Local Laws of Maryland (1930 Edition), title "Garrett County," to be under sub-title "Amusements," said new section to be known as Section 18A, to follow immediately after Section 18 of said Article, and to read as follows:

18A. No person, firm, association or corporation shall give any circus, carnival, sporting or theatrical performance or amusement of any kind, for which an admission fee is charged, in the open air or under a tent or other temporary enclosure, without first securing a license therefor from the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Garrett County. Said license shall be ten dollars ($10.00) for the first tent or inclosure and five dollars ($5.00) for each additional tent or inclosure, plus a fee of fifty cents (50c) to cover the cost of issuance. Any person, firm, association or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars ($25.00) nor more than one hundred dollars ($100.00).

The provisions of this section shall not apply to religious, fraternal or agricultural associations holding fairs, carnivals or amusements where the proceeds derived therefrom are used to further the work of said associations.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That this Act is hereby declared to be an emergency law and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, and being passed upon a yea and nay vote, supported by three-fifths of all the members elected to each of the two Houses of the General Assembly, the same shall take effect from the date of its passage.

Approved April 17, 1931.

The Germans had a preponderance of 323,000 rifles March 21, 1918, and although this number had decreased they still had a superiority of about 200,000 May 27. July 15 this was changed and the allies then had the superiority by the same number. In other words, the Germans were relatively worse off by 523,000 rifles in July than in March.

This was accounted for almost entirely by the great increase in the numbers of Americans. The French and British had not been able to add to their strength, but, on the contrary, they were being reduced faster than the Germans.

The German offensive south of Rheims, July 15-16, having been checked, the moment was favorable for an allied counteroffensive. The selection by the Germans of the Champagne sector and the eastern and southern faces of the Marne pocket on which to make their offensive was fortunate for the allies, as it favored the counterattack already planned.

We shall now see the reason for the concentration of several American divisions southwest of Soissons. Some of them were available for use in the main counterstroke, to be delivered by the French Tenth army under Mangin. The American First and Second divisions were hastily assembled to form the American Third corps under General Bullard. But his corps staff had not yet been fully organized and these divisions, by his direction, under discretionary authority given by me, became a part of the French Twentieth corps, commanded by General Berdoulat.

Form Spearhead of Attack.

This corps then was composed of these two divisions and the French First Moroccan division, which had a fine reputation, and was assigned to the most important position in the attack on the left center of the Tenth army. The three divisions mentioned had the honor of being the spearhead of the thrust against the vulnerable flank of the salient. The line of advance ran eastward over the commanding plateau just south of Soissons, and across the main road leading from that place to Chateau Thierry.

The First had recently been relieved from the Cantigny sector and was en route to a rest area. It was scattered throughout the Dammartin area, just north of Meaux, when it received orders July 13 to move by truck to the front. After a hurried departure the advance troops arrived at dawn the 16th at the forest of Retz (or forest of Villers-Cotterets) and during the night the division moved to the front of the forest. The night of July 17 it went forward over muddy and congested roads, the columns of infantry working their way to the front, where they arrived in the nick of time.

The Second division was at Montreuil-aux-Lions in reserve of the First corps, recuperating, when the order came on the 14th to move by truck toward the front. Down July 17 found the infantry and machine-gun elements arriving at the forest of Villers-Cotterets. The night of the 17th the movement toward the front, through the forest, was made with extreme difficulty. The narrow roads became jammed, troops lost their direction and there was serious doubt whether they would be at their line of departure at the appointed hour of 4:35 a. m., the 18th.

Proceed Against Odds.

With most commendable energy and initiative the officers led their commands forward during the night, winding in and out through the almost inextricable snarls of wheeled vehicles. One of the battalions assigned to lead in the attack, though on the march most of the night, was forced to move on the run for the last few hundred yards, and just reached its place as the barrage started.

The Second division headquarters found itself July 16 with no knowledge of the terrain and little obtainable from any source. Harbord and his chief of staff, Col. Preston Brown, started for the front and accidentally ran into the headquarters of the Twentieth corps. They there found the directive for the attack, from which they issued the division's orders.

The country over which the Twentieth corps attacked consisted of a succession of wooded ravines that lay across the line of advance, with scarcely any roads leading toward the front. The enemy's main defenses along the ridges of the Soissons plateau were naturally strong, and with the added intrenchments the enemy evidently felt himself reasonably secure. It was harvest time and the ripening wheat that covered the rolling landscape gave excellent cover for the enemy's infantry and machine guns, but it also helped to hide our advance.

Enemy Caught by Surprise.

Without the usual preliminary artillery preparation, the assaulting battalions, accompanied by light tanks, plunged forward behind the barrage. The enemy was caught by surprise and the First and Second divisions, gallantly supported by the Moroccan division in the center, soon overran his forward positions and broke through the zone of his light artillery. Though constantly confronted by fresh enemy troops, this corps took the lead in the advance and its progress was most satisfactory. By noon it had captured half of the great plateau in its front, with many prisoners, and a little later forward elements reached the day's objective.

The Second division encountered strong opposition at Vierzy. In a determined effort launched after 6 p. m. the town was captured and a line overlooking the valley of the Crise was occupied. The First division had carried everything before it, capturing defended farm houses and other points where it met stiff resistance, finally taking Missy-aux-Bois and holding a front line slightly beyond that town. The line ran diagonally across the Paris-Soissons road.

The attack of the corps was resumed the morning of July 19, but during the night the German lines directly in front of Soissons had been heavily reinforced with machine guns and artillery. In their advance the French One Hundred Fifty-third division and the First division met with much resistance, the Second brigade of the First encountering fire of the enemy both from the front and the left flank. Tanks were sent to its assistance and with close artillery support the division was enabled slowly to gain ground, but at considerable cost.

The Second division, with the reserves of the first day in the lead, forged ahead to the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road but was compelled to withdraw to the vicinity of La Raperie. It finally established a line just west of Tigny, with the road under its guns. The division was relieved by the French Fifty-eighth division the night of the 19th, having advanced six and one-half miles, captured 3,000 prisoners and seventy-five guns, and sustained about 5,000 casualties.

First Division Makes Advance.

July 20 the First division continued its advance doggedly against a desperate stand by the Germans on the knoll in front of Berzny-le-Sec. The French had been ordered to take Berzy-le-Sec, but failed. In the afternoon Summerall directed that it be assaulted by his Second brigade, but the attempt did not succeed that day. Assisted by the skillful use of artillery and with consummate dash, under Brig. Gen. B. B. Buck, in the face of intense artillery and machine-gun fire, the Second brigade captured the town on the 21st. Meanwhile, the First brigade and the French Eighty-seventh division, which had relieved the Moroccans, had crossed the Soissons-Chateau Thierry highway and reached the Chatean of Buzancy. The line now ran parallel to the Crise, with Soissons commanded by our artillery.

The First division, throughout four days of constant fighting, had advanced nearly seven miles, taken 3,500 prisoners and sixty-eight guns from seven different German divisions employed against it, and had about 7,200 casualties.

The thrust of the Twentieth corps was conducted with such magnificent dash and power that the enemy's position within the salient was rendered untenable. The dangerous character of the threat caused the crown prince to begin a general withdrawal from the Marne. This operation snatched the initiative from the enemy almost in an instant and from that moment he was on the defensive.

Our First and Second divisions, with the Moroccan division between them, had struck the decisive blow that turned the tide of the war. Petain said it could not have been done without our divisions.

On the other side the German chancellor, Von Hertling, said later: "We expected grave events in Paris for the end of July. That was on the 15th. On the 18th even the most optimistic among us understood that all was lost. The history of the world was played out in three days."

First Open Season for any Game Is September 1

The first open season for the hunting of game of any species in Maryland in 1931 will be September 1. The act of 1931 provided an open season on rail birds September 1 to September 30, inclusive.

The open season for dove and squirrel in Garrett county is between the dates of November 15 and December 24, inclusive.

There is no open season for any other species of game until November 1, when the open season for wild fowl comes in.

All persons must procure licenses, but landowners and their children may hunt on property owned or tenanted by them without a license.

The law requires every person to have a hunter's license in possession and tag displayed on outer garment between shoulders while hunting.

AUGUST MARRIAGE TOTAL NEAR ALL-TIME RECORD

Thirty-one More Required to Surpass 1927 Record of 154

Thirty-six marriage licenses were issued during the past week from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland, bringing the total for the month of August to date 124, being only four less than the total for the entire month of August of 1930.

With a full week left in August it is probable that the all-time record of 154 will be surpassed, if applicants continue to come as fast as they have the previous four weeks.

Eleven licenses were issued an Saturday and nine were marked "don't publish."

vs.

Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Solomon Taylor Male and Ilda Male, his wife, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman and Gibson Coleman, her husband, Lena V. McRobie and Guy McRobie, her husband, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, Defendants.

No. 3030 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by John R. Male, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The bill states:

That John R. Male, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, was in his life time and at the time of his death seized and possessed of certain real esate situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1—All of that parcel of land known and designated as Lot No. 5 on the plat of a tract of land conveyed by H. G. Davis to John W. Garrett, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 20, folio 351, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Mary E. Garrett, et al., trustees, dated May 25, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, one of said Land Records of Garrett Connty, Maryland, said parcel containing 49 acres and 13 perches.

2—All that part of Military Lot No. 4041, containing the quantity of 20 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Charles A. Lish and wife dated April 30, 1921, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 80, folio 93, one of said Land Records.

That a duly certified copy of the first above mentioned deed, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, is herewith filed as "Complainants' Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill of complaint; that while so seized and possessed of said land, the said John R. Male departed this life at his home in Garrett County, on the twelfth day of January, 1931, and by his last will and testament, a certified copy of which is herewith filed, marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 2," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill, devised the last mentioned parcel of land, containing 20 acres, and one acre of the first mentioned parcel to Albert N. Male, and all of the remaining property, both real and personal, to his wife, Sarah E. Male, to have and to hold during her natural life and at her death to be divided equally among his children, Viola S. Keenan, a daughter, who intermarried with John Keenan; William H. Male, a son, now deceased; Thomas I. Male, a son, who intermarried with Sallie Male; Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Albert N. Male and John Edgar Male, single sons; Solomon Taylor Male, a son, who intermarried with Ilda Male; Harry Fenton Male, a son, now deceased; Arizona Coleman, a daughter, who intermarried with Gibson Coleman; and a grand-daughter, Lena V. McRobie, who intermarried with Guy McRobie, all of the survivors being of full age; that the said Sarah E. Male preceded her husband in death, having departed this life on the second day of January, 1931; that the said William H. Male departed this life, intestate, on or about the 27th day of December, 1923, leaving surviving him, ns his next of kin and only heir nt law, a son, Charles Clark Male, who has intermarried with Edna Male and is of full age; that the said Harry Fenton Male departed this life intestate, in or about the month of June, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and heirs at law, the following children, all of whom are infants, to-wit: Mervin Male, a son; Evelyn Mnle, a daughter; Mary Male, a daughter, and Charley Male a son; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein; that it would be to the advantage of all the parties to this cause that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds derived therefrom divided among the parties to this cause according to their respective rights and interests; that the plaintiffs, Viola Keenan, John Keenan and John Edgar Male are residents of Garrett County, and Charles Clark Male and Edna Male, residents of Allegany County, and the defendants, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman, Gibson Coleman, Solomon Taylor Male, Ilda Male, Lena McRobie and Guy McRobie, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, are all residents of Garrett County, and the deendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male, Sallie Male and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, reside in the State of West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against resident defendants, and the order of publication against non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 26th day of August, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of September, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, and residing in the State of West Virginia, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 12th day of October, 1931, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

County-Wide Homemakers Hold Annual Picnic on Lake Shore

The county-wide picnic of the Homemakers Clubs of Garrett county was held at Lakeside Park, on Deep Creek Lake, Wednesday, August 19. Over one hundred club members and friends were present at the affair, with the following clubs represented: Bittinger, 4; Grantsville, 9; Hoycs, 1; Kempton, 25; Loch Lynn, 2; Oakland, 7; Sunnyside, 6. Vindex and Crellin, two unorganized clubs, had three representatives each, and twenty invited members from the club at Aurora, W. Va., were also present.

Following a picnic lunch, Mrs. C. C. Beachy, of Bittinger, president of the County Council, took charge of the program, which consisted of songs, conducted by Mrs. C. E. Hardesty, of Loch Lynn. Talks were made by Mrs. William Frazee, Mrs. Margaret Casteel, Oakland, and Miss Christena Winterburg, of Grantsville, on the Rural Women's Short Course.

The president and three delegates from each club voted upon a new home demonstration agent for the county to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Elsie Benthien.

What If They Do Hold Hands?

"Hello, Mary. This is Bill. What do you say to a movie tonight?"

"Fine. Will you be out about seven-thirty?"

So Mary and Bill go to the movies as do hundreds of other Marys and Bills and probably they hold hands—but they can hardly be blamed for that. We all like the movies but do we and Bill and Mary, as we are carried away from everyday worries and cares, think of the part electricity plays in the modern theatre.

Steadiness of projection and clarity of tone depend to a great extent upon the reliability of your electric utility. Such constant service is possible only because of the interconnected generating stations and the experienced and loyal employes of your power company—many of whom are your own neighbors.

DEFENDANTS IN MT. LAKE PARK CASE FILE ANSWER

Are Prepared To Argue Matter Before Judges of the Circuit Court On Saturday, Sept. 5

12 GROUNDS OF DEMURRER

The recently elected Mayor and Town Council, defendants in a case filed in the Circuit Court for Garrett county on Saturday, August 22, praying that the Court declare the act to incorporate Mountain Lake Park illegal, unconstitutional and void, have filed their answer and are prepared to argue the case before the Court on Saturday, September 5.

The demurrer to the bill of the plaintiffs is based upon twelve exceptions and it is denied in the bill that the Act of the General Assembly passed at its 1931 session, is illegal, unconstitutional or invalid.

The answer was filed by N. C. Fraley, attorney representing MacClellen Clayton, Mayor, and W. L. Camden, Thomas Schooley, Floyd R. Utterback, James F. Elliott and Albert F. Schrock, constituting the Town Council elected along with Mayor Clayton.

Substance of the Answer

The answer of the defendants to the bill of the plaintiffs states that the plaintiffs are not entitled under the law to file suit against the defendants; that the act does not impair obligation of contracts; that the acts complained of are within the powers of the Legislature and that they do not violate any of the provisions of the Federal or State Constitutions.

The question of the eligibility of citizens of other states voting under the provisions of the act under which the referendum election was held, the answer states, is not open to question by the plaintiffs.

The defendants deny that the Mountain Lake Park Association has invested over $200,000, as alleged in the bill, but avers that said corporation has an authorized capital stock of 1000 shares of the par value of $100 each, of which but 270 shares have been issued, and avers further that whatever sums have been expended by the Association represent mainly snms assessed upon the lot holders and not capital invested by the Association.

The answer denies that the operation of the municipal corporation will in any way depreciate or destroy the investments and property of the individual plaintiffs or prevent the attainment of the purposee and objects for which the Park Association was formed.

It is also denied in the answer that citizens of other states are eligible for the office of Mayor and Councilmen.

The answer further alleges that John R. Edwards and Frank E. Baker, two parties plaintiff, are non-residents of Maryland; and that H. V. Leighton is a resident of Loch Lynn; that each of the defendants is a resident of Mt. Lake Park and that they were legally elected to serve as officers of the municipality of Mountain Lake Park.

Mountain Lake Park was founded as a religious resort and its governmental affairs have always been in the hands of an annual committee. At a referendum election held on July fourteenth it was decided to incorporate the community and adopt a municipal form of government. The incorporation was opposed by the Mt. Lake Park Association and the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, now in control of the Association and which owns all the public buildings and much undeveloped real estate within the limits of the Park.

A bill praying for an injunction to prevent the Mayor and Council from asserting the powers conferred upon them by the Act of incorporation, was filed in the court here on August 22, by Attorneys Fred. A. Thayer and Ernest Ray Jones.

To Hold Community Corn Roast

There will be a community corn roast held in Washington Spring Park on Wednesday, September 9, to which all are most cordially invited.

There is work to be done before winter and we hope every man, woman, boy and girl interested in the prosperity of our town will be on hand to help promptly at two o'clock.

Bring any kind of toois. Mr. Aitstetter will direct the workers. If you cannot come Wednesday, then come Thursday. In event of rain the corn roast will be the following evening. PARK COMMITTEE.

MAN SHOT FROM AMBUSH ON WAY HOME FROM MILL

Authorities Probing Mysterious Attack on William Garletts

William Garletts, 45, was shot from ambush last Thursday evening as he was returning to his home, near Long Stretch, on the National Highway, four miles east of Grantsvllle.

Garletts, who received shotgun wounds in the stomach, shoulder and through his nose, said he had no enemies and knew of no reason for the attempt upon his life, and a number of witnesses also testified to the fact when examined by State's Attorney W. W. Dawson and Sheriff Haenftling that Garletts was a law-abiding citizen and that they knew of no reason why anyone should attempt to kill him.

The shot came from the woods along a sideroad leading to the National Highway as Garietts was enroute from his saw mill to his home.

Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the wounding of Garletts was made by the State's officers the evening of the shooting and is still being carried on.

It was not thought at the time Garletts was shot that his wounds were of a serious nature, but he is now confined to his bed and suffers intensely from pains in his abdomen.

CARTER URGES SHEEPMEN TO IMPROVE OLD FLOCKS

Asks That Breeders Let Purebred Rams Boost Lamb Prices

"Right now seems to be the opportune time for every flock owner to check out his old scrub ram and replace him with a thick, low set, purebred ram of the suitable breeds," said County Agent John H. Carter, yesterday.

"It may be a long, long time," he continued, "before farmers can secure good breeding ewes and high class purebred rams as reasonably as will be possible this season. Talk about low lamb prices! One of the main reasons for this is the large number of scrub rams at the head of flocks. Sheepmen who are using good purebred rams and following the proper methods of management can produce lambs at a profit even at lower prices than prevail at present. Many choice lambs are seiilng now at prices ranging from $6.00 to $8.00 per head. It is not only impossible to sell scrub lambs at these prices, but it is hard to get your buyers to take them at any price. The butchers simply don't want them. Scrub rams are costing Garrett county sheepmen about $25,000 annually as near as I can figure.

"My advice to any sheepman who needs a good ram would be to attend the Oakland Ram Show and Sale on Saturday, September 12th. If you don't happen to need a ram, come anyway and see what is going on. A show of all the rams in the sale will be held in the forenoon. Whether you buy or not, you will be welcome and will see something interesting."

Citizens Urged to Clean Up the Town for Monday's Visitors

At a meeting of the executive committee, the yard and garden contest committee and the committee on the beautification of Washington Spring Park, held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Lottie M. Loar, president of the Civic Club, it was urged that citizens of Oakland take particular care in cleaning up their yards, streets and alleys, etc., this week, in preparation for the large number of visitors expected here on Labor Day.

It was also urged that all weeds, especially ragweeds and those conducive to hay fever, be pulled up before going to seed, and that everything possible be done before Monday morning so that the town of Oakland will be spotless for the reception of its visitors that day.

Harmonica Band at St. Peter's School.

One of the activities at St. Peter's school this season wili be a harmonica band. Any pupil of the school may join the class without expense. Many schools throughout the country are conducting such bands with great success.

Sister Loyola, a new teacher on the staff at St. Peter's school, will have charge of the class. Sister Loyola has specialized in this work, having had her training from Mr. Fred. Sonnen, America's foremost harmonica soloist and teacher.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR LABOR DAY JUBILEE

To Be Held Under Auspices of Knights of Pythias; Parade To Feature Morning Activity

TYDINGS TO MAKE ADDRESS

Committees at work on the 12th annual Labor Day picnic have completed their plans and everything is in readiness for the celebration on Manday, September 7. The picnic is sponsored by Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, and will be held in Helbig's grove at the north edge of town.

The parade, scheduled for 10 a. m., will open the day's activities and will form on Alder street betwen Fourth and Sixth. The marshalls of the parade, A. R. Martin, Guy O. Yutzy, and Ray Teets, are asking that everybody be in line before 10 o'clock so that the parade will begin promptly.

The parade will consist of Grand Lodge officers and speakers, members of the Knights of Pythias lodge, the Junior drum and bugle corps, the American Legion drum and bugle corps, several fire departments, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' band, the Crellin Band, and possibly the Terra Alta band, a number of business floats and trades display, local organizations, clowns and other attractions.

Following the parade which will disband at the picnic grounds there will be an address of welcome by the Honorable Grover C. Stemple, mayor of Oakland, and a band concert by the Crellin band.

Grand lodge officers will be introduced and make a few remarks at the opening of the afternoon program at 1:45, followed by an address by U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland. The Gilbert-Brown Boys' band will give a concert at 3 o'clock and a number of contests are scheduled for 4 p. m., with awarding of prizes. The Pugh brothers will give a vaudeville performance at 5 p. m., following which the Plymouth sedan will be given away.

In the evening there will be band concerts, continuous carnival and dancing, with a mammoth fireworks display at 9:30. Park amusements of all kinds are scheduled for the entire day. The Weaver Park attractions of Pittsburgh, consisting of a merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, chair plane and concessions, will furnish the entertainment.

There will be ample parking space provided for automobiles and the local boy scout troop will assist in the parking of cars. A souvenir program is being prepared which will be distributed at the grounds.

Those in charge of the picnic details this year are Edward P. Kahl, manager; Paul Riley, chairman; and Stanley Bond and Stanley Stahl.

Cars in Triple Collison; No One Is Injured

A triple collision occurred last Friday evening on the State highway between Crellin and Hutton, when a truck belonging to the Monheim Produce Company of Uniontown, Pa., and driven by William Caplan, collided with the Flint sedan occupied by Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Grant and their three sons. A Ford coupe occupied by D. W. Walter and son David, Jr., following the truck were unable to stop and struck Dr. Grant's car.

None of the occupants of the cars were seriously hurt, but all were shaken up and somewhat bruised. Dr. and Mrs. Grant and three children were returning home from Kingwood, W. Va., and the Monheim truck and the Walter's car were going toward Terra Alta.

Both fenders on one side as well as a front wheel, the radiator and front axle as well as the runningboard on Dr. Grant's car were damaged, while Mr. Walter's car required a new radiator and fender.

Another Wreck.

When Paul Turney, driving a Willys-Knight sedan on Route 37 between Gortner and Oakland Saturday evening, came to the top of a rise in the highway and saw two wrecked cars directly in front of him he ditched his car in preference to collding with the other two machines, and turned over. Neither he nor Arthur Hinebaugh, who was his companion, was seriously injured, although the latter's hand was considerably bruised and cut by particles of glass.

The two wrecked cars on the highway carried West Virginia license plates. One of them was owned by W. Guthrie, of Terra Alta, W. Va.

Bishop Helfenstein Will Visit Oakland Saturday and Sunday

The Right Reverend Edward T. Helfenstein, Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Maryland, will make his annual visitation to Garrett county this coming week-end.

On Saturday night, September 5th, at 7:30, he will make an address at the evening service of the Episcopal church in Swanton, and on Sunday morning the Bishop will speak to the children of the Sunday school of St. Matthew's Episcopal church in Oakland. At eleven o'clock in the same church the Bishop will confirm a class of candidates and preach the sermon.

Services in St. Matthew's church on Sunday morning will be an early celebration of the Holy Communion at 8:00 o'clock; Sunday school at 9:45, and confirmation service at 11:00 a. m. Everybody is invited to attend these services.

Robert Lawton, 12, Seriously Burned About His Legs

Robert Lawton, 12-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lawton, Oakland, was severely burned about his legs about 4:30 o'clock last Friday afternoon when a can of gasoline with which Donnie Hinebaugh, another small boy, and Robert Lawton were playing, exploded and ignited his garments. Mrs. Arthur Naylor, an eyewitness of the occurrence, ran from her home to the lad and attempted to extinguish the flames but it was not until after Mrs. Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., also seeing the accident, arrived with a rug that the two women succeeded in smothering the fire.

The child was given medical aid at once and is now resting comfortably at his home on Pennington street. It is not thought that the burns will result in any permanent ill-effects.

Mrs. Naylor was slighly burned on her hands and fingers while attempting to put out the fire.

Attractions are Offered at Fayette County Fair

Preparations are being made for a Fayette county (Pa.) fair at Uniontown, opening on Labor Day and continuing one week, under the auspices of the Fayette County Farm Extension of Uniontown, Pa. There will be a polo game and fox hunt, poultry show, flower show and other farm product displays. Minor features are the hog calling contest, doll, mutt day, Shetland pony, old time fiddlers and figure calling contests.

August Has Unusual Amount of Rainfall

August, with a total rainfall of 5.66 inches and only a few clear days, was written into the weather records at Weber's, official government station, as something of an unusual summer month.

An average summer rainfall seldom totals three inches, according to R. E. Weber. The total, however, for the entire eight months of the present year, has been 31.71 inches, which is about normal, it was stated. May and August, both wet months this year, made up for the other dry months.

Farmers say that the recent rains have replenished underground supplies for the first time since they were exhausted last year during the long continued drought. Some are predicting, also, an "old fashioned" rainy fall and "hard" winter.

HARLEY DAWSON IS MADE EAGLE SCOUT AT MEETING

Is Tenth Member of Oakland Troop, B. S. A., to Achieve the Rank; 2 Receive Eagle Palms

AWARD 26 MERIT BADGES

Harley Dawson was made an Eagle Scout at the regular meeting of the Court of Honor of Oakland Troop, B. S. A., held Monday evening, and applications were accepted for two bronze palms, the rank above that of Eagle Scout, making it the most outstanding meeting of the body for a number of months, according to Harland L. Jones, chairman.

Eleven Scouts of the Oakland troop were also awarded twenty-six merit badges.

In becoming an Eagle Scout Harley Dawson is the tenth member of the local troop to achieve that rank and signifies that he has passed a total of 21 merit badges, 12 of them required. The required ones include first aid, swimming, life saving, public health, persanol health, cooking, camping, civics, bird study, pathfinding, pioneering, athletics or physical development.

In addition to the required number of merit badges, a scout, to receive the rank of Eagle, must put into practice in his daily life the ideals and principles of the Scout oath and law, the motto "be prepared," and the daily good turn and must have developed and demonstrated lealdership ability.

Bernard Gonder, Jr., and Ward Hinebaugh, two Eagle scouts of Oakland troop, were awarded bronze palms, for which is required five merit badges above the 21 required for Eagle. Bernard Gonder was commended for his thoroughness in preparing his work for the Court of Honor.

Eagle Scouts

Eagle Scouts of Oakland Troop since its organization are Robert Stemple, James Lee, Kenneth Stahl, McClelland Dixon, Gorge Altstetter, Guy Gregg, Bernard Gonder, Thomas Gonder, Ward Hinebaugh and Harley Dawson.

Harley Dawson joined the local troop in 1927 and became a first class scout in February, 1928. Since that time he has served as patrol leader of the Fox patrol and at present is one of the junior assistant scoutmasters, having been raised to that honor during Scout Anniversary week last February.

Pastor Shiike, of St. Mark's Lutheran church, will preach a Labor Day sermon on Sunday morning, his subject being "Labor and Life," the service to begin at ten o'clock. In the evening he will give the fifth of a series of sermons on "Our Friendships—The Tale Bearer,"—at 7:30

TO BROADCAST FEW MUSIC NUMBERS OF FESTIVAL

Tableland Group Will Be Heard Over KDKA, Pittsburgh, Between 1:30 and 2:00 Friday

NEW TALENT UNCOVERED

A foretaste of the quality of music to be presented at the Alleghany Tableland Associatlon Music Festival at Somerset, Pa., Saturday and Sunday of this week, will be given to the public from 1:30 to 2:00 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, from radio station KDKA, Pittsburgh, when partlcipants in the Festival will go on the air.

A new personality will join the ranks of radio performers when Millard Williams, of Tunnelton, W. Va., "The Mountain Oriole," will whistle bird imitations learned direct from the birds in his own Preston county mountains.

Garrett Stringed Instrumentalists

L. Guy Garrett, of Uniontown, Pa., will lead the Garrett Family Quartet in string numbers. Others of the quartet are his three sisters, Miss Ima Garrett, Bertha Garrett Jeffery and Matilda Garrett Hunter. Soloist for this group is Jess Sargent, of Brownsville, Pa. The Garretts will on this occasion confine themselves to "Zeb Turner's Gal," "The Groundhog Song" and possibly one other.

Miss Frances Hockinberry, of Morgantown, W. Va., will play "The Bumble Bee," an imitative number, on the violin, and will also present a number on the marimba.

Darcy Wilson, of Morgantown, W. Va., director of the Music Festival pageant, will outline the eight counties of the Tableland, will explain the purpose of the Alleghany Tableland Association, and will extend an invitation to attend the Music Festival the following day. He will also present the musicians to the radio audience. Miss Sara B. Huff, of the Agricultural Extension Service of West Virginia University, will extend an invitation to attend the Sunday concert of home and religious songs, and will devote a few words to her music program in West Virginia.

To Crown Queen Mapleheart

J. V. Babcock, Allegheny county (Pa.) commissioner and leading lumberman, of Pittsburgh, Pa., will crown Betty Beachy, 11, of Grantsville, as Queen Mauleheart at the maple sugar pageant in Saturday's program. Every child in Grantsville under 12 years of age has been invited to participate in the maple sugar pageant.

The pageant on Saturday afternoon will portray the early lumber industry of the Tableland region and give the public an understanding of the value of tableland products and all it has to offer.

There will be union community Sunday school service on Sunday morning and on Sunday afternoon the program, beginning about 1:30 o'clock, will be in the nature of an art program made up of all the talent furnished by choruses, bands, male and female voices in anthems and special numbers and community singing.

Garrett county will send quite a delegation of people to watch the pageantry and also to take part in various sections of the program. On Saturday about 60 people of Grantsville will take part in the pageant, along with the Junior drum and bugle corps from Oakland; while on Sunday there will be the grange choirs, the union choir of Oakland, the American Legion drum and bugle corps, and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' band of Oakland.

Cecil Ramsey will run his bus to Somerset on Saturday, leaving Mt. Lake postoffice at 8:30 a. m., and Oakland, City Hall, on Third street, at 8:45 a. m. The trip can be made for $1.00.

Have Narrow Escape

Mr. Mark Moon and Gardner Thomasson, of near Oakland, had a narow escape yesterday afternoon when the Ford roadster in which they were riding during a blinding rainstorm, collided with a telephone pole which had been blown almost to the ground, along the State road near DeBerry's grove, north of town.

The pole knocked out the windshield of the car completely but did not break the top, and neither of the occupants was injured. Had the pole not been able to swing on the wires which were still holding it suspended, it is probable that both would have been badly crushed.

TURNING TO THE GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:13-52.
GOLDEN TEXT—For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Preaching in Antioch.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Preaching in Antioch.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Opening a New Field.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Light Unto the Gentiles.

I. Paul's Journey from Perga to Antioch (13:13-15).

From this time forward Paul, who hitherto was called Saul, takes the lead. His companions were Baraabas and Joha Mark. Leaviag Cyprus they sailed aorthward to Perga, the seaport of Pamphylia.

1. Defectioa of John Mark (v. 13). From Perga, Mark for some reason went back. He later redeemed himself, and was ready to go again when the second missionary journey was begun, but Paul would not give consent (Acts 15: 38, 39). It is pleasing to note that before Paul's death he testified in Mark'a favor (II Tim. 4:11).

2. In the synagogue at Antioch (vv. 14, 15). From Perga, Paul aad Barnabas weat to Aatioch ia Pisidia where thcy entered the synagogue on the Sabbath day. Though Paul was the apostle to the Gentiles, his order of ministry was to begin with the Jews.

II. Paul Preaching in the Synagogue (vv. 16-41).

After the usual readiag of the Scriptures, in response to the invitation of the rulers, Paul delivered his first recorded sermon. In its analysis we find four parts:

1. Historical (vv. 17-23). In this section we see how Paul in a coaciliatory way led them gradually through a series of changes ia which God had dealt graciously with them, finally giving them Jesus, his Soa. He indicated these steps as follows: (a) God chose the fathers and exalted the people (v. 17). (b) He delivered them from Egyptian bondage and led them through the terrible wilderness (vv. 17, 18). (c) He destroyed seven nations in the Land of Canaaa aad gave to Israel their lands (v. 19). (d) He gave them judges as deliverers whea distressed by surrounding nations (v. 20). (e) After they had selfishly chosen a klag, God rejected the dynasty of Saul and chose David, a man after his own heart (vv. 21, 22). (f) Finally it was God who from David's seed raised up unto Israel a Savior, Jesus. This demanded proof which follows:

2. Apologetical (vv. 24-27). That this Jesus was of the seed of David aad therefore the promised Messiah he proves by three llaes of argumeat: (a) The testimony of Joha the Baptist (vv. 24, 25). (b) The prophecies of Scripture fulfilled in their rejection and crucifixion of Jesus (vv. 26-29). (c) His resurrectioa from the dead (vv. 30-37). Several passages of Scripture were cited as belag fulfilled in the resurrection by means of which he was declared to be the Son of God with power. Having proved Jesus to be the seed of David, he proceeded to set down the doctrinal teachiags growing out of it.

3. Doctrinal (vv. 38, 39). The great doctrine derived from this proof is justification by faith—the very marrow of the gospel. Observe: a. The ground of justification is the finished work of Jesus Christ. He took our place as a sinner that we might become sons (II Cor. 5:21). b. Who are justified? Those who believe in him. c. From what is one justified? All sins. The one who believes in Jesus is freely forgivcn all sins.

4. Practical (vv. 40, 41).

The application of this sermon was a warning lest the judgment spoken of by Habakkuk should fall upon them.

III. The Effect of the Sermon (vv. 42-52).

1. Many of the Jews aad proselytes requested to hear these words again (vv. 42-49). Almost the whole city came to hear the Word of God the next Sabbath. This great crowd incited the jealousy of the Jews.

2. Open opposition (vv. 50, 51). The persecution became so violent that Paul and Barnabas were expelled from the city. This persecution was answered hy Paul's rejection of them and his turning to the Gentiles.

3. The disciples filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost (v. 52). In spite of the bitter experiences occasioned by this opposition, they were filled with joy.

Through Gates of Forgiveness

Through the gates of forgiveness we enter a new world, out from darkness into light, out from coldness into warmth, out from evil into good, out from indifference into love, out from the illusion into the real.—Richard Whitwell.

God's Dews and Showers

God's sweet dews and showers of grace slide off the mountain of pride, and fall on the low valleys of humble hearts, and make them pleasant and fertile.—Leighton.

FROM WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA, TO PARKERSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA, ON THE NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This is the second of a series of articles describing scenes and towns along the Northwestern Turnpike, and includes that part of the highway which is between the South Branch Valley and Clarksburg.)

The competition from the railroad in West Virginia with the Northwestern Turnpike did not come as quickly as it did in Maryland with the National Pike, for the reason that the branch of the railroad which crosses West Virginia by way of Grafton, Clarksburg and Parkersburg was not built for several years after the railroad was doing business in Maryland. And the Northwestern Turnpike did not suffer to any great extent from competition with the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

When the B. and O. was completed to Wheeling in 1852, by way of Cumberland, Piedmont, Oakland, Grafton and Fairmont, it was the longest continuous railroad in the world.

A few miles beyond Grafton you come to a village on a hillside that is apparently called Tucker—that is, if the signs on the stores mean anything. But you later learn that the place is called Pruntytown. It was named for Daniel Prunty and was originally the county seat. When Grafton began to grow in importance the seat of the county government was moved to the new city, much to the disgust of the people of Pruntytown. John Barton Payne, who was Secretary of the Interior under President Woodrow Wilson, and who is at present Chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, is a native of Pruntytown. Floyd W. Parsons, well-known magazine writer, is a native of Grafton. Melville Davisson Post, another writer (now dead) is from an adjoining county.

Another few miles and you drive through Brideport. Although the town has a population of only 1,800, it has paved streets and its street names are indicated at the intersections. It has a school system employing 20 teachers and there is a municipal water supply. A bridge in the middle of the business section gives you a clue to the name of the town, which is more than 100 years old. This town is in the heart of West Virginia's blue grass section and is one of the largest cattle shipping points east of the Mississippi.

From Brideport to Clarksburg is a matter of only five miles. Both of these towns are in Harrison county. Harrison was formed in 1784 from Monongalia, and was named in honor of Benjamin Harrison, one of Virginia's Signers of the Declaration of Independence, Governor of Virginia, father of one president of the United States and great-grandfather of another. It has an area of 418 square miles and a population of 90,000. There are several seams of workable coal under the county and included in the county are several gas and oil fields.

Clarksburg, the county-seat, is half way between Washington and Cincinnati, on the B. and O., each city being 275 miles distant. The first settlement was made in 1772, and at a meeting of the settlers in 1778 it was decided to name the place in honor of General George Rogers Clark, a soldier of Virginia, who had gained fame in the Indian wars and in the Revolution.

Glass products hold a high place in the list of things manufactured, for among the articles made in Clarksburg are glass tumblers, fruit jars, milk bottles, medicine bottles, preserve bottles, glass moulds, glass novelties, window glass, glass marbles.

Perhaps to a small boy the glass marbles are more important than all the other glass products of the city. At any rate, they are considered important enough in Clarksburg to justify holding a state championship marble shooting tournament there every year. At the plant where the glassies are manufactured are bins and bins of marbles containing millions of these toys in assorted colors and sizes.

Glass tumblers may not be as romantic, but Clarksburg turns out a lot of them, too. A Clarksburg plant was the first to use successfully an automatic glass tumbler press, and the plant is now the largest pressed tumbler factory in the world, covering eight acres of ground, with 15 acres of floor space and employing 1,500 people.

I have stood by a tumbler press in a Clarksburg glass factory and watched drinking glasses turned out as rapidly as a man could remove them from the machine. If you drink from a glass in a hotel or restaurant or from one purchased at a five and ten cent store, it is quite probable that you have handled glassware that was made in Clarksburg.

Coal mining is the most important industry in the territory surrounding the city. The county produces 9,000,000 tons of soft coal annually and it is estimated that there are still two billion tons of coal unmined—enough to last at the present rate of production for something like 300 years. And by that time you and I probably will not be worried by low temperatures. There are forty-eight mines in the county, some of which are on the edge of the city and at least one of which is in the city limits. It has been said that it is almost possible to walk underground from Clarksburg to Fairmont through coal mines.

The coal is mined almost at the very doors of the factories, and natural gas is piped to every home, office building, manufacturing plant and place of business. I recall that on my first visit to Clarksburg, more than ten years ago, I was much impressed by the ever-present evidences of coal. Some of it could be seen sticking out of the hillsides and there was one place where coal waa being dug from the surface. There were so many wagon mines—that is, small mines, from which coal is sold at retail—that there were no retail dealers in the city.

I also recall a trolley trip from Clarksburg to Fairmont, through the heart of the mining district. Men with lamps on their caps boarded the car from time to time and at various points I could see coal being transported over the tracks by means of overhead cables.

There is much natural gas in the vicinity of Clarksburg, but those who control the supply are not permitting is to be wasted. Indeed, they are encouraging industrial consumers to use coal where coal can conveniently be used and thus leave the natural gas for the heating of homes. One thing that surprises the visitor from the East is that the family gas bill in Clarksburg, where natural gas is used, is just about the same as in Washington, where artificial gas is used.

The presence of natural gas in West Virginia was known long before a way was found to make efficient use of it. One can only guess how many years the Indians knew of it before the white man came and first used it in the process of making salt.

A long time ago West Virginia took first place among the states in the production of natural gas; it maintained that commanding position until recent extensive developments in the West.

The force of gas pouring out of a new well is tremendous. A well drilled on the Slussar farm in Doddridge county in 1891 poured forth gas in such volume that it was a year before the flow could be controlled. The roar of the well could be heard for several miles and people living in the vicinity could not converse with each other on account of the noise.

In the early part of 1892 there was completed at Weston the first pipe line in the Clarksburg district for the carrying of natural gas.

Much money was spent in the construction of a pipe line to bring the gas from the Slussar well to the city of Clarksburg, a distance of fifteen miles. Years after it was completed it was discovered that practically every farm which this pipe line traversed was underlaid with great quantities of natural gas and that there was natural gas under the city.

In the search for oil that has taken place from time to time thruout the State, it has often happened that a well produced no oil, but large quantities of gas. The production of natural gas was at one time so great that it gave the producers much concern as to what to do with it all. Indeed, it was considered unfortunate to discover gas in drilling for oil. If the well produced no oil and no gas it could be abandoned. But if it produced no oil and much gas, the owner of it had to care for the gas in some way that it did not become a menace to others. Gas wells discovered in the search for oil were often plugged and abandoned; those with a volume so great that they could not be plugged, were permitted to blow open until exhausted. No effort was made to conserve the gas; it was worthless and nobody thought that it would become valuable or that the fields of gas would become exhausted. It was expected that West Virginia would produce natural gas forever, and it was considered a waste of time to turn off an outside light in the day time.

About 1895 what has always been considered the largest gas well in the state was drilled on Indian Creek, in Tyler county, and was known as the Big Moses well. The volume and pressure of this well were so great that the operator could do nothing with it and it blew through the full size of the eight and a quarter inch casing for years. Frequently the lightning would ignite the gas and it would burn with a flame 150 feet high until blown out by a wind storm.

After years of fearful waste of this kind a market was found for West Virginia gas by piping it out of the State to cities in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Both Cleveland and Pittsburgh were supplied with West Virginia gas.

There is still gas in West Virginia, but none of it is going to waste. Scientific methods of production and distribution have replaced old ways of handling gas. But when the gas bill comes in on the first of the month, one can't help sighing when he thinks of that Big Moses well flowing wide open for years.

Although Parkersburg is usually considered the oil city of northern West Virginia, Clarksburg is also the center of a vast oil producing district. Harrison county can boast of a well that has produced the greatest amount of oil in any one day, and it can boast of having more producing wells than any other county in the State. Practically every farm in the county on the West Fork River has produced some oil and gas, and many of the farms on the east side of the river are in gas producing territory.

Until recently the record for having penetrated the earth to the greatest depth belonged to a company which sunk a well in the neighborhood of Clarkaburg to a depth of 7,579 feet, which is more than a mile deep, or, as one of my friends described it, "half way to hell."

Clarksburg has a population of 35,000 and maintains a paid police and fire department, as well as two daily newspapers, clubs, hospitals and modern hotels.

The city was much in the limelight in 1924 as the home town of John W. Davis, candidate for President of the United States and formerly Ambassador to Great Britain. Probably the largest crowd that ever assembled in West Virginia—estimated at 75,000 gathered in Clarksburg to greet Mr. Davis when he stepped to the front of the outdoor platform at Goff Plaza to accept the nomination of Democratic candidate for President of the United States. I happened to be one of the crowd. One of the features of that occasion that has stuck in my mind was the brevity of the speech by which Clem Shaver, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, introduced Mr. Davis. Mr. Shaver said: "Ladies and Gentlemen: Mr. Davis." And that crowd stood there in a pouring rain while Mr. Davis made his acceptance speech.

Howard M. Gore, who served as Secretary of Agriculture under President Coolidge, resigning to become Governor of West Virginia, was born and reared near Clarksburg.

Clarksburg is also the birthplace of Stonewall Jackson. The site of Jackson's humble home is marked by a tablet on a building on one of the principal business streets.

In spite of the fact that it is a manufacturing city, Clarksburg's population is 95 per cent white and 82 per cent native. Indeed, the absence of colored people all through West Virginia is particularly noticeable to those who have traveled much in Maryland and Virginia. The answer, of course, lies in the fact that West Virginia is not an agricultural State to the extent that Maryland and Virginia are.

The Northwestern Turnpike goes right through the business section of the town by way of Pike street, passes under a railroad and emerges in open country. The Pike was completed to Clarksburg in 1836. It reached the Ohio in 1838. The railroad was completed to Parkersburg in 1852.

There was a time—before the building of the Northwestern Pike—when Clarksburg did considerable business with Baltimore, a reminder of which may be found in the name of an old street down by the river in Clarksburg. It is called Baltimore Street. The products of West Virginia's fields and forests were hauled over dirt roads into Pennsylvania and shipped east by way of the National Pike through Maryland. Cattle, hogs, and sheep went east from the vicinity of Clarksburg by the same route. In 1830 a line of stage-coaches was established between Clarksburg and Baltimore. The journey between the two cities, by way of the National Pike, could be made on horseback in six days, and by wagon in 15 days. Sometimes goods to be hauled over the National Pike were floated on rafts or flatboats to Browsville, Pa., by way of the West Fork of the Monongahela. Produce was rafted to Pittsburgh and other points on the Ohio in the same way.

Clarksburg, like some of the other towns in the northern part of the State, owes much of its present prosperity to the B. and O. Railroad. To build a railroad over the Alleghenies was an undertaking that required real business courage. Several years ago I was in Parkersburg one evening and was thinking about going to Clarksburg the following day, traveling by daylight in order to see what could be seen. Somebody assured me that I could see just as much by traveling at night, because there are 23 tunnels in the 85 miles between the two points.

During the War between the States, Clarksburg, unlike several other West Virginia towns, was fairly evenly divided in sentiment. One of her sons—Stonewall Jackson—became a great Confederate leader and 26 others from the town became Confederate officers. One of the first Confederate companies was organized at Clarksburg in January, 1861. It contained 100 men at the beginning and the company fought all through the war. When Lee surrendered at Appamattox in 1865 there were six men left of the original 100.

In May, 1861, this company was using the court house on alternate evenings with a Federal company, also organized in Clarksburg. But as the days wore on and the excitement grew more intense, the men in the companies grew more bitter toward each other, and finally the Federal company seized the arms of the other. But the rifles were restored to the Confederates the next day on the condition that they would leave town.

A gentleman who visited Clarksburg in 1819 criticized the cemetery. "I wonder why the citizens of Clarksburg, who are esteemed as a liberal and intelligent people, have not a place to bury their dead secured by a fence from the intrusion of hogs and cattle. He also took a shot at the fire department: "Neither engine, bucket, hose or even a public ladder is to be seen in the town."

Of course, Clarksburg was then nothing more than what city people of today refer to as a "hick town." Even as late as 1900 it had a population of only 4,000. But this number was more than doubled in the ten years that followed. During the next ten years it was trebled. The present population, 35,000, represents an increase of 775 per cent.

The potato crop in some fields of this community has been blighted and the crop in other fields will be short.

Earl Sims, who was accompanied by Mrs. Sims to Baltimore, some time ago, returned from Johns Hopkins Hospital, where he had been a patient three weeks or more. Mr. Sims was a victim of influenza early in the spring which left him with a complication. An operation performed at the hospital removed the cause of his ill health and now he is much improved.

Mrs. J. W. Glotfelty and sons William and Jack and daughters Marylisle and Catherine, of Oakland, were guests of the Barkman family here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mrs. Daisy Greathouse spent her vacation at the home of L. C. Nine, returning to Pittsburgh on Monday morning.

Mrs. Elbert Nine, son and daughter, of Johnstown, Pa., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Nine and will remain here for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Sims and family, of Toledo, O., have been here for two weeks where they are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sims and the former's mother, Mrs. Lizzie Sims, who has been quite ill.

Billy and Dale, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nicholson, who have been very ill, are on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Auburn Hoffman, Keyser, W. Va., was a Sunday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Nine.

Mrs. J. Riley Rumer, who recently scalded herself with a steaming kettle of water, is suffering considerably and is under the care of a physician.

Miss Nellie Barkman and Jimmie Barkman, of the Salvation Army, in Cumberland, who have been here for a short time, will return to Cumberland next week.

Messrs. Fred. Slabach and Cecil Dickerhoft, of Akron, O., returend to Akron, on Saturday after a visit here.

Births on August 1st were: To Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilt, a son; to Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Ashby, Jr., a daughter; to Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Barkman, a son, Kenneth Finley.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Graham and son, Misses Thelma Sliger, Freeport, Nellie and Jennie Barkman, of Cumberland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Ashby, Sr., on Monday.

Weigh Your TELEPHONE!

WEIGH your telephone! Put on one side the calls you make to your out-of-town customers, or to old friends who have moved away from town, lost to sight but not to mind.

Add in the calls that save your wife countless steps each day, the calls that bring pleasant chats with friends, the calls that mean happy times for you both. Add also the emergency calls you may sometimes have to make to the fire department, the police, the doctor.

Then, on the other side of the scales, put the few dollars a month you pay for the service. There is no question which way the scales will swing. Nothing you can buy gives you so much for so little as your telephone.

GIVE SCHOOL CHILDREN A GOOD START ON JOURNEY

Thorough Inspection Will Count For Good Deal In Their Health

While you are getting June and Junior ready to start to school this fall, give them as a good a chance to make the grade as you would your automobile if you were going to start on a long hazardous journey, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, advises the fathers and mothers of the six year olds who will enter school this year.

"Have them inspected by your doctor and dentist, if you have not already done so," he said, "as a part of the necessary preparations for the great adventure upon which they are going to embark. When they tackle school life they will be subjected to greater strain physically than they have ever been under and you will find that attention of this sort will count for a great deal of their health and well-being as well as in their progress in the grades.

"Don't forget that they will have to be vaccinated against smallpox if that has not already been done. According to our State law, no child may be enrolled in school who has not been successfully protected against that disease.

"The Department of Education is preparing for the enrollment of about 18,000 first-graders this fall, and the children who have had a complete medical and dental inspection, followed by the necessary medital and dental attention, will be better safeguarded against the ups and downs of child health than they would be if no thought were given to seeing that they are phyically fit before they start on the road to the three R's.

"Beginning in the spring and continuing throughout the summer special child health conferences have been held throughout the counties for the examination of children who will reach school age this year, in preparation for their admission to school. In the last three months, 351 conferences have been held, at which over 4,600 children have been examined—3,617 white and 1,070 colored—a large proportion of whom were getting ready to enter school. This represents about one-fourth of the total who will reach school age this year, and would seem to indicate that a large number of this year's prospective first-graders have not had the benefit of a careful checking up. You would not think of taking your auto out on a long hazardous trip without having it carefully gone over before you start. Your child is infinitely more precious than your machine. Have him inspected."

250 Gather For Annual Reunion of VanSickle Family

The annual VanSickle reunion was held on Sunday, August 16, on the Lott VanSickle farm at Blooming Rose, near Friendsville, with 250 members and relatives in attendance.

Officers were elected to have charge of the 1932 reunion at the John Van Sickle farm at Selbysport, on the old VanSickle homestead August 21, 1932. The officers are: John Vansickle, president; Lott VanSickle, vice-president; David VanSickle, Hazelton, W. Va., secretary; Ollie Bartholomew and Hilleary VanSickle, Selbysport and Helen VanSickle, Friendsville, the executive committee.

The following program of songs was carried out during the picnic dinner that was served at noon: "The Greeting," "West Virginia Hills," "Our Parting Song," and "God Be With You Till we Meet Again." Miss Myrtle Durst, of Connellsville, gave a history of the family, while Rev. Josiah VanSickle delivered an addres.

Those who attended were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazee, Paul Frazee, Carlus Frazee, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Moyers, Rosely Moyers, Thomas E. Moyers, Jr., Arthur Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Arthur, Maxine Arthur, Cora Harring, Mrs. Ruth Fee, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Teets, Miss Dorothy Teets, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazee and family and Mrs. Sophia Friend, Uniontown; Miss Myrtle M. Durst, Connellsville; Mr. and Mrs. Asa Dixon, Claude Friend, Smith Friend, Accident; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hook, June Hook, Joan Hook, Acosta; Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grover, Jesse W. Fike, Ross E. 160 MARRIAGE LICENSES BREAK ALL-TIME RECORD

This Number Issued During August—Highest Number Previous To That Was 154

11 WERE "DON'T PUBLISH"

The all-time record for marriage licenses issued during any one month in Garrett county was surpassed in August, when 160 were granted at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court. This number is six greater than the former record made in August of 1929, and June, of 1930, and brings the figures for the first eight months of 1931 to 831, being 20 more than for the same period of 1927, the record-breaking year, when 1,300 licenses were issued, and 15 more than for the same period last year.

Thirty-six permits were granted during the week ending Monday evening. Eleven of those issued were marked "don't publish," while two applications for licenses were refused.

John Lemuel Wallin, 27, rubber worker, and Phyllis Dorine Phillips, 18, both of Ravenna, Ohio.

John Tiano, 21, waiter, and Elizabeth Anne Capuder, 19, waitress, both of Fairmont, W. Va.

William Madison Woodruff, 28, clerk, and Alice Marcelle Collins, 23, school teacher, both of Cumberland, Md.

Garnet Cosgrove, 32, salesman, and Mary Melvinia Sherman, 19, both of Belington, W. Va.

George Winters Hill, 28, bookkeeper, West Union, W. Va., and Freda Virginia James, 23, school teacher, of Bristol, W. Va.

Claude Benjamin Davis, 23, chauffeur, Parkersburg, W. Va., and Irene Virginia Laprise, 18, Dover, Maine.

John J. Dublin, 25, coal miner, and Maude Musgrave, 20, both of Rivesville, W. Va.

Clifton Luther Hanlin, 23, mill worker, and Helen Virginia House, 18, both of Cumberland, Md.

Delmar Leo Pifer, 23, laborer, Parsons, W. Va., and Reva Alberta Kastner, 21, Hambleton, W. Va.

Wilbur Merle Ankney, 22, farmer, and Grace Marie Ankney, 21, both of Somerset, Pa.

Claude Junior Tatterson, 22, farmer, and Evelyn Louise Bunner, 19, both of near Fairmont, W. Va.

James Chester Michael, 23, miner, and Mildred Margaret Tuttle, 20, both of Fairview, W. Va.

Harley Fred Burkhamer, 21, clerk, Weston, W. Va., and Kathryn Gay Arnett, 21, Buckhannon, W. Va.

MT. LAKE PARK

A summary of the points in litigation concerning the new municipal charter, appearing last week and elsewhere in this issue, will be read with much interest by every resident of the Park. It is useless to speculate as to the outcome. Constitutional questions are not settled by the laity, around the hearthstone, or on the street corners. The courts will decide after the case has been presented by able attorneys, on the 5th inst.

In view of the numerous gray squirrel and other forms of wild life in the Park, it is interesting to note that a national society has been organized with the object of requiring a license on stray cats, the same as on dogs, it being asserted that the cat carries germs and destroys many birds, young rabbits, etc.

Mushrooms are plentiful this year, especially since the wet weather. It is no trick at all to pick a peck by the basidiomycetous fungus (sounds like Amos and Andy). Fried in butter with hot biscuits is about all that could be desired. And then buckwheat cakes and sausage are on the way!

Local Mention

Mrs. S. H. Brobst, Fairmont, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Warder Cresson, at her cottage.

Mr. Paul Turney is a business visitor in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Richard Cale, Terra Alta, was the guest Sunday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Comerford.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Clark, Jr., of Pitcairn, Pa., are spending a few days in the Park, the guests of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wildman, who have just returned from an extensive motor and camping trip, will shortly move to Morgantown for the winter, where their children will enter school.

Mrs. Harry Brann and son, Harry Jr., left by motor for New York.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Laughlin, accompanied by Miss Joann Grimes, motored to Keyser and other points Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lakin, Terra Alta, were guests Tuesday of Mrs. Frank M. Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Fike have returned after a motor trip of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. N. W. McCord and Mrs. W. Thompson Burch motored to Washington Sunday for a few days.

Miss Harriett Oswell is recovering from an attack of the grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes spent Tuesday in Clarksburg.

Mrs. William Hazlett, Wheeling, is the guest of Mrs. Elizabeth Talson.

Mr. Fred C. Fleming was a business visitor in Fairmont Tuesday.

Mr. Stanley Taylor, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is spending a few weeks at the Park, the guest of Mrs. W. H. Simpson. Mrs. Taylor has been here for some weeks.

Dr. Orton, of the West Virginia University, and family spent Wednesday in the Park, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bushrod Grimes.

CHEVROLET TRUCKS
priced as low as $440*
complete with
Chevrolet-built bodies

CHEVROLET Illustrated at the right are some of the half-ton models included in Chevrolet's complete line of trucks—which consists of ½-ton and 1½-ton models in three wheelbase lengths.

Take the question of first-cost—and you learn that the Chevrolet Six is one of the lowest priced trucks you can buy!

Investigate economy—and you discover the Chevrolet Six to be more economical to operate than any other truck, regardless of the number of cylinders.

Investigate stamina, reliability and upkeep costs—and you find that Chevrolet owners frequently report such records as "20,000 miles without opening the engine"—"50,000 miles and still dependable"—"ten months with practically no expense for repairs."

As for speed and power, Chevrolet gives you a six-cylinder 50-horsepower engine—25% more powerful than the engine in any other truck in the lowest price field. And as for capacity, Chevrolet's longer wheelbase, sturdy frame and long springs permit the mounting of extra-large Chevrolet-built bodies.

Before yon buy a truck for any purpose, find out about six-cylinder Chevrolet trucks. Your Chevrolet dealer has the facts.

Half-ton 109-inch wheelbase chassis $355
1½-ton 131-inch wheelbase chassis $520 (Dual wheels $25 extra)
1½-ton 157-inch wheelbase chassis $590 (Dual wheels standard)

THE FIRST EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION

When reference is made to the Emancipation Proclamation our minds naturally revert to the 22nd day of September, 1862, when President Lincoln issued a proclamation giving formal notice that unless the Southern States returned within a hundred days to the allegiance to the Union he would declare the slaves within their limits free, and of that other proclamation on the 1st day of January, 1863, putting forth a definite Proclamation of Emancipation.

But history records another proclamation of emancipation issued more than eighty years prior to the more familiar one issued by President Lincoln. It was during the stirring days of the Revolutionary period when Lord Dunmore (John Murray, fourth Earl of Dunmore) was Governor of Virginia. He had the honor of being governor of two states—of New York in 1770, and appointed governor of Virginia in 1771—arriving in the latter colony in 1772. Preceding and during the events that led up to the Declaration of Independene, Dunmore was loyal to the British crown and was driven from Virginia in 1775, escaping in a British man of war.

As has been mentioned in former aricles, there were those who hoped to affect a reconciliation of the contending British and American factions whereby all differences could be settled. But it was not to be. While negotiations were pending a plan by Governor Dunmore to assail the western settlements of Virginia and Maryland, was discovered. It was on his first war-like move that the people of Virginia forced him to flee to the man of war. He then laid Norfolk in ashes and conspired with John Connelly, of Pennsylvania, Dr. John Smith, a tory, of Charles county, and others, to bring a force of Indians from Detroit and capture Pittsburgh and Cumberland, and join Dunmore's force near Alexandria, within a few miles of the home of General Washington.

In addition to the Indians, Dunmore conceived the idea of using in his operations run-away negroes. Some he had forced to join him and in the hope of encouraging others to abandon the plantatins, he issued a proclamation of emancipation to the negro slaves of Virginia. As he was already carrying on a predatory warfare upon the shores of the Chesapeake, and as undoubtedly the reputation he had gained in "Dunmore's War" in 1774 on the western frontier in the Ohio Valley (Dunmore being the only royal Governor that ever led a military expedition into that valley), the people of both Maryland and Virginia had cause to fear the double horrors of Indian massacre and an insurrection of slaves. His plan involved the raising of "Lord Dunmore's Regiment of Indians" and "Lord Dunmore's Ethiopian Regiment," but

"The best-laid schemes o' mice and men
Gang aft a-gley,
And lea'e us nought but grief and pain
For promised joy."

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

A breakdown in the machinery of the local electric lighting plant resulted in dark streets for two weeks before repairs were made. House lighting was not interrupted as at that time separate dynamos were used for the two classes of lights.

Policeman Cline requested The Republican to say that "hay riders who go through town at a late hour yelling like demons, had better be a little more quiet or they may expect trouble."

The annual dress ball was advertised to take place at the Oakland Hotel Friday night and the affair promised to be a "grand one in all departments."

Adjutant—General Howard commissioned Robert C. Townshend first lieutenant of Co. C, Second Battalion Infantry, M. N. G.

The Fourth Judicial District nominating convention convened in Oakland with delegates present from Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, at which the Hon. Edward Stake was nominated as the candidate of the Republican party. Edward E. Sollars was chairman of the convention. A. L. Gnagey was one of the vice-presidents of the body.

A dozen or more young people rode out to Mr. Turley's farm just beyond town where they were entertained by the Misses Turley in true Southern style.

A new wooden platform was laid in front and on the east side of the Presbyterian church lot. The walk was perched upon stilts about four feet above the church level, but conformed with the surface of the church property.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The large saw mill of the North Maryland Lumber Company at Bond was consumed by fire and the night watchman, Albert Mackert, was burned to death. As a result of the burning of the mill more than a hundred men were thrown out of employment until the mill was rebuilt.

The cornerstone of the new Knights of Pythias building on Third street was laid with impressive ceremonies. Capt. R. C. Townshend and Lieut. W. H. Hinebaugh, of the uniform rank of the organization led the parade to the site of the proposed building. The Mountain City Band, local lodge officers and members of the Grand Lodge were in the parade.

At the Republican county convention the following local ticket was placed in nomination: Samuel Lawton, John A. Long and Edwin A. Weimer, House of Delegates; Julius C. Renninger, State's Attorney; Charles S. Harvey, Henry Kamp and J. Thomas Moon, Judges of the Orphans' Court; W. A. Maffett, Sheriff; J. B. Emory, County Treasurer; Otho S. Fike, County Commissioner; A. G. Ross, Clerk to the County Commissioners.

A camping party composed of Dr. and Mrs. John G. Robinson and ten or more boys, members of the Juvenile Choral Society of Oakland, went down to Swallow Falls where they pitched their tents for a week's stay.

DIED.

JOHN L. BRAFFORD

John L. Brafford, born April 2, 1858, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Cyrus DeWitt, of near Oakland, on Sunday, August 30. He was aged 73 years, 4 months and 28 days. Funeral services were conducted on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. DeWitt, Rev. Chester Helmick, of Keyser, W. Va., officiating. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery. The deceased is survived by his wife, Ida A. Brafford, and five children, Mrs. Lulu A. DeWitt, Mrs. Ethel G. Walter, Robert M. Brafford, all of Oakland; W. C. Brafford, of Akron, O., and James R. Brafford, of Moravian Falls, N. C.; also by six grandchildren. The deceased was a member of the Campbellite church. He had been employed in the vicinity of Ridgeley and Pinto for about twenty-five yars and had been in Oakland only eight weeks.

MISS JULIA SINES

Miss Julia Sines, daughter of Richard Sines, of Sines, died Sunday from complications. Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon with interment at Sang Run.

WILLIAM RICE

William Rice, age 48, was found dead in bed Tuesday morning at the home of Carl Martin. Red House, where he had resided for some time past.

Funeral services were conducted this morning from St. Peter's Catholic church, with interment in the Catholic cemetery. The Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, had charge of the services at the grave.

The deceased entered the army of the United States in 1901, serving for some time in the Phillippine Islands. He was also a World war veteran. He is the son of Mrs. Mary Cromwell, of Baltimore.

To Visit Yards and Gardens of Entrants In Contest

A garden tour will be conducted Friday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock, beginning at the home of Miss Lottie Loar, Second street, Mrs. Julius Littman, a member of the Oakland Civic club, has announced.

There will be cars to take the people to the different homes of people who are entered in the annual yard and garden contest, and everybody is invited to attend.

"The tour is not to judge the winners, but to merely obtain ideas to better our own gardens," Mrs. Littman stated. Homes of fifteen or more entries will be visited including those of Albert Markley, Miss Julia Rowan, John Faherty, Albert Kahl, E. Ray Jones, Mrs. Mollie Mitchell, Gordon McRobie, Hervey Smouse, Mrs. May Shaffer, Harold Dawson, Dr. N. I. Broadwater, Ernest Shirer, Delbert Davis and Byron Besse.

An Open Letter to High School Graduates and Their Parents

Prof. John L. Dunkle, principal of the State Normal School at Frostburg, has addressed the following open letter to high school graduates and their parents in Garrett county. The letter is given publicity through the medium of The Republican and is as follows:

Just now you are anxious to make no mistake in what to do this fall. Everywhere there seems to be a surplus of labor, even in the professional fields. Elementary school teaching in Maryland will be one exception in 1934. The local teachers college has less than a dozen students from Garrett county who will complete their work in the next two years—1932 and 1933. What about the outlook for 1934? Many more teachers will be needed than have already enrolled for this fall.

To those students who have the ability and who desire regular and permanent employment, elementary school teaching should make its appeal at this time. To those who desire a college education with all the opportunities afforded by a college will find them at Frostburg.

The State of Maryland believes that well trained elementary school teachers are so necessary and so essential that is has made the expense so low that any student can afford to attend. It actually costs only $180 per year for complete maintenance at Frostburg. For less than $600 a student can complete his three years of training. When the training is completed he is sure of a position, or as sure as we can humanly be of anything. Furthermore, he has three years of college credit to offer at our best colleges and universities, if he continues in elementary school training.

The local teachers college begins its three-year course under the most auspicious conditions. A new training school costing $75,000 will be ready for use on the opening day of school. It is here that the teachers in training will work with children under the most favorable conditions. Visual aid in education will be available this year. More than $1000 in equipment has been provided. The college library with two librarians has more than 11,000 volumes for the use of its students. The new elementary school will have its own library for the use of the children and student teachers.

The new student will find a trained faculty of twenty members who have but a single interest—the personal, physical, social and professional development of every student to the end that he may be a better teacher of children.

Every phase of college life is to be found on the campus. The students and faculty work and play together. There is a music club and a dramatic club; a Greek letter fraternity for men and a Greek letter organization for all, and there are student councils, athletics of many kinds, and a diversity of social organizations. There is a strong, active religious organization. Students may live as richly as their interests lead them.

The following students from Garrett county have completed their enrollment for the fall session of the school:

Jennie Durst, Lonaconing; Isabel C. Glotfelty, Accident; Bruce Jenkins, Friendsville; Edith Opel, Grantsville; Esther Opel, Grantsville; Mary Jane Porter, Oakland; Mary Sollars. Oakland; Helen B. Statler, Friendsville; Gladys Wilson. Kitzmiller.

The opening date is Monday, September 7. For further information, address John L. Dunkle, principal, at Frostburg, Md.

Agencies Making Plans For This Winter's Relief

With numerous calls for clothing, shoes, etc., for school children at the office of the public health nurse, relief agencies of Garrett county are already making plans to care for the winter needs of those unable to provide for themselves.

Last year the National Red Cross gave $1,500 toward relief in Garrett county, and the County Commissioners expended more than $3,000 in excess of the regular appropriation for dependents. With the local Red Cross headquarters giving approximately $500, this made a total of $5,000 expended for relief work in the county, and the probabilities of needing as great a sum this year depends on the activities of the coal mines of the section, according to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, local Red Cross chairman.

Last year 158 families, or a total of 517 individuals were aided by donations of foodstuffs, clothing, seed for garden planting and food for live stock. Many of those in need last winter have not been able to recover from their setback to any great extent and will be looking to relief agencies again this winter, Mrs. Tower said.

Farewell Dance Given For Miss Hasaleah Yutzy

Misses Virginia Fraley and Annabell Stemple entertained a group of young folks at a surprise farewell dance on Friday evening, August 28, at the home of Miss Fraley, in honor of Miss Hasaleah Yutzy, who left here Tuesday for Pittsburgh, Pa., in which city she has entered Passavant Hospital to become a nurse. During an intermission the guest of honor was the recipient of a number of gifts, as were also Bernadine Canty and Virginia Giessman, who are also leaving Oakland to take up their studies elsewhere. Lindsay Gonder made a farewell address. Those present at the dance were: Hasaleah Yutzy, Eddie Hinebaugh; Beryl Fulk, Richard Glotfelty; Rose Morgan, Dick Roy; Helen Giessman, Waller Hoye; Mildred Stemple, George Altstetter; Virginia Gilbert, Harley Dawson; Evelyn Dixon, LaVerne East; Janet Tower, Kenneth Taylor; Bernadine Canty, Ted Zeller.

Library Clears $80 at Benefit Dance Recital

Approximately $80 was cleared at the dance recital given last Friday evening in the high school auditorium for the benefit of the Oakland Free Public Library.

The recital was in charge of Misses Mary and Charlotte Bolgiano, summer residents of Loch Lynn Heights, and consisted of a number of interpretative dances by the Misses Bolgiano and members of their dancing class. Little Miss Dolores Yutzy, aged 6, and Estelle and Mary Treacy, were all quite pleasing and acquitted themselves admirably.

Other numbers on the program included a sketch from Tom Sawyer by Misses Ethel and Emily Bolgiano; two readings by Miss Emily Bolgiano; a vocal solo by Mrs. Harry Brann, summer resident of Loch Lnn, and a monologue by Miss Barbara Burruss.

The annual meeting of the teachers of the public schools of the county is being held in the Oakland High School auditorium today and tomorrow in preparation for the opening of the schools on Tuesday morning.

Instructions will be given by Miss Bannatyne, Miss Hamill and Miss Skidmore, grade supervisors; F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent, and John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Tomorrow Dr. George E. Clarke, County Health Officer, will deliver an address to the assembled teachers.

There are more than a hundred and fifty teachers enrolled at the conference.

County Council of Religious Education to Meet at Accident Tomorrow

Representatives from all Sunday schools, including officers, teachers and pastors, are to meet in annual convention tomorrow (Friday) at Accident.

The main part of the program is to be given over to the teaching staff of the school, with three outstanding messages.

The first session will convene at 9:30 with devotions by Rev. J. W. Dawson, of Oakland. The official welcome by Rev. A. B. Harper, of the convention church, will follow. The chief address of the morning will then be delivered.

The delegates will lunch together in the grove of Mr. Speicher.

The afternoon session will be given over to conferences in which the discussions will be by departments with a specialist leading each group.

Each school of the county is expected to have its report and financial contribution of at least five cents per member either sent or brought to the convention.

Fair Grounds Are Cleaned For Annual Exhibit

Peparation has been going forward on getting the Garrett County Fair grounds in readiness for the fifteenth annual county-wide exhibit, according to Henry M. Speicher, general manager, and the buildings are being thoroughly cleansed.

The general admission has been reduced this year from 50 cents to 25 cents and the season tickets will be $1.00 instead of $1.50. It is urged that a large number of tickets be purchased and everyone attend and view the exhibits, which are expected to be above the average.

The Weaver Park Attractions of Pittsburgh, will furnish the amusement.

No Early Open Season For Squirrel

The following letter of information concerning the squirrel season has been received by The Republican from the State Game Warden with the request that it be given publicity thru this medium.

To avoid confusion among the public, attention is called to Section 20, Chapter 543, Acts of 1931, relative to the hunting of squirrel and dove. Said section provides it to be uniawful to hunt squirrel or dove in Allegany, Garrett and Cecil counties except between the dates of November 15 and December 24. The open season for the hunting of doves in all counties except Allegany, Garrett and Cecil is September 1st to September 30th, and the open season for the hunting of squirrel in all counties except Allegany, Garrett and Cecil is September 15th to October 15th.

Our deputy game wardens have been instructed in the counties of Allegany, Garrett and Cecil to apprehend any person found hunting squirrel or dove prior to November 15th.

E. LEE LeCOMPTE,
State Game Warden.

vs.

No. 3030 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by John R. Male, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The bill states:

That John R. Male, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, was in his life time and at the time of his death seized and possessed of certain real esate situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1—All of that parcel of land known and designated as Lot No. 5 on the plat of a tract of land conveyed by H. G. Davis to John W. Garrett, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 20, folio 351, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Mary E. Garrett, et al., trustees, dated May 25, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, said parcel containing 49 acres and 13 perches.

2—All that part of Military Lot No. 4041, containing the quantity of 20 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Charles A. Lish and wife dated April 30, 1921, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 80, folio 93, one of said Land Records.

That a duly certified copy of the first above mentioned deed, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, is herewith filed as "Complainants' Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill of complaint; that while so seized and possessed of said land, the said John R. Male departed this life at his home in Garrett County, on the twelfth day of January, 1931, and by his last will and testament, a certified copy of which is herewith filed, marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 2," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill, devised the last mentioned parcel of land, containing 20 acres, and one acre of the first mentioned parcel to Albert N. Male, and all of the remaining property, both real and personal, to his wife, Sarah E. Male, to have and to hold during her natural life and at her death to be divided equally among his children, Viola S. Keenan, a daughter, who intermarried with John Keenan; William H. Male, a son, now deceased; Thomas I. Male, a son, who intermarried with Sallie Male; Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Albert N. Male and John Edgar Male, single sons; Solomon Taylor Male, a son, who intermarried with Ilda Male; Harry Fenton Male, a son, now deceased; Arizona Coleman, a daughter, who intermarried with Gibson Coleman; and a grand-daughter, Lena V. McRobie, who intermarried with Guy McRobie, all of the survivors being of full age; that the said Sarah E. Male preceded her husband in death, having departed this life on the second day of January, 1931; that the said William H. Male departed this life, intestate, on or about the 27th day of December, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and only heir at law, a son, Charles Clark Male, who has intermarried with Edna Male and is of full age; that the said Harry Fenton Male departed this life intestate, in or about the month of June, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and heirs at law, the following children, all of whom are infants, to-wit: Mervin Male, a son; Evelyn Male, a daughter; Mary Male, a daughter, and Charley Male a son; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein; that it would be to the advantage of all the parties to this cause that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds derived therefrom divided among the parties to this cause according to their respective rights and interests; that the plaintiffs, Viola Keenan, John Keenan and John Edgar Male are residents of Garrett County, and Charles Clark Male and Edna Male, residents of Allegany County, and the defendants, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman, Gibson Coleman, Solomon Taylor Male, Ilda Male, Lena McRobie and Guy McRobie, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, are all residents of Garrett County, and the deendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male, Sallie Male and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, reside in the State of West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against resident defendants, and the order of publication against non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 26th day of August, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of September, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, and residing in the State of West Virginia, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 12th day of October, 1931, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

CHAPTER LI

American participation in the second Marne offensive, which began July 18, 1918, and turned the tide of war in favor of the allies, was not limited to the operations of the First and Second divisions. While this bitter contest was being waged for the possession of the crucial point near Soissons the troops around the rim of the salient had been steadily driving ahead.

The Fourth division (Cameron), less its artillery, fought at first with the French. The Seventh brigade was attacked to the Second corps, French Sixth army, the Forty-seventh infantry in reserve, and the Thirty-ninth assigned to the French Thirty-third division.

In the attack of July 18 this regiment cleaned up the wood in its front, captured Noroy, and extended the line to the south. On the 18th the regiment went forward about two and one-half miles on a front 1,000 yards north of the Ourcq. It was relieved the morning of the 20th and went to the reserve.

The Eighth brigade was assigned to the French One Hundred Sixty-fourth division, the Fifty-ninth regiment in reserve. In the attack of the 18th, the Fifty-eighth regiment assisted in the capture of Hautevesnes and Conrchamps, took Chevillon and made further substantial gains. The Fifty-ninth regiment was put in the front line during the night of July 18-19, relieving the Fifty-eighth, and on the 19th, advancing with the division, gained two miles. On the 20th, with two battalions of the Fifty-ninth in line, the advance was carried well to the east of Sommedans. The brigade was relieved from the front line July 21.

Twenty-sixth Division Participates.

Coincident with these advances on the 18th, the First corps (Liggett), serving with the French sixth army division and composed of our Twenty-sixth division and the French One Hundred Sixty-seventh division, also became a part of the movement. The Twenty-sixth division occupied the line it had taken over from the Second division July 10. The plan for the July 18 offensive contemplated a deep penetration south of Soissons by the French Tenth army, supported on the right by the French Sixth army, extending the attack as far south as Bouresches.

The Fifty-second brigade, Twenty-sixth division, captured the villages of Torcy and Belleau, and one battalion reached the base of the dominating Hill 193. Elements of the brigade reached the railroad, but severe flank fire drove them to the starting point.

On the 19th the advance of the Twenty-sixth was contingent upon the success of the French One Hundred Sixty-seventh division on its left, but that division failed to take its objectives and the Twenty-sixth did not attack. On the 20th the One Hundred Sixty-seventh was held up again, exposing the left of the division to heavy flank fire and preventing more than a slight gain. Farther to the right the Twenty-sixth succeeded in taking Gonetric farm, and got a foothold on Hill 190.

Reach New German Line.

When the attack began on the 21st it was found that the Germans had withdrawn the night before, and the Twenty-sixth moved forward with little or no opposition until it reached the new German lines at l'Hermitage-Epieds-Mont St. Pere, east of the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry highway. On the 22nd it captured Trugny and got a foothold in Epieds, but was forced by a strong German counterattack to retire to Bretuil wood. The Fifty-second brigade was also driven back to its starting point.

The attack renewed on the 23rd was successful, one regiment reaching the Epieds-Mont St. Pere road, but in the afternoon it was forced to retire. That night the Fifty-second brigade was replaced by the Fifty-sixth brigade, Tweny-eighth division. When the latter launched its attack the morning of the 24th, it was found that the enemy had withdrawn and he was not again encountered until the pursuers, including part of the Fifty-first brigade, Twenty-sixth division, reached Croix Ronge farm.

During its offensive action beginning with the 18th, the Twenty-sixth division had progressed nearly eleven miles and had captured 250 prisoners and four pieces of artillery. Since its occupation of the sector July 10 it had suffered about 5,000 casualties. The division was relieved, together with the Fifty-sixth brigade, Twenty-eighth division, by the Eighty-fourth brigade, Forty-second division, which took over the sector on the 25th. The Eighty-fourth brigade, Forty-second division, replaced two French divisions, which were pinched out by the shortening of the line. On the 27th, the Forty-second division occupied the entire front of the First corps, about two miles in extent.

Enemy Fights Desperately.

The enemy's defeat in front of the Twentieth corps (American First and Second divisions and First Moroccan division) was the principal cause of the withdrawal of his armies, but he fought desperately from position to position and his retirement was being skillfully conducted to save men and material from capture.

In the counteroffensive of July 18 no operations were ordered for French or American troops east of Chatean Thierry, leaving them an opportunity to readjust their lines. On the 20th, patrols from the Third division discovered that the Germans had withdrawn across the Marne the night before and the division at once advanced its line to the river. The night of July 20th the Germans further withdrew to the line Charteves-Ridge, north of Mont St. Pere, connecting with their line of resistance in front of our First corps.

July 21 the Fifth brigade crossed the Marne in pursuit, capturing Mont St. Pere and driving machine guns out of Charteves. The Sixth brigade waited for the bridge to be completed at Mezy and the morning of the 22nd one regiment crossed the river and captured Jaulgonne. The Germans were contesting every step, and while the First battalion of this regiment reached Le Charmel it was compelled to retire by successive positions to Jaulgonne.

On the 26th operations planned in co-operation with the French Thirty-ninth and the American Forty-second on its left were only partly successful. The Forty-second captured the strongly held Croix Rouge farm, but the French Thirty-ninth division could not advance. The leading battalions of the Fifth brigade entered Le Charmel, but not being able to debouch from the town they were withdrawn after dark. During the night the hard-pressed Germans retired to the Ourcq, leaving machine guns behind to delay our advance.

July 27 the French Thirty-ninth division took up the pursuit, followed by the Fifty-fifth brigade, Twenty-eighth division, which relieved the French Thirty-ninth that night at Conrmont. The Fifth brigade, Third division, advanced on the right to protect this movement and occupied a line running southeast from Courmont through Villardelle. During the morning of the 28th, the Fifth brigade captured Roncheres, and the Twenty-eighth division reached the Ourcq, but was unable to hold its gains north of the river. On the 29th the Third division occupied an irregular line beyond Roncheres, but neither that unit nor the Twenty-eighth division on its left was able to make material progress against the Bois des Grimpettes that day.

Third Division Relieved.

The Third division was relieved by the Thirty-second on the 30th and retired south of the Marne. It had taken a decisive part in stopping the last German offensive and had advanced ten miles through difficult country, stubbornly defended by the enemy. It had suffered casualties to the number of about 6,000 officers and men.

The Forty-second division, as we have seen, had come from the French Fourth army to the Marne salient and had relieved the Twenty-sixth division in the First corps. In the advance that followed it had gallantly captured Croix Rouge farm on the 26th, and on the following day had cleared the Foret de Fere, captured Villers-sur-Fere and had reached the Ourcq. July 28 the Forty-second established a line beyond the Ourcy and on the 29th the Fourth division, in support of the Forty-second division, captured Sergy, while the latter took Seringes-et-Nesles.

The enemy made a determined stand along the Ourcq river and some of the hardest fighting of the period occurred at this time. August 3 the Fourth division relieved the Forty-second. The Third corps (Bullard), with the American Twenty-eighth and Thirty-second divisions, relieved the French Thirty-eighth corps on the right of our First corps. Once established beyond the Ourcq, our two corps advanced rapidly toward the Vesle river, meeting with little opposition.

We had in all nine American divisions, equal to eighteen French divisions, engaged in this second battle of the Marne. This force, together with the staff, supply, medical troops and aviation, amounted to a total force of nearly 300,000 actively employed during that period. We suffered 65,000 casualties.

CHAPTER LII

I attended a conference of commanders in chief at General Foch's headquarters Wednesday, July 24, 1918, to discuss plans for offensive operations.

Present were Generals Foch, Petain, Weygand and Bunt; Field Marshal Haig and General Lawrence, and General Conner, chief of operations, Boyd and Hughes and myself.

There was pronounced good feeling and confidence. General Foch gave a resume of the general situation. He proposed no definite plan, but submitted his remarks as the basis of discussion.

The main point was that the fifth German offensive of the year had been checked and the allied counteroffensive, beginning July 18, had transformed it into defeat. It was the general opinion that every advantage should be taken of this fact and that the allies should continue their attacks with as much vigor as possible.

On Par With Enemy.

General Foch said with satisfaction that we had now reached an equality in numbers of combatants and an actual superiority in reserves. As the enemy would soon be required to relieve a considerable number of tired divisions from the active front, the allies would rapidly gain further superiority through the constantly increasing number of Americans.

All information went to show that the enemy had two armies, so to speak, Foch continued, one an exhausted holding army and the other a shock army, already weakened maneuvering behind this frail front. Unquestionably we had material advantage in aviation and tanks, and to a smaller degree in artillery, and this would be augmented by the arrival and armament of American artillery personnel.

As to the reserve strength behind the allies, it would soon be powerful indeed if the rate of 250,000 per month at which the Americans were pouring in could be maintained. One could sense an approaching crisis on the enemy's side possibly not so very remote, because of the difficulty he was having in keeping up the effective strength of his units.

Allies Now Hold Initiative.

Beyond these advantages of material force in our favor there was also the moral ascendancy we had gained by our recent victories and his failures. Foch felt as we all did, that the allies now held the initiative and that from this time on they should abandon the defensive attitude that had been so long imposed upon them and continue the offensive without cessation.

He then pointed out the following offensives which it was evident would be indispensable to later operations:

The release of the railroad Paris-Avricourt in the Marne region by the French; the Paris-Amiens railroad by a concerted action of the British and French; the Paris-Avricourt railroad in the region of Commercy by the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient by the American army, which, by reducing the front, would bring us within reach of the Briey region and permit action on a larger scale between the Meuse and Moselle.

Further offensives were foreseen, having in view the release of the mining sections to the north by definitely driving the enemy from the region of Dunkirk and Calais.

No Idea of Ending War in 1918.

No one suggested that the plans of the moment or those to follow might be carried so far as to terminate the war in 1918. Concerning the part each should play Foch asked expressions of opinion of the respective commanders in chief as to how these or any other operations we might propose should be conducted.

Marshal Haig gave his views and plans, which agreed with the general outline suggested, as did General Petain, who wanted further to consider the possibilities. As far as these preliminary operations applied to the Americans, they were simply a restatement of the plans we had been leading up to ever since our entry into the war. I, therefore, advised that details of organization and supply were receiving every consideration in the preparation of the American army to do its part.

While at General Foch's headquarters I arranged with General Petain for the expansion of the First corps, then operating in the Marne sector, by which four American divisions were to be placed in the line with two in reserve. It was my hope that this would be the basis for the preliminary formation of an American army on this front. En route to Chanmont I stopped to call on Liggett and apprise him of the possibility of additional American divisions for his corps.

Expedition to Russia.

The supreme war council was prone to listen to suggestions for the use of allied troops at various places other than the western front. One of these, on which the British seemed to be especially insistent, was to send troops to help the so-called white army in Russia, to keep open the communications through Murmansk in the Archangel.

I was opposed to any such idea, as it would simply mean scattering our resources, all of which were needed on the western front. But President Wilson was prevailed upon to help and I was directed to send a regiment provided General Foch had no objections. As apparently he had already considered the question, he gave his approval and a regiment was accordingly sent. The Three Hundred Thirty-ninth infantry, Lieut. Col. George E. Stewart commanding, together with one battalion of engineer and one field hospital, were designated for this service.

First Field Army.

In view of the prospect for the early assembly of corps and divisions to form our army, it became urgent that the organization be hastened with all possible speed. The outlines had been determined and members of the First army staff were at work on the details.

My formal order creating the First field army was issued July 24, to take effect August 10, with headquarters at La Ferte-sous-Jouarre.

Immediate consideration was given the improvement of the general supply system. Although the recent reorganization had helped, it had been my purpose for some time to make changes in personnel in the S. O. S., particularly in the position of chief, which demanded great administrative ability. After much thought the choice fell to General Harbord. His knowledge of organization, his personality, his energy and his loyalty made him the outstanding choice. Reluctance to lose his services in command of troops, where he had shown himself a brilliant leader, caused me to delay until his division could be relieved from the active front.

The Empress Eugenie hat, that dashing, flirtatious, audicious and goofy creation was inspired by the Empress Eugenie, in a spirit of fun, and has been taken seriously by the modern girl. It is now being worn as successfully as could be expected by those who are willing to give their right eye for the privilege of wearing it.

It's all right as long as you can get an eye full with the left peeper, but don't leave the right eye covered too long.

These hats don't look like hats at all. They look like somebody left their old derby hat out in the rain and it shrunk. Then they draped a chicken feather around it and sold it to somebody for $5.

It used to be that whenever someone went to meet someone, they would recognize each other by their hats. Now they wouldn't know each other from a load of West Penn poles.

These Empress Engenie hats were really created by the wife of an absent minded professor who ate her hat for breakfast and wore the pancake downtown. The feather is just an after thought.

And all the time women are thinking that they are expressing individuality.

Over in Napoleon's court once upon a time when Empress Eugenie had a mad-on at somebody she wanted to spite him plenty and went to the Royal Milliner and told him to design the meanest looking hat he could create. He tried everything from gaily trimmed soup tureens to severely plain inverted gobboons, but they weren't bad enough.

Then he picked up Al Smith's brown derby, crushed it out of shape, stuck a quill on the side and soaked the Empress 6,189 francs.

The result is the new individuality of the American girl.

It's a Disease

All one needs to do in Mt. Lake Park to start something is to ask who is collecting taxes out there. It has even affected the little ones.

The other day Jack Stevenson went into a person's home and a three-year old girl called him. "Come here, Jack," she said, "look at my doll, it's awfully sick, doesn't it look bad?" "What's the matter?" asked Jack. "I don't know," the three-year old replied, "but I 'spect it has Corporation."

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, SEPTEMBER 10, 1931. NUMBER 30.

SPECIAL ENTERTAINMENT BEING PROVIDED FOR FAIR

Four Big Days Are Promised—Visiting Drum Corps to Parade On Thursday Evening

FAIR BEGINS ON TUESDAY

Special entertainment in the form of two airplanes with parachute jumping and stunt flying, C. W. White's ponies of Cumberland, and specialty acts, is being provided for the fifteenth annual Garrett County Agricultural Fair, to be held at the Fair Grounds, Oakland, on September 15, 16, 17, and 18, according to Henry M. Speicher, general manager of the Association. This will be in addition to the exhibits and Weaver's Park attractions, it was stated.

"Now that the Labor Day picnic and Tableland Music Festival are over, people should turn all their energies and thoughts toward the Fair," John H. Carter, county agent, stated, in discussing the outlook for its success. "A county agricultural fair should be one of the most important events on any county program, especially when the county is depending almost entirely upon agriculture for its resources."

Four big days, with parades for each day, have been announced by the management, opening with organization day, when all organizations of Oakland and Garrett county are asked to have representatives to participate in the parade.

On Wednesday, School Day, all the teachers, with their pupils, are to meet at ten o'clock at the Court House and form for parade. The American Legion drum and bugle corps, the Oakland Boys' Band, the Crellin Band and the Junior drum and bugle corps will also march on Wednesday.

On Thursday—Farmers' Day—there will be a parade composed of cattle, farm exhibits, etc. On Thursday evening the local Legion drum and bugle corps will be host to a number of visiting corps and a parade will be held at 7:30, with a prize of $50 for the winner.

One of the features of the Fair this year, especially appealing to women, will be the health exhibit, which is being prepared by Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, and the two public health nurses, Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey and Mrs. Samuel Cole. Moving picture films on health will be shown in one room of the exhibit building and in another will be exhibits of the proper clothing for infants and information on the proper care of babies will be given.

In the health department especial attention will be directed to the three classes of the baby's wear. The first, rather expensive and containing all the requisites for the infant; the second class, the less expensive clothing, but complete in every detail, and the third, clothing for the infant made of cast-off clothing of other members of the family.

The general admission has been reduced from 50 cents to 25 cents, and season tickets from $1.50 to $1.00, and it is urged that everyone who can attend.

"No matter how hard those in charge of the fair may try, it is up to the people whether or not they want to make it a success," Mr. Speicher said.

Meeting of Mayor and Council Is Uneventful One

The regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council, which was held in the city hall on Tuesday evening, was uneventful, according to Grover C. Stemple, mayor.

A member of the Board of Trustees of the Oakland Grammar school appeared before the council asking cooperation on some plan to lessen the danger existing on property near the school building.

Finney Lakin, Terra Alta, appeared in regard to licensing of sign boards, but no definite decision on this matter was made. It was decided to suspend work on Pennington street until after the Fair.

To Finish Cattle Test Soon

Testing of cattle in Garrett county for tuberculosis will be completed within the next week, according to John H. Carter, county agent, and it is urged that all who have been missed get in touch immediately with the county agent or the county commissioners.

W. D. ZINN TO SPEAK AT PLEASANT VALLEY GRANGE

Will Appear on Program at Community Show Saturday

W. D. Zinn, Pennsylvania Farmer correspondent, and farmer of near Philippi, W. Va., will speak at the Pleasant Valley Grange Hall on the program sponsored by the Grange and held as part of the annual community show, on Saturday, September 12.

The community show and evening program is an annual event and is open to Grangers and citizens of the Pleasant Valley and surrounding communities. Mr. Zinn is widely known through the channels of the Pennsylvania Farmer, official publication of the Keystone State agriculturalists.

W. C. Jester To Be Present

Mr. Zinn comes to Garrett county largely through the efforts of W. C. Jester, county agricultural agent of Randolph county, West Va., and former county agent of Garrett county. Mr. Jester will also have a part on the program.

Other numbers on the program will include vocal and instrumental selections.

Anyone in Pleasant Valley or surrounding communities may participate in the community show. The exhibits should be in the hall by 10:30 on Saturday morning.

OVER 5,000 PRESENT AT ANNUAL K. of P. PICNIC

Twelfth Annual Affair Is Opened With Mammoth Parade

With ideal weather prevailing, an estimated crowd of between 5,000 and 6,000 people attended the twelfth annual Labor Day picnic, held under the auspices of the local lodge of Knights of Pythias, in Helbig's grove, on the north edge of town. The immense crowd lingered until after the fireworks display at 10:30, o'clock in the evening.

The day's festivities was officially opened at 10:30 o'clock when a parade with the marshalls A. R. Martin and Guy O. Yutzy, and the officials at the head, passed over the business section of town. The officials and speakers were followed by the colors, the American Legion drum and bugle corps, the Knights of Pythias float, the Rotary club float, the Crellin Band, the cars given away in past years, the Pythian Sisters, 'the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, the Oakland Fire department, the Terra Alta Fire department, the junior drum and bugle corps of Oakland, and numerous floats and trades display. The Pugh brothers were also present in clown regalia and a dilapidated Ford.

Senator Tydings Speaks

Grover C. Stemple, mayor of Oakland, gave the address of welcome, and in the afternoon Senator Millard S. Tydings of Maryland gave the principal address. He was introduced by A. T. Matthews, who also introduced the grand lodge officers.

Weaver's Park Attractions and other amusements and entertainment held the picnickers and the two bands entertained with concerts throughout the day. Souvenir programs were presented to the people who attended.

The Plymouth automobile was awarded to George Sponagle, of Kempton. Although no figures as to the financial success of the picnic are available, it is thought that the receipts will be practically as much as in the past several years.

BROTHERHOOD RALLY TO BE HELD HERE ON SUNDAY

100 Guests Expected; W. B. Burruss To Make Evening Address

A number of men representing the Lutheran Brotherhoods of Grafton, Clarksburg, Fairmont and Morgantown churches will be guests of St. Mark's Brotherhood, Oakland, on Sunday afternoon and evening at a rally.

The rally is scheduled to begin at 3:45 p. m., when Rev. W. P. Cline, Jr., of Fairmont, will discuss "Developing the Men of the Church," followed by an open discussion led by O. C. Will, of Clarksburg.

Other subjects to be discussed are: Rev. Roy Hashinger, Morgantown, "What to do with Lapsed Members," with discussion by R. E. Roberts, of Fairmont; Rev. William Erhard, Clarksburg, "What About Our Boys?" with discussion led by Prof. F. D. Bittle, of Oakland; Rev. E. F. K. Roof, Grafton, "How to Win the Outside Man," with discussion by Prof. Harpster, Morgantown.

The men of the local Brotherhood, under the direction of James Bell, will serve luncheon at 5:45. In the evening, W. B. Burruss, inspirational sales counsellor, Oakland, will be the speaker. There will be special music.

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN MT. LAKE PARK CONTROVERSY

Judge Sloan Withholds Decision After Hearing Pleas By Attorneys Here On Saturday

OUTCOME IS UNCERTAIN

Arguments were heard Saturday by Judge D. Lindley Sloan in the Garrett County Circuit Court concerning the points at issue in the Mountain Lake Park controversy and the question as to who is to rule is still unsettled, the Court withholding his decision until a future date. The Court sat in the matter from 10:30 until 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The complainants in the bill seeking to oust the recently elected municipal officers are the Community of Mountain Lake Park, Dr. Charles W. Baldwin, Dr. T. Davis Richards, H. V. Leighton, Mrs. Elizabeth Talson, Mrs. Minnie O. Richards, A. D. Naylor and E. L. Davidson, stressed the alleged unconstitutionality of the qualifications of those permitted under the act to vote, the impairment of contracts and the illegality of the title of the act of the Legislature which authorized the incorporation of Mountain Lake Park, subject to the result of the referendum election. Arguments for the plaintiffs were made by Attorneys E. Ray Jones and Fred. A. Thayer.

Defendants' Side Given

The defendants, represented by Attorneys W. C. Price, of Oakland, and James Brady, of Baltimore, argued entirely upon constitutional points at issue and no testimony by witnesses was produced. The defendants' attorneys asserted that Mayor MacClellan Clayton and W. L. Camden, Thomas Schooley, Floyd R. Uterback, James F. Elliott and Albert F. Schrock, Councilmen, have a right to assume their duties as the representatives of the property owners and voters following an election conducted under the terms of the act of 1931 and their election as municipal officers who duly qualified as such.

Should the Court declare the act constitutional the Mayor and Council will continue to act in their various capacities and there will still be a Mountain Lake Park Association incorporated nearly fifty years ago as a private corporation, and which owns upwards of 800 acres composing in part Mountain Lake Park in conjunction with the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church.

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS HOLD ANNUAL CONVENTION

All-Day Session at Accident Lutheran Church Last Friday

The annual convention of the Garrett County Council of Religious Education was held in St. Paul's Lutheran church at Accident last Friday and was attended by a large number of delegates and officers from various Sunday schools in the county. The largest delegation was reported from Kitzmiller, which numbered, according to a statement of one of the delegates, twenty-one.

Rev. Maurice Hamm, Baltimore, discussed "The Teacher's Spiritual Equipment," and "Every Teacher a Soul Winner." Miss Lillian McCormick, also of Baltimore, spoke on "Our Teachers' Intellectual Equipment," while Miss Jeanette Lampson discussed "The Teacher's Social and Physical Equipment."

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Rev. A. B. Harper, Accident, president; E. R. Jones, Oakland, vice-president; Delbert Davis, Oakland, treasurer; Miss Nina B. Peck, Accident, secretary; Mrs. Paul Naylor, Oakland, superintendent of children's division; Miss Lucy Trickett, Oakland, superintendent young people's division; M. H. Lohr, Grantsville, superintendent adult's division; Rev. C. A. Shilke, superintendent leadership training; Mrs. A. B. Harper, Accident, superintendent vacation and week-day schools. Other members of the Council are Harry Wilson, Kitzmiller; J. G. Kolb, Friendsville; Rev. J. W. Dawson, Oakland; Rev. A. D. Scrogum, Accident; Rev. W. B. Brock, Oakland.

To Present Eagle Badge

An open meeting of the Oakland Troop of Boy Scouts will be held on Friday evening, at which time the Eagle Scout badge, recently awarded Harley Dawson, will be presented. The presentation will be made by Rev. C. A. Shilke. All those interested are invited to attend.

P. YOUNG LOHR SHOOTS SELF IN HEAD AT HIS HOME

Fires .22-Caliber Bullet Through His Brain—Funeral Services Held on Saturday Afternoon

HAD LOST HIS HEARING

Funeral services for Peter Young Lohr, 48, son of the late Peter P. and Mary A. Lohr, of Oakland, who shot himself Thursday afternoon by firing a .22-caliber bullet through his brain, were held Saturday afternoon from his late home on South Third street, the house from 3:00 o'clock until 6:00 o'clock, and neighbors of the Lohrs stated that they had heard the firing of a rifle about 4:30 that afternoon.

It is said that Mr. Lohr had been acting in a strange manner for upwards of a week and had expressed a desire to trade his small rifle for an army rifle to "shoot at mark". Before firing the fatal shot Mr. Lohr had shaved himself, took a bath and had changed his clothing and evidently had planned everything very carefully.

Despondency over the loss of his hearing, which had been impaired several months ago, is thought to have prompted his action. He had complained recently about a continuous roaring in his head and apparently suffered mentally and physically from this cause.

Mr. Lohr was a plasterer by trade. He was born on the Peter P. Lohr farm at Bittinger and until after the death of his father resided at Mountain Lake Park. After the father's death he moved to Oakland and with Mrs. Lohr, cared for his mother who was an invalid for a number of years and who recently died.

The deceased man is survived by his widow, who is a sister of State's Attorney W. W. Dawson; two sons, Ronald, aged 20, and Robert, aged 18. Also by several brothers.

RAM SHOW AND SALE WILL BE HELD HERE SATURDAY

Interested Sheepmen Invited To Spend the Day in Oakland

Would you like to see twenty real good purebred rams in one bunch? Would you like to see them judged and the ribbons placed on the best ones? Would you like to see what they bring when sold for the high dollar? Do you need a new ram to replace the old purebred ram you own at present? Or, if you are using a grade or scrub ram, would you by any chance be interested in purchasing a good purebred ram to enable your flock to make you $50 to $100 more money annually?

If these things appeal to you, Mr. K. A. Clark, manager of the Oakland Ram Show and Sale, and County Agent John H. Carter urge you to come and spend the day with them and the other sheepmen who will be assembled from this county and the nearby counties in West Virginia and Pennsylvania, Saturday, Sept. 12.

The consignment consists of 20 purebred rams of the Hampshire and Shropshire breeds. All of them are guaranteed to be without known defects. In case any ram proves to be a non-breeder, the seller will either replace him with a similar ram or refund the purchase price in cash. All rams will be sold to the highest bidder for cash.

According to Mr. Clark, the rams are an exceptionally fine bunch. They are being consigned by the following parties: H. P. Miller, Grantsville, 5 Hampshires and 5 Shropshires; D. D. Meese, Elk Run, Pa., 3 Shropshires; S. O. Jones, Ellicott City, 2 Hampshires, and the University of Maryland, College Park, 5 Hampshires.

The show of all the rams in the sale will take place at 11:00 o'clock in the morning. The sale proper will start at 2:00 o'clock.

"Sell my rams regardless of price," is the instruction just given to Mr. Clark by one of the consignors. Mr. Clark states that the breeders and consignors are prepared to cut loose and several rare bargains will likely be secured.

The Republican has the largest circulation of any newspaper in Garrett county.

SECOND GOODWILL DINNER TO BE HELD ON MONDAY

Howard W. Jackson, Baltimore Mayor, Is Principal Speaker

Hon. Howard W. Jackson, mayor of Baltimore, will be the principal speaker at the second annual goodwill banquet to be given by the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland to mayors and councilmen of other incorporated towns of Garrett county, on Monday, September 14, at 7 o'clock, at the Manhattan hotel.

Mayors and councils from Grantsville, Friendsville, Accident, Kitzmiller, Mt. Lake Park, Loch Lynn, and Deer Park, will be present. A number of business and professional men of Oakland and vicinity will also attend.

The goodwill banquet is a culmination of several visitations of the Oakland mayor and councilmen to incorporated towns of the county during the summer months. W. F. Broening, ex-mayor of Baltimore, was the speaker at the first annual affair, held last year during the Fair. The hosts will be Grover C. Stemple, mayor; R. Carlton McComas, Ralph T. Thayer, George Kerlin, Cheston H. Browning, J. W. Whorton, and H. P. Stuck, councilmen.

Judge A. A. Doub and Mayor W. Koon, Cumberland, have been invited to attend, and H. R. Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, will be present. W. W. Dawson will be toastmaster.

An orchestra will furnish music during the dinner, and the Oakland quartet will give several selections.

821 STUDENTS ENROLLED IN SCHOOLS OF OAKLAND

High School Opens With 407 Present; Grammar School Has 344 and Parochial School 70

MORE PUPILS EXPECTED

With an enrollment of 821 pupils, the three Oakland schools opened for the 9-months' term of instruction on Tuesday, September 8. The enrollment in the three schools shows an increase of 51 over last year.

Oakland high school opened with 407 students enrolled, an increase of 32 over the same period last year, with the possibility of several more coming in. The enrollment in 1930 mounted from 375 the first day of the term to more than 400 at mid-term, and according to Mr. Bittle the records show that at least 25 more freshmen should have reported this term than are now enrolled.

Oakland grammar school opened with an enrollment of 344, an increase of 19 over the same period last year. St. Peter's parochial school has 70 students in the various grades enrolled.

One hundred nineteen of those enrolled in the high school are freshmen; 118 are sophomores; 89 are juniors; 76 are seniors and 5 are postgraduates. The senior class is by far the largest fourth year class in the history of the school.

The Oakland grammar school enrollment is divided into grades as follows: First grade, 41; second grade, 54; third grade, 51; fourth grade, 56; fifth grade, 46; sixth grade, 44; seventh grade, 42.

The continued increase in enrollment in the local schools is attributed to transportation of pupils who would otherwise not be able to attend.

Kitzmiller high school had 113 enrolled and Accident high 114.

Prisoner Paroled by Governor

Among the nineteen prisoners in State institutions, whom Governor Albert C. Ritchie granted paroles Tuesday, is John Jones, sentenced by the Garrett County Circuit Court to serve 18 months in the House of Correction for carnal knowledge. About six months more of his term remain. Jones was only 17 years old at the time of his conviction and will go to the State of Ohio, where his brother resides, when he is released.

Pleads Guilty To Charge

G. C. Arnold, Terra Alta, W. Va., plead guilty to the charge of reckless driving before Justice W. A. Golder and was fined $1 and costs. Arnold was placed under arrest following a collision with the car driven by Mrs. Thomas A. Gonder at the corner of Second and Oak streets. Arnold was driving a truck loaded with groceries.

15,000 ATTEND FESTIVAL OF TABLELAND COUNTIES

Garrett County People Had Important Role in Two-Day Celebration at Somerset, Pa.

GRANTSVILLE GIRL QUEEN

At least fifteen thousand people crowded into Somerset, Pa., on Sunday for the concluding day of the first annual music festival of the Allegheny Tableland Association, the area including Somerset and Fayette counties in Pennsylvania; Preston, Monongahela, Grant, Tucker and Mineral counties in West Virginia, and Garrett county, in the State of Maryland.

A series of concerts filled the closing day, opening with a concert by four bands—the Preston county, W. Va., band; Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland; that of Somerset High school, and the 110th regiment of Somerset, Pa.

A choral concert followed, including "Fling Wide the Gates," from Stainer's Crucifixion, given by the union choir of Oakland; a pageant of the Star Spangled Banner, presented by Garrett countians, and a selection by an octette from the community of Mt. Lake Park.

Mrs. Stanton Whipkey, Oakland, represented the Goddess of Liberty in the Star Spangled Banner episode, the selection being under the direction of Miss Sara B. Huff, Federal Extension worker, concluded with a chorus of three hundred voices, singing the Hallelujah Chorus, followed by the singing of taps.

A pageant with a lumber camp setting, arranged by Darcy Wilson, of Morgantown, was presented Saturday after Betty Beachy, of Grantsville, had been crowned Queen Mapleheart by E. V. Babcock, of Pittsburgh, Pa., Allegheny County Commissioner.

Other leading parts were taken by Grantsville people as follows: "Figure of the Indian," Bayard Keller, Jr.; "Court Jester," Claude Stanton, Jr., and "Flap Jack," David Broadwater.

The pageant portrayed the early lumber industry of Maryland, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Tony Beaver, a giant woodsman, was present and stalked on the big stage erected at the Somerset airport on stilts and was twelve feet tall. Old-time fiddlers, tap dancers, drum corps, accordion players and bands contributed to the program.

Queen Mapleheart arrived on a float labeled "Maple Sweets," with princes and princesses from every county in the Tableland in her procession. Preceding her court was the junior drum and bugle corps of Oakland and Meyersdale.

Many Garrett countians attended both days of the music festival. Plans for the future of the Tableland call for a water pageant on Deep Creek Lake, followed on Sunday by a mammoth indoor sing in the great auditorium at Mountain Lake Park.

A meeting of the county chairmen is to be held soon and this question decided definitely. Rev. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland, was the chairman for Garrett County.

One of Oakland's Oldest Merchants Succumbs to Illness

Lewis Gortner, age 71, one of Oakland's oldest merchants, died on Friday morning, following an illness of about two months. Death was due to heart trouble.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home, Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, officiating. Interment was at Gortner.

Mr. Gortner was born at Sunnyside, this county, on June 24, 1860, and entered the mercantile business at Gortner about 1890. Shortly afterward he established his store on Second street, Oakland, and was engaged in the mercantile business until his death. He was a member of the Lutheran church.

He was married on July 23, 1894, to Miss Mary McCloskey, of Lock Haven, Pa.

Surviving him are his widow and one son, Alva Gortner, of Oakland.

Pallbearers were Henry Lauer, Owen Treacy, Joseph Wolfe, Guy Yutzy, George White, and Lawrence Fraley. Flower bearers were members of the Knights of Pythias lodge to which his son, Alva, belonged.

Prepare your exhibits for the Fair.

Lesson for September 13

SOME MISSIONARY EXPERIENCES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 14:1-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Some Missionary Adventures.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Hardships of Missionaries.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity Facing Other Religions.

I. Paul and Barnabas Preaching at Iconium (vv. 1-7).

Their experience here was much the same as at Antioch. They entered the Jewish synagogue and preached, causing a multitude of Jews and Gentiles to believe. The unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles to the most bitter opposition. Concerning their work in Iconium observe.

1. Their manner of preaching (v. 1). They "so spake" that a great multitude believed. They were true preachers. Only that which brings conviction of sin and induces decisions for Christ can be truly said to be preaching in the biblical sense. It is not enough merely to bring the truth to the people. It must be brought in such a way that men and women will be induced to decide for Christ.

2. Their attitude toward opposition (v. 3). This is suggested by the word "therefore." "Long time therefore they tarried." The opposition did not prevent their preaching but incited them to continue preaching. Christian workers should not give up work because of opposition.

3. Their preaching accompanied with miracles (v. 3). Since the opposition was so fierce, the Lord granted special help in his vindication of their testimony.

4. The effect of their preaching (v. 4). The multitude of the city was divided. Where men faithfully preach the gospel there will be division.

5. Paul and Barnabas assaulted (vv. 5-7). The Jews and the Gentiles united in this assault. Being apprised of this effort, Paul and Barnabas fled to Lystra and Derby, where they preached the gospel.

II. An Attempt to Worship Paul and Barnabas as Gods (vv. 8-18).

1. The occasion (vv. 8-10). It was the healing of a lame man. God's gracious power shown in healing this lame man occasioned new difficulty. That which ought to have been a help was turned into a hindrance. This was a notable miracle. The man had never walked. On hearing Paul preach, faith was born in his heart (Rom. 10:17). When Paul perceived that he trusted Christ, he called with a loud voice that all could hear for the man to stand upright. The cure was instantaneous, for he leaped up and walked (v. 10).

2. The method (vv. 11-13). They called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercurius because he was the chief speaker. The priest of Jupiter brought oxen and garlands ready to offer sacrifices unto these men (v. 13). In the person of Jesus Christ God has actually appeared to man (John 1:14; Phil. 2:7, 8).

3. Their efforts frustrated (vv. 14-18). This foolish act was happily averted by the tact of the apostles as exhibited in the address of the occasion:

a. They denied that they were divine beings.

b. They directed them to turn away from these vain things unto the living God who made heaven and earth.

III. The Stoning of Paul (vv. 19-22).

Wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium pursued Paul with relentless hate to this place where they stirred up the very people who had been willing to worship them a short time before. This shows that satanic worship can soon be turned into satanic hate. This hatred took form in the stoning of Paul and the dragging of him out of the city for dead. Having been raised up by God, he with undaunted courage pressed on with his duties as a missionary hearing the good tidings to the lost. Soon after this, Paul turned back and revisited the places where he had preached, telling them that through great tribulation they must enter into the Kingdom of God.

IV. The Organization of Churches in the Field (vv. 23-28).

Evangelization with Paul did not mean a hasty and superficial preaching of the gospel, but the establishment of a permanent work. Elders were appointed in every church. The work of the missionary is not done until there is established on the field self-governing and self-propagating churches.

Christ's Coming

My friends, all the singing about it in the world will not bring the coming of Christ a day nearer—and there are no songs of the Christian church which so fill my heart with gladness and my eyes with tears as the songs of Christ's coming. But service will.—J. Stuart Holden.

Our Rewards

We are rewarded, not according to our sphere, or the results of our work, but according to the sincerity and beauty of our motives.—F. B. Meyer.

FROM WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA, TO PARKERSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA, ON THE NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This is part of an article describing scenes and towns along the Northwestern Turnpike, and includes that part of the highway which is between Clarksburg and the Ohio River.)

The country between Clarksburg and Parkersburg is quite different from the country between Winchester and Clarksburg. On the way out of Clarksburg you still see hills in plenty, but they are not wooded hills and they are not in the class with the others as to height. Furthermore, you see plenty of villages and towns and individual houses. You do not feel that you are far from civilization at any point.

As a matter of fact, civilization came to this section before it came to some of the other sections farther east in the state. It came by way of the old trails and roads through Pennsylvania and Maryland and it entered the western part of what was then Virginia by means of the rivers that flow into the Ohio.

If you doubt this, take a telephone directory today of any of the towns west of the Alleghenies in West Virginia and see how many old Virginia names you can find in it. In the Richmond telephone directory there are 14 Bollings, 15 Carys, 25 Mayos, 15 Montagues, 12 Poindexters and 18 Ruffins. There is a scattering of these Colonial names in the directories of Norfolk and Lynchburg. In the Wheeling directory of the same date none of these names appear with the exception of Poindexter, one of which is shown. Neither do these appear in the directories of Clarksburg or Parkersburg. In the Wheeling book names appear which cannot be found in the Richmond directory, such as Albaugh, Altmeyer, Bachman, Braun, Coss, Dague, and so on through the alphabet. In the Wheeling book the H section abounds with names of a strong German tendency; the same may be said of the names beginning with S. In the Richmond directory names beginning with H and S show a majority for the English.

The reason for the Scotch-Irish and the Germans rather than the English in what is now West Virginia is not hard to trace. It is largely geographical. The English settled along the seacoast in Virginia and spread slowly toward the Blue Ridge. Pennsylvania and Maryland, although settled later, spread toward the mountains more rapidly, because the distance to the mountains was not as great as in Virginia and because both the Penns and the Calverts were active in bringing settlers to their colonies, not only from England, but from Ireland, Germany and other countries.

As the settlers in Maryland and Pennsylvania, and even New York, pushed toward the west, they eventually came to the great valley that lies between the Blue Ridge and the Alleghenies. They followed this valley southward, turning again to the west here and there to go through a mountain pass or to follow a smaller valley. This, says a West Virginia historian, accounts for the presence in Kentucky by 1763 of Daniel Boone, a Pennsylvanian.

The stream of immigrants was made up largely of Germans from Pennsylvania and of Scotch-Irish from across the Atlantic. With the building of the B. and O and the Northwestern Turnpike there came an invasion of real Irish—road contractors and their men—from the eastern states. Many of these settled in West Virginia, particularly in the neighborhood of Grafton.

Even the homeseekers from the older parts of Virginia often went down the Shenandoah Valley and then crossed a part of Maryland and Pennsylvania to get to what was then the western wilderness of Virginia. A favorite way for travelers to the Ohio was to follow Braddock's road and other pioneer trails on the Monongahela and follow that stream into the Ohio and proceed on the Ohio as far as they wanted to go.

Many of those started for the Ohio country before reaching their destination. This accounts for several small early settlements in the northwestern part of the state. The Virgininns seemed to concentrate around Clarksburg. It is possible, therefore, that Clarksburg might be an exception with regard to the names in the telephone book.

From Clarksburg to Parkersburg the distance is 90 miles, according to the information painted on the side of the little tunnel by which you pass under the railroad tracks on leaving Clarksburg. You become aware that you are still in a coal country by the presence of a coal tipple along the way and before long you roll into Wilsonburg, a mining town in the fold between two hills. Most of the towns are located in the same way. Which has one big advantage. While it may be inspiring to live on a hilltop, there are fewer cold winds in a valley.

The highway runs along the railroad for several miles, keeping always between the hills, and finally you arrive at Wolf Summit, where the road cuts around the base of a hill and into another narrow valley, where oil wells—or, rather, the machinery used in connection with them—dot the landscape. Then over a hill and down into another valley and into the village of Bristol.

Through more cleared hills and past individual houses and into Salem, with its houses and stores strung out along the highway for about a mile. Salem gets its name from a town in New Jersey, from which town came its first settlers, the Davises and the Randolphs. It was originally known as New Salem.

In addition to being an oil country, this is a stock raising country. Cattle may be seen all along the way, usually in small bunches. I recall that while riding through on a bus I looked out at a distant hill and tried to decide whether the black objects that dotted it were large stumps or small steers. And then two of the objects moved.

Smithburg and West Union are the next two towns, both of them nestling in the hills. You cannot look an eighth of a mile in any direction without having your eye come in contact with a hill.

West Union is the county seat and only incorporated town in Doddridge county, which was formed in 1845 and named for Philip Dodridge, a distinguished lawyer and statesman. The county is rich in oil and gas. Cattle and sheep raising is an important source of income.

More oil wells and Greenwood is reached. Then Toll Gate. It ought not to be hard to guess where this town gets its name, especially if you recall that you are on a road on which tolls were formerly collected. And that brings to mind the fact that along this road you will see no old buildings that look as though they might have been toll houses, which places this road in great contrast to the National Pike.

We rolled into Pennsboro, in Ritchie county. In Pennsboro, in the days of glory on the old turnpike, stage-coaches stopped in order to give the passengers a chance to eat. The old stone tavern may still be seen. As our bus pulled up in front of a restaurant there, and the driver announced that five minutes would be allowed for lunch, the thought came to me that civilization runs in cycles and that we really don't push as far ahead as we sometimes think we do. This may seem a pessimistic thought, but it isn't. One hundred years ago the stage-coach stopped to let our ancestors eat. Today the bus stops to let us eat. The advance in civilization is of course in the time saved in traveling over this same road and in the comfort and safety with which we travel.

The first cabin on the site of Pennsboro—and the cabin was erected for the convenience of travelers—was built in or about 1800. The first settler was John Bonnell, a Revolutionary soldier, and the run, near by, was named for him. Settlers in that vicinity went to Marietta to exchange their furs and other products for store goods.

Ritchie county was organized in 1843 and named in honor of Thomas Ritchie, often called Father Ritchie. He was editor of the Richmond Enquirer and one of the greatest journalists that Virginia produced.

This part of West Virginia was wilderness long after the eastern part of our country was pretty well settled. It was the haven of those who disliked civilization as we know it and who moved on ahead of it. One of these was Adam O'Brien, who lived at one time on the Little Kanawha.

A few years before he died O'Brien made a statement that they lived quite happily before the Revolution, for then there was no law, no courts, and no sheriffs, and they had all agreed pretty well; but after a while people came to make settlements, and then came the lawyers and the preachers, and from that time they never had any peace any more, and the sheriffs were worse than the wildcats and the panthers, "and I tell you, mister, I would rather take my chances and live among savages than live among justices and lawyers and sheriffs, who, with all their civility, have no natural feeling in them."

More hills, with here and there a patch of woods. But not much woods. It was lumbered off years ago. I have read that the owners of the land did not get much out of it. Shrewd fellows came in from the outside and bought up the trees for a song and sold the lumber for a grand opera performance.

Just west of Pennsboror you suddenly come upon a race-track and you learn that it is part of the layout of the Ritchie County Fair. You may wonder why the fair-ground was not located nearer to the county seat—Harrisville—but if you do you will probably conclude that this piece of ground happens to be the only level piece of ground in the county large enough to hold a fair on.

During the past 15 years I have seen much of West Virginia; I have traveled over its surface in trains, automobiles, on foot and (on one painful occasion) on horseback; but I have yet to see, with the exception of a few small areas in the river valleys, any more than ten acres of level ground at any one place.

Always in West Virginia are the eternal hills. I thought, when riding over the Northwestern Pike, that we would eventually lose those hills, that they would finally flattten out and disappear as we approached the Ohio, but they were with us even as we entered the city limits of Parkersburg. Please understand that I am not complaining. I like hills. There's something about them that makes a man think.

Riding through Ellenboro the thing that hits the gentle stranger in the eye is a fine, new, big schoolhouse, looking down on the rest of the town from the top of a high hill. I'm glad somebody had enough imagniation to put it there instead of on Main Street or in a hollow. A school building, like a church, ought to be placed where it can be seen and appreciated.

Harrisville is the county seat. You can see at a glance that the courthouse is still new; it is clean. Why is it that the average court-house in any state is one of the most untidy buildings in town?

Apparently Harrisville was not on the old pike as it was originally built. You can see by looking at your road map that the line of the present road makes quite a dip between Ellenboro and Nutters Farm, and it was the practice of the old turnpike builders to make their road as nearly a straigh line as possible.

The town was laid out in 1822 by Thomas Harris in a sparsely settled region and did not become a post office until 1830. Only one house was erected in the town prior to 1837. The town was made the county-seat of the new county of Ritchie in 1843. The region was opened up to settlement by the construction of a road in or about 1800 from Clarksburg to Marietta.

Between Harrisville and the next town, Cairo, are a few isolated log cabins, one falling to ruin and two or three still occupied. The fact that these are found here is not remarkable; the thing that strikes me as odd is that there are so few of them. You will find, however, in this neighborhood two or three examples of something that has almost passed out of existence elsewhere—the covered bridge.

More hills—nice, gentle, pleasant, friendly hills, with no towering masses of rock. And then into Wood county and through the towns of Pleasant Hill, Dallison and Murphytown. What shall the casual traveler say about these towns? Well, unless one has time to stop and prowl around in each, or unless one knows the local geography and history better than a casual traveler would be expected to know it, he is not in a position to say much. Perhaps the safest thing for him to say is that they are pleasant looking towns.

is more than surface deep

Step outside and look at your house. How does its value show up? Maybe pretty well. Look for a true evaluation and you'll find that it depends a great deal upon the wiring and the availability of the electric outlets.

If you're building a new home Insist that this additional value be built into it. But if you're not you can bring your present wiring up-to-date at the smallest cost in years. Call your electric contractor today for an estimate.

MARYLAND OYSTERS ARE PLACED ON MENU AGAIN

Important That Milk and Sea Food Be Kept Clean

In preparation for the oyster season, the State Department of Health, through the Bureau of Food and Drugs, has sent a circular letter to oyster packers and to others engaged in the oyster business, calling their attention to the requirements which must be met for shucked and canned oysters, in order that the product may be accepted for sale or for shipment within and without the State. A copy of the letter which was signed by Mr. A. L. Sullivan, Chief of the Bureau of Food and Drugs, follows:

Oysters and milk, two of our important foods, are consumed in quantity in the raw state. Both of these foods are subject to bachterial contamination. It is, therefore, important that they be produced and handled under sanitary conditions. We invite and expect to receive your cooperation in maintaining your plants in a sanitary condition and making necessary improvements where needed.

The old regulations remain in force. We ask that you give careful attention to water supplies, wash stands, toilets, hand washing and to efficient cleaning and sterilizing of your equipment.

An abundant supply of steam or hot water must be available while plants are in operation.

Apparatus should be thoroughly cleaned by use of brushes, hot water and a washing powder, then rinsed and stedilized. Where no steam is available for sterilizing, chlorine compounds must be used in addition to hot water on returnable cans. Chloride of lime, B. K., Diversol, H. T. H. and Wyandotte Sterilizer will bc found satisfactory if equipment is well cleaned before using thc chlorine solutions. The strength of the solution should be at least 100 parts per million of available chlorine.

Remember that bacteria grow rapidly in warm weather and that efficient sterilization is doubly important in September and October.

All cans must bear your certificate number. This includes seal-shipt and embossed cans which bear the shipper's name.

Employes shouid, if possible, be examined before beginning work and not later than November 10. The examinations can be made by physicians selectcd by the packer. The physician employed must, before examining the employes, write to the Director of Health and secure necessary forms and instructions regarding the examination.

Certificates of houses operating last season, remain in force except in cases where they may have been revoked.

MARRIAGE LICENSES FOR PAST WEEK REACH FIFTY

Prospective Week-end Honeymoon Brings 17 on Saturday

With Sunday and Monday in prospect as a honeymoon, an unusually large number of applicants presented themselves before the Clerk of the Circuit Court on Saturday requesting marriage licenses and seventeen were granted. During the week ending at noon on Tuesday, fifty licenses were issued, giving September an excellent start in matrimonial lines, according to Mr. Tower, clerk. The record for September is 148, made in 1923, while 127 were issued the same month last year.

Nine of the licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while six applicants were refused permits on account of the youthfulness of the parties applying.

AN OPPORTUNITY—

The first annual music festival of the Tableland region was celebrated last Saturday and Sunday, and the wonderful success which was achieved was greater than the first celebration of the apple blossom festival at Winchester, and the outlook is promising.

Next year and each year the festival is going to grow, and preliminary plans for 1932 call for a water pageant on Deep Creek lake in Garrett county, followed on Sunday by a mammoth indoor sing in the great auditorium at Mt. Lake Park.

Garrett county must combine to keep the tableland movement going forward. It must not be a question of individual profit, but of advancement for the whole territory. Territorial lines must be forgotten. Garrett county cannot afford to pass up this opportunity for having 15,000 people visit in these mountains for two days.

Somerset had an ideal setting for the pageant and music festival, and its people were wonderful hosts. Garrett countians will now have a chance to show their hospitality. Let's do it up right.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Seems like Dog Days, the K. of P. picnic or sumpin, has made me late and here it is Wednesday evening and not a thing said. Of course, you can still say the same thing after I get through writing, but that is your privilege. I won't believe it, no matter what you think. Somebody has to have faith in me, and there isn't anybody who can have more faith in me than me.

That dog or hot weather feeling is very similar to that other annual complaint, spring fever, and should be treated in the same way, according to Dr. Chow Hound, the veterinarian. Feed them. The remedy for spring fever is poke greens and makes one feel young. Gather your greens and pick off the larger bugs and then boil with ham bone or shoulder blade and you will soon feel like a two-year-old.

There is a greater choice of food for dog days, particularly corn. Boil twelve to fourteen full size ears, salt, annoint with butter, close your eyes and gnaw. Do not eat the cobs.

Maybe they are really going to move the burglar alarms over on Menhorn's blacksmith shop, as I see them tinkering with the outside bells on the banks.

Mark Moon is hopping mad at the K. of P's. and so is Col. Bell. Mark practiced for weeks so that he might be in shape for the hog calling contest at the picnic, and then they failed to hold it. Col. Bell was in trim to cop first prize in the wife calling contest but they didn't hold that either. Harry Stemple said he couldn't get anybody to serve as judges.

Statistics show that rural people receive seventeen times as much mail as they send, which shows that while farmers are included in many suckers lists, they aren't so dumb.

A lady stopped me on the street Monday and told me in spite of reading my article on hats she had decided to keep on wearing hers anyway. That shows determination, if not individuality.

Somebody on the female side of the human race, kept hollering at the picnic on Monday that all had better watch out or they would get their names in this column. However, the name will not be mentioned as she got enough publicity from her actions out there. It's getting to be quite a common occurrence.

Why keep these old chips on your shoulder about the county fair? You have had them on there too long now and if you don't move out from under them soon you'll begin to disintergrate. Every time you knock the fair you knock yourself, and your ability to do things. A renewed interest and a fresh start with all these old grudges wiped off the slate, will make a new county out of Garrett, and a new town out of Oakland. If the fair fails, blame yourself. Let's snap out of it, and turn your horse around—make the east end of the horse go east.

SCOOP IS AIRMINDED

The other day (Friday, to be exact), Scoop asked the Boss Editor for a leave of absence for a few minutes as a University of West Virginia playmate while flying over the countryside south of Oakland had been forced down and needed some gas so that he could be on his way, and Scoop was requested to bring the gas to the point of landing, the flier having forgotten to load his flivver in the cockpit to meet such an emergency. Scoop left and shortly afterward a ship appeared over town. There was no doubt in the Boss Editor's mind that Scoop was one of the passengers aboard and this proved to be true upon Scoop's return to the scene of his labors (?) two or three hours afterward, during which time the following ode to friend Scoop had its inception in the brilliant mind of an office attache:

"For gosh sake, Mr. Man,
Don't do it agin,"
Said Scoop, as the pilot
Dropt into a spin.

He grabbed at his mustache,
(He ain't got one, you know,)
He hitched at his britches,
He hooked in his big toe.

His teeth were a-chatter—
His tummy felt weak;
His color was ashen
From his toes to his beak.

As the pilot side-slipped
Into a rather sharp bank
Scoop shook and he prayed,
And his brow grew dank.

He was thinking of wifey—
(He's just married, you know),
When the pilot yelled fiercely:
"Now hold her; let's go!"

Now Scoop walks in a daze
His problems to grapple;
His throat looks so queer—
He swallowed his Adam's apple.

ACCIDENT

The following were among those from Accident who attended the music festival at Somerset on Saturday and Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Foster Yost, Prof. B. O. Aiken, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Speicher and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ault and family, Prof. and Mrs. A. D. Scrogum, Mr. and Mrs. John Hetrick, Miss Gladys Hetrick, Blanche Speicher, Nina and Nellie Peck.

Picnicking at Swallow Falls

Alexander Georg and family, Jacob Beitzel and family, Wm. Zinkan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Georg, Reginald Vellenoweth and family and Luther Keller and family spent last Sunday at Swallow Falls.

Public School Notes.

The Accident schools opened on Tuesday with 148 enrolled in the grammar school and 114 in the high school. New members of the faculty are Miss Elizabeth Parrish, of West Virginia, teacher of French and English; Miss McAlpin, of Kentucky, home economics and biology; J. B. Anderson, of South Carolina, teacher of physics and mathematics.

Plans are being formulated to hold assembly meetings on Friday afternoons of every other week.

The home economics girls are busy preparing exhibits for the Garrett County Fair at Oakland to be held next week.

Forty-one freshmen entered the freshman class this year as compared with 40 last year.

In the grammar grades Miss Ola King will teach the first grade, in which 30 are enrolled; Miss Hildegarde Miller will have charge of the second and third grades; Miss Dora Schlossnagle the 4th and 5th, and Miss Grace Speicher the 6th and 7th grades.

Personal and General News.

The young people of Zion Lutheran church met in the social room of the church Friday night for a business session. Quite a large number were present. Refreshments were served by Edward Miller and Fred. Kahl.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Vellenoweth and son Clair, who have been visiting friends and relatives here for a week, returned to their home at Wadsworth, O., on Monday.

Mrs. Lydia Savage spent last week visiting relatives at Uniontown, Pa.

C. C. Goehringer and family, E. H. Ault and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brougher, John Hetrick, Lloyd Lininger, Rev. A. B. Harper and family, and Harrison Kamp and family were among those from Accident who attended the firemens picnic at Friendsville Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Matheny, of Morgantown, W. Va., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Kamp over the week-end. All returned but Miss Mabel, who will remain here for a week.

Earl Englehart, who spent the past two weeks with relatives in Lonaconing, returned home Saturday.

Miss Mildred Horner and Mr. and Mrs. Walter VonBolten, Pittsburgh, were week-end guests of relatives in Accident.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Speicher and Mrs. W. P. Englar, of Uniontown, Md., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Speicher.

William and Ernest Burkhard, Akron, O., and Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Weber, Canton, O., visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Burkhard over the week-end.

Elmer Detrick and family, of Loisenring, visited Mr. and Mrs. Newton Gies Saturday and Sunday.

E. H. Georg and family were recent guests at the home of George Miller.

Darrell Englehart, Clinton, Mich., visited Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ault several days the past week.

Henry F. Mollerin and family, of Fort Wayne, Ind., visited relatives here for several days last week.

TEACHERS' IMPORTANCE IN HEALTH WORK EXPLAINED

Health Officer Addresses County Instructors at Meeting in Oakland High School

TO BEGIN EXAMINATIONS

The importance of the school teacher in public health work was told by Dr. George E. Clarke, public health officer, at a meeting of the county teachers, held last Friday at the Oakland High school.

His address is given below:

"Health departments had their inception in the fear of pestilential diseases. As far back as the 16th and 17th centuries governments established boards of health to segregate or quarantine large groups of people to prevent the spread of yellow fever, smallpox, and typhus fever. Out of this fear has evolved the departments of today which have to do, not only with the control of the spread of contagious disesase, but with the prevention of diseases and the correction of conditions which are the predisposing causes of disease.

"You, as teachers, are vitally interested in the control of contagious diseases. The accomplishment of effective public health work depends largely upon the use of information obtained from the notification of cases of preventable diseases. The health department is able to control diseases in proportion to the completeness and exactness of its knowledge of the occurrence of cases of disease.

"The health of the children of school age is so necessary to success in school that it has been for years the concern of school authorities.

"The importance of the teacher in school health work has been generally overlooked. Yet your position is filled with potentialities for good in school health work. In the first place no one is brought into such close association with the class members as the school teacher and none by precept or example can exert so lasting an influence upon their mental and physical evolution. Your sphere of usefulness can therefore be greatly increased by a good working knowledge of the laws of health, the prevention of disease, school hygiene and by being familiar with the more ordinary manifestations of contagious diseases that I want to call your attention today. The infectious diseases of childhood are important not only because the ensuing mortality is greater than is popularly supposed, but because they may predispose of other discases such as tuberulosis and some may result in permanent disabilities.

"The schoolroom is a place favorable to their spread. The necessity is obvious for their detection in the school and the exclusion of the children attacked until all danger of transmitting the disease to others is past. The teacher therefore should be familiar with the symptoms of the onset of these diseases.

"As soon as possible after September 8 we will visit each school, make a physical examination of each pupil, vaccinate and inoculate as many as possible.

"There is no question that vaccination is the most efficient safeguard against smallpox. Inoculation with toxin-antitoxin is equally effective against diphtheria. Were everyone protected against these two diseases they would cease to exist. In diphtheria the death rate is greater in the pre-school children, so when you send permits home to be signed by the parents, urge them to bring all their children over nine months to the school to be inoculated and vaccinated. The date of our visits to your school will be given in sufficient time for you to notify the parents.

"It is plain from what I have said that we are increasing the requirements of a profession which is already loaded to capacity with work. But, especially in the rural schools where the school is the usual center of culture and information and the influence of the teacher extensible to the home, the results of the general entry of teachers as effectives in the army of health crusaders are certain to be of the happiest order so far as the community is concerned and will reflect upon you individually and upon your profession."

Garden Pilgrimage Enjoyed By Group of Ladies

The garden pilgrimage last Friday afternoon was greatly enjoyed by a group of ladies of the town, according to a member of the Civic club under which the tour was conducted, and an account of the trip is given below.

The first garden to be visited was on Pennington street. This garden made a specialty of delphinium and there was also a lily-pond with handsome blooming water lilies. In the midst of this garden was a play "tea room" for the little daughter.

Next was a garden on Center street which was filled with gladioli, 8,000 bulbs, planted diagonally, giving an unusual and artistic effect; a smaller bed with a variety of flowers and with asters in abundance. Two gardens on Liberty street were next. The entrance to the garage at the back was flanked by beds of hardy shrubs, a fine Virginia creeper covering, and high trellis and fine butterfly plants were on each side of the house. The side entrance passed through a rock garden. The second garden was a wonderful group of old fashioned flowers, a real collection of hardy, blooming plants, outstanding among them being several large bushes of cultivated "black-eyed Susans", the Maryland flower.

On Second street, near the Presbyterian church, was the gayest garden of the group, notwithstanding its smallness in size. It had a wealth of lovely blossoms, around the house a border and again inside the fence. It was planned so that as one variety went out of season a later one would be ready to bloom.

Three neighbors on south Third street have gardens that are a picture. Flowers and vegetables that would delight the eye of a seed specialist were arranged on display on the deep green grass at the edge of each garden.

A garden on Mason street came next. Asters grew so abundantly here that the owner generously invited us to carry home some blossoms. In this garden a Siberian Crabapple tree only four years old, was laden with lovely fruit. At the end of south Third street was a home on a hill, with a garden in the back like a sunken garden. An outstanding flower here was a handsome honeysuckle vine embowering the porch.

On Oak street was a fine garden with a row of dahlias as a hedge and on Alder street a fairy dell was found under a giant oak tree, rhododendron and pines, a pretty trellis behind which was a garden of flowers and vegetables, while around to the children's corner two swings gave a chance for active play. Away on the hill to another garden coming in at the rear from Fifth street to a lovely view of the town and a fine clump of cosmos, which was just part of quite a large flower garden. Work was being done here, adding a wealth of iris plants. There was a rock garden here too, giving a touch of beauty to the shady side of the house. Down the hill and out Third street was found a hedge of fire bush with other flowers, and on by the garden handsome dahlias. Fine plants of all kinds were ready for the indoor garden of the winter, all the work of one very fine little lady.

Next came the sunken garden and lily pond on Second street, developed handsomely since last year. On out Second street a fine garden of flowers, fruit and vegetables, many unique plants among the flowers and at the side a lovely turf with play space for the little tots.

The last, a most interesting vegetable garden at the end of Second street was a commercial garden and one need look no further for all sorts of wonderful prize vegetables which may be procured by anyone visiting the garden, or by telephone—corn, tomatoes, squash, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, swiss chard, carrots, parsnips, made you realize that providence has blessed us with a wonderful season for growing the good things of life here on our mountain top.

"He who plants a tree, plants love,
Tents of coolness, spreading out above
Wayfarers, he may not live to see.
Gifts that grow are best,
Hands that plant are blest.
Plant—Life does the rest.

MT. LAKE PARK

Yard and Garden Contest

The 1931 Yard and Garden Contest for Loch Lynn Heights and Mountain Lake Park was very successful, taking into consideration that this was the first year in which a contest of this nature was attempted.

Held For Action of Grand Jury on Liquor Charge

At a hearing before Justice A. S. Teats on Tuesday, John B. King, of Deer Park, who was apprehended on Monday, August 31, was held for the action of the Garrett County Grand Jury on the charge of having in possession a quantity of liquor for the purpose of sale, as well as several gallons of liquor mash. He was also fined $1 and costs for disorderly conduct.

King is in the county jail in default of payment of the fine and failure to fill a bond for his appearance.

Apoplexy Given As Cause Of Daniel Wilson's Death

Funeral services for Daniel Webster Wilson, 69, who died Sunday about 10 o'clock from an attack of apoplexy, at his home near Red Oak, about 12 miles southeast of Oakland, were held Tuesday afternoon from the Fairview church, Rev. Emory Fike, of near Eglon, W. Va., officiating. Interment was made on the old home farm near Wilson.

He was found by Mrs. Richard Wilson, his daughter-in-law, in a one-room shack near his home where he had gone to rest. Dr. Johnson, of Bayard, W. Va., and Dr. W. G. Drinkwater, Gormania, W. Va., who were notified along with the Garrett county authorities, pronounced that death was due to apoplexy followed by a slight hemorrhage. An autopsy was performed but nothing was discovered in the man's stomach. A diary left by the deceased man had an entry, presumably made on Sunday, "I feel that I have outlived my usefulness." He had eaten breakfast at the usual time and had eaten a lot of mushrooms.

He is survived by one son, Richard S. Wilson; also six brothers, Marshall Ney Wilson, Merritt Wilson, George W. Wilson, Elkins, W. Va.; Mark S. Wilson, Marlington, W. Va.; Burt L. Wilson, Leesburg, Fla.; and Solon T. Wilson, Philippi, West Va.

Mr. Wilson was a son of the late George W. and Eliza Wilson, and was born November 29, 1861. He was aged 69 years, nine months and eight days. He was married to Nellie Lavinia McFarland on February 19, 1895, to which union was born one son, James, who died in infancy. He later married Nellie May Jack on April 16, 1902, and to this union were born two sons, Thomas Edison, who died at the age of 13, and Richard S., now surviving. Also surviving are one grandson, Richard Wilson, Jr., aged 3 years, and an aunt, Hester Harvey.

Representative of Automobile Club Appointed for Oakland

Joseph A. Reese, who recently came to Oakland from Terra Alta, and is residing on Pennington street, has been appointed representative of the American Automobile Association and the Automobile Club of Maryland. Mr. Reese's duties will be to protect the interests of car owners who are members of the association he represents; to explain the local, state and national activities of the three "A's", etc., and solicit new members.

His territory will include the Oakland vicinity, Red House, Kitzmiller, Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park, Accident, Friendsville and Grantsville.

Because of the Brotherhood Rally to be held Sunday evening in St. Mark's Lutheran church, the Luther League will dispense with its regular meeting, but will have its next meeting on Sunday, September 20, at the regular hour.

DIED.

JONAS ORENDORF

Funeral services for Jonas Orendorf, aged 58 years, 5 months and 29 days were conducted on Sunday afternoon at the Menonite church, Greenwood, Delaware, with interment in the adjacent cemetery.

Mr. Orendorf was born at Bittinger on March 4, 1873, his death occurring at the West Baltimore General Hospital, Baltimore, on September 3, as the result of injuries he sustained when he fell from a tree on his farm near Greenwood, where he had been residing for a number of years. The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Orendorf, and five sons, Earl, of Greenwood; Albert, Walter, Fay and Glenn, of Baltimore, and by one brother, Daniel E. Orendorf, of Oakland.

Miss Frances Grimes Wins Tennis Singles at Morgantown

Miss Frances Grimes, of Mountain Lake Park, who won the Western Maryland women's singles tennis tournament several weeks ago, swept through stubborn opposition to emerge Monday the winner of the singles title of the Morgantown Country Club invitation tournament. She conquered Miss Mary McDonnell, of Falling Timber, Pa., in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, to win the championship and a handsome vase.

Harmonica Band Formed

The harmonica band of St. Peter's School has been organized. Sixty players are making the air tuneful with scale practice.

The enthusiastic response from these children has prompted the Sisters to extend the opportunity to other children who are interested. A second band is under formation for children who do not attend the parochial school. These children assemble at five o'clock on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. A very moderate fee will be charged. Those who wish to join must enroll at once.

Dance Given By Misses Mary and Charlotte Bolgiano

The Misses Charlotte and Mary Bolgiano gave a dance at the Mountain Lake Park Hotel on Saturday evening at which about twenty couples of young people were present, among them being Humbird Offutt, Miss Helen Offutt, Nelson Offutt, Miss Nell Offutt, Miss Evelyn Bosley, Miss Katherine Murphy, Castleman and Frederick Chesley, Chick Lawson, Robert Hoffman, Ralph Blake, James Lee, Thurl Tower, George Hanst, McClelland Dixon, Miss Margaret Leighton, Miss Ellen Jane Grimes, Miss Susanna Dixon, Miss Adeline Sincell, Miss Caroline Brann, Miss Rose Morgan, Mitchell Franklin, Jerome Murphy, William McCue, Julius Renninger, Miss Dorothy Brackett, Kenneth Stahl, Edwin Elias, Dudley Shoemaker, Elvin Iman, Howard Rathbun, Jack and Charles Towler. The chaperones included Mrs. C. J. Bolgiano, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Chesley, Mrs. R. E. Sliger and Mrs. W. D. Grimes.

To Have Exhibit at Fair

The health department will have two rooms at the county fair on September 15, 16, 17, and 18, one for moving pictures, and one for exhibits. A number of health films will be shown by Dr. Clarke, and there will be exhibits of infants' clothes, and information on how to care for babies. There will be exhibits of the three sets of children's clothes: the finest, very expensive and complete; the next, not as expensive but just as complete; and the third, made of cast off clothes of other members of the family.

All are invited to attend the fair and see the exhibits and moving pictures.

Chairman Shilke Thanks Those Who Took Part in Festival

It is my desire to take this means of thanking all who participated in any manner in the recent Music Festival under the auspices of the Alleghenny Tableland Association at Somerset, Pa., on Saturday and Sunday.

Garrett county's part in that festival was well taken, both in pageant on Saturday, when Uncle Abel Browning, king of the old-time fiddlers, and little Betty Beachy, the maple sugar Queen, played the leading roles. Also on Sunday when our numbers were well rendered.

Let us be boosters for Garrett county and for the festival for next year when it is possible to have it within our borders.

CHARLES A. SHILKE,
Chairman for Garrett County.

Schedule For Health Examinations Is Given

The following schools will be visited by the health officer and nurse during September and October for the purpose of examining all children for bad tonsils, weak eyes, goitre, etc., and to protect the children against diphtheria. All those children not able to secure the services of their family physician for vaccination against smallpox will be vaccinated at the school.

Before the visit of the physician and the nurse, the teacher will send permits home to the parents. If these permits are signed by the parents, those children will be given protective treatment against diphtheria by the health officer.

The schools and dates upon which they are to be visited are as follows:

September 14—Corunna; Oak Grove; Steyer.
September 15—Avilton; McKenzie.
September 17—Mill Run; Asher Glade; Sand Spring.
September 18—Mt. Zion; Bethel; Chestnut Grove.
September 22—Frankville; North Glade.
September 23—Bear Hill; Manadier; Bowser.
September 24—Laughlin; Casselman; Bittinger.
September 25—Black Hawk; Glendale; Bond.
September 28—Winding Ridge; Oak Hill.
September 29—McCabe; Trap Run; White Rock.
September 30—Dorsey; Fairview; Mar's Hill; New Germany.
October 1—Sand Run; Red Ooak.
October 2—Bethlehem; Shook Shop.

McRobie and Guy McRobie, her husband, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, Defendants.

No. 3030 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by John R. Male, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeeds therefrom.

The bill states:

That John R. Maie, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, was in his life time and at the time of his death seized and possessed of eertain real esate situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1—All of that parcel of iand known and designated as Lot No. 5 on the plat of a tract of land conveyed by H. G. Davis to John W. Garrett, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 20, folio 351, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Mary E. Garrett, et al., trustees, dated May 25, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, said parcel containing 49 acres and 13 perches.

2—All that part of Military Lot No. 4041, containing the quantity of 20 aeres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Charles A. Lish and wife dated April 30, 1921, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 80, folio 93, one of said Land Records.

That a duly certified copy of the first above mentioned deed, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, is herewith filed as "Complainants' Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill of complaint; that while so seized and possessed of said land, the said John R. Male departed this life at his home in Garrett County, on the twelfth day of January, 1931, and by his last will and testament, a certified copy of which is herewith filed, marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 2," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill, devised the last mentioned parcel of land, containing 20 acres, and one acre of the first mentioned parcel to Albert N. Male, and all of the remalning property, both real and personal, to his wife, Sarah E. Male, to have and to hold during her natural life and at her death to be divided equally among his children, Viola S. Keenan, a daughter, who intermarried with John Keenan; William H. Male, a son, now deceased; Thomas I. Male, a son, who intermarried with Sallie Male; Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Albert N. Male and John Edgar Male, single sons; Solomon Taylor Male, a son, who intermarried with Ilda Male; Harry Fenton Male, a son, now deceased; Arizona Coleman, a daughter, who intermarried with Gibson Coleman; and a grand-daughter, Lena V. McRobie, who intermarried with Guy McRoble, all of the survivors being of full age; that the said Sarah E. Male preceded her husband in death, having departed this life on the second day of January, 1931; that the said William H. Male departed this life, intestate, on or about the 27th day of December, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and only heir at law, a son, Charles Ciark Male, who has intermarried with Edna Male and is of full age; that the said Harry Fenton Male departed this life intestate, in or about the month of June, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and heirs at law, the following children, all of whom are infants, to-wit: Mervin Male, a son; Evelyn Male, a daughter; Mary Male, a daughter, and Charley Male a son; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein; that it would be to the advantage of all the parties to this eause that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds derived therefrom divided among the parties to this eause according to their respective rights and interests; that the plaintiffs, Viola Keenan, John Keenan and John Edgar Male are residents of Garrett County, and Charles Clark Male and Edna Male, residents of Allegany County, and the defendants, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman, Gibson Coleman, Solomon Taylor Male, Ilda Male, Lena McRobie and Guy McRobie, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, are all residents of Garrett County, and the deendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male, Sallie Male and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, reside in the State of West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against resident defendants, and the order of publication against non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 26th day of August, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of September, 1931, giving notiee to the said absent defendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, and residing in the State of West Virginia, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 12th day of October, 1931, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

CHAPTER LIII

Early in August, 1918, I made an inspection tour of the service of supply, to note the progress and acquaint myself, the chief of staff and General Harbord, by actual observations, with conditions.

The tour was made also with a view to such changes in personnel and improvements in methods as would insure complete fulfillment of the increased obligations imposed upon the service of supply by the tremendous task of receiving, storing and transporting the enlarged troop and supply shipments.

Our first stop was Tours, which, being the location of the headquarters of the S. O. S., with a huge American military garrison of 2,400 officers and 4,300 men, had become a beehive of activity.

We visited every activity at Tours, beginning with the central records office, a branch of the adjutant general's office of large proportions, where the personal records of every man in the A. E. F. were kept. We found that the railway operators, numbering thousands, comfortably situated in portable barracks at Camp de Grasse, were putting every energy into the service. Certain engineer troops were kept at this central point for railway work, ready to respond to calls from any direction. The well-managed camp of German prisoners, under Colonel Groome of the military police, contained several hundred men used as laborers.

A number of British women, known as the Women's Auxiliary Aid corps, were lent to us by their government to assist in clerical work. The 250 women located at Tours occupied neat and comfortable temporary barracks and presented a very military appearance on parade. Some fifty of them were ill in quarters at the time and I gave instructions that they should be transferred to our hospital. Besides officially, these fine women, under the proper restrictions that prevailed, became a valued addition to the social side of life where they were stationed. This force with us eventually numbered about 5,000.

Speaks to Men in Hospital.

The base hospital at Tours was then filled with men wounded in the recent engagements. They were receiving the best of care under Col. A. M. Smith and his efficient group of medical officers and nurses.

Passing through the various wards of this hospital I spoke to a fine-looking young soldier who was sitting up in bed, and asked him where he was wounded, meaning to inquire the nature of his wound. In reply he said: "Do you remember, sir, just where the road skirts a small grove and turns to the left across a wheatfield and then leads up over the brow of the hill? Well, right there, sir."

He was clearly describing the advance south of Soissons which pierced the Chateau Thierry salient. Of course, I was not there at the time, but it touched me that he should feel that I must have been very close to him.

At the base hospital in Bordeaux, then under the efficient supervision of Col. H. A. Shaw, chief surgeon of the base section, we found about 500 of our wounded, most of them soon to be sent home. No matter how severely wounded they were I never heard a word of complaint from any of our men. There could not have been found in the hospitals of any army a more cheerful lot. It was a lesson in fortitude, an inspiration, to see their fine courage. Some would never again see, others would never be able to walk again, but they all seemed proud of their sacrifice, which many of their countrymen are often prone to forget all too soon.

We arrived at Brest August 2 and found the commanding general, G. H. Harries, and staff at the station to meet us. Base section No. 5 was built around Brest, our leading port of debarkation. The section included four French territorial departments. Another landing port for troops was Cherbourg. A large locomotive terminal and repair shop were located at Rennes and a coal port at Granville.

Major O'Neil's Secret.

After an inspection of the storehouses and the construction for additional storage on the piers, I asked for the chief stevedore, Major O'Neil, who came up apparently quite embarrassed. To put him at ease I took him by the arm and we walked together to where some lighters were being unloaded. As the port had made the record of handling 42,000 arriving troops and their baggage in one day, May 24, entirely with lighters, I asked him to tell me about it.

By this time he had overcome his fright, and pointing to two officers, each down in the bottom of a lighter directing the work, he said:

"Sir, do you see those two captains down there in their shirt sleeves? Well, that's the secret. I say to them: 'Don't stand off somewhere and puff yourselves up in your uniforms, but take off Sam Brownes and your coats and get down close to your men.'

"Of course, those captains have now become experts. I did the same thing when I started, but since they are trained I manage things generally and they carry out my orders. I can wear my uniform now that I have won the right to wear it."

"Well," I said, "O'Neil, you're just the man I have been looking for, and I am going to send you to every port we use to show them your secret."

CHAPTER LIV

The French government had expressed a desire to bestow their decorations on American officers and men, and asked if I would accept an appointment in the Legion of Honor with the grade of grand officer.

As congress had recently granted permission for members of our forces to receive foreign decorations, the French government was advised accordingly, and it was to confer this honor upon me that President Poincare paid his brief visit to Chaumont August 6, 1918.

I met him at the station with a military escort and conducted him to my headquarters, where the senior officers of the staff were presented. After that formality we repaired to the small area of barracks, where the headquarters troop and band were drawn up in line for the ceremony.

I was not insensible to the high personal honor, but regarded it mainly as an appreciation on the part of the French government of the assistance America had already given to the cause.

Pershing Takes Command.

As the American army was now an accomplished fact, it seemed advisable to begin preparations immediately to carry out the plan of campaign adopted July 24, providing for a distinctive American operation against the St. Mihiel salient.

I motored to Sarcus August 9, and after discussing with Marshal Foch the changed situation in the Marne sector and the practical stabilization of the front on the Vesle, I suggested the transfer of the First army headquarters to the St. Mihiel region, where it could begin immediate preparations for the proposed offensive. We considered the outline of my plans and without hesitation Marshal Foch acquiesced in the transfer.

Returning to Paris the same afternoon I went to Provins to talk the matter over further with General Petain. We took stock of available divisions for the St. Mihiel operation, and he said I could count on him definitely to do everything in his power to furnish whatever we might require.

Having thus reached a general understanding regarding the preliminary details of the move, I drove the following morning to La Ferte-sous-Jouarre to take formal command of the First army and to give instructions to my staff regarding the movement of headquarters to Neufchateau.

Bell's Division in Action.

The Thirty-third division (Bell) was still with the British when the combined attack of the British Fourth and the French First armies in the Montdidier-Albert sector began August 8. The division was in front line training with the British Fourth army and was attached to the British Third corps for the operation, the One Hundred and Thirty-first regiment of infantry being assigned to the British Fifty-eighth division. This regiment joined in the attack August 9 against the Morlancourt-Chipilly spur north of the Somme. It reached its objectives in splendid fashion and occupied a line on the western edge of Gressaire wood, extending southward along the river.

August 10, it continued to progress against decided opposition, gaining the eastern edge of the forests of Fosse and Mareon. During the following three days, the command having been shifted, the One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry under the Australian Fourth division attained a line just west of Bray-sur-Somme. The three other regiments were in reserve during the operations. The One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry was relieved August 20, having advanced over three miles and suffered heavy casualties.

I motored to the British front Sunday to be present at Thirty-third division headquarters, near Molliens-aux-Bois, on the occasion of the visit of King George, who was then visiting his armies. General Bliss had preceded me and we both spent the night there. That evening General Bell, relating the details of the participation of his troops with the British, said their services had been urgently requested and that they had acquitted themselves well.

King George Bestows Decorations.

The king arrived August 12, to present decorations to selected men of the Thirty-third division, who had participated in the recent attacks of the British army. Soon after his arrival the king invited General Bliss and me to his room, where he presented me with the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath and bestowed the Order of St. Michael and St. George on General Bliss. The presentations were informal, as the king simply handed the decorations to us in turn, at the same time expressing his appreciation of American assistance.

We then accompanied the king to the place where the men were assembled for the ceremony. He was gracious in his compliments as he pinned the decorations on our men, and the recipients were extremely proud.

A Pittsburgher Bemoans the Fact That Much of the Natural Beauty of Scenic Highway In the County Is Being Marred By The Cutting Away of Trees and Shrubs Skirting the Roadway.

To the Editor of The Republican.

As one who, with other Pittsburghers, is greatly interested in the most delightful mountain district, including Oakland and Garrett County, I take the liberty of calling your attention to the matter of preserving the scenic character of your highways and preventing, so far as it may be possible, the destruction of their picturesque and delightful character by the cutting of shrubs, saplings, and trees along the sides of such roads.

You will recall, however, that certain main highways, such as the National Highway, have been entirely denuded of any form of trees, shrubs, etc., along each side of the road for possibly forty to one hundred feet, making travel over the road desolate, sunny and devoid of any beautification from roadside trees, etc.

The reason for such condition is quite apparent. The National Highway roadsides have been given over to telephone and telegraph poles which burden and encumber the roads without any return therefor whatsoever to the people, and in addition thereto, it is quite evident that the State Highway Department is cutting down and destroying and devastating the roadsides for the only and express purpose of protecting the poles and wires of such utilities companieis.

Route 37 from Keyser's Ridge to Oakland has been for some years one of the most picturesque and beautiful drives in Western Maryland. The road is splendidly made, well banked and from an engineering standpoint is an almost perfect highway.

Its beauty has been enhanced by the protection heretofore along the highway of splendid large and growing trees, sapling and shrubbery of all kinds, in many places overhanging and shading the road and giving to parts of it a wild and splendid grandeur that has been quite unusual.

Last week in passing over the road I observed several gangs of workmen engaged with saw and axe cutting into the roadsides and destroying fine growing oak trees, cutting down the shurbbery, removing the saplings and destroying the beauty of this roadway.

A telegram to the State Highway Department elicited the following reply:

"Baltimore, Md., Aug. 29, 1931.
"W. D. Grimes,
"Mt. Lake Park, Md.
"Your wire received in reference to trees on Keyser's Ridge-Oakland road. State forces IN COOPERATION WITH UTILITIES COMPANIES removing dead trees only, the overhanging limbs of which are a menace to traffic. Underbrush being cleared at curves to improve vision.
"H. D. WILLIAR,
"Chief Engineer State Roads Commission of Maryland."

My investigation afterward disclosed that not only dead trees were being cut down, which was quite proper, but that fine living oaks taking fifty years to grow, were being ruthlessly destroyed and many of the fine young saplings and other roadside trees and shrubbery were being cut out, not only on the inside of the curves, but on the reverse side, where no possibility of obstructing vision was concerned.

The interesting part of the above telegram is the fact that this is being done in cooperation with utilities companies. By just what authority or right the utilities have to thus take possession of a State Highway and destroy its appearance and character is beyond me.

If the utilities companies, telegraph and telephone companies are in league with the State Highway engineers, I would think that the matter should be investigated and an explanation given as to whether the State roads are thus to be controlled and used.

It is quite evident that one of the power companies is about to take possession of the sides of this road for their telegraph poles and wires and the destroying and cutting down is evidently being done for the purpose of favoring the pole line or lines.

It is surprising that the people submit to the roads being burdened by telegraph and telephone and power poles without a cent of compensation to the State for such use and your attention is called to the matter in this particular instance, as it may encourage others to protest against such usurpations.

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM D. GRIMES.

FOUNDATION IS LAID FOR POOR VISION IN CRADLE

Continued Watchfulness of Infant Vision is Necessary

By Dr. J. Fred Andreae, Secretary Maryland Optometry Board

The foundation for good or poor vision is laid in the cradle. We have controlled blindness, caused by infection at birth, by a simple remedy administered immediately when the child comes into the world. But we must not lose sight of the need for continued watchfulness in infant vision. I doubt if you could find an adult who prefers to sleep with his face unshaded from the sun or other bright lights. But many mothers put their children to sleep in carriages and seldom think to shade their eyes with the hood. There they must lie with only the tissues of the eyelids between them and the sun. Another practice we deplore is that of using nothing but white carriage robes which reflect glare into the infant's eyes. Both these conditions make the baby uncomfortable and lead to serious visual consequences.

Since man is by nature a far-sighted creature, it is very much of a strain for the child to concentrate on some toy hung close to its head, perhaps from the hood of the carriage. On up through the formative years this conditions remains relatively true. Toys should always be large enough for the child to see with ease. When letters are introduced they should be large. In kindergarten there should be no sewing or weaving, only work that does not require near-point vision. If this care is given each child then we shall introduce into the first grade children who will have fewer defects of vision.

GEORGE WERTZ IS FOUND SLAIN AT KEYSER'S RIDGE

Aged Bachelor Beaten and Shot by Man Who Robbed Place on National Road Friday Night

YOUTH MAKES CONFESSION

The slaying of George Wertz, 74, National Highway roadhouse proprietor, who was robbed, beaten, shot, and killed Friday night, was laid to 18-year-old Herman Bittinger, of Bear Hill, this county, by State authorities on Monday, following his arrest Saturday and incarceration in the Garrett County Jail Saturday evening. Bittinger is alleged to have admitted that he killed the aged man as Wertz was repairing a lamp when he turned his back toward him him.

The news of the crime was flashed to Oakland early Saturday morning by a telephone message and immediately thereafter State's Attorney W. W. Dawson, Sheriff Haenftling, Deputy Sheriff Spear and Coroner W. A. Gonder left in automobiles for the scene of the crime, where a corner's jury was summoned and after making an examination of the pramises and taking the depositions of several men residing in the community rendered a verdict that the man had come to his death at the hands of some person or persons to the jury unknown.

Evidence produced before the jury, however, led the officers to believe that Bittinger was the guilty party. While one of the officers went over into the State of Pennsylvania in search of him, another officer went to the Bear Hill section where Bittinger's family resided, among whom is a brother.

County officers quoted Bittinger as saying in his confession that he went to the roadhouse about 3:00 o'clock Friday afternoon and remained there until that night, assisting Wertz in carrying water and other light work about the place.

Wertz lived alone in the shack. He had resided there about seven years selling soft drinks, lunches and other goods to tourists and others passing over the highway. About three years ago he was the victim of a holdup man who stole about $80 from him at the point of a pistol. The robber was caught, tried and convicted and sentenced to a term in prison by the Court in Oakland.

The roadhouse is located about one mile from the Pennsylvania State line and two miles west of Keyser's Ridge.

Legion to Nominate Officers

"All members of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, should be present at the next two meetings of the Post," is the statement of A. G. Hesen, post commander, "as there will be the nomination for officers at the meeting on Monday, September 21, and election of officers at the following meeting to be held on Monday, October 5."

There will be a smoker at both the meetings.

R. R. Gilbert To Be Transferred On October 1

R. R. Gilbert, for the past eight years manager of the local affairs of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas company, has been transferred to Buckhannon, W. Va., it has been announced. The transfer becomes effective on October 1, when he will take up his duties in a larger field.

Mr. Harold Jackson, former manager of the Oakland office, will return here.

Eagle Scout Badge Presented at Meeting of Oakland Troop

At an open meeting of Oakland Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, last Friday evening, Harley Dawson was presented with his Eagle Scout badge, recently awarded by the Court of Honor. The presentation was made by Rev..C. A. Shilke.

Walter W. Dawson and Harland L. Jones, members of the Troop Committee, also made a few remarks concerning the occasion. The scoutmaster presented Lewis Jones with his star scout badge, that rank having been attained by him during the summer camp.

Plans for fall and winter activities will be made at the meeting of the troop tomorrow evening. Officers for the coming year will also be elected in the near future.

FOUR MEN ARE CAUGHT IN RAIDS IN GARRETT COUNTY

Two Arrests Made and Two Cited to Appear for Hearing

Two men were arrested and two were cited to appear for hearings following raids Tuesday in the vicinity of Oakland by Agents William R. Harvey and Harold B. Hall, of the Cumberland unit of the Federal Prohibition Bureau.

Jasper F. Upole, about three miles west of Oakland on the Swallaw Falls road, was cited to appear in the Circuit Court on State charges of manufacture and possession of liquor. The agents said they found a 75-gallon still, a 25-gallon still and one hundred gallons of mash on the man's farm. Upole is said to have claimed he knew they were on his property but that they didn't belong to him.

The agents visited the farm of Carl A. Martin, at Red House, Tuesday afternoon and arrested John Pappas, of Clarksburg, W. Va., and Oscar Butcher. Martin was cited to appear for a hearing. The officers said they found a 150-gallon still and a 50-gallon still in operation in the cellar of Martin's home. They also reported seizure of 50 gallons of alleged whiskey and 1,200 gallons of mash in four 300-gallon vats. Butcher was operating the still, the agents said, and Pappas stated that he rented the cellar from Martin.

This is the second offense for Pappas. All of the four men face State charges under the Garrett county law which prohibits the manufacture and possession of liquor for sale.

SALESMANSHIP IS NEEDED IN CHURCH SAYS BURRUSS

Sales Counsellor Addresses a Brotherhood Rally Sunday Evening In St. Mark's Church

LARGE NUMBER ATTEND

That salesmanship was needed in the church as much as in any business was told representatives of Brotherhoods from churches of Fairmont, Clarksburg, Grafton, Morgantown, Oakland, and citizens of Oakland by W. B. Burruss, sales counsellor, at the concluding session of the Lutheran Brotherhood rally held last Sunday afternoon and evening in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland.

Mr. Burruss, a summer resident of Oakland, and nationally known public speaker, held the large crowd assembled to hear him for more than an hour in discussing fully the subject of salesmanship relating to church work and in explaining why he thought Shakespeare was the greatest salesman of all time.

"If everybody would make himself a personal salesman for the church instead of leaving it all up to the preacher, the houses of worship would be full to overflowing. To be a true salesman one must be sincere and have confidence in the thing which he is selling. He must create desire and not try to impose an article or idea on someone who is not convinced that he wants to receive it.

"An honest sale, the only sale that should be made, is one in which both parties profit," Mr. Burruss said. "In church work this would mean the desire of someone to help another because of the good which each would receive from the transaction."

Mr. Burruss' address was the only feature listed on the evening program. In the afternoon talks and discussions were made on the four points of the Brotherhood: Developing men within the church; the lapsed member; the outside man, and the boy, by Rev. W. P. Cline, Jr., Fairmont, W. Va.; Rev. Roy Hashinger, Morgantown, W. Va.; Rev. William Erhard, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Rev. E. F. K. Roof, Grafton, with discussions on each of the subjects presented by O. C. Wilt, Clarksburg; R. E. Roberts, Fairmont; Prof. F. D. Bittle, Oakland, and Mr. Harpster, Morgantown.

There were approximately 165 visitors and members of the Brotherhoods served with luncheon in the basement of the church between the afternoon and evening sessions.

Many of the delegates and members of the various Brotherhoods were accompanied to Oakland by members of their families, more than forty coming from Fairmont and many from Clarksburg and other towns.

JUDGE DOUB CONVENED CIRCUIT COURT MONDAY

Delivered Charge to The Grand Jury, of Which Delbert C. Davis Is The Foreman

ADDRESS MASTERFUL ONE

For the first time in a number of years, Garrett county is having a jury term of the Circuit Court during the month of September, the Legislature at its last session having enacted a law changing the term from December to September, which is apparently meeting with the approval of the citizens of the county, it being more convenient and weather conditions more satisfactory for travel to Oakland from their homes during the fall season than during mid-winter.

At the convening of the term Monday morning, Associate Judge Albert A. Doub occupied the bench, who delivered the charge to the grand jury, of which body Mr. Delbert C. Davis, of Oakland, is foreman. The Court's address to the jury was a masterful one and all who heard it were impressed with the earnestness with which Judge Doube delivered it. The Court in referring to the recent murder of a harmless old man in the county was especially touched and lamented the fact that crimes of any nature should be committed and especially that of murder.

The Court's Address

In addressing the Grand Jury, the Court said:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:—

You have just listened to the oath of office as it has been administered to your foreman. If you listened attentively you must have been impressed with the solemnity of the obligations which you have assumed. The laws of the State and of our country cannot be maintained unless grand jurors are ready to do their duty and unless jurors are willing to serve cheerfully when called upon by the Court.

This is the first day of the September Term of Court. Your duties will not be onerous this term because we had a term in June under the prior existing law, and therefore it will be your duty only to investigate the cases which may have arisen since the June Term of court or something which may have happened prior to

Ramsey's Store at Rosedale Was Robbed on Sunday

Cecil Ramsey's grocery store at Rosedale, a suburb of Oakland on the Crellin road, was robbed of about $18 in cash and a few groceries on Sunday when it was entered by a young men known to the proprietor, entrance being effected by the use of a skeleton key. Mr. Ramsey has recovered a portion of the money, two silver dollars, which he recognized as being his property. An arrest has not been made and probably will not be if the party guilty of the crime makes restitution and confesses his guilt.

SECOND GOOD WILL DINNER IS HELD MONDAY EVENING

Annual Affair Given In Honor of Mayors and Council Members of Towns in County

BALTIMORE MAYOR TALKS

Approximately one hunderd and fifty were present at the second annual goodwill banquet given Monday night by the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland in honor of the Mayors and the members of the various Councils of incorporated towns of Garrett county, at the Manhattan Hotel.

Friendsville, Grantsville, Accident, Loch Lynn, Kitzmiller and Oakland were represented and in addition practically all the business and professional men of Oakland and vicinity attended.

The banquet was the climax of the goodwill meetings between officials of Garrett county towns which have been held during the summer months when the Mayor and Councilmen of Oakland visited the various communities and were entertained.

Mayor Jackson Guest of Honor

Hon. Howard W. Jackson, Mayor of Baltimore, was the guest of honor, and he gave the principal address of the evening. Mayor Thomas W. Koon, of Cumberland, and Judge Albert A. Doub, of Cumberland, also gave short addresses.

The program of the evening included music by the Marylanders, an address of welcome to the visitors and guests by W. R. Offutt; vocal selections by the Oakland quartet. W. W. Dawson, State's Attorney, was the master of ceremonies and Grover C. Stemple, Mayor of Oakland, introduced Mayor Jackson.

Mayor Jackson, after expressing his pleasure at being in Garrett county amid wonderful scenery, outlined the administration program for Baltimore as one of rigid economy.

"Depletion of the municipal treasury, coupled with a sharp decline in the assessment basis because of general financial conditions," said the Mayor, "has created the situation which demands curtailment of all programs except those of current ne-

Vandals Damage Bridge

Someone unknown to the authorities during the past week tore up a portion of the floor of the Barnum bridge spanning the Potomac river, leaving a vacant space of some three or four feet, thus endangering the lives and property of motorists and others having occasion to use the structure. Fortunately the opening in the floor was discovered and reparis were ordered made immediately by County Commissioner James A. Fitzwater, who is also endeavoring to ascertain who is responsible for the wanton destruction of public property.

CRELLIN YOUTH IS HELD FOR ATTACK ON MAN, 50

Coy Dalton Alleged to Have Struck W. A. Bell on Head

W. A. Bell, 50, of Crellin, is in a critical condition following an alleged attack by Coy Dalton, about 19, also of Crellin, at the Stanley Mines Tuesday morning. Dalton is said to have struck Bell on the head with an iron bar, which rendered him unconscious for several hours.

According to the story given out by authorities Dalton and several others were creating a disturbance on Bell's property Monday night and he ordered them away. Early Tuesday morning as Bell passed the boiler room of the mine, just across the West Virginia-Maryland boundary line, preparing to go to work, Dalton is said to have stepped from a doorway and felled Bell by a blow behind the car with the iron bar.

Dalton was later apprehended in the Stanley Mine by authorities from Preston county, assisted by mine officials, and lodged in the jail at Kingwood, W. Va.

Bell is a married man and has several children.

COUNTY FAIR CONTINUES WITH DRUM CORPS PARADE

Local Legion Post Will be Host to Visiting Corps Tonight—Exhibits Are Numerous

TO CONCLUDE TOMORROW

The fifteenth annual Garrett county fair, which opened on Tuesday with Organization Day, will continue until tomorrow evening, and carnival attractions will remain until Saturday night, Henry M. Speicher, general manager, has announced.

This evening's feature will be a parade of drum corps with a prize of $50 for the corps making the best appearance. Acceptances of invitations sent out two weeks ago have been received from drum corps of Piedmont, Keyser and Grafton, W. Va., and it is understood that the corps from Meyersdale, Pa., will also be present, although no official word has been received. The local legion post is cooperating with the Fair officials to make this one of the biggest days of the entire celebration.

On Wednesday morning a parade of all school children was held The school parade also included the legion drum and bugle corps, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band, and the Crellin Boys' Band, Oakland Granumar and High schools, Crellin, Loch Lynn, Mt. Lake and McHenry schools were represented, and the Crellin Sunday school had a float proclaiming a membership of 224.

Exhibits Above Par

"The exhibits have been well above the average and surpass all expectations," Mr. Speicher said. "The exhibit building is completely filled and the barn housing the live stock is practically filled. Farm products seem to be of better quality, and there are some excellent exhibits of horses and sheep. The poultry department has more entries than in former years, and the exhibits of the 4-H clubs, agriculture clubs, and home economics clubs are very good."

Several of the judges, according to John H. Carter, county agent, have stated that of the three county fairs which they had already attended, Garrett county's fair surpassed two and equaled the other one in both exhibits and attendance. The quantity and quality of exhibits, they stated, was of the best.

Judges have been busy during the past two days in making awards and they will be announced in next week's issue of The Republican.

THIRTY-TWO INDICTMENTS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

Jurors Complete Task After Short Session; Criminal Docket Will Be Taken Up Monday

JURY REPORT PRESENTED

Thirty-two presentments and indictments were returned by the Garrett County Grand Jury for the September Term of the Circuit Court during its day and a-half session ending at noon on Tuesday, which is said to be the shortest session of any grand jury in the history of the Circuit Court for this county.

The jury was dismissed from further service at this time by Judge Albert A. Doub following the presentation of its report to the Court. Delbert M. Davis was foreman of the jury and Lawrence M. Fraley and G. W. Weitzell were its clerks.

The criminal docket will be taken up on Monday, September 21, at ten o'clock, when Judge D. Lindley Sloan will be on the bench.

The report of the grand jury follows:

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland:

The grand jury for the September term, 1931, hereby submits its report as follows:

We have had before us and have examined 42 witnesses and have found 32 presentments and 32 indictments.

Pursuant to the impressive charge delivered to the Grand Jury by the presiding Judge, Albert A. Doub, we have carefully considered the evidence brought before us and have been governed by our obligation as jurors and our duty to society in insisting on the enforcement of the law in our action in each instance.

We wish to call attention to the splendid effort that is being put forth by the officers of the law to detect, apprehend and punish all offenders against the law. We also wish to thank the State's Attorney, Walter W. Dawson, for his courteous assistance to us and the very efficient manner in which all matters for our attention were prepared and presented.

We, in accordance with the requirements of our office, inspected the Court House, Jail and the records of the various county officials that are kept therein. We found the buildings in good condition.

Limited time forbids any approach to an exhaustive examination of records, but all books appear to be well kept and legible, and information asked for was ready, available and cheerfully given.

In closing, we wish to extend our thanks to His Honor Judge Doub for the assistance rendered us in performing our duties as grand jurors.

DELBERT M. DAVIS, Foreman.
LAWRENCE M. FRALEY,
G. W. WEITZELL, Clerks.

THE COUNCIL AT JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Christians Working Together.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The First Missionary Convention.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Christian Freedom.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity at the Crossroads.

I. The Controversy in the Church at Antioch (vv. 1-5).

This difficulty was a most serious one, for it threatened the disruption of the church into Jewish and Gentile divisions. It was not a question of the admission of the Gentiles into the Church; that had been settled some years before when Peter received Cornelius and his household. The question now was, On what ground could they be received? Should Gentile converts be required to keep the Mosaic Law as a condition of salvation? This issue was brought on by the coming of certain men from Jerusalem who declared, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved" (v. 1). The question was so difficult that Paul and Barnabas were unable to put them to silence. These Jewish legalists had the letter of the Scripture on their side. They could point to the command enjoining this rite upon the male children of the covenant people (Gen. 17:10-14). Paul could not point to any scripture where this obligation had been abrogated. If Paul should plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonist could answer, "Yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed." The brethren at Antioch decided to refer the matter to the mother church at Jerusalem. Accordingly, Paul and Barnabas and others were sent as a deputation to Jerusalem.

II. The Deliberations of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter's speech (vv. 6-11). He argued that God had borne witness to the acceptance of the Gentiles by giving the Holy Spirit to them as unto the Jews (Acts 10:34-47). Since, therefore, God had not put a difference, it would be folly for them to to do so.

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearsed their experience (v. 12). They told how that God had set his seal of approval on their preaching of salvation by grace through faith apart from the works of the law by the working of signs and wonders through them.

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with the prophecy of Amos (Amos 9:11-15). He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict but in strict harmony with God's plan. As set forth in the speech of James, God's plan is as follows:

a. To take out from among the Gentiles a people for his name (v. 14). This is what is now going on—the preaching of the gospel to the ends of the earth, and the calling out of the Church.

b. After the Church is completed and removed, the Israelitish nation will be converted and restored to their land and privileges by the Lord himself at his return (vv. 16, 17).

c. Following this will be the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17 cf. Rom. 11:15-17). He showed that there is no conflict when the Scriptures are rightly divided.

III. The Decision of the Council (vv. 22-29).

The mother church came to a unanimous agreement and accepted the resolution offered by James. They not only sent a letter stating the decision of the conference, but took the wise precaution to send influential men along with Paul and Barnabas to bear the same testimony by word of mouth. This letter denied the authority of the Judaizing teachers (v. 24) and declared the method by which this decision had been reached (vv. 25-27). They put the Holy Spirit first. They were positively instructed to abstain from meats offered to idols, from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication.

IV. The Decision Delivered to the Church (vv. 30-35).

Upon their return to Antioch, the church was called together to hear the report. Its reading brought great rejoicing. Judas and Silas, who had been sent as confirmatory witnesses, being prophets, now exhorted the brethren with many words, confirming the decision of the Jerusalem church.

Abiding in Christ

Abiding in Christ does not mean that you must always be thinking about Christ. You are in a house, abiding in its enclosure or beneath its shelter, though you are not always thinking about the house itself. But you always know when you leave it.—F. B. Meyer.

God Is In All

Be he nowhere else, God is in all that liberates and lifts, in all that humbles, sweetens, and consoles.—Lowell.

FROM WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA, TO PARKERSBURG, WEST VIRGINIA, ON THE NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This is part of an article describing scenes and towns along the Northwestern Turnpike, and includes that part of the highway which is between Clarksburg and the Ohio River.)

Wood county was formed from Harrison in 1799; it is therefore much older than several of the counties to the east of it. It has an area of 357 square miles and a population of about 45,000. The county is named in honor of James Wood, who was Governor of Virginia when the county was formed.

And so into Parkersburg. Parkersburg is not just a town; it is a city and it has been in existence for many years. But it has little or none of the colonial atmosphere that is usually associated with the old cities in Virginia. Perhaps that is because it is essentially a manufacturing city, and manufacturing cities are notoriously up to date. There are always new elements of population coming in to stir things up and create changes.

The first settlement at the place where the city now stands was made in 1783, when Alexander Parker purchased the land for $50. There was a tavern at the site of the city in 1789. Parkersburg is the final result of the growing together of three small towns located by early settlers at the point where the Little Kanawha joins the Ohio. These towns were Vienna, founded in 1795, and Monroe and Newport, because of its location at the junction of the two rivers, was chosen as the location for the courthouse.

In 1812 a brick court-house was erected in the public square. About the same time and in the same vicinity was built the famouse Bell Tavern, later known as the United States Hotel and finally as the Stratford.

The greater development of the town dates from the completion of the Northwestern Turnpike in 1837 and the Stauton Turnpike in 1843, both bringing increased business and making Parkersburg an important river port. In 1839 the Northwestern Bank of Virginia was established. In 1847 a toll bridge was built across the Little Kanawha for the convenience of the people on the other side of the river. The railroad brought additional business in 1857 as did the development of the oil business in 1859 and later.

The oil industry in what is now West Virginia started about the same time as the War between the States, and the Confederates did their best to have the two endeavors finish about the same time. In May, 1863, General William Jones raided the oil operations at Burning Springs, about 30 miles from Parkersburg, and kindled the greatest bonfire West Virginia ever had, destroying 100,000 barrels of oil in one night.

In 1864, John Russel Young, a Philadelphia writer, visited Parkersburg, and, among other things, said this about it:

"Parkersburg is the oil metropolis of West Virginia. At the junction of the Ohio and the Little Kanawha Rivers, and connected with the north and the west with a branch of the B. and O. Railway, it commands all of the trade of the West Virginia valley. It is a straggling, imperfect, unfinished town. Many rich men live here. How rich men can content themselves to live in this place is a mystery of money getting that I cannot understand. The oil princes—to use a common term—do not spend all their wealth here, however. There is very little gambling, no bowie knives, and little of that primitive civilization which disgraced the Pacific coast. We are now so near New York and Philadelphia that capitalists may come and see for themselves and return in 10 days."

Oil was at first a by-product of the salt industry and before its value was realized thousands of gallons were pumped into the river. Salt brine is now a nuisance to the oil producers.

In 1887 Parkersburg had three petroleum refineries, with an annual output of 300,000 barrels. The output from the whole of West Virginia in 1928 from 18,000 wells was 5,000,000 barrels.

The town of Parkersburg was established in 1811 and in 1820 the population was only 400. The city of Parkersburg was chartered in 1863, at which time the population was 3,000. Ten years later it had more than doubled. In the next 30 years it doubled again. And in the 30 years since 1900 it doubled once more. The present population is about 40,000, of which 98 per cent is American-born and 96 percent is native white.

Parkersburg today has about 166 industries, giving employment to about 7,900 men and 1,750 women. In the city is found the largest independent shovel plant in the country; also the only vitrollte plant in the country.

There is a large rayon plant of the Viscose Company, employing 2,500 at present. A new unit under construction will double the capacity and number of employees.

Parkersburg is the largest producer of oil well supplies, rigs, reels, tanks, drilling and finishing tools in the United States. Oil drilling, refining and shipping, with its associated lines, representing in all an investment of $500,000,000, form the backbone of the city's industrial life.

Parkersburg is said to be the best paved city in West Virginia, and it has a model high school with a 27-acre campus and a concrete stadium. This is the largest high school in the state; it houses 3,000 students.

The chief point of historical interest in or near Parkersburg is Blennerhasset Island. This is a small island in the Ohio, containing two or three small farms.

Herman Blennerhasset, a wealthy and educated man from England and Ireland, settled on the island in 1798 and commenced the erection of a luxurious mansion, in which he later entertained many prominent and cultured people.

One of these guests in 1805 was Aaron Burr. Burr induced Blennerhasset to join him in a scheme for establishing a colony in the far south, this colony to become later a separate country annexing part of Mexico, and perhaps some of the territory belonging to the United States. At least, that is what Burr's accusers said. Burr claimed that he had in mind simply a scheme to acquire riches and prestige by acquiring lands in the far south and selling them to settlers. At any rate, Blennerhasset invested a large sum of money in Burr's undertaking.

Burr and Blennerhasset were accused of plotting against the United States Government and they were obliged to flee. They were later arrested. Burr was tried in Richmond for treason, but acquitted. John Marshall presided at the trial. Blennerhasset was never tried, but the affair ruined him. Virginia troops seized the island before Burr's arrest, turned out Mrs. Blennerhasset and her children, and greatly damaged the mansion. It was afterwards taken over by Blennerhasset's creditors, used for a time as a storehouse, and later burned by accident.

The whole affair reflects little credit on some of those in political power at that time, and this is particularly true of Thomas Jefferson, who was President of the United States at the time of Burr's trial and who did many things in connection with it that a Virginia gentleman is not supposed to do. If you want the real story of Burr and Blennerhasset, read Albert Beveridge's Life of John Marshall.

When you get to Parkersburg, you can, if you want to, go right on to the Pacific coast on U. S. 50, which is the modern name for the Northwestern Turnpike. But for the purpose of our present story U. S. 50 ends at the Ohio River, just as did the Northwestern Turnpike when it was built about 100 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ellithorp motored through Somerset county, Pa., one day last week.

John H. Beitzell and family attended the Stephens family reunion near New Germany last Sunday.

NAVY, OLD LINERS TO RESUME DUELS IN GRID CONTEST

Game on October 10 Promises to Match Thriller of Last Season

Hot Battles Characteristic of Middy-Maryland Meetings

COLLEGE PARK, MD.—Although the Naval Academy and University of Maryland football teams both will see action before their big game in Griffith Stadium in Washington on October 10, it is this contest that they have mainly in mind at present and for which they are training their guns.

Last Fall the Midshipmen and Old Liners provided one of the classic struggles of the season in this section of the country before all the people that could be packed into Farragut Field at Annapolis. This year's game promises to be a replica of that gruelling battle and doubtless will attract all the grid fans that Griffith Stadium can hold.

Navy won last season's heated and stirring game, 6 to 0, on a touchdown scored by Louis Kirn, fleet halfback, who dashed almost the length of the field in the first few minutes of the contest. Maryland had its chances to turn the tide later in the fray, knocking at the touchdown door no less than four times.

In fact, the game between Navy and Maryland will be a continuation of a series of hard battles that have taken place in the last several seasons, although, it will be only the second grid meeting under modern conditions.

During the 1930-31 term of school of the two institutions, Navy in addition to the football game, won a basketball duel and track meet from Maryland, while the Old Liners retaliated in a great measure by scoring in baseball and lacrosse. The lacrosse game drew the largest crowd to see a contest in that pastime during the 1930 season. The basket ball tilt also packed Dalghren Hall at Annapolis.

Both the Navy and Maryland elevens should be on a par, if not better, than the ones that battled so closely last Fall and the contest has taken the top place among all those to be staged in 1931 in the South Atlantic Area.

Applications for tickets are being received both at the Naval Academy and Maryland athletic offices so that the alumni and regular followers of the two schools may have a chance to get choice seats. However, all tickets not applied for within the next few days will be placed on public sale.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Well, the Boss Editor and the rest of the staff put one over on me last week in composing and printing the poem about my airplane ride. But thanks to Doc McComas' pullmotor or suction pump, my Adam's apple is back in place and after a complete oiling with corn juice is now running up and down as smoothly as ever. And I'm waiting for another chance to go up.

Sidelights on the Banquet

A few sidelights on the banquet Monday night (personal opinion and probably piffle):

Bill Offutt, in speaking of the beauties of the county and of Oakland, commented on the beauty of the Garrett county jail.

The Mayor of Baltimore was introduced as the Hon. ALBERT Jackson.

H. R. Laughlin, superintendent of the B. & O. R. R., was accused by Judge Doub of deliberately having four or five freight trains pass the hotel as he was in the midst of his remarks. Regardless of that, Scoop is in favor of rubber tires for all trains and more trains.

None of Mountain Lake Park's governing bodies were represented at the Goodwill dinner.

The menu included cigars, but Mayor Stemple must have meant everybody to bring his own, as they were conspicuous by their absence.

I am now able to understand more about this invigorating climate of Garrett county since Judge Doub and Walter Dawson explained things.

It is too bad that there has to be a partition between the dinner guests.

The Marylanders played excellent music for the dinner, especially the selections they played softly.

Mayor Stemple and members of Council should continue this goodwill business.

The dinner was very palatable and was highly enjoyed.

Straw hat season ended Monday at midnight, officially. Incidentally it also ended for Wellington "Doe Yak" Yutzy, whose sailor lid was mercilessly trampled in the dirt of the street and used for a football at 12:01 a. m. Tuesday by two of his best friends. And they are still friends.

CHEVROLET From the selection of raw materials to the completion of the finished product, each process of building, assembling and checking the Chevrolet Six Is marked by extreme care and precision. An exhaustive system of test and inspection makes certain that every part meets specified dimensions exactly. Many of these parts are held to limits of one ten-thousandth of an inch. No manufacturer in the industry uses more care or precision In building and testing than Chevrolet.

Just as every part of the car is soundly built, every feature is soundly designed. In planning the motor, Chevrolet engineers were not content to offer the public anything less than tried and proved design. They knew that the only satisfactory way to get smooth, flexible power in a car is to use at least six cylinders. So they adopted the six-cylinder engine without compromise. And this is what you get in today's Chevrolet Six.

As a result of this sound designing and sound manufacturing, you can buy a Chevrolet and know you are getting a genuinely good automobile—soundly designed, soundly built, basically and technically right.

CARRY ON—

It is with regret that citizens of Oakland learn of the departure on October 1, of R. R. Gilbert, a useful citizen and leader of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band.

The Boys Band has become a valuable asset to Oakland and to the members themselves, and the work must go on, regardless. The fine organization which has taken four years to build must not become a thing of the past. Either Russell Brown, assistant director, who is well versed in music and capable, or some other citizen must step in and carry on. Oakland cannot well do without such an asset.

NO VETERAN "RAID ON THE TREASURY"

The president of the Carnegie Foundation makes a violent attack on the American Legion and the Grand Army of the Republic on the charge that through political coercion they have "raided the treasury" to provide unjust pensions and other forms of compensation for veterans. He declares that the G. A. R. "was transformed from a patriotic society to a subsidy-seeking organization."

The Grand Army of the Republic has been the target of such accusations before. Looking back over the record of what the nation has done for the men who saved the Union from dissolution in the sixties, and thus made it possible for Mr. Carngie to accumulate the fortune with which he endowed the Carnegie Foundation, few Americans will agree that the government has been too generous. One familiar with the operations of the pension laws knows how difficult it was at any time to procure for a veteran a pension to which he was entitled. That there were individual cases of imposition in so large a number of pension applications is doubtless true, but that general pension legislation was unfair or that many cases of injustice developed under it, is not true.

When the nation, soon after America's entrance into the World War, set aside a certain portion of the population as obligated to military service, and permitted the remainder to continue civil pursuits, and in many instances to personally profit by the war, it incurred a special obligation to those who were called to the national colors. It incurred a moral obligation for some adjustment financially between those who went to war and those who stayed at home. That the adjustment has been overdone to date no thoughful persons will be inclined to believe.

The money paid out by the nation to World War veterans does not represent a loss to the American people as a whole. It comes out of the pockets of those who can afford to pay, and put it into the pockets of many who need it, and who have a claim on the nation's gratitude. But for their service there would be no values in this country; the endowment fund of the Carnegie Foundation would be worthless. Some excessive demands would have been made on the government by some representatives of the World War soldiers. But what has been done up to date has been moderate. The additional loans made on bonus certificates, described by the president of the Carnegie Foundation as a "raid on the treasury," did not increase the obligation of the government a penny; on the contrary, since the loans are made to veterans at a higher rate of interest than the government pays for its money, it is a profitable transaction.

The Carnegie Foundation, along with some highly useful activities, has some of less value. It agitates for internationalism and the disarming of the nation. Its eminent founder, who made many notable benefactions, nevertheless expressed a wish for a consolidation of the United States and the British Empire. Certainly the cause of peace is not harmed when war is made more costly because our people vote on themselves heavy burdens in caring for veterans, and to some extent making up for what they lost financially by their war service while others in safety pursued their usual profitable occupations.

It may be assumed that Congress has done nothing in the matter of veteran relief that does not meet the approval of the American people, who pay the bill, for congressmen are not in the habit of voting for things they do not believe are popular. If Congress has "raided the treasury" to help the veterans, then it simply means that the American people, through their representatives, have made a raid on their own treasury.

It is a remarkable fact that while in the United States we have some four hundred foundations of one sort and another, endowed to the extent of several billions in the aggregate, we do not have a single one committed to the cause of inculcating American patriotism—appreciation of American institutions, ideals and principles. There are many such foundations which, on the contrary, are engaged in deprecating and breaking down American nationalism in favor of a futile and ultimately fatal internationalism. From such sources attacks upon the organized veterans of all our wars may be expected. But if there had not been men willing to stand between the nation and destruction in time of peril, and if the spirit back of their service is not kept alive, the endowment funds of these institutions might in due time become about as valuable as German marks were immediately after the World War.

THE CANNING MOVEMENT

The good old household art of canning has come back with a rush this year. It is boomed systematically in many states where there is a visible surplus of fruits and vegetables. And the remarkable thing about this movement is that there is so little commercialism in it.

In most places it is simply a voluntary outpouring of public spirit, in which city and country—ordinarily hostile to each other—join hands. Farmers and gardeners in many sections are donating large quantities of produce, representing much labor and investment on their part, provided others will take it away and make good use of it. City people are taking care of transportation and distribution. Labor and trucks, like the produce itself, are furnished free. So is much of the canning equipment and materials and the superintendence needed where people have forgotten, or have never learned, how to preserve foodstuffs for winter.

Here is a form of helpfulness as fine as any form of charity one can think of. The sting of ordinary charity is taken out of it. The needy are helped by letting them provide for themselves food which otherwise would be wasted. Here is sound economics along with sound philanthropy.

Perhaps it is still sounder economics when families able to pay for such raw materials buy them from the farmers or grovers and put them up for winter use. If this is a "backward step" in the machine age, it is a good one. Families today have forgotten too many of the old household arts, become too dependent on others for their needs, lost too much of their sense of self-sufficiency. It is remarkable what a few dozen jars and glasses of fruits, jellies and jams will do for the family's soul, particularly the housewife's.

This is not necessarily hurting the professional canners' business at all. A few personal delicacies in the cellar, a few gallons of fruit saved from spoiling, whet the appetite for more, increase consumption and raise standards of living from which everybody profits in the long run.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The bicycle craze struck Oakland which caused The Republican to say that the town "has a number of handsome boys who can ride a bicycle with anyone in the State." Those boys are middle aged men now, but they will remember with delight the rides they took to points 'round about Oakland and thought they were having a good time.

Norman Barnard, farmer, sent an apple to town which weighed fourteen ounces and measured 12¾ iches in circumference.

At a meeting of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, held in the lodge room at Mountain Lake Park, it was decided to move the lodge paraphernalia to Oakland and establish the headquarters and lodge room over Hamill & Little's store, Oak and Third streets. The lodge had been instituted at the Park several years preceding and sufficient members from Oakland had become affiliated with the organization that Oakland people held the balance of power, hence the action resulting in the transfer.

Joseph E. Harned closed his drug store at the Park and went to Washington to spend a few days' vacation.

The Methodist Episcopal church on Oak street was nearing completion and the date of September 26 was set as the day of dedication. Rev. Dr. Norcross, of Pittsburgh, was chosen to conduct the dedicatory ceremonies.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

More than six thousand delegates from every State in the Union attended the International Bible Students Conference at Mountain Lake Park. The gathering was deemed the most successful in the history of the association up to that time.

Lieut. E. S. West exhibit at Fairmont a large selection of farm and orchard products grown in Garrett county. Later an exhibit was made at Clarksburg and at Spencer, W. Va., where much interest was evinced by those who observed the friuts and vegetablcs.

The first annual convention of the Garrett County Sunday School convention met for a two days' session in the Oakland Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Henry W. McComas, with her children, left Oakland for Baltimore to reside during the winter. Dr. McComas remained here to practice his profession.

An Interesting Fact

The Federal Constitution Made Possible by a Marylander,—Luther Martin.

During the several decades from the time of the convention that framed the Federal Constitution, there flourished a celebrated group of Maryland lawyers, including Robert H. Harrison, Thomas Johnson, Samuel Chase, Roger B. Taney, William Pinkney, William Wirt, Luther Martin and many others. Among this galaxy of keen legal minds, Luther Martin stands out as a lawyer as accomplished as any who ever practiced before an American court. Although born in New Jersey, he took up his life work in Maryland.

Martin was the great champion of States Rights, pitted against Alexander Hamilton, the aristocrotic champion of Federal centralization, who did not think favorably of a republican form of government, but thought that the British Government as it then existed "the best in the world." In short, Hamilton desired to have a chief executive (or President Monarch) elected for life; the senators elected for life by indirect voting, and a Lower House elected by the freeholders, but whose actions were to be controlled by the veto of the executive.

It will be remembered, that if there was one principal for which Marylanders were willing to fight, and to die, if necessary, it was self-government, advocated by the Colonists from the very beginning of our history. In the Constitutional Convention, Martin was one of Maryland's representatives and as such bitterly opposed the centralization ideas of Hamilton. So well and ably did Martin maintain his position that a compromise was finally affceetd, which, Andrews says: "Made possible the Constitution."

Martin was made a member of a special committee to consider the matter of representation, whose report brought convicition to the convention that the states, both small and large, should be given equal representation in the Upper House. Had equal representation in the Senate been denied by the Convention, it is the conclusion of Andrews that "it is difficult to believe that the small states would have ratified the Federal Constitution, for the people of the smaller feared the domination of the larger states."

This great champion of states rights contended that the true protection of the rights of private citizens lay in the exercise of the largest possible measure of self government.

DIED.

WILLIAM BOYLE

Funeral services for William Boyle, son of Michael Boyle, of Oakland, who died in the veterans' hospital at Newark, N. J., on Friday, were held Monday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter's Catholic church. Interment was made in the Catholic cemetery with the Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, in charge. A wreath was dropped from the sky by Bernard Covey, Kingwood pilot, during the services.

The deceased was born and reared in Garrett county. He is survived by his father, one sister, Mrs. C. Stuart Neiss, Evanston, Ill.; two brothers, Michael Boyle, Jr., and James, both of Baltimore. He was a veteran of the World War.

MRS. RACHAEL BARNARD

Mrs. Rachael Barnard, aged 59, widow of the late Henry Barnard, died early Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. C. Tichnell, at Bloomington, after an extended illness from a complication of diseases. The funeral service was held Monday afternoon in the Chestnut Grove church and interment was made in the Barnard cemetery at Chestnut Grove.

LAMBERT LEROY O'BRIEN

Lambert Leroy, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. O'Brien, departed this life September 11, 1931, aged 11 months, 8 days. He is survived by his father and mother, five brothers, and five sisters, Holland and Fred, of Canton, Ohio; Alberta, of Keyser; Marshal, Donald, Jerald, Mary, Louisc, Leona, and Ruth, at home. Funeral services were held at North Glade M. E. church Sunday morning, September 13, at 10 a. m., by Rev. C. W. Fraker, with interment in the Fitzwater cemetery.

cessity. I presume each of you mayors here tonight faces a somewhat similar problem. The mayor is frequently measured by the success or failure of his departmental operations. Mayors are human and they may make errors in appointments, but if they find they have made such error it is the course of true policy to take immediate steps for correction."

Mayor Jackson also spoke of Baltimore's plans for meeting the unemployment situation in the coming winter.

Judge Doub, in a few words, said he hoped that Mayor Jackson would not only carry back to Baltimore with him the thoughts of the beauties of nature in Garrett county, but also a knowledge of the high character of the men with whom he had come in contact. Judge Doub stated that there was less criminal business in Garrett county than in any other county in the State, and fewer divorces.

Mayor Koon, Cumberland, expressed his delight at being present and brought greetings from Cumberland. Mr. Offutt assured the visiting guests a warm welcome in Oakland whenever they visited here and cited the use of the automobile and airplane in breaking down county and state boundary lines, leading to the necessity of continued good will such as was manifest at the meeting.

Town officials present included:

Friendsville — Norval Speelman, mayor; Arnold E. Fox, president of council; August F. Neil, Henry Shevel, Ford C. McCullough and L. J. Lytle.

Grantsville—A. C. Stanton, mayor; J. W. Folk, president of council; N. U. Broadwater, Daniel Klotz, H. C. Edwards and Enos L. Fulk, clerk.

Accident—A. J. Richter, mayor; John Hetrick, R. H. Alexander and E. H. Ault, clerk.

Kitzmiller—H. C. McDonald, mayor; K. Paugh, M. Finch, Roy Sowers, George Pool, Bert Pew, W. F. Schwinabart.

Loch Lynn—C. E. Hardesty, mayor; E. C. Hutchinson, H. Z. Gibson, H. V. Leighton and B. W. Harvey.

Crellin was represented by Stanley Ashby, Charles W. Ream and Lester Yutzy. Other guests besides the speakers of the evening included H. R. Laughlin, superintendent of the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and Carl Cooling, manufacturer, of Baltimore.

Oakland was officially represented by Grover C. Stemple, mayor; Ralph T. Thayer, president of Council; C. H. Browning, H. P. Stuck, George Kerins and R. Carlton McComas.

The Test That Failed

Our modern system of education got a severe jolt recently in New Jersey. Teachers were needed in the Irvington school. The superintendent prepared an examination in the elementary subjects to be taught in the schools, including arithmetic and spelling, and 116 persons applied for the position, but all flunked the examinations. Their friends criticized the examinations as being too difficult and out of date. The Commissioner of Education of the State of New Jersey upheld this view, and in a feeble attempt to justify would-be teachers and the schools under the State Superintendent raised the matter from a local incident to a subject of general discussion. As a result the 10 arithmetic problems on which criticism was mainly directed were published. Nothing was required for the solution of the problems but a little simple reckoning and straight thinking. Fifty years ago the problems would have been answered promptly and correctly by a majority of the 14-year-old pupils of the little red schoolhouses of the country. It is not material whether the problems are not likely to come up in present-day affairs. The real important thing is whether our schools are teaching pupils to compute figures correctly, and to reason accurately. The modern schools which fail in this test do not justify the enormous increase in their cost.

NEW GERMANY

Death of Mrs. Mary Susan Stratton

Many, indeed, are the expressions of sincere sympathy expressed in this community at the death of Mrs. Mary Susan Stratton, which occurred at her late home at New Castle, Pa., last Saturday. Funeral services were conducted from the First Methodist church, of that city, Monday at two o'clock.

Mrs. Stratton was known and beloved by a very large circle of friends here and in Oakland. She was the treasurer of the Summer School of Missions and president of the Thompson Rest Home.

Mrs. Stratton was the widow of the late Rev. J. L. Stratton, a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, who served a number of important charges throughout his conference. She was selected as lay delegate to the General Conference of the M. E. church, in Baltimore; she served 27 years as conference secretary in the Erie,(Pa.,) Conference; she was prominent in all civic and religious work in the various communities in which her late husband served as pastor, devoting her whole life to the work to which she was consecrated in early youth.

Her life was a benediction. She believed in her church, in its objects, and gave her life to its service.

Mrs. Stratton is survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. M. Reed, of Butler, Pa.; Mrs. O. H. Koontz, of Morgantown, W. Va.; one brother, Harry F. McFall, of Pittsburgh; and by two step sons, Prof. R. V. Stratton, of Port Huron, Mich., and Mr. W. A. Stratton, of Yakima, Washington.

Mrs. Stratton will be sorely missed in all the activities of the church in which she was engaged, and particularly by her associates in the Summer School of Missions.

Plow Turns Up Medal Given West Virginia War Hero.

Many years ago, George W. Goff lost a medal awarded him by the State of West Virginia when he was a member of Company O, Sixth Regiment Infantry Volunteers, during the Civil War.

Now, L. S. Lyon, Clarksburg, is seeking Goff, if he is still alive, or his relatives, so that the medal may be returned.

The medal, a large bronze medallion, was found by William Smith, while plowing in a field on his farm near Hoyes, Md. Smith gave it to Delbert Davis, cashier First National Bank and American Legion member, who in turn sent it to Lyon with the understanding than an effort would be made to return it to Goff or his family.

Oakland High School Activities Get Under Way

Four hundred and twenty-one boys and girls have, up to the present, enrolled in Oakland High school. Seventy six of this number are in their senior year.

Among the members of the faculty are several new ones, namely: Miss Lucy Trickett, Miss Edmee Smith, Miss Katherene Schnebly, Miss Margaret Stoffle, Miss Margaret Hamilton, Mr. J. O. Thayer and Mr. E. C. Willis. With only three teachers missing from the old roll call we have a faculty composed of eighteen teachers.

On Monday afternoon the boys of the school met in the auditorium for the purpose of electing officers for the Boys' Athletic Association. Those filling offices are Edward Maroney, president; Arthur Lawton, vice president; James Nordeck, secretary; and Edwin Michael, treasurer. Four assistant treasurers were elected, two being representatives of Juniors and Seniors and two of Freshmen and Sophomores.

Although no steps have as yet been taken to reorganize the Girls' Athletis Association, promise is made for a meeting in the near future.

On Wednesday afternoon try-outs were made for entrance into Glee Club. This organization probably will be the largest of its kind ever had in Oakland High school.

Two home-rooms have been organized. They are the Commercial room and Miss Rice's senior group.

The Home Economics classes have an interesting exhibit at the county Fair.

The Home Economics classes have moved into their new class rooms in the Maffett building. The Vocational Agriculture boys occupy the upper floor while the girls carry on problems of the home in the lower rooms.

Physical education is offered to both girls and boys this year. Many students are taking this most necessary part of school work. Messrs Speicher and Thayer will have charge of the boys and Misses Engle and Schnebly will have charge of the girls. The girls of this department are at the present time practicing field ball.

The Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Kochenderfer, will meet soon to elect officers to fill those vacancies left by the Seniors of last year.

The body was found Saturday morning about five o'clock by Joseph Seibert, a neighbor, who upon passing by the shack on his way to a pasture field for his cows, noticed the door of the place standing open and went to investigate. He found the man's body lying on the floor behind a stove, face downward, with a .38-calibre bullet wound in the back of his head. On top of the body was a poker which had evidently been used by the murderer in beating his victim over the head, as an examination disclosed the fact that a scalp wound and a cut above his eyes had been inflicted with the instrument, officers said.

Details of Crime.

The Bittinger youth, according to his confession, obtained Wertz's revolver from behind the counter and deliberately shot his victim, without warning, according to the confession made by him to the officers. He fell to the floor back of the stove as the body was discovered by Mr. Seibert. The bullet, fired at close range, struck Wertz in the back of the head near the base of the brain and death was apparently instantaneous.

Bittinger's arrest occurred Saturday afternoon at the home of his brother, James Bittinger, on Bear Hill, with whom he made his home.

Sheriff Haenftling said that the murdered man's pocketbook, containing five one dollar bills, was found on the youth. The revolver was found Monday in a bookcase at the Bittinger home. Officers said that in all the slayer obtained about $44 at the roadhouse, $40 of the amount having been withdrawn from a bank along the highway Friday morning by Wertz.

Spending of Money Leads to Arrest

The spending of the money obtained at the roadhouse by Bittinger lead indirectly to his arrest. The youth purchased a pair of high-top shoes, some socks, neckties and overalls at Kesner's store at Jennings and at Rush's store, between Jennings and Grantsville. He also gave $5 to a girl residing near his brother's home and gave the girl's mother ten cents for a cucumber. The free spending of this money by the youth who never before had any money, aroused suspicion in the minds of the people who knew him and information was given the officers which served as a clue to his ultimate apprehension.

Bittinger was released three weeks ago from the Garrett County Jail under $200 bond, pending action of the present grand jury on a charge of stealing and destroying a pair of eye-glasses, the property of the late Donald Simpson. On this charge Bittinger has been indicted and State's Attorney Dawson has indicated that he would ask the grand jury to indict Bittinger for murder.

Wertz had no immediate relatives except a half-brother, who resides in Meyersdale, Pa., where he was buried Monday afternoon.

MANY ATTEND RAM SHOW AND SALE ON SATURDAY

Twenty Purebreds Are Sold to Farmers of This Vicinity

Twenty rams were sold at the Oakland Purebred Ram Show and sale held last Saturday in Oakland, at which a large number of interested sheepmen and farmers attended.

"The purchasers were fortunate in securing such a fine lot of rams," said John H. Carter, County Agent, "and every breeder got an excellent buy for his money."

The show was in charge of K. A. Clarke, of the University of Maryland. Approximately 150 attended the exhibit in the morning. In the afternoon the twenty rams were sold at an average price of $17.95, the highest price, $46.00, being paid for a product of the Stone House Farm, by John A. Blamble, of District No. 8.

Others who made purchases were: Earl K. Harvey, Swanton, Hampshire, $31; E. H. Wolfe, Oakland, Hampshire, $18; C. E. Shillingburg, Steyer, Hampshire, $15; Walter Bartholomew, Selbysport, Hampshire, $22; J. A. Fitzwater, Swanton, Hampshire, $20; George Sebold, Hoyes, Shropshire, $10.50; Isaac Wildesen, Gormania, Shropshire, $16; T. O. White, Oakland, Shropshire, $14; A. R. Martin, Oakland, Shropshire, $20; C. L. Wilkins, Mt. Lake Park, Shropshire, $12.50; Nelson Brenneman, McHenry, Hampshire, $22.75; H. F. Nine, Gormania, Hampshire, $18; E. A. Bernard, Bloomington, Hampshire, $23; Daniel O. Harvey, Kitzmiller, Hampshire, $20; A. H. Beckman, Swanton, Hampshire, $16; A. H. Reckner, Accident, Hampshire, $7.50; A. R. Martin, Oakland, Shropshire, $8; Carl W. Trickett, Oakland, Shropshire, $9; S. J. Lichty, Oakland, Shropshire, $8.25.

ALL CHILDREN SHOULD BE PROTECTED FROM DISEASE

Can be Immunized Against Diphtheria by Toxin-Antitoxin

Parents are urged by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, to have their children immunized—that is, protected against diphtheria by their family physician, or if they cannot reach their own doctor, by the county health officer. In immunizing the children, three inoculations of toxin-antitoxin, or two of toxoid, according to the age of the child, are used to safeguard them against the disease.

"Now that the schools have opened," Dr. Riley said, "and children are mingling together again in large numbers, we can expect the usual flare-up of the so-called children's diseases among them, diphtheria. But this is one of the diseases that can be avoided because the children can be protected against it, through inoculation with toxin-antitoxin or with toxoid, according to the age of the child.

"Accordingly, we are urging parents whose children have not already been immunized, to take them to their family doctor, or, if they cannot reach their own doctor, to apply to the county health officer for the treatments that will safeguard the children from this dread disease.

"During the last five years, 7,251 of our Maryland children—4,354 in Baltimore City and 2,897 in the counties, have had this totally unnecessary disease, and among them there have been 450 deaths, 268 in Baltimore City and 182 in the counties. Immunization clinics have been held in Baltimore City and throughout the counties for several seasons, and the results in those sections in which the fight has been carried on intensively, have been reflected in a smaller number of cases and in fewer deaths.

The State Department of Health has supply stations scattered throughout the counties at which the toxin-antitox and toxoid used in protecting children against the disease may be obtained by physicians and health officers.

"You can realize what can be accomplished by immunization against a disease by recalling the way smallpox has been brought under control, here in Maryland, by vaccination. We can stamp out diphtheria in the same way if parents will have their children protected against the disease and will join with the doctors, the State, city and county departments of health in the fight against it."

In the community house are four attractive booths, two of them representing the Friendsville community and the Pleasant Valley grange. The Oakland Civic club has the third booth and the fourth one is occupied by the Maryland Christian Science Committee on Fairs, of Baltimore. Four members of that association, Mrs. John McArdle, Mrs. John Wiebel, Mrs. Frank A. Stein and Mrs. Betty K. Dyche, all of Cumberland, are distributing the nationally known newspaper, The Christian Science Monitor, with their objest the promotion of clean journalism. Mrs. McArdle is in charge of the distribution booth.

Entertainment throughout the four days is being furnished by Weaver's Park Attractions of Pittsburgh, and include a Merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, chair plane and a number of concessions.

An airplane will be on the grounds until Friday evening and parachute jumps will be made daily, according to Mr. Speicher. A number of Oakland business houses have been closing during certain hours in order that their employes may attend the Fair.

Viola Keenan and John Keenan, her husband, John Edgar Male, and Charles Clark Male and Edna Male, his wife, Plaintiffs,
vs.
Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Solomon Taylor Male and Ilda Male, his wife, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman and Gibson Coleman, her husband, Lena V. McRobie and Guy McRobie, her husband, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, Defendants.

No. 3030 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by John R. Male, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The bill states:

That John R. Male, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, was in his life time and at the time of his death seized and possessed of certain real esate situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1—All of that parcel of land known and designated as Lot No. 5 on the plat of a tract of land conveyed by H. G. Davis to John W. Garrett, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 20, folio 351, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Mary E. Garrett, et al., trustees, dated May 25, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, said parcel containing 49 acres and 13 perches.

2—All that part of Military Lot No. 4041, containing the quantity of 20 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Charles A. Lish and wife dated April 30, 1921, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 80, folio 93, one of said Land Records.

That a duly certified copy of the first above mentioned deed, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, is herewith filed as "Complainants' Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill of complaint; that while so seized and possessed of said land, the said John R. Male departed this life at his home in Garrett County, on the twelfth day of January, 1931, and by his last will and testament, a certified copy of which is herewith filed, marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 2," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill, devised the last mentioned parcel of land, contalning 20 acres, and one acre of the first mentioned parcel to Albert N. Male, and all of the remaining property, both real and personal, to his wife, Sarah E. Male, to have and to hold during her natural life and at her death to be divided equally among his children, Viola S. Keenan, a daughter, who intermarried with John Keenan; William H. Male, a son, now deceasd; Thomas I. Male, a son, who intermarried with Sallie Male; Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Albert N. Male and John Edgar Male, single sons; Solomon Taylor Male, a son, who intermarried with Ilda Male; Harry Fenton Male, a son, now deceased; Arizona Coleman, a daughter, who intermarried with Gibson Coleman; and a grand-daughter, Lena V. McRobie, who intermarried with Guy McRobie, all of the survivors being of full age; that the said Sarah E. Male preceded her husband in death, having departed this life on the second day of January, 1931; that the said William H. Male departed this life, intestate, on or about the 27th day of December, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and only heir at law, a son, Charles Clark Male, who has intermarried with Edna Male and is of full age; that the said Harry Fenton Male departed this life intestate, in or about the month of June, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and heirs at law, the following children, all of whom are infants, to-wit: Mervin Male, a son; Evelyn Male, a daughter; Mary Male, a daughter, and Charley Male a son; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein; that it would be to the advantage of all the parties to this cause that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds derived therefrom divided among the parties to this cause according to their respective rights and interests; that the plaintiffs, Viola Keenan, John Keenan and John Edgar Male are residents of Garrett County, and Charles Clark Male and Edna Male, residents of Allegany County, and the defendants, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman, Gibson Coleman, Solomon Taylor Male, Ilda Male, Lena McRobie and Guy McRobie, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, are all residents of Garrett County, and the deendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male, Sallie Male and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, reside in the State of West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against resident defendants, and the order of publication against non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 26th day of August, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of September, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, and residing in the State of West Virginia, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 12th day of October, 1931, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

CHAPTER LV

The final decision that the First American army would undertake the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient as its first operation was transmitted to army headquarters August 10 nnd the army staff immediately began the development of plans for the concentration of the necessnry troops for its execution.

It was certain the psychological effect on the enemy of our success in this first operation by the American army as well as on the allies, our own troops and our people at home would be of great importance. The attack must, therefore, not only succeed, bnt a serious hostile reaction must be made impossible.

The headquarters of the First army were removed to Neufchateau between August 11 and 16. The special army troops assembled north of Chateau Thierry were moved eastward during the same period.

Composition of First Army.

The following corps and divisions were placed at the disposal of the First army for the St. Mihiel operation and their condition may be summarized as follows:

The First and Second divisions were excellent as to training, equipment and morale. They had attacked July 18 in the Soissons drive.

The Third, Fourth, Twenty-sixth and Forty-second divisions were of fine morale and considerable experience, ns they had fought in the defense about Chateau Thierry and in the advance toward the Vesle river.

Serving a Field Gun.

The Eighty-ninth and Ninetieth divisions were going through their sector training on the front between Toul and the Moselle river and the Fifth and Thirty-fifth divisions were taking their sector training in the Vosges.

The Thirty-third, Seventy-eighth, Eightieth and Eighty-second divisions had been training behind the British front, one brigade of the Thirty-third having had front-line service with the British, and the Ninety-first division had never been in the front line and had received less than four weeks' training in France.

Misleading the Germans.

The considerable circulation of troops in the St. Mihiel area naturally attracted the attention of the people and of the officers and soldiers. Although cautioned against such discussion, the probability of an American attack on the salient was discussed here and there.

To divert the enemy's attention from our real objective it was necessary first to create some nncertainty in the minds of our own troops. The rumor was therefore started around headquarters that our first offensive might be in the direction of Mnlhouse, in the Rhine valley, beyond the Vosges mountains, northeast of Belfort.

It was also decided to make a diversion in that direction, and as a preliminary step an officer was sent to lease buildings in Belfort. At the same time confidential instructions were sent Major-General Bundy, commanding the Sixth corps, to proceed to Belfort with a limited staff and prepare detailed plans for an offensive with the object of seizing Mulhouse and the heights to the southeast and eventually establishing our line along the Rhine.

In the letter of instructions seven divisions were mentioned as having been designated for the attack, and three officers from each of these units were detailed to report to General Bundy to nssist in the reconnaissance. He was directed to expedite the work of preparation, as the movement would probably begin September 8, under my personal command.

An attack by the French Tenth army, begun August 20, 1918, was undertaken to force the retirement of the enemy from the Vesle and Aisne rivers. On its relief from the Vesle August 7 the Thirty-second division (Iiaan) was assigned to the Tenth army and entered the line August 28, immediately undertaking a series of local operations in which gains were made in the face of very heavy fire. Ravines and numerous caves in the region provided ideal cover for the defending troops.

The general attack of the army the following day met but slight success, the enemy resisting desperately along his entire front, hut on the 30th, by a flank attack from the south, the Thirty-second division captured Jnvigny, pushing a small salient into the German lines.

Hard fighting continued August 31, hut by the end of the day the Thirty-second had reached the important Soissons-St. Quentin road, where it was relieved September 2. The Thirty-second division had advnnced nearly three miles and its success contributed greatly to the forced withdrawal of the German line to the Aisne river.

Pershing Takes Over Sector.

An prearranged between General Petain and myself, the sector from Port-sur-Seille (east of the Moselle river) to Watronville (north of Les Esparges), forty-two miles in extent, then occupied by the entire French Eighth army and a part of the French Second army, was transferred to my command on August 30.

The front included the St. Mihiel salient, which was between these points, and embraced the permanent fortresses around Toul. We had three divisions in line on the south face of the sector, bnt the mass of our battle troops wonld not take over the trenches until the night before the attack.

Foch Springs Surprise.

August 30, the day I assumed command of the sector, Marshal Foch, nccompanied by General Weygand, his chief of staff, came to my residence at Ligny-en-Barrois and after the usual cordial exchange of greetings presented an entirely new plan for the use of the American army.

The marshal began by saying that the German armies were in more or less disorder from recent attacks by the allies and that we must not allow them to reorganize, and that the British wonld continue their attack in the direction of Cambrai and St. Quentin and the French toward Mesnil.

Then, much to my surprise, he proposed that the objectives in the St. Mihiel operation be restricted and the attack made on the southern face only, and that npon its completion two other operations be undertaken by combined American and French, a number of our divisions going under French command.

Pershing Insists on U. S. Army.

I repeated what I had often said, that the American government and people expected the army to act as a unit and not be dispersed in this way. I pointed out that each time we were about to complete the organization of our army, some proposition like this was presented to prevent it.

The discussion was somewhat heated nnd much of it was carried on so rapidly that it could not be translated. He continued to reiterate his demands for the adoption of his plan, but I had learned that it was necessary to be very firm in dealing with him, and I finally said, in effect:

"Marshal Foch, you have no authority as allied commander in chief to call upon me to yield np my command of the American army to have it scattered among the allied forces, where it will not be an American army at all."

He was apparently surprised at my resentment of his attempt to confine American effort to subordinate roles, and said, "I must insist upon the arrangement," to which I replied, as we both rose:

"You may insist all you please, but I decline absolutely to agree to your plan. While onr army will fight wherever you may decide, it will not fight except as an independent American army."

He said he was disposed to do what he could toward forming an American army. He then picked up his maps and papers and left, very pale and apparently exhausted, saying at the door as he handed me the memorandum of his proposal that he thought that after careful study I should arrive at the same conclusion he had.

Agreement Is Reached.

My chief of staff, General McAndrew, and chief of operations, Fox Conner, were sent to confer with Weygand September 1 and returned to Ligny-en-Barrois with word that Marshal Foch desired to see General Petain and me the following day. Motoring to Petain's headquarters with Boyd and De Marcenches, we found McAndrew and Conner had preceded us and after lunch we went to Bombon.

Opening the conference Foch referred to the note he had handed me August 30 and to my reply and asked my observations. Stating my attitude on the desirability of carrying ont vigorous offensives to the fullest possible extent, I explained that if it should be deemed necessary to abandon the St. Mihiel project in order to begin the larger offensive, which was understood to be west of the Meuse, I would abide by his decision.

In the ensuing discussion, while there was considerable sparring, it was agreed the American army should operate as a unit under its own commander on the Meuse-Argonne front.

Marshal Foch concluded that the date for the operation should be postponed so we could first carry ont the limited attack at St. Mihiel. We finally reached the definite understanding that after St. Mihiel our First army should prepare to begin this second offensive not later than September 25.

CHAPTER LVI.

"The First army attacked yesterday and the reduction of the St. Mihiel salieat is complete," reads my diary of September 13, written at Ligny-en-Barrois.

"Our troops behaved splendidly. The secretary of war visited two corps headquarters; returned to Ligny much delighted at our success.

"Petain and I went to the town of St. Mihiel today and were warmly greeted by the people. This is my birthday and a very happy one."

The attack of the infantry on the southern face of the St. Mihiel salient started at five in the morning and before that I went with several staff officers to old Fort Gironville, situated on a commanding height overlooking the battlefield from the south. The secondary attack on the west was launched at 8 a. m. as an element of surprise for artillery preparation there.

Weather Gives Advantage.

A drizzling rain and mist prevented us from getting a clear view, but the progress of our troops could be followed by the barrage which preceded them. Notwithstanding a heavy rainfall the night of September 11-12, the weather gave us an advantage, as the mist partly screened our advance from the enemy.

Overcome Entanglements.

Thanks to the thorough preparation beforehand, the wire entanglements were more easily overcome than we had expected.

Trained teams of pioneers and engineers, with bangalore torpedoes, wire cutters and axes, assisted in opening gaps in the masses of barbed wire covering the German positions. The leading troops themselves carried along rolls of chicken wire, which was thrown across entanglements here and there, forming a kind of bridge for the infantry.

In all their offensives the allies had spent days destroying entanglements with artillery fire or had nsed a large number of heavy tanks, bnt we had only a few light tanks, ineffective for such work. The fact that we had smothered the enemy artillery was an advantage, as it enabled the leading waves deliberately to do their work without serious loss.

The quick passage through these entanglements by our troops excited no little surprise among the French, who sent a large number of officers and noncommissioned officers to St. Mihiel several days later to see how it had been done. One of these officers, after his reconnaissance, remarked in all seriousness that the Americans had the advantage over Frenchmen because of their long legs and large feet.

that but which was overlooked by the grand jury in June.

As you know, now the terms of this court are changed and hereafter the jury terms of this court will meet upon the second Monday of September and the third Monday of March, instead of meeting in December and June as heretofore. The court has felt for some time, as well as the bar and the clerk and other court officers, that it would be advisable to make this change because of the inclemency of the weather which we usually encounter in the month of December. Although the change was suggested some time ago, I believe there was some objection to it because it might inconvenience some farmers. I do not know what inconvenience it would be to a farmer to attend the grand jury for a few days out of the year, or rather out of every three or four years, and I want now to say that any citizen of Garrett county who is not willing to give to the administration of justice in a republic like ours, where the people must maintain the law if it is to be maintained at all, is not worthy of his rights as a citizen. We cannot maintain the law unless the people assist in its administration. The courts cannot prevent crime. The only thing the courts can do is to punish crime and try to make it so horrible and the punishment so severe that it will be a warning to others not to commit crime; but the maintenance of law depends primarily—though not always entirely—upon the people of the community.

As I came over the hills and mountains of Garrett county this morning from Savage Mountain through Grantsville and Accident and McHenry, I could not help but believe and to say that Garrett county is a land of milk and honey; a most beautiful county, in fact almost the most beautiful in our State. And yet, when I thought that its peace and happiness was marred on Friday night by a foul and unnatural murder, right upon the main highway, I wondered whether all of us are doing all that we can to assist in maintaining law and good order.

As I have said, if the laws are not maintained and enforced, it is not so much the fault of the court as it is the fault of the people. Every citizen, for the protection of himself, his family and his neighbor, has a duty in so far as in him lies, to see that the laws and all the laws, are maintained, and especially to see that he himself does not violate the law. And then again I wondered whether perhaps our full duty was being done to the children of our county and whether they were being taught as they ought to be, the sanctity of the law, and when I say the sanctity of the law I mean that the law is sacred and should always be preserved by every citizen. I wondered also whether our schools, for which we pay out such a large amount of money in taxes, are doing their full duty in teaching the children to respect and honor and obey the law.

I know that in this republic of ours the state and the church must be kept forever separate, yet I do not understand why the Ten Commandments handed down by Moses could not be taught and stressed in the public schools, for which we pay our taxes. It would not do to say that that is introducing religion into the public schools, because there is no one of the Ten Commandments that is not either directly or indirectly incorporated into the statutes and the laws of our State. Thou shalt not kill; thou shalt not steal; thou shalt not commit adultery; honor the Sabbath Day—are not all these parts of the laws of this State? Honor thy father and thy mother. I know of no statute about that, but I know of a statute that provides that the son or the daughter who fails to support his or her father and mother when in need shall be subject to punishment by the State. Could there be any stronger endorsement of that Commandment?

So if I say the Ten Commandments are incorporated in the laws of the State and of our country, they ought to be incorporated in the teachings in our schools, and nobody, I care not who he is or what his religious beliefs may be, could have any right to object to that.

Remember the Sabbath Day—we have a law for that. When we say that we do not mean to interpret the law in the public schools to the extent that people should be prevented from every form of work on the Sabbath Day indiscriminately, but that the fundamental meanings which are a part of the law, ought to be taught in the public schools of the land, because if the Ten Commendments become a part and parcel of the convictions of the growing boys and girls of our country, then they must be the convictions of the men and women of the future, into whose hands we of this day must in time surrender the guidance and government of the future generations, because then a boy or girl becomes impressed and imbued with the conviction that moral principles must be maintained. If they are trained and instructed in that way of thinking in their early life, it will become a part of their very being, and they will die rather than violate them in their later years. So I am just wondering whether we are doing our full duty toward our growing boys and girls.

I am informed that on last Friday an assassin took the life of a harmless, innocent man for money. As much as has been said about the financial depression we are passing through, I cannot believe there is anyone in this county whose needs are so imperative that he must resort to crime for relief. He does not need to commit murder; he does not need to steal because he is hungry. There are too many good people in Garertt county who have been placed by Providence, in spite of the misfortunes of recent years, in a position where they can extend a helping hand to the needy, and I know that they will do that when called upon and they will do that without the help of the State or of the nation.

The people of Garrett county know that the government has no money except the money it has collected from the people in the form of taxes, and therefore whatever it may distribute as a dole or as charity is money that comes out of their pockets, and I think the people of Garrett county and of this State would rather make that distribution themselves than hand it over to a governmnt agency for distribution.

The laws must be sustained, but I want to say that in spite of the wave of crime that seems to have swept over some parts of the country there seems to be now less crime in Garrett county than there ever has been in its history—and by that, of course, I mean crime of any real magnitude or importance, I am very much gratified to say. However, I just want to caution you that when witnesses come before you it will be your duty to decide all cases upon the evidence before you. You are not judges; you are not law-makers. You are a grand jury and you must accept the laws as they have been made and as they are read to you by the State's Attorney. If you find that any one of these laws have been violated, whether they relate to intoxicating liquor, whether they relate to motor vehicles, or whatever it may be—if you find that the laws have been violated it will be your duty under proper evidence to return an indictment.

There will not be many cases before you, and I will not add anything further to what I have said except to say to you that there are certain statutes which the Court is required to call especially to your attention. For instance: The statute regarding the carrying of concealed weapons. If you find any cases of that kind if the evidence produced before you is such as to cause you to believe that offenses of this kind have been committed, it will be your duty to find an indictment, because experience has taught us that the crime of homicide and other similar crimes of violence are not the consequence of a deliberate desire or intention to commit homicide or to inflict serious injury, but that they usually result from a state of excitment and anger and passion arising at the moment. Under such conditions it is with the deadly weapon at hand that crimes of violence occoure. Therefore we think that the statute against carrying of dangerous and deadly weapons is one that should be called to the special attention of the grand jury.

We have also a law against the sale and possession of narcotic or habit-forming drugs. This is a very important statute, aimed at the destruction of a traffic the evil results of which it is scarcely necessary for me to point out, and because of the evil results of which a murder was committed in this county within the past year.

The statute touching the crime of abortion is another that the law has seen fit to have specially called to your attention. This is a crime which, of course, is always committed in secret and it is difficult to obtain proof sufficient to lead to the punishment of the perpetrators, but if any such offenses are brought to your attention it will be your duty to bring indictments against the violators of this law.

The mine laws of this State, as you know, are enacted for the safety of those who are employed in and about the mining of coal and other minerals, and it will be your duty to make full investigations to see that all laws pertaining to the safe operation of the mines of the county are carefully observed. The State Mine Inspector will appear before you and I want you to inquire diligently in order to see that all such laws are obeyed.

These are not the times for men in public office to spend any more money than is absolutely necessary. I do not ask you to be negligent in your work; I do not ask you to be so expeditious that you cannot discharge your duties fully and properly, but I do ask that you be as prompt in the discharge of your duties as possible, compatible with a full discharge of the obligation of your oaths, and I am sure that you will make a record for Garrett county for the expedition with which you perform your duties as grand jurors.

LAWNS WERE SERIOUSLY DAMAGED DURING SUMMER

September Is Best Month To Start New Lawns

Seldom have lawns in this section fared worse than during the summer just past, reports T. D. Gray, extension landscape specialist of the West Virginia University. Damage was due to a number of causes, he says. First, the spring was ideal for growth with plenty of moisture. This was followed by an intensely hot dry spell in July which literally burned the grass out. Trouble was noted first in small patches and these spread until, in many instances, the whole lawn was affected.

Coupled with unfavorable weather lawns were injured by web, cut and army worms. The web worm was most destructive and usually worked in small areas, however, instances were seen of whole lawns being affected. Fortunately, the web worm is seldom destructive, and the chances are that it will be many years before it is seen in destructive quantities again, he believes.

Where lawns were injured by the drought, worms or other causes, they should be reseeded at once, is Mr. Gray's advice. September is the best month of the year to reseed old lawns or seed new lawns. The hot weather of the summer is past, fall rains are coming on, weeds are not so bothersome, and grass stools better than in the spring.

Pays To Use Good Seed

The best seed mixture for lawns in the greatest part of the area affected, according to Mr. Gray, is one made of Kentucky bluegrass 70 per cent, red top, 25 per cent, and white Dutch clover 5 per cent. All proportions are by weight. Only extra recleaned seed from rcliable sources should be used. It is folly to ruin a lawn at the start by sowing a lot of noxious weed seeds says Mr. Gray.

The lawn should be fertilized with a liberal application of complete fertilizer. A good mixture can be made by mixing 5 pounds of 4-12-4 and 5 pounds of ammonium sulphate. This should be applied at the rate of 10 pounds to 1,000 square feet just before a rain unless water is available to soak the lawn thoroughly after applying. Burning will result if the fertilizer is not thoroughly dissolved by rain or sprinkling.

DEER PARK

Woodmen Circle Meets

June Grove Circle, No. 38, met on Thursday, September 10. After the business session a social hour was enjoyed. The hostesses served refreshments. The entertainment committee will prepare a program for Columbus Day for the next meeting on October 8.

Some of the members of the local organization are preparing gifts for the children at the Woodmen Circle Home at Sherman, Texas, for Christmas.

Those who attended the Sunday School convention at Accident from this place on Friday included Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Sollars, Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, Lee Rodeheaver, Mrs. Vermilyer, Misses Alice Campbell, Helen Vermilyer and Pleasant Reis.

The Chistian Endeavor society of the M. E. church of Deer Park was under the leadership of L. H. Rodeheaver at its meeting on Sunday.

On Thursday evening a group of young people met at the M. E. church for choir practice.

The hymn rendered at the morning service on Sunday by the young people, "Why I Choose Jesus," was creditable and was enjoyed by those who heard it. It is hoped that the same young people will be able to render the selection chosen for the next service in a like manner.

Miss Mary Sollars has entered the State Normal at Frostburg as a student.

Miss Mary Jankey has returned to New Germany, where she will take up her position as teacher in the public school at that place which she so acceptably filled last year.

Mrs. W. A. Bowen and two sons, of Higginsville, W. Va., visited at the home of F. N. Reis on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fike Rodeheaver and children, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mr. Paul Calderwood, of Tacoma, Md., visited home folk over the Labor Day vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyche Grayson, of Cumberland, Md., visited home folks here over the week-end.

Miss Mary Sollars and George O. Comp spent Saturday evening visiting Miss Pleasant Reis.

FIREMEN TO HAVE CHARGE OF HALLOWE'EN JUBILEE

Fourth Annual Celebration Is Being Planned—Committee Is Named and Work Started

PLAN MAMMOTH PARADE

That the annual Hallowe'en celebration this year would be held under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, was announced following a meeting of that organization.

Emroy Bolden, Archibald Shaw and Paul McIntire were appointed as members of the executive committee.

Mammoth Mummers' Parade

The big feature of the celebration will be the mammoth mummers' parade about 7 o'clock in the evening, the same as in previous years. There will be a number of prizes offered to different organizations and individuals. Last year approximately 50 prizes were offered and the parade was one of the longest in the history of Oakland.

Second street will be roped off as usual for the street carnival and there will be a number of concessions and amusements along the thoroughfare. A dance is being planned and will be held in Fraley's hall, and $50 in gold will be awarded on that evening.

This is the fourth annual celebration on Hallowe'en and attracts a large number of people to Oakland. The celebration was started three years ago by the Knights of Pythias lodge. Two years ago it was turned over to the Fire Department, and last year the Boys' Band organization was included, making it under joint auspices. This year it returns to the Fire company.

That there was a possibility of having a Merry-go-round on the corner of Second and Liberty streets, was also announced. It is understood that the amusements belonging to Weaver's Park Attractions, are being stored here for the winter, and it was stated that the Merry-go-round could be erected, without injury to the streets, in two or three hours.

Work Will Begin Soon on Cheat River Bridge

Work has been started by a corps of civil engineers from the W. Va. State Roads Commission's headquarters in Charleston on a survey for road relocation and a new bridge spanning Cheat river on Federal Route 50, about 300 feet west of the historic covered bridge near Rowlesburg, a relic of Civil War days known as the Cheat Bridge. The old structure has been condemned.

D. C. Gall, in charge of the engineers, says the survey is being made under rush orders and the new bridge may be built immediately.

This will be one of the biggest bridge structural jobs on the State Roads Commission's program, as the river is unusually wide at this point.

To Represent F. F. A. of Maryland in Speaking Contest

Elbert Buckel, a graduate of the Accident High school, class of 1931, who won first place in the State-wide public speaking contest of the Future Farmers of America, held at College Park last term, left Wednesday morning for Springfield, Mass., where he will represent the State of Maryland in the Regional F. F. A. Speaking contest.

The New England and Middle Atlantic states will have representative speakers. Mr. Buckel will speak in Springfield Friday morning.

Arrested On Suspicion

Charged with obtaining money from Oakland stores via the "short change" route, two men were held for questioning here Saturday by authorities, but upon furnishing an alibi as to their whereabouts the week prior to their arrest, they were released.

During the past two weeks store clerks were asked by two men resembling those arrested to change bills of different denominations in such a manner that at the conclusion of the transaction they were either $5 or $10 short.

The Oakland Civic Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, September 29, at 3:00 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. C. Milton Sincell. Members are urged to be present.

Miner Who Was Attacked Is Showing Improvement

William A. Bell, 50, miner of near Crellin, who was attacked near the boiler room of the Stanley Mines, last Tuesday morning and felled by a blow on the head, is improving at his home, according to latest reports. Bell's skull was believed to have been fractured at the base.

Coy Dalton, a youth, who is accused of attacking the man, is still being held in the Preston county jail at Kingwood, W. Va. The attack having been made in West Virginia.

Officers who investigated the attack learned that Dalton threatened Bell, and on several occasions had gone to Bell's home, tapped on the doors or windows and invited him to come out.

Yard-Garden Contest Winners to be Named at Public Meeting

Winners in the second annual Yard and Garden contest are to be announced at a public meeting, to be held in the near future, Mrs. Harold H. Harned, contest chairman, has announced. Prizes will also be awarded at this time, it was stated.

Members of the Oakland Civic club, under whose auspices the contest has been conducted, are planning the program for the meeting and the exact date and place will be announced next week.

The survey of the yards and gardens of those entered in the contest has been completed by the judges and the winners have been named. They will not be announced, however, until the public meeting.

O. H. S. NEWS

The girls' athletic association announces the election of the following officers; President, Margaret Stanton; vice- president, Evelyn Dixon; secretary, Alice Butt; treasurer, Edith Smith.

Soccer practice started Monday afternoon. Forty boys reported on the field to try out for the team. Members of last year's squad number about fifteen.

No games are scheduled for this week due to the changing of the schedule. The new schedule divides the school into two divisions. O. H. S. is grouped with Kitzmiller and Kempton. The winning team from this group plays the winners of games between Friendsville, Accident and Grantsville. This complete schedule will be given in next week's school news.

The girls' field ball team has been playing practice games on the vacant lot by the Teets Garage.

The seniors of the school will entertain the freshmen in the near future.

Fifty-five boys are enrolled in the vocational course. Today five of this number and their instructor will motor to Frederick where they will compete in judging dairy cattle, corn, and demonstration work. Representatives of O. H. S. are: George Porter, Wayne Hamilton, Hagan Frazee, Wayne Fitzwater, and Earl Spoerlein. Last Friday these boys were with J. A. Conover, dairy specialist from the University of Maryland, on a practice judging trip.

Tuesday afternoon the new Acorn Staff was presented to the school by Prof. F. D. Bittle. These persons have adopted as their slogan: "A bigger and better paper."

Car Skids On Wet Road

While near Mt. Storm last Thursday night, returning from the Legion celebration at the Oakland Fair, the car driven by Ira Beckwith, Keyser, skidded on the road and dived into the bank.

In the car were Mr. and Mrs. Beckwith, Miss Mae Beckwith and Mrs. May Droege. Mr, Beckwith had a couple of ribs broken, Miss Mae Beckwith has an injured arm, and the other two escaped injury.

Marriage Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mr. Henry Lauer, proprietor of the Oakland Model Bakery, Oakland, and Mrs. Pearl Gittings, of Baltimore.

The ceremony was performed in the Lutheran church at Ellicott City, on Saturday, July 18. The bride is a registered nurse and has been with the Beck-Legge clinics in Baltimore, for several years. The couple will reside in Oakland.

ANNUAL FAIR IS BROUGHT TO END FRIDAY EVENING

Annual Event Will Be Financial Success, According to Henry M. Speicher, General Manager

PREMIUMS TO BE PAID

The fifteenth annual Garrett County Fair closed last Friday with a fairly large attendance throughout the day and evening, inspecting the many exhibits and strolling along the midway of the Weaver's Park Attractions.

The attendance was up to the average on the second day of the fair, which was School Day, when a parade was held and other features listed on the program, and an immense crowd gathered on Thursday night to witness the Legion drum and bugle corps in parade, which was later dispersed by a heavy downpour of rain.

Drum corps from Keyser, Grafton and Piedmont, W. Va., and Oakland, were in the line of parade and the award of $50, offered by the Fair Association, was won by Keyser.

Although no complete figures are as yet available, the fair will be a financial success, according to Henry M. Speicher, the general manager, who has worked diligently for it during the past few years or since he was made the Manager of the organization. The awards for premiums will probably reach $200 more than last year, or approximately $900, Mr. Speicher stated, and all will be paid within a reasonable time.

Mr. Speicher urges that all who have accounts against the association file the same at once. Mr. Speicher wishes to express his sincere thanks through the medium of The Republican to all those who cooperated in any way in helping make the fair a success.

The list of premiums will be found on another page of The Republican today.

Horses were judged last Wednesday by former State Senator Harvey J. Speicher and Mr. James Gibson, the latter of Kingwood, W. Va., both of whom are competent in judging the animals brought under their observation.

County Religious Executive Board Meets at Accident

The Executive Board of the Garrett County Council of Religious Education was held at the home of Rev. A. B. Harper, Accident, Tuesday evening, September 15. Rev. C. A. Shilke, Oakland, opened the meeting with prayer after which Rev. A. B. Harper, presided. A list of county Sunday schools with names of pastors and superintendents was secured by the secretary. The dates November 15 to December 4 for leadership training schools to be held at Oakland and Friendsville, as suggested by Miss Lillian McCormick, State Supervisor of Primary department, were voted upon and accepted.

Plans for financing the leadership training schools and plans for organizing the four districts in the county were discussed. It was also decided to hold the monthly executive meetings the second Monday evening of each month, the October meeting to be held in Oakland. Rev. A. D. Scrogum gave the closing prayer.

Home Destroyed by Fire

Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the home of Charles Hawkins, of Sand Flat, on Tuesday evening about 10 o'clock. Very little clothing and furniture were saved.

EXAMINATION OF SCHOOL CHILDREN IS BEING MADE

Health Officer Reports 275 Children Have Been Examined and Many Given Toxoid

HEALTH OF PUPILS GOOD

During the week from September 14 to 19 the County Health Department visited twelve schools and examined 275 children. Those children whose parents signified their willingness for the Health officer to protect them against diphtheria were given their first dose of toxoid. Many others were vaccinated. Dr. Geo. E. Clarke is very much pleased at the response of the parents to the plea to have their children protected against diphtheria. He states that with the protection of the school children and the pre-school children diphtheria can be eliminated entirely from the county.

In clinics, which are to be held later in the winter, the children of pre-school age will be given an opportunity to receive the toxoid treatment. Toxoid is being used in place of toxin antitoxin because there is less reaction after its administration and more children are protected. It is also necessary to give two doses of toxoid instead of the three doses of toxin antitoxin.

The health officer states that the health of the pupils in the rural schools so far examined, is exceptionally good. Very few students are under weight and, with the exception of bad teeth and enlarged tonsils, the health of these boys and girls is above the average. The examination of the rural schools will continue through October.

Dr. Clarke estimates that approximately 2000 people visited the health exhibit and about 800 saw the health movies which were given during the County Fair.

Accident High Wins Vo-Ag Cattle Judging Contest

The judging team of Accident High school won the cattle judging contest at the fifteenth annual fair, held among the agricultural classes of the various high schools of the county. The winning team included William Harman, Randall Sebold, and Austin Glotfelty, alternate.

The silver loving cup which is presented to the winning team each year, will be awarded at the Father and Son banquet to be held on November 6. In individual prizes, William Harman won first and an award of $5.00, and Randall Sebold tied for second honors with Ellwood Clutts, of Grantsville. William Griffith, of Friendsville, won third. H. W. Beggs is agricultural instructor for Accident High. The Accident team is attending the Frederick Fair this week.

Legion Auxiliary Elects Officers

At a meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary on Tuesday evening, September 22, the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. Hugh Teets; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Harold Dawson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Delilah Kildow; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Williams; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Smouse; historian, Mrs. Townshend Naylor; chaplain, Mrs. A. D. Naylor; sergeant at arms, Mrs. E. P. Kahl.

An installation service will be given at the regular monthly meeting in October when a number of the department officers are expected to be present.

Autumnal Equinox on Wednesday Marks Beginning of New Season

Wednesday marked the autumnal equinox, or the day on which day and night are of relatively equal duration, according to astronomical calculations.

In the temperate zones, there are four seasons, spring, summer, autumn and winter, beginning respectively at the vernal equinox, the summer solstice, the autumnal equinox and the winter solstice, for which, in the north temperate zone, the approximate dates are March 21, June 21, September 23, and December 21.

The earth axis, it is explained, continually points in the same direction, and if the axis were perpendicular to the plane of the earth's orbit around the sun, there would be no change of seasons. Day and night would everywhere be of equal length and equable conditions of temperature would prevail.

But the axis is tilted more than 23 degrees away from a perpendicular to the orbit, and only in March and September is the axis at right angles to the direction of the sun. In those months occur the equinoxes, when day and night are equal the world over.

Sunday's storms, which were particularly severe, although of short duration locally, were explained by competent observers as accompanying the approaching equinoxal period. Further weather disturbances at midweek were noticeable.

LOCAL FEDERAL AGENTS MAKE RAID AT FINZEL

200 Gallons Mash Seized and Part of Still Found

Local Federal prohibition agents, G. T. Danforth, Harold B. Hall, and William R. Harvey, arrested Hipol Karalivitz at his farm near Finzel, at an early hour Saturday morning. The charge was manufacture and possession. The agents seized 200 gallons mash and part of a still together with one gallon of whiskey. Karalivitz claimed the remainder of his still had been stolen a few days ago. He was arraigned before Justice Folk, Grantsville, pleaded guilty, and was released under $500 bond.

Oakland Will Be Represented In Elkins Forest Festival

Oakland will be represented in the Mt. State Forest Festival at Elkins, W. Va., to be held October 1, 2, and 3, by three musical organizations, it has been announced.

The Junior Drum and Bugle corps, under the direction of Byron Besse, the Gilbert-Brown Boys, Band, and the American Legion Drum and Bugle corps will take part on Friday evening and Saturday.

The Children's Pageant will be held on Friday evening at 7 o'clock, when hundreds of children from central West Virginia will present this before her majesty Queen Sylvia II, her court and her loyal subjects.

The romance of the cave-man, in becoming conscious of the beauty of flowers, of the usefulness of the hollow log for boats, of the discovery of fire-wood and the worship of trees, will be depicted by the little players. The pageant will present a series of pictures which runs down through the ages to the present time when man is taking wing over the forests in the modern use of their valuable wood in the construction of airplanes.

Oakland Rotary To Have Charge of Program at Inter-City Meet

Oakland will have charge of the program at an inter-city meeting of Rotary clubs, to be held this evening in the Casseday hotel, Terra Alta, W. Va. Clubs from Morgantown, Kingwood, Terra Alta, and Oakland will be represented.

Dr. Solon J. Buck, director of the Western Pennsylvania Historical society, of Pittsburgh, Pa., will be the principal speaker, and his subject will be "Community Memory."

The Oakland quartet will sing several selections and other entertainment will be offered. E. R. Jones, president of the local club, will preside.

Tableland Association To Meet At Brookside

The first annual meeting of the Allegany Tableland association will be held during the afternoon and evening of Friday, October 16, at Brookside, it has been announced. There will be a general meeting in the afternoon followed by group conferences. After dinner another general meeting will be held.

Members of the association and those interested in bringing the music festival to Garrett county next year are urged to take an active part and attend the meeting.

Special Grange Meeting Tomorrow Open To The Public

A special Grange meeting will be held at Pleasant Valley Grange Hall Friday, September 25, at 8 p. m. Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Maryland State Extension Service, will be the principal speaker. A special program is being arranged and Miss Huff, of West Virginia, is invited to lead the group singing. Music will be furnished by Ryan's Glade String Orchestra. This will be an open meeting and it is hoped that all grangers will come and bring friends to hear Dr. Symons and enjoy the evening.

Kingwood Pilot Forced Down Near Deep Creek Lake

Bernard Covey, airplane pilot, of Kingwood, W. Va., made a forced landing on the Thomas J. Browning farm near Deep Creek Lake, eight miles north of Oakland, last Saturday afternoon, damaging his plane considerably, but escaping injury to himself.

The motor of the plane suddenly stopped and Covey brought the machine to earth in a hilly field. Both wings were broken and the fuselage damaged.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH MURDER IS BEING TRIED

Herman Bittinger Went on Trial Before Jury Yesterday As Alleged Slayer of George Wertz

PREACHER IS FOREMAN

Nineteen-year old Herman Bittinger, son of Joseph Bittinger, Bear Hill farmer, went on trial for his life yesterday afternoon before a jury in the Circuit Court in Oakland as the alleged slayer of George Wertz, bachelor roadhouse proprietor, whom, it is alleged Bittinger shot in the back of the head and robbed of a sum of money, approximately $45, on the night of September 18th at the roadhouse along the National Highway, a mile and one-half west of Keyser's Ridge. Bittinger was apprehended by State officers Saturday following the shooting and an alleged confession made by him was to the effect that he had shot Wertz in the back of his head as he turned away from him to clean a lamp used to illuminate the building. Rev. W. E. Waybright, Red House pastor, is foreman of the jury which is composed of six of the regular jurymen and six talismen who were summoned by Sheriff Haenftling yesterday afternoon when it was seen that the jurors regularly summoned for duty would be exhausted before a jury to try the alleged killer could be secured.

The State is represented in the trial of the case by State's Attorney W. W. Dawson and Mr. E. R. Jones, while the traverser is represented by Attorneys W. R. Offutt and Neil J. Fraley, appointed by the Court to defend the prisoner.

At the convening of court this morning with Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan on the bench the court room was filled to capacity. The prisoner was brought in by Sheriff Haenftling. Of medium build, dressed in a rough pair of trousers and wearing a blue shirt open at the neck and no other outer garments, he smiled at his counsel and was apparently unconcerned.

Testimony in the case was completed at 11:30 this morning and when the noon recess was called argument of the case was being presented by the State, the defense attorney, Mr. Fraley, having concluded his argument. The jury will probably get the case early in the afternoon and a speedy verdict is anticipated.

Criminal Cases Disposed of by Court

Monday morning the criminal docket was called at the opening of court and cases appearing upon it have been disposed of as follows, many of the traversers entering pleas of guilty:

Frances Helbig, indicted at the June term on a charge of sale and possession of intoxicants, entered a plea of guilty. Sentence by the Court has not been pronounced.

Ottie Tasker, sale of liquor; plea of guilty confessed. Fined $100 and costs.

Harry Mosser, sale and posession of liquor; tried before the Court; verdict guilty. Fined $150 and costs or a term in the House of Correction if fine and costs are not paid.

Charles Madigan, Deer Park; sale of intoxicants; second offense; jury trial; verdict guilty. Sentence not yet pronounced.

Eugene Carney, sale of liquor; plea of guilty confessed. Fined $100 and costs.

Samuel W. Crowe, bastardy; tried before the Court; verdict guilty. The Court required the traverser to enter into a bond for the maintenance of the child.

Veronica Wilson, sale of intoxicants; submitted to Court upon plea of guilty; $100 and costs with sentence suspended upon condition of future acts and behavior.

Cecil Andrew Gonder, carrying concealed weapons; guilty; sentenced to serve one year in the House of Correction. Execution of sentence suspended and traverser paroled for three years upon condition that he be of good behavior and refrain from the use of intoxicating liquor and make his appearance before the Court when called at any time during the period of three years.

Emory Devers, manufacture and possession of liquor; tried before the Court; verdict guilty. Sentenced to pay $100 and costs.

Harry Garlitz, bastardy; tried before Court; guilty. Required to furnish bond for support of child.

John B. King, manufacture and possession of liquor; plea of guilty con-

FROM BALTIMORE, MARYLAND, TO WHEELING, WEST VIRGINIA, ALONG THE HISTORIC NATIONAL HIGHWAY

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This story of the Old National Pike was begun in the issue of July 30, 1931, of The Republican, and was interrupted by the printing of the story of the Northwestern Turn-Pike. The story is here continued as it originally appeared in The Transmitter, official publication of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Comapany).

PART 2.

On thc top of Fairview Mountain is a stone house in which you can get the inevitable chicken dinner which is so persistently advertised along American roads. If I ever start a roadside inn (which I might be tempted to do after I get too useless to do anything else) I am going to advertise lamb stew or Hungarian goulash or something else that will appeal to the chicken-weary tourist. For me, chicken is just chicken. Hereafter, if the vendor of roadside meals wishes to tempt me with fowl, it will be necessary to plaster the front gate with signs proclaiming that ostrich, cassowary or emu may be had inside.

On the East side of Fairview you pass through country associated with the War Between the States. On the West side of that same mountain you enter country associated with a much earlier struggle, thc French and Indian War, which took place in 1755.

As you descend the western slope, watch for a log cabin at the bottom, in the village of Indian Springs, near which is a dirt road. If you fail to turn off on the dirt road—it leads out of the village toward Big Pool—you'll be missing one of the most interesting things on the whole trip.

That road will bring you to Fort Frederick, one of the few before-the-Revolution forts left in the country. You can also reach this fort by turning in on a dirt road at Clear Spring, before crossing the mountain. Thc road winds around the base and avoids the steep grades.

Fort Frederick was built by the colonial government of Maryland in 1756, in order to protect the colonists from the Indian raids that followed Braddock's defeat. It was then on the frontier, as the fringe of settlements along the Atlantic reached not farther inland than 100 miles from the coast. The valley which the fort was erected to protect had received its first settlers only 20 years before and was cut off from the rest of Maryland by a range of mountains.

The fort was maintained by the government of the Maryland colony for a time but, as most of the legislators came from the more populous counties along the seaboard and were not greatly concerned about the settlers on the frontier, appropriations were so scant that the government was unable to maintain constantly a garrison at the fort even during the period of the Indian Wars, which lasted ten years.

After the Indian Wars the fort was entirely abandoned until the Revolution, when it was used as a military prison. At the close of the Revolution, the legislature, never looking with favor upon its maintenace, offered it for sale, and in 1790 the fort and 150 acres surrounding it became private property.

During the War Between the States the old fort was occupied from time to time by passing troops. In the south wall there is a big hole made by General Kenley, who mounted a cannon inside and took a few shots through the opening at the Confederates on the other side of the river.

The various private owners made no attempt to preserve the old fort. Indeed, some of them partly demolished it in order to get stone for the erection of farm buildings.

In 1922, the fort and 190 acres surrounding it were acquired by the Maryland State Department of Forestry. Those portions of the fort that have been carried away for other uses will be restored, the grounds will be beautified, the roads will be improved and the whole property made into an attractive recreation ground.

The fort is in the form of a square and encloses an area of an acre and a half. The walls are 20 feet high and are five feet thick at the base and three at the top, all solidly constructed of stone.

You go back to Indian Springs to get on the highway agaln and then you travel on roller coaster roads in the Potomac Valley right down to the level of the river at Hancock, where river, road, railroad and canal are all side by slde, and where thc Potomac reaches fartherst north. If you will look at your map of Maryland you wlll see why the early settlers were justified in calling this place Big Bend. The journey from West Virginia (that ls, after you cross the Potomac) to Pennsylvania, crossing thc State of Maryland, can bc madc herc in five mlnutes or less, depending on the kind of car you drive.

Hancock is strung out between thc mountain and the river and for that reason looks somewhat likc Port Deposit on the Susquehanna.

It is chiefly famous for the shipment of apples and peaches. The fruit is produced from orchards growing on the mountain sides. Some of these orchards comprise only 50 acres; others, known as commercial orchards and owned by stock companies, contain 1,000 acres. It is said that the fruit trees in the neighborhood of Hancock number well over a million, and that Washington county is one of the great fruit-producing counties in the country, from the standpoint of value. The town of Hancock alone ships two million dollars worth of apples and peaches annually. Smithsburg comes next with a million and a half.

The mining of sand might be said to be an industry in Hancock. Although the mines are located on the other side of the river, in West Virginia, the people engaged in the work live and do business in Hancock.

In Hancock you can turn off the highway and cross the Potomac to Berkeley Springs, a health recort that was in existence at the time of Washington.

The road to Cumberland and points west leaves the river (or, rather, the river leaves the road) at Hancock and you begin the ascent of Tonoloway Ridge, which is a climb of two miles.

On the eastern slope of Tonoloway is the filling station of a chap named Jack, who probably sells more oil than any other man along the pike. Jack continually tells you by painted signs on rocks and trees that there are "big mountains ahead" and that you had better "change your oil" at Jack's place. Indeed, after reading these warnings for miles you feel that if you pass Jack's place without stopping something terrible is likely to happen. But if you decide to pass by without having him "check the oil," perhaps you will slow down sufficiently to admire his fearful and wonderful display of empty oil drums.

You reach the foot of the western slope of Tonoloway and immediately you start up the eastern slope of Sideling Hill, but you do not go straight across. The name was originally Sidelong Hill and probably was so called because it is necessary to crawl along the side of the hill for some distance before reaching the crest and then crawl back along the other side before making the descent.

At the foot of the western slope you leave Washington county and enter Allegany. Washington is probably the most irregular in shape of all the Maryland counties, for its southern border follows the windings of the Potomac. In great contrast with this is the boundary between the county and Pennsylvania, to the north, which is a perfectly straight line.

Town Hill is three feet higher than Sideling, but the road passes over it with less winding. From its slopes one can look down into cleared valleys filled with peaceful farms. At least, they look peaceful from the side of the mountain, but you really can't tell what might be going on down there.

The next elevation worth talking about (let's not bother with the little ups and downs) is Polish Mountain. When I first saw this name on the map, never having heard it pronounced, I jumped to the conclusion that it should be pronounced with a long "o" and that it had beennamed for agroup of settlers from Poland. However, the young lady at the filling station on top will tell you that the word is pronounced like what you get at a shoe-shine parlor and that the name comes from the fact that in the fall, when the trees are brilliant with reds, yellows, purples and browns, the mountain looks as thought it had been polished.

That's her story, but in Cumberland I heard that there's no truth in it. The Cumberland people, who pronounce it like something from Poland, say it is so called because a man by that name once lived there.

On a recent journey over the old road we crossed this mountain in the early evening and pulled into Flintstone after dark. Flintstone is just a tiny village, with a mountain in the front yard and another in the rear, and thcre is no reason in the world why anybody should want to sleep there unless it is that he craves to spend the night in an old tavern.

At any rate we stopped at thc Flintstonc Hotel (The Piper House in other days) on a night ln summer and found it pleasant. We were personally entertained by Dr. Twigg, who also is the physlcian for the community. He took a lantern and showed us all over the house—from the big, handhewed tlmbers ln the attic to the home-made preserves in the basement. His office ls in what was the bar.

Let your lmagination plcture for you the gay scenes that took place there on a winter's night, wlth the wagoners gathered 'round and somebody playing the fiddle. Next to it is the big room whcre the wagoners slept. Each carried his own bedding with him in a box in front of thc wagon. When it was time to retire each man simply spread out his bed on the floor, with his feet to the fire. That's a long step into the past from "private room and bath."

Henry Clay once spent a night in this tavern, but not with his feet to the fire. He had a room upstairs. Henry was a sort of hero all along the old road, because he fought in Congress for appropriations for it. During Henry's time this road was a constant factor in national politics.

We went over Martin's Mountain the first thing in the morning, right after leaving Flintstone, and enjoyed a fine view, as there is very little intervening shrubbery.

Only a few more miles now to Cumberland, the halfway point between Baltimore and Wheeling.

When George Washington, in 1753, made a long journey through the wilderness and over the mountains from Williamsburg, Va., to the Ohio River, to warn the French that their presence on that river was undesirable, he stopped for a few days ncar a pass through the mountain, at which place a fort was later erected. Around the site of that fort has grown up the city of Cumberland, the second largest city in Maryland, with a present population of about 37,000.

The post was called Fort Cumberland, in honor of the Duke of Cumberland, a friend of General Braddock, and an adviser to the king on American affairs. By 1785 the settlement around the old fort, the site of which is now occupied by the Episcopal church, had grown into a permanent town.

About half a century later the C. and O. Canal terminated at Cumberland, as did, for 11 years, the B. & O. R. R. It can be readily seen that the city was an important trade center, especially when you take into consideration that the main road from the east to the west came into the town. The pike between Wheeling and Cumberland was crowded with stage coaches, freight wagons and droves of cattle and swine, all traveling eastward toward the canal and railroad.

Cumberland today is still a center of trade, but it is largely in manufactured articles. The territory surrounding the city is rich in natural resources, including coal, clay and sand for brick and glass making, and natural gas and water.

One of the largest of the several manufacturing plants is that of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, operating a $12,000,000 plant. Several thousand people are employed and tires are shipped to every part of the country as well as exported to Europe and South America. Another large manufacturing establishment near the city is the Celanese Corporation of America, manufacturing artificial silk. This concern operates a $12,000,000 plant and employs 2,400 people.

Probably the largest single employer in Cumberland is the B. & O. R. R., which has 7,000 people on its payroll there, employed principally in its repair shops.

Many of the residences are found in the narrow valleys leading out of the level land on which the business section is located. The residential sections have penetrated into the mountains to such an extent that it is almost impossible to get a complete vlew of the city from any one hilltop. I know of only one place from which it can be done—the Wills Mountain Inn, at the north side of The Narrows.

From Cumberland westward you are on the true National Road. There are two ways out of Cumberland to the West and both were built by the United States Government. One is the old way, which follows Braddock's trail over Will's Mountain, and the other is the pass known as the Narrows, which goes between two parts of the mountain. Both come together about six miles outside thecity.

Most people go through the pass. But there's nothing like being different. We went over the mountaln. And in case you want to be different, too, I'll tell you just how to do it.

Turn off the present road at the church on the site of the fort crossing Will's Creek and passing a little park on Green strcet and continulng right over the mountain. This was the route of the original road built in 1811.

As you pass the park you may notice a large stone ln which is set a bronze plate, briefly telling the story of 'Colonel Thomas Cresap. Thomas Cresap was one of the earliest settlers in the country around Cumberland. His home at Oldtown was a stopplng place for travelers up and down the Potomac Valley and George Washington mentlons it in his writings. It was also a fort for the protection of thc nelghborhood.

Colonel Cresap was a partner in the Ohio Company, as was George Washington's brother. Cresap was also an agent of the company, as well as a pathfinder, pioneer, explorer and patriot. It will be recalled that the Ohio Company, organized before the French and Indlan War, did an extensive business in furs and other products of the frontier. These products were carried over the mountains to the Potomac, in the neighborhood of Cumberland, and floated downstream on rafts. Nearly a century before the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal was completed, there was a canal around Great Falls, a few miles above what is now Washington, and the massive masonry is still in place and may be seen today.

Beyond Cumberland much of what became known as Braddock's Road, was previously known as Nemacolin's Path. Nemacolin was an Indian hired by Colonel Cresap to cut a path over the mountains suitable for pack animals and foot travelers. In places this path is now the National Road.

In 1833, it was decided to route the National Pike through The Narrows, by way of North Mechanic street. The old road over the hills was abandoned for many years, but is now being used again. You can take your choice.

Of course, it may be that you have no desire to go over the mountain. What is one mountain more or less when there are dozens of them? And it is entirely possible that ancient trails, Braddocks' or Washington's or Oliver Martin's, have no particular interest for you. Besides, you may want to see The Narrows. You should. If you go over the mountain on the way westward, be sure to go through The Narows on the way back. That's what we did.

You'll probably wonder why Braddock (and the U. S. engineers after him) chose to build a road over a hill when they didn't need to. For here's a perfectly good pass, although a bit narrow. Still it is wide enough for the road, plus a couple of railroad tracks and the creek, although they have to jockey for position at times.

The road here passees though a high, rocky gorge, part of which is 800 feet above the stream. I could use up a lot of fancy language in describing thc wild beauty of this pass to you, but it wouldn't be quite fair. Therc's nothing that I can tell you about it that you cannot see for yourself.

Emerging from the pass, you continue in a level valley and through a village called LaVale, which may be French for "the valley," and alongside a small steam called Braddock's Run. (That man certainly did succeed in smearing his name all over Western Maryland!)

Where the two branches of the road come together there was a tavern in ancient days called Gwynne's, and a later one called the Six Mile House. Although the later one was destroyed by fire 20 years ago I heard a small boy in Frostburg refer to the fork of the road by that name only a few months ago.

At this point there is a road that gocs south to Cresaptown, Md., and Keyscr, W. Va. This road is older than the National Road.

After leaving the tavern site the long climb starts which will take you over Big Savage Mountain and Little Savage Mountain. I wonder if they were named for the father and son of an Indian family. Big Savage is 2,880 feet high and Little Savage is 120 feet shorter than the papa. But before passing over either you pass through Clarysville, Eckart and Frostburg and you pass out of Allegany county and into Garrett county.

If it wasn't for the big hotel, once a roadside tavern, you would probably pass through Clarysville without knowing it. It is interesting to note how large these old taverns were and how well preserved they are. Many of them are doing business as modern hotels.

When the stagecoach and wagon traffic declined after the building of the railroads, the taverns hung on and were sustained by farmers who stopped over night while hauling goods to the ncarest railroad town. When the automobile truck came it enabled the farmer to get back home the same day. But the automobile tourist arrived on the scene about the same time and gave the taverns enough business to justify them in keeping up the sign. Evidence of this change in the type of customer may be seen on one hotel along the way. It was originally a tavern catering to wagoners. Later it appeared as the Farmer's Hotel, as you can see by a ncarly-obliterated sign. It is now an inn, with some fancy modern name, catering to tourists.

Clarysville is just a little village along the road, but during the War Between the States it was filled with wounded and sick soldiers who were convalescing in the Government Hospital which was located there. At one time more than 2,000 men were in this hospital.

When you arrive at Eckhart you come into brief contact with what was once a leading industry in Maryland—coal mining. Perhaps it still ls, but the greater extent of coal mlning operatlons ln other states, notably West Virginia and Pennsylvania, tend to makc one forgct that coal is mined in Maryland.

Eckhart ls in the famous Georges Creek sectlon. When I was a boy in New Jersey I first heard of Georges Creek coal and its capacity for producing steam, but I had no idea where it was mined nor did I ever think I would see the place.

In the days before the railroad and the canal the coal from this section was hauled to Cumberland and loaded on flatboats and floated down the Potomac and through the canal around Great Falls. Years later, coal was sent down in barges on the C. and O. Canal, towed by mules. Only a few years ago these coal barges were a familiar sight. The output of the Georges Creek mines ls now handled exclusively by rail.

The mines at Eckhart are right along the side of the road, as are a string of old stone houses and log cabins which are still occupied. How many generations of miners have lived in those cabins!

Frostburg is a prosperous town high up in the mountains. It was named for Mr. Frost and not on account of the fact that in winter the temperature gets extremely low. It has a population of about 7,000 and is the headquarters town for the mining section that lies around it. With its high location and its pure mountain water and wonderful scenery it ought to be a healthful and pleasant place in which to live.

Rain was pouring down in sheets when we pulled into Frostburg one day last summer and there was a question as to whether we should go ahead or wait. But if you have a closed car that doesn't leak, what is the use of waiting?

But instead of going ahead along the pike, we decided to run down Georges Creek Valley, on the road that leads to Westernport, Md., and Piedmont, W. Va. Eckhart does not look like a mining town. Neither does Frostburg. But some of the smaller places in the general neighborhood cannot be mistaken for anything else.

Lonaconing is in the valley and is quite a town, with a history that goes back to 1785. There's an old brick house at the fork of two streets at the western end of the town that looks interesting, but not sufficiently interesting to investigate or examine in a pouring rain.

At the extreme end of this valley, where Georges Creek runs into the Potomac, is Westernport. Right across the river is Piedmont, W. Va.

The sun was shining when we got back on the highway again and we proceeded over Big Savage.

When you make this trip, look for two iron posts a short distance out of Frostburg, directly opposite each other, one on each side of the road. From these posts in tollgate days swung iron gates. The toll house has disappeared, the gates have been broken up for junk, but the posts remain.

At the top of Big Savage is a short and narrow road (just back of the wayside stand)that leads to St. John's Rock, from which a good view may be had. Walk down the hill from the rock a little way and you can see the road on which George Washington traveled when he first went west to fight the French and on which Braddock later traveled. It is almost obliterated now.

All through Western Maryland the highway constantly crosses this trail and in many instances is identical with it. For instance, between Allegany Grove and Clarysville. At Clarysville the old trail goes off thru the woods and comes out again in the neighborhood of Frostburg. A group of boys with whom we talked on top of Big Savage told us they had walked up from Frostburg by way of the old trail.

You Cook With Heat

Not With Fire....

And that's why an Electric Range can do your cooking for you more easily, quickly, and conveniently. An Electric Range gives you heat without fire. Put your meal into the oven ... set the automatic controls and the food will be ready when you wish to serve it.

When you cook the electric way, your pots and pans are never scorched by fire—they're always spotless without scouring. And the kitchen's free from soot. You'll be pleased with all the conveniences offered by electric cookery. We'll be delighted to demonstrate.

TRUCK WAR

Indiana, Kentucky, and Tennessee have got into a merry little war over the use of their roads. The last two states have been impounding Indiana trucks for operating on their roads with only Indiana licenses. Indiana, which grants reciprocity to other states, prefers the single state license plan to multiple licenses. It has been threatening to retaliate and impound the Kentucky and Tennessee trucks.

A good many automobilists would like to see them all impounded. But that's all the good it will do. The truck companies and state officials will patch up a truce somehow, and the heavy, over-sized trucks will continue merrily smashing roadbeds, blocking pavement strips and interfering generally with the pleasant and safe driving of the immense majority of road users.

Trucks have a right to use the roads, of course. But when trucks turn into freight cars, destroying public highway rights for private passenger vehicles and killing railroads, without paying a proper share of the expense, the situation becomes unbearable.

There will have to be separate highways for trucks eventually. In the meantime there is need of better regulations, especially as regards size, weight and manners.

An Interesting Fact

THE LABADISTS

The natural outgrowth of the policy of religious toleration in Maryland, established by the Lords Baltimore and pepetuated throughout the history of the State, was a natural influx into the Colony of those seeking freedom of conscience and a free outlet for their religious beliefs and doctrines. It is not to be inferred, however, that the Calverts were less loyal to the Catholic Church because of their invitation to other denominations to join in his plan of colonizing his new domain.

And notwithstanding some of those who accepted the invitation subsequently sought to wrest the government of the Colony from the founder and proprietaries, yet this fact, together with other ill-advised efforts of some of the denominations to more firmly entrench themselves in the management of governmental affairs, led to the final separation of Church and state in Maryland.

During the first fifty years of the life of the Colony, many religious sects were represented, with Protestants in the majority. Among these was a peculiar sect called Labadists, originally followers of Jean de Labadie, and who, because of persecution and opposition in Europe, sought a haven in the new country.

Landing in New York, the leaders, Sluyter and Dankers, came in contact with Ephraim Herman, son of Augustine Herman, the latter one of the pioneers of the Colony and friend of Cecelius Calvert. The son was converted to their belief and led them to the estate of his father, Bohemia Manor, in Cecil county. This great estate was a grant to Augustine Herman from Lord Baltimore, in return for making the first map of Maryland.

The Labadists acquired a portion of this estate and there established a communal colony. It has been said it was the first society in America to protest against slavery; but it must be noted that the desire for wealth seems to have overriden devotion to principle, for when Sluyter, one of the leaders, saw that slavery was a profitable business, he too employed slave labor and used Negroes as harshly as others of his co-religionists in the raising of tobacco, against the growing of which he had also protested.

In 1722 the Labadist Society expired, going the way of all extreme fads, both religious and civil. But Sluyter, having acquired considerable land, stayed on and died a rich man, according to the then standard of riches.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Mr. Henry Weber, founder of the H. Weber & Sons Co., pioneer florist of this community, was engaged in building four large hot houses on his farm east of town. The largest of the structures was to be 120 feet long and the entire plant was to have a steam heating system.

A meeting for the purpose of arranging the institution of a lodge of the Junior Order American Mechanics was held in Hamill and Little's Hall in Oakland.

The new Methodist Episcopal church erected in Oakland, was completed during the week preceding and an announcement was made that it would be dedicated on Sunday, September 27.

Messrs. P. T. Gartbright and C. M. Rathbun purchased the Lake View planing mill at Mountain Lake Park, which was reopened and operations begun. The property had been in the nands of receivers.

Policeman Cline discovered a fire in the rear of Dr. Goldsborough's stable located on the alley south of Oak street, but the flames were extinguished without doing much damage.

Among those mentioned as having improved their homes were Mr. Ralph Thayer and Miss Della Edwards.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Among those who attended the Republican county committee on Monday were N. R. Selby, Jas. W. Friend, John A. Long, J. B. Emory, Henry Kamp, J. Thomas Moon, Charles S. Harvey and a number of others. The committee completed the county ticket by naming William H. H. Friend, Sr., of Friendsviile, as the Republican candidate for county surveyor.

The first section of improved highway in Garrett county, leading north from Oakland to the Rodeheaver Hill, 5.65 miles, was completed and J. E. Francis, the contractor, shipped his machinery to a point in Central Pennsylvania.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Simple Enough

My fan mail included this morning a letter from a disguised reader as follows:

Sir: You seem to be harping quite regularly on the difficulty of making up your column. Here are a few suggestions that may help:

Start in the upper left hand corner of your paper. Write about six words, add a comma, then six or seven more words and a period. Continue this process, alternating from two to twelve words with various punctuation marks, until you have filled the necessary amount of space.

If this does not solve your problem let me know, as I have plenty more suggestions just as worthless.— Heezall Wet.

That helps me out to the extent of about 25 lines. Bring on some more fan mail. It has fallen off considerably in the past year. Two years ago I received four letters from admirers. This year I have received one, but I attribute this to the laziness of the readers, and not to any lack of interest on my part. And I don't care whether you agree with me or not.

In The Republican files of twenty years ago is the following: "The editor's desk has been filled with specimens of apples grown by Garrett county farmers who brought them in for exhibition. Henry Myers, J. S. Hardesty, Jacob Friend, Mahlon Schooley, and others."

Well, what got the matter- Couldn't the old practice be continued, and include Scoop's desk. We still like apples.

Grumbled one farmer to another—What's the use of this court? They just bring a guy up before the jury for some reason or other, and the jury payrolls him for one, two, or three years, as the case may be. If he doesn't behave he can't stoy on the payroll.

Must Have Been Fairmont

The other day after Paul McIntire had worked days on his sales pressure talks, a man had installed one of his radios. He tuned in getting three stations on the same wave length. One was a minister, one a man telling the condition of the roads, and the third a lecturer on poultry. Here is what he got;

"The Old Testament tells us that baby chicks should detour one mile south of Grantsville and listen to the words of the prophet, Ssysysysy— Be careful in the selection of your eggs, and you wiil find a hard-surfaced road to Friendsviile. We find in Genesis that the roads are muddy just west of the henhouse and clean straw is essential if you would save your soul. After passing through Accident, turn north to Jericho. Three wise men bought incubators on account of a bad detour. The baby chicks were troubled with pip and a bond issue is being talked in Holy City. Keep the feed clean, live a life of righteousness and turn south one mile west of the schoolhouse.

"Much care should be taken in commanding the sun to stand still, as there is a washout on the bridge just south of Deer Park, and the road to salvation is under repair, making it necessary for 70 degrees in the brood house at all times.

"After you leave Kitzmiller, unless you do these things the wrath of the Lord will cause the pin feathers to fall out and detour one mile south. Many are culled, but few have any luck unless gravelled roads between Crellin and Hutton ls mixed with feed Out of 500 eggs one should get good roads from Oakland to Mt. Lake Park and he commanded Noah to build an ark just one mile west of Loch Lynn. It rained 40 days and 40 nights and caused an eight mile detour. Just west of the brood house many tourists from the House of David are trying Plymouth Rocks mixed with concrete and a desire to do right."

Ever since we got the lock on the bathroom door fixed and it isn't necessary to sing in there any more I have been trying to imitate Hiram Maxim, the great scientist (see American Mag) who got his great idea for the silencer while watching the water run out of the bath tub drain.

All of which reminds me that we keep on paying hard cash for radios that have static control (sometimes), selectivity, volume control, accoustics control, but no advertising control. The fellow who figures out a control that will shut the radio off when the advertising barrage starts will be made a millionaire and will receive a personal congratulation from Scoop Himself.

Advertising ought to be in newspapers, any way, so that people can read it when they are willing.

After a Court Experience

Lawyer—"Now, doctor, suppose the parson and the devil should have a lawsuit, which do you think would win?

Parson—"The devil, unquestionably."

Lawyer—"Ah. And will you tell us why?"

Parson—"Because he would have all the lawyers on his side."

SIX YEAR MOLARS SHOULD BE CARED FORCAREFULLY

They Aid in Proper Formation of Dental Arch, Doctor States

Speaking of the six year molars, Dr. Richard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said: "To proud parents the cutting of the first baby tooth is an important event. The cutting of the first permanent teeth, the so-called six year molars, should be an even more important event.

"The six year molars are of importance NOT because they are the first of the permanent teeth but for other reasons. Here are four of them: 1. The six year molars aid materially in the proper formation of the dental arch; 2. If lost, they cannot be replaced by nature; 3. If neglected, the way is opened for systematic infections; 4. The efficiency of the remaining teeth in performing their normal function—chewing the food and preparing it for digestion—is greatly reduced when these teeth are lost.

"The formation of the six year molars is started before the child's birth. In some instances they are not completely formed until the child is eleven or twelve years of age. This long period of growth necessitates special attention to the diet, first on the part of the mother and later in regard to the diet of the child. Foods containing lime salts and vitamins are needed for the formation of strong six year molars. This means that the diet must necessarily include milk and green leafy vegetables, and whenever possible, fresh fruits or fruit juices. Sunlight, as we know, is necessary for all growing things including teeth. Cod liver oil also contains elements that help in the formation of strong teeth.

"The six year molars erupt back of the first baby molars. They are so named because they are 'cut' when the child is about six years of age. They are often mistaken for baby teeth. No baby teeth are 'shed' to make way for them. Normally, at six years of age a child should have all (20) baby teeth plus their newly erupted permanent six year molars.

"Sometimes, because of faulty diet or because of faulty assimilation the six year molars erupt with minute defects. These defects are often too small to be discovered by the eye, but they can become the seat of decay. If this is unchecked, it can spread until the entire tooth is destroyed. To safeguard against such loss these teeth should be given a careful examination by your family dentist soon after they are cut. Early discovery of such defects permits protective correction that will insure a life time of service.

"Of course, the six year molars should be kept clean. They erupt at an age when a child is most apt to be careless about his or her mouth cleanliness. But with a little patience on the part of the mother almost any child can be taught to form the habit of brushing the teeth before breakfast and when getting ready for bed at night. This twice daily cleansing of the mouth must be carefully supervised and especial attention should be paid to the thorough brushing of the six year molars.

"An insurance policy for continued mouth health is priceless. This insurance is offered to those who will pay the following premiums: 1. Eat the right foods; 2. Have teeth examined twice yearly; 3. Clean the teeth properly twice daily."

Enlow Family Reunion Held

The Republican is indebted to Mr. E. E. Enlow, of San Francisco, Cal., who is in Garrett county visiting relatives and friends of his youthful days, for the following account of the reunion of the Enlow family recently held:

On December 12, 1931, descendants and relatives of William Frazee Enlow and his wife, Barbara Ellen Trent, to the number of seventy, met at George William Baker's, on the National Pike, near Farmington, Pa., where they had a joyful reunion. A bountiful luncheon was served from a table fifty-one feet in length, set under the trees near the house.

Reminiscences and games were indulged in to the enjoyment of all.

When the family of Wm. F. Enlow held its reunion in 1923 there were present five sons and five daughters from six different States. It was observed that at the 1931 reunion there were only three sons and four daughters from only four States. Such has been the inroads of time in this large family in the past eight years. Those present were as follows:

Rev. J. H. Enlow and daughters Alice and Marguerite, of Pittsburgh; Miss Matilda Enlow, Washington, D. C.; Miss Minnie Enlow, Maryland; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Enlow, Akron, O.; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Baker and children, Herbert, Robert, Lois and Genevieve; Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Shartzer and children, Mary, Charles, George and Roger; Thomas Shartzer and son, Mrs. Elmer Tewell and sons, Clyde and Donald; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Enlow and daughter, Youngwood, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Enlow and children, Dorothy, Harold, Herbert and Betty, Ardmore, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. James Glean and children, Cecil, James, Ruby Jeanne and Lois; Mr. and Mrs. Kimmell Myers and children, Ernest, Dorothy and Emma Jane; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jeffries and children, Junior and Sarah Ann; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Watson, Grafton; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Enlow, Oakland; Miss Pauling Hauser, Oakland; Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Bishoff and son Claude, Friendsville; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Enlow and children, Dorothy, Charles and Ellzabeth, and Lawrence Enlow, Hoyes; Miss Gertrude Enlow and her niece Betty Gail, Akron; Wm. Knight, Uniontown; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson, Connellsville; E. E. Enlow, San Francisco.

My dear relatives, it is not in accordance with the methods of Divine Providence for us to believe that we seventy shall ever meet again on this earth, but we all may live worthy lives and anchor our hopes on eternal life.

The writer, an honored guest and the oldest member at your splendid reunion, must sooner or later be called by the Reaper of life's harvest to go "the way of all men," but not without the comfort of hope.

BITTINGER

Rev. Charles Shilke, of the Oakland Lutheran church, again supplied the pulpit of the village church last Sunday afternoon for Rev. E. E. Campbell. There will be services in the Bittinger Lutheran chursh next Sunday morning, September 27th, at ten-thirty o'clock.

Constable J. L. Ross, of Jennings, was a business caller in this village last Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kisner and little daughter, of Terra Alta, W. Va., spent the week-end with Mrs. Kisner's parents here.

Miss Ruth Emory and brother were shopping in Meyersdale, Pa., last Saturday evening.

Miss Ethel Bittinger, of the Frostburg State Normal School, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents here.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp motored to Oakland one day last week on a business mission.

R. L. Emory is attending the sessions of the Circuit Court in Oakland this week as a petit juror.

The rains of a few days ago were followed by slightly cooler weather, much to the relief of housewives who are in the midst of the canning activities.

Elmer Shawley and family attended the funeral of Mrs. Shawley's mother near St. Paul, Pa., one day last week.

Early on Sunday morning, September 13, the residence of Elmer Shawley was discovered to be on fire, but fortunately prompt action on the part of Mr. Shawley prevented serious consequences.

Lesson for September 27

REVIEW: THE SPREAD OF CHRISTIANITY IN ASIA

GOLDEN TEXT—And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearsed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Giving the Gospel to Asia.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Spread of the Gospel in Asia.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Early Christian Triumphs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity Becomes a World Religion.

The interests of the quarter are so varied, the personalities brought to view so interesting, that the grade of the class and the genius of the teacher will readily determine the method of review. Two methods are suggested for senior and adult classes. Assignment of work a week in advance is required in both cases:

1. A study of the persons actively concerned in the lessons with the object of discerning the strong and weak points in the character of each.

2. A summary of the facts and teachings of the lessons for the quarter. The following suggestions are offered for the second method:

Lesson for July 5.

The missionary program is for the gospel to be preached to the whole world, beginning at Jerusalem. The supreme obligation of the Church is to evangelize the world. This can only be done in the energy of the Holy Spirit.

Lesson for July 12.

After the Spirit came upon the disciples at Pentecost, their supreme impulse was to preach the gospel. In spite of opposition, even imprisonment and threatened death, the disciples preached Christ in the energy of the Holy Spirit.

Lesson for July 19.

The primitive Church spent much time in prayer. The Spirit of God was upon them. Therefore, they boldly testified for Christ and systematically cared for the poor and needy.

Lesson for July 26.

Christianity spread by persecution. Christ declared himself to be the way, the truth, and the life. Missionary endeavor is but the life of God expressing itself through redeemed men by the Holy Spirit. Christianity is therefore indestructible.

Lesson for August 2.

In taking the gospel to the Samaritans we see the broadening scope of the Church. The leader in this work of evangelizing is Philip, one of the seven deacons. He seems to have been the only one ever called "evangelist." If the world is ever to be evangelized, it must be done through the activities of the laity.

Lesson for August 9.

Saul was arrested in his mad effort to stamp out Christianity by the direct interferenee of the Lord. His conversion illustrates the transformation of the Jewish nation. One of these days the multitudes of that nation shall see Jesus Christ, their Messiah. Penitently and enthusiastically they shall proceed to complete the task for which they were ordained.

Lesson for August 16.

Gracious justification by faith is the dynamic for right living. The one thus experiencing the life of God through faith will manifest the fruit of the Spirit, living a temperate life.

Lesson for August 23.

In the conversion of Cornelius we see the missionary program widening to embrace the Gentiles. In this connection the Holy Spirit was poured out anew.

Lesson for August 30.

The sending out of Barnabas and Saul marks the beginning of foreign missions as the deliberately planned enterprise of the Church. The Holy Spirit calls and sends out missionaries.

Lesson for September 6.

When foreign missionary work began in earnest, Saul took the place of leadership, since he was called to be the apostle to the Gentiles.

Lesson for September 13.

The treatment accorded Paul in his missionary work shows the attitude of the world toward Jesus Christ. Such behavior reveals the awful need of the saving power of the gospel.

Lesson for September 20.

The speech of James at the Jerusalem council shows the outline of God's plan. It is through the preaching of the gospel to take out from the Gentiles a people for his name, which is now going on. Afterward Israel, as a nation, shall be converted, following which shall be the conversion of the whole world through the agency of converted Israel.

No Man Is a Blank

"Every man is a missionary, now and forever, for good or for evil, whether he latends it or not. He may be a blot radiating his dark influence outward to the very circumference of society; or he may be a blessing, spreading benediction over the length and breadth of the world; but a blank he cannot be."—Doctor Chalmers.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

vs.
Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Solomon Taylor Male and Ilda Male, his wife, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman and Gibson Coleman, her husband, Lena V. McRobie and Guy McRobie, her husband, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, Defendants.

No. 3030 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate owned by John R. Male, late of Garrett County Maryland, deceased, and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom.

The bill states:

That John R. Male, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, was in his life time and at the time of his death seized and possessed of certain real esate situate, lying and being in Garrett County, Maryland, as follows, to-wit:

1—All of that parcel of land known and designated as Lot No. 5 on the plat of a tract of land conveyed by H. G. Davis to John W. Garrett, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 20, folio 351, one of the Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Mary E. Garrett, et al., trustees, dated May 25, 1893, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, one of said Land Records of Garrett County, Maryland, said parcel containing 49 acres and 13 perches.

2—All that part of Military Lot No. 4041, containing the quantity of 20 acres, more or less, and being the same which was conveyed unto said John R. Male by deed from Charles A. Lish and wife dated April 30, 1921, and recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 80, folio 93, one of said Land Records.

That a duly certified copy of the first above mentioned deed, recorded in Liber E. Z. T., No. 22, folio 74, is herewith filed as "Complainants' Exhibit No. 1," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill of complaint; that while so seized and possessed of said land, the said John R. Male departed this life at his home in Garrett County, on the twelfth day of January, 1931, and by his last will and testament, a certified copy of which is herewith filed, marked "Complainants' Exhibit No. 2," and prayed to be taken and considered as a part of this bill, devised the last mentioned parcel of land, containing 20 acres, and one acre of the first mentioned parcel to Albert N. Male, and all of the remaining property, both real and personal, to his wife, Sarah E. Male, to have and to hold during her natural life and at her death to be divided equally among his children, Viola S. Keenan, a daughter, who intermarried with John Keenan; William H. Male, a son, now deceased; Thomas I. Male, a son, who intermarried with Sallie Male; Garry Lindsay Male, James C. Male, Albert N. Male and John Edgar Male, single sons; Solomon Taylor Male, a son, who intermarried with Ilda Male; Harry Fenton Male, a son, now deceased; Arizona Coleman, a daughter, who intermarried with Gibson Coleman; and a grand-daughter, Lena V. McRobie, who intermarried with Guy McRobie, all of the survivors being of full age; that the said Sarah E. Male preceded her husband in death, having departed this life on the second day of January, 1931; that the said William H. Male departed this life, intestate, on or about the 27th day of December, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and only heir at law, a son, Charles Clark Male, who has intermarried with Edna Male and is of full age; that the said Harry Fenton Male departed this life intestate, in or about the month of June, 1923, leaving surviving him, as his next of kin and heirs at law, the following children, all of whom are infants, to-wit: Mervin Male, a son; Evelyn Male, a daughter; Mary Male, a daughter, and Charley Male a son; that the said real estate is not susceptible of partition in kind without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interests therein; that it would be to the advantage of all the parties to this cause that the said real estate be sold and the proceeds derived therefrom divided among the parties to this cause according to their respective rights and interests; that the plaintiffs, Viola Keenan, John Keenan and John Edgar Male are residents of Garrett County, and Charles Clark Male and Edna Male, residents of Allegany County, and the defendants, Albert N. Male, Arizona Coleman, Gibson Coleman, Solomon Taylor Male, Ilda Male, Lena McRobie and Guy McRobie, adults, and Mervin Male, Evelyn Male, Mary Male and Charley Male, infants, are all residents of Garrett County, and the deendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male, Sallie Male and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, reside in the State of West Virginia.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of the real estate and for the distribution of the proceeds therefrom, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against resident defendants, and the order of publication against non-resident defendants.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 26th day of August, 1931, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of September, 1931, giving notice to the said absent defendants, Garry Lindsay Male, Thomas I. Male and Sallie Male, his wife, and James C. Male, non-residents of the State of Maryland, and residing in the State of West Virginia, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to be and appear in this Court, in person or by solicitor, on or before the 12th day of October, 1931, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree should not be passed as prayed.

Troops Overrun Objectives.

In making our dispositions for battle onr older divisions, the First, Second and Forty-second, had received positions on the southern face opposite the open spaces, to enable them to flank the wooded areas quickly, thus aiding the advance of less experienced units assigned to these areas.

The whole line, pivoting as planned on the Eighty-second division on the right, advanced resolutely to the attack. The entire operation was carried through with dash and precision.

By afternoon the troops had pushed beyond their scheduled objectives and by evening had reached the second day's objective on most of the southern front.

The division of the Fonrth corps (Dickman) and those on the left of the First corps (Liggett) overwhelmed the bostile garrisons, and quickly overran their positions, carrying the fighting into the open. The German resistance on this part of the front was disorganized by the rapidity of our advance and was soon overcome. Although the enemy was expecting an attack, he did not think it would take place so soon and it therefore came as a surprise.

When the First division, on the marching flank of the southern attack, had broken through the hostile forward positioas, the squadron of cavalry attached to the Fourth corps was passed through the breach. At 1:45 p. m. it pushed forward to reconnoiter the roads toward Vigneulles, but encountering machine guns in position was forced to retire.

Western Attack Slower.

On the western fnce of the salient progress was not so satisfactory. The Twenty-sixth division, in its attempt to make a deep advance toward Vigneulles, met considerable resistance, and except for a battalion of the division reserve had not reached the day's objective.

The French at the tip of the salient had attempted to follow up the flanks of our successful penetrations, but made only small advances. Upon the request of Gen. E. J. Blondlat, commanding the French Second Colonial corps, a regiment of the Eightieth division (Cronkhite), in reserve, was sent to his assistance.

On the afternoon of the Twelfth, learning that the roads leading out of the snllent between the two attacks were filled with retreating enemy troops, with their trains and artillery, I gave orders to the commanders of the Fourth and Fifth corps to push forward without delay.

Using the telephone myself, I directed the commander of the Fifth corps to send at least one regiment of the Twenty-sixth division toward Vigneulles with all possible speed.

Thnt evening a strong force from the Fifty-first brigade pushed boldly forward and reached Vigneulles at 2:15 a. m. the 13th. It immediately made dispositions that effectively closed the roads leading out of the salient west of that point. In the Fourth corps the Second brigade of the First division advanced in force about dawn of the 13th, its leading elements reaching Vigneulles by 6 a. m. The salient was closed and our troops were masters of the field.

Could Have Passed Hindenburg Line.

The troops continued to advance on the 13th, when the line was established approximately along the fiaal objectives set for this offensive. In view of the favorable situation created jnst west of the Moselle river by our successes farther to the left, a limited attack was made on that part of the front by elements of the Eighty-second and Ninetieth divisions, with good results.

Durlag the nlgbt our troops all along the line were engaged in organizing their new positions for defense, preparatory to the withdrawal of divisions and corps troops for participation in the Meuse-Argoane battle, September 14, 15 and 16 local operations continued, consisting of strong reconnaissances and occupation of better ground for defensive purposes. Beginning the 13th, several counter-attacks were repulsed. The line as finally established was: Hiandiomont, Fresnes-en-Woevre, Doncourt, Jauiny, Vandiercs.

Reports received the 13th and 14th indicated that the enemy was retreating in considerable disorder. Without doubt an immediate continuation of the advance would have carried us well beyond the Hindenburg line and possibly iato Metz, and the temptation to press on wns very great. But we would probably have become deeply involved and delayed the greater Meuse-Argonne operation, to whicb we were wholly committed.

During the fighting from September 12 to 16 the German One Hundred and Twenty-fifth, Eighth landwehr, Eighty-eighth and Twenty-eighth divisions, reenforced the enemy's line and several other divisions nrrived in reserve positions. September 16, in front of the First army, there were ten German divisions and two brigades in line and seven divisions in reserve.

French Overjoyed by Release.

Nearly 10,000 prisoners were taken and some 450 enemy guns had fallen into our hands. Our casualties numbered about 7,000. As the enemy retreated he set fire to many large supply dumps and several villages. The few remaining French inhabitants who found themselves within our lines were overjoyed to be released from the domination of the enemy, but many were left destitute by the burning of their homes at the very moment of deliverance.

On the 13th General Petain came by my headquarters and we went together to St. Mihiel, where the people, including children carrying French flags, gave us a welcome which may well be imagined when one realizes that they had been held as prisoners, entirely out of touch with their own countrymen, for four years, though always within sight of the French lines.

On my visit to several corps and division headquarters the following day I found all jubilant over the victory and overflowing with incideats of the fighting, reciting many cases of individual heroism among the troops.

CHAPTER LVII

In accordance with the understanding of September 2 we were now moving rapidly toward our second great offensive. Questions concerning the concentration and supply of the elements of the First army in the battle areas were being worked out by the staff of that army, who were given every possible assistance by the staff at G. H. Q.

The general plnn of nction of the allied armies, ns ngreed upon nt the conference of commanders in chief July 24, was, to state it simply and briefly, that the offensive should continue, each army driving forward as rapidly as possible. The allied and American operations during the summer had resulted in the reduction of the Chntean Thierry, Amiens and St. Mihiel salients nnd the great offensive was now under way. Immediately west of the Mense river the bnttle line had remained practically unchanged since 1917. It was on this front the American army was to play its great part.

The disposition of the Belgian, British, French and American armies on the wide froat between the North sea and Verdun was such that they wonld naturally converge as they advanced. So long as the enemy could hold bis ground on the enst of this battle line frontal attacks farther west might drive him back on his successive positions, yet a decision would be long delayed.

Yanks Face Strong Position.

His main liae of communication and supply ran throngh Carignan, Sedan and Mezieres. If that should be interrupted before he conld withdraw his armies from France and Belgium the communications in the narrow avenue which lay between the Ardennes forest and the Dutch frontier were so limited that he would be unable adequately to supply his forces or to evacuate them before his ruin would be accomplished. As our objective was the Sedan-Carignan railroad, it was evident that the sector assigned to the American army was opposite the most sensitive part of the German front then being attacked.

The danger confronting the enemy made it imperative that he shonld hold on in front of the American army to the limit of his resources.

Germans Strongly Fortified.

The area between the Meuse river and the Argonne forest was ideal for defensive fighting. On the east the heights of the Meuse commanded that river valley and on the west the rugged, high hills of the Argonne forest dominated the valley of tbe Aire river. In the center the watersbed between the Aire and the Meuse rivers commanded both valleys, with the heights of Montfaucon, Cunel, Romange and of the Bois de Barricourt standing out as natural strong points. From these heights observation points completely covered the entire German front.

The terrain over which the attack was to be made formed a defile blocked by three successive bnrriers, the heights of Montfaucon, then those of Cunel and Romange and farther back the ridges of the Bois de Barricourt and of the Bois de Bourgoyne. The Meuse river was nnfordable; the Aire river fordable only in places. In addition to the heavy forest of the Argonne there were numerous woods with heavy undergrowtb which were serious obstacles.

These naturnl defenses were strengthened by every artificial means imaginable.

A dense network of wire entanglements covered every position. It was small wonder the enemy had rested four years on this front without being molested.

Hindenburg Position Is Objective.

In accordance with the principal mission, which remained the same throughout this great offensive, the main nttnck of the First army was to be launched west of the Meuse river, its right to be covered by the river and by the operations of the French Seventeenth corps on the east of the river, that corps being a part of our army.

Our left was to be supported by a simultaneous attack by the French Fourth army. Our attnck to include the Argonne forest was to be driven with all possible strength in the general direction of Mezieres.

The first operation of our army was to have for its objective the Hindenburg position on the front Brieulles-sur-Meuse-Romagne-sous-Montfaucon-Grandpre, with a following development in the direction of Buzancy-Mezieres in order to force the enemy beyond the Meuse and outflank his positions on the Vouziers-Rethel line from the east.

In conjunction with our ndvance, which would outflank the enemy's position south of the Aisne, the French Fourth army, by attacking successively the positions between the Aisne and the Suippes rivers, wonld be able to occupy the line Vouziers-Rethel. After that it would operate in the direction of the plateau east of tne Rethel-Signy-l'Abbaye road.

Aim at Tactical Surprise.

Our purpose wns to effect a tactical surprise, if possible, overcome the enemy's first and second positions in the area of Montfaucon and (Cote Dame Marie) of his third position before the enemy could bring up strong re-enforcements. It was an ambitions plaa and one that would require a rapid advance of ten miles through a densely fortified zone. From an estimate of the enemy's reserves and their location it was realized that we must capture Montfaucon and seize Cote Dame Marie by tbe end of the second day.

It was thought reasonnble to count on the vigor and aggressive spirit of our troops to mnke up in a measure for their inexperience, but at the same time the fact was not overlooked that lack of technical skill might considerably reduce the chances of complete success against well organized defenders.

General Petain had already given it as his opinion that we should not be able to get further than Montfaucon before winter.

WILL HOLD EXAMINATIONS FOR 2 SERVICE SCHOOLS

Appointments to Annapolis and West Point to be Made

Desiring to give all eligibles of his district who wish the chance an equal opportunity for entrance into two national service schools, the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., the Hon. David J. Lewis, Congressman of the sixth Maryland district, announced today a competitive examination for one appointment to Annapolis and one to West Point, both for 1932.

These appointments, the Congressman said, are the only available ones he has to either school. The appointment to the Naval Academy, he said, came to him recently by an unexpected vacancy caused by the physical failure of an appointee of his predecessor in office.

The competitive examination for the two appointments will be held at post offices convenient to the applicants throughout the district on 9 January, 1932. Applicants can take only one examination, either the one for the appointment to Annapolis, or the one to West Point.

The young man standing highest in the examination for appointment to Annapolis will be nominated principal, and the next three standing highest will be nominated first, second, and third alternates, respectively. Selections for the West Point appointment will be made the same way, with the exception that, according to rules of the War Department, only two alternates will be nominated.

All applicants for the competitive tests must be actual residents of the sixth Maryland district. Those who wish to try for the Annapolis appointment must be not less than 16 years of age nor more than 20 years of age on 1 April, 1932. Candidates for the West Point appointment are eligible to take the test if they will have reached their 17th birthday and will not have reached their 22nd birthday before entrance into the academy, which is usually about 1 July.

All applications for the competitive examinations, Congressman Lewis announced, must be in his office at Washington, D. C., by 15 November, 1931. Any received after that, he said, cannot be acted upon because his list of applicants for the examination must be in the hands of the Civil Service examining division by that date.

Full information will be mailed to any young man who can meet the requirements by simply writing to Congressman Lewis at Room No. 489, House Office Building, Washington, D. C., and giving his full name and address and what appointment he wishes to try for. Those who already have been informed that their names are on the Congressman's list for the examination need not apply again.

VO-AG BOYS WIN HONORS IN STATE JUDGING MEET

Hagan Frazee Wins High Individual Honors in Corn Judging —Oakland Team Is First

DEMONSTRATION TRIO WINS

Garrett county, with a number of winners, including Hagan Frazee, of Oakland, who won high individual honors in corn judging, and who with Wayne Fitzwater took first place among the corn judging teams, was well represented in the contests among students of vocational agriculture, held last Thursday and Friday in connection with the annual Frederick County Fair at Frederick. The demonstration team from Oakland High School was also awarded first place.

Garrett county placed two teams in the cattle judging contest and two Garrett countians were given places in the individual scoring. Other honors were received at the Future Farmers banquet on Thursday evening when Wayne Hamilton was elected vice-president of the Maryland Association for the coming year.

Oakland teams, composed of Wayne Hamilton, Wayne Fitzwater, Hagan Frazee, George Porter and Earl Spoerlein, accompanied by O. T. Graser, vo-ag instructor, and W. E. Spoerlein, of Gortner, left Oakland last Thursday for Frederick. Other high shools of the county also sent teams for participation in the judging contests, including Grantsville, Accident and Friendsville.

The results of the work of the students from Garrett county were as follows:

Cattle Judging: Oakland, George Porter and Wayne Hamilton, 8th; Accident, William Harmon and Randall Sebold, 9th; Friendsville, 13, and Grantsville, 17th. Thirty-one teams from various sections of the State were entered in the contest. The individual winners were: Randall Sebold, Aecident, 6th; Wayne Hamilton, Oakland, 10th.

Demonstration Team: Oakland, Wayne Hamilton, Wayne Fitzwater and Earl Spoerlein, 1st. The team demonstrated a model bull pen.

Corn Judging: Oakland, Hagan Frazee and Wayne Fitzwater, 1st; Grantsville, C. Murphy and C. Loechel, 6th. Twenty-nine teams were entered. Individual honors: Hagan Frazee, Oakland, 1st; C. Murphy, Grantsville, 2nd; Wayne Fitzwater, Oakland, 5th.

The cup in the corn judging contest will be presented at the annual Father and Son banquet, the date for which has been tentatively set for Thursday, October 15.

Wayne Hamilton was elected to receive the third degree in the State Future Farmers Association, the highest degree that ean be conferred, and only seven others were chosen for this honor. Hamilton was also elected vice-president of the Maryland F. F. A. for the ensuing year.

Wayne Fitzwater was toastmaster and chairman of the F. F. A. banquet on Thursday evening.

Agriculture boys from the four high schools were accompanied by their instructors, H. W. Beggs, Accident; Charles Miller, Friendsville; Harley Spoerlein, Grantsville, and O. T. Graser, Oakland.

Joins the Imperial Executive Staff as Advertising Manager

Mr. J. H. Randolph, general manager-treasurer of the Imperial Ice Cream Company, with executive offices at Parkersburg, West Va., announces the appointment of Mr. Ray C. Voitle, formerly of Wheeling, W. Va., as advertising manager of the company.

Mr. Voitle has been connected with the Wheeling Intelligencer and the Wheeling News as a member of their advertising staff. Prior to that time he held the position of advertising manager of the Wheeling Telegraph, a former evening publication in Wheeling, which was merged with the Wheeling News in 1929.

Improvements Being Made

Workmen are engaged today in the construction of a new brick and glass front on the Gortner building, Second street, which will add very materially to the appearance of the structure.

The Bishop Hotel, corner Third and Alder street, is being repainted and otherwise improved. The property is now attractive in appearance.

MASKED BALL TO FEATURE HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION

To Be Held In Offutt's Hall—the Parade Will Be at 7 o'Clock

A masked ball and dance, with a number of prizes for the best costumes, will be one of the features of the mammoth Hallowe-en celebration to be held here on Friday, October 30, under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. The dance will be held in Offutt's Hall on Second street.

The celebration is being held on October 30 instead of the 31st, so that all the merchants may close their establishments and take part in the merriment.

The festivities will begin promptly at six o'clock with the mummers' parade at seven o'clock. There will be bands, drum corps, other organizations and individuals and a large number of prizes awarded for various costumes worn in the procession by the marchers.

Oakland will gaily decorat with numerous colored lights, corn shocks and other things emblematic of Hallowe'en, the committee stated. Second street, from Alder street to Liberty, will be roped off and the majorportion of the merriment will take place within this area. There will be concessions, a bingo stand and other amusements, and $50 will be given away to some unknown individual.

The committee, which is composed of Emroy Bolden, Paul McIntire and Archibald Shaw, has held several meetings and plans are progressing for the fourth annual affair in an encouraging manner, the committee stated.

INTER-CITY MEETING HELD BY ROTARIANS LAST WEEK

Oakland Furnishes Program at Terra Alta Last Thursday

More than eighty Rotarians of the Twenty-fourth International District, in which are located the clubs of Morgantown, Kingwood, Terra Alta, W. Va., and Oakland, joined last Thursday evening in an inter-city meeting at the Hotel Casseday, Terra Alta.

The Oakland club had charge of the program and the Terra Alta club was host. E. Ray Jones, president of the Oakland club, presided. The invocation was made by L. Deets Parrack, of the Terra Alta club, and L. F. Everhart, also of Terra Alta, made the address of welcome.

Dr. Solon J. Buck, director of the Western Pennsylvania Historical Survey, was the principal speaker and discussed the subject, "Community or Social Memory."

Following several selection by the Oakland Quartet, short talks were made by Judge A. G. Hughes and F. J. Reed, Kingwood; F. L. Lakin, Terra Alta, and Richard Aspinall, Morgantown.

Those in attendance from Oakland included F. D. Bittle, Dr. H. W. McComas, J. A. Towler, Cecil Smith, George Hanst, William Gibson, Jesse J. Ashby, Jr., Wade H. Hinebaugh, C. E. Sharps, A. R. Shilke, Playford Naylor, Sebring, Florida, and R. E. Sliger, Cumberland, the two latter being the guests of members of Oakland Rotary.

Struck by Hit-and-Run Driver

Mrs. Roscoe Poling, of Mountain Lake Park, was painfully cut and brulsed last Thursday evening about six o'clock when she was struck by a hit-and-run driver at a point near Thoburn Inn, at the Park.

Mrs. Poling has stated that the car was a Dodge sedan with no spare tire on the rear of the machine and that she was so dazed by the blow that she was not able to identify the driver of the machine or to obtain its number.

Darwin Martin and Joseph Turney, of the Park, went to her assistance immediately following the occurrence and brought her to Oakland where Dr. Hinebaugh rendered surgical aid. No bones were broken, but Mrs. Poling was cut on the head, her right side and left hand and lost considerable blood as a result of the cuts she received.

Mr. Paul McMillan returned to his home in Meyersdale, Pa., on Sunday after having spent several days as a guest at the home of Mrs. John T. Mitchell, near town.

GARRETT COUNTY TO ASK FOR 1932 MUSIC FESTIVAL

Committee Selected at Meeting Monday Evening To Extend Official Invitation

LAKE IS BIG INDUCEMENT

That Garrett County would ask for the Music Festival of the Allegheny Tableland Association for 1932 when its members meet in annual session at Brookside on Friday, October 16, was decided at a meeting of about 25 citizens in the City Hall, Oakland, on Monday evening.

A committee, composed of Rev. C. A. Shilke, chairman; O. T. Graser and Mayor Grover C. Stemple was named to extend the invitation officially to the Association and its representatives. The inducements to be offered include the possibilities of a beautiful water pageant on Deep Creek Lake for Saturday, with a sacred music festival on Sunday in the famous amphitheatre at Mountain Lake Park which has a seating capacity of 5,000 and standing room for nearly that many more.

Garrett county's invitation will not be the only one, it is understood, as Aurora, W. Va., and Davis, W. Va., have also planned to ask that the music festival be held in those towns.

Form Permanent Organization

A permanent county organization was also formed at the meeting on Monday with the following members from Oakland: James A. Towler, Rev. C. A. Shilke, H. A. Loraditch and G. C. Stemple. Each town or section in the county will also be represented on this committee, and all members will work in conjunction with the county viee-president of the Tableland Association, which at present is Delbert Davis, cashier of the First Nationel Bank, Oakland.

Mr. Davis was chairman of the meeting on Monday night and O. T. Graser was secretary. Those present ineluded Senator H. W. McComas, A. D. Naylor, Mayor Grover C. Stemple, Miss Lottie Loar, representing the Oakland Civie Club; Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell, several members of the Oakland Rotary Club and others.

The meeting at Brookside Inn on October 16 will begin with a session of the executive committee at one o'clock in the afternoon. The general meeting of the Association will begin at 3:00 o'clock. Supper will be served at 6:00 o'eloek and after that the meeting will be resumed. More than one hundred persons are expected. The meeting will be open to all those interested in the Tableland plan.

Held On Charge of Assault

Asa House, Jennings, is being held in the Garrett County Jail charged with assault with attempt to kill Samuel Bittinger, also of Jennings. Sheriff Walter Haenftling made the arrest on Sunday. The man will be given a hearing Saturday.

YOUTH IS BADLY INJURED - WHEN HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

James Beachy, 8, Grantsville, Is in Serious Condition at Hospital

James Beachy, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Beachy, of Grantsville, was struek by an automobile driven by Mr. H. V. Leighton, of Loch Lynn, at the noon hour Monday and seriously injured.

The lad suffered a blow on his head and a fractured right leg. He was taken to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, by R. T. Broadwater, Grantsville, where the patient has been under the care of Dr. W. A. Gracie since his admission to the institution.

It was reported this morning that he had sustained a fractured skull and had not regained consciousness. The fractured leg has been placed in a cast.

The boy ran in front of the automobile on the highway near his home in Grantsville and according to those who witnessed the accident, the driver could not avoid striking the child. The lad is a nephew of Dr. N. I. Broadwater of Oakland.

Mr. Leighton was enroute home from Cumberland when the accident occurred.

2ND ANNUAL COUNTY-WIDE POTATO SHOW TO BE HELD

Dates For Exhibit Set for October 23 and 24; Inter-State Show To Be Held In Connection

WILL BE THREE CLASSES

The second annual county-wide potato show will be held in Oakland on Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24, it has been announced.

The Inter-State Potato show, usually held at Morgantown during Farmers' Week, will also be held in Oakland on the same dates, according to a letter from L. S. Hartley, in harge.

There will be three classes, the certified seed class, 4-H club class and the open class, John H. Carter, county agent, stated, so that there will be a class for anybody in the county who wants to enter an exhibit.

In the inter-State show, there will be exhibits from all parts of West Virginia and Maryland.

"The show," Mr. Carter said, "is being held for the purpose of arousing interest and improving the potato industry in the county by distributing better seed and increasing the yield."

Complete data on potatoes grown by the Oakland Commercial Potato club, composed of 20 boys who used a power sprayer and sprayed potatoes regularly during the growing season, will be given out at the show, showing cost, yield, net profit, etc.

Potato specialists will be present to judge the exhibits and discuss questions on the potato industry. Literature on production and marketing of potatoes may be had, and charts showing common potato diseases will be on display.

Last year a total of 50 exhibited, 30 of them exhibiting certified seed.

District Governor Addresses Oakland Rotary Club

Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of Washington college, at Chestertown, and district governor of the 34th district of Rotary International, was the principal speaker at a special meeting of the Oakland Rotary club held last evening at the William-James hotel.

He spoke on the need for coordinating and working together during the present conditions of the world, and stated that Rotarians had a wonderful opportunity to hold things steady as there were representatives in 67 different countries.

At the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Titsworth met with the board of directors and chairmen of committees.

Mr. Eberling is offering a reward for the return of the motoror lnfor mation ..kindai - the motor and no questions asked or in case the same is not returned then he will pay $50 for information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the party guilty of the theft.

HERMAN BITTINGER WILL SERVE LIFETERM IN PRISON

Killer of John Wertz Convicted of Murder In First Degree and Is Sentenced By The Court

END OF SESSION MONDAY

With the finding of a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree but without capital punishment, rendered last Friday morning by the jury in the case of Herman Bittinger, of Bear Hill, indicted and tried at the September Term of the Circuit Court for Garrett county for the murder of John Wertz, aged roadhouse keeper near Keyser's Ridge on the night of September 11th, closed the story of one of the most brutal crimes ever committed in the county.

The case was given to the jury last Thursday morning and it was not until Friday near the noon hour that an agreement could be reached by that body. It is understood that the jury deliberated between a verdict of guilty of first degree murder without recommendation and the verdict it finally rendered, the agreement being arrived at on Friday morning after a night spent at the Manhattan Hotel where it was quartered.

Immediately after the verdict of the jury had been rendered Judge Sloan, after asking the prisoner the usual question if he had anything to say, senteneed him to serve the balance of his natural life in the Maryland Penitentiary.

Bittinger took the sentence without evincing any feeling or a show of nervousness and was heard to remark after being returned to jail that he was glad "the Court did not give him ninety-nine years."

Other Criminal Cases Determined

Other cases determined by the Court since Thursday were the following:

Frances Helbig, who had entered a plea of guilty to the sale of intoxicants, was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs or serve six months in the House of Correction.

Charles Maddigan, of Deer Park, found guilty by a jury on Wednesday following his indictment and trial on the charge of selling intoxicants, was fined $300 and costs and sentenced to serve one year in the House of Correction, and if the fine remains unpaid at the end of twelve months he is then to undergo further confinement of one year in the House of Correction. This is Maddigan's second offense and convicition for violating the liquor laws of the county.

Richard Keffer, tried before the court on a charge of bastardy, was found guilty and required to enter into a bond for the support of the child or serve one year in the House of Correction.

Daily Sines, of Oakland, bastardy; jury trial; verdict guilty; bond required as in Keffer's case or a year in the House of Correction.

Gerald Friend, bastardy; jury trial; guilty; bond required as above or a year in the House of Correction.

William H. Lower, sale of intoxicants; plea of guilty confessed; $150 fine and costs.

John B. King, manufacture of intoxicants; plea of guilty confessed; $200 fine and costs or eight months in the House of Correction.

Ivan M. Yoder, bastardy; tried in chambers before the Court; verdict guilty; bond required for support of child or one year in the Houseof Correction.

Bernard Moon, bastardy; tried before the Court; guilty. Bond required for support of child or one year in the House of Correction.

Myrtle Kave, sale of intoxicants; guilty. Sentence suspended for three years.

Bessie Shaffer, sale of intoxicants; plea of guilty. Sentence suspended for three years.

Jasper F. Upole, manufacture and possession of intoxicants; tried before a jury; verdict guilty. Fined $100 and costs or six months in the House of Correction.

William Lane, larceny of an automobile; tried before the Court; verdict not guilty.

The term closed Monday afternoon, Judge A. A. Doub presiding in the absence of Judge Sloan.

Howard Rathbun, who spent the summer months here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, will leave Oakland tomorrow to resume his studies in Western Maryland College at Westminster.

GROUND IS BROKEN FOR FORT NECESSITY MEMORIAL, WEST OF KEYSER'S RIDGE, ON NATIONAL HIGHWAY

State of Pennsylvania and U. S. Government Join In Honoring Washington's Memory

Ground was broken on Tuesday for the rebuilding of Fort Necessity, 22 miles west of Keyser's Ridge, on the National Highway, where for the first and only time George Washington in his military career, met defeat.

Col. Frederick H. Payne, Assistant Secretary of War, in an address on the site of the old fort, declared the rebuilt, rough fort will be a more fitting monument to the youthful Washington than would be a granite structure, such as the shaft in the capital or a replica of Mt. Vernon.

Plan National Drive

The United States Government has appropriated funds to erect a monument on the site of old Fort Necessity and the State of Pennsylvania has appropriated funds to establish the surrounding Great Meadows property as a State park.

Work on the old fort and park will proceed at once, so that it will be completed before the anniversary of the battle on next July 3, which will be an outstanding event in the national celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Washington.

"In a reconstructed Fort Neeessity," Col. Payne said, "was born the military career of Washington. On this ground he received his baptism of fire. Among these hills and valleys he served his apprenticeship as a soldier and learned the value of discipline. At no other place and in no other way could his early services to his country be so fittingly commemorated."

Washington's First Battle

Fort Necessity is the site of George Washington's first battle in 1754. At that time he was a colonel in the Provincial army and this battle, in which he commanded, was the opening shot of the French and Indian war. He was then only 22 years old.

After the surrender of Fort Necessity, General Washington, on July 4, 1754, returned to Will's Creek, Md., and began the erection of a fort on the site where the present city of Cumberland now stands and named it in honor of the Duke of Cumberland, commander-in-chief of the British Army.

At Fort Cumberland General Braddock later assembled an army which met disastrous defeat. He failed to follow Washington's advice, built on experience gained at Fort Necessity. Half of Braddock's army was composed of British regulars, upon whom Braddock declared it would be impossible for the savages to make an impression. Braddock rode into battle superciliously in a coach drawn by four horses and as history records he was killed just a few miles west of Fort Necessity.

Lesson for October 4

THE MACEDONIAN CALL

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:36-16:15; Romans 15:18-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Takes the Gospel to Other Lands.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Takes the Gospel to Europe.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Christianity Came to Europe.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Took Paul to Europe.

I. Finding an Assistant for Paul (Acts 15:35-16:5).

1. Contention over John Mark (vv. 36-41).

a. Paul's proposal (v. 36). This was to revisit the scenes of their missionary endeavor to find out what progress the believers were making in their Christian life.

b. Determination of Barnabas (v. 37). This was to take with them John Mark. Mark was Barnabas' nephew (Col. 4:10).

c. Paul's opposition (v. 38). He was suspicious of Mark because of his desertion on the first journey (Acts 13:13).

d. Their separation (vv. 39-41). Their contention was so sharp that they separated. Paul's leadership under God in the evangelization of the world presumably entitles him to a clearer understanding of Mark. Mark should have another chance, but Paul's very sternness brought him to his senses. God overruled this incident to the wider extension of the work. Barnabas took Mark and sailed to Cyprus. Paul chose Silas.

2. Finding Timothy (16:1-5).

a. The place (v. 1). It was the very place where Paul on his first journey had endured cruel stoning. The conversion of this young man may be regarded as fruitage of his testimony at that time.

b. His parentage (v. 1). His mother was a believing Jewess and his father a Greek.

c. His character (v. 2). He had a good reputation in the church at Lystra and Iconium.

d. His circumcision (v. 3). Timothy had not been circumcised, doubt[illegible] Timothy through the cities (vv. 4, 5). They went through the cities and delivered the decrees which had been ordained at the Jerusalem council (Acts 15:19-24).

II. Forbidden to Preach the Word in Asia (16:6-8).

The inclination of Paul was to tarry in Asia Minor preaching the word, but contrary to this inclination they were hurried along. We have here a fine example of divine guidance. The Holy Spirit is just as active and faithful in closing as in opening doors.

III. The Call to Macedonia (vv. 9-12).

The time had now come for the gospel to begin its conquest of another continent. The crossing of the gospel from Asia to Europe determined the entire history of the Church.

1. The vision (v. 9). Being hemmed in on all sides, a vision was given to Paul of a man of Macedonia pleading for help. This made clear to him the meaning of the closed doors.

2. The advance (vv. 10-12). As soon as the divine way was known, they moved forward. Visions must be quickly translated into aggressive action, or they are blotted from our skies.

IV. The First Convert in Europe (vv. 13-15).

The devout people were accustomed to worship at the riverside. To a humble gathering of this kind Paul came and preached. Lydia, a business woman from Thyatira, believed his message and was baptized. The steps in her conversion are worthy of note for they are typical

1. Attendance at the place of worship (v. 13).

2. Listened to the preaching of the word of God (vv. 13, 14). The instrument used in the conversation of sinners is the word of God (Romans 10:17).

3. Her heart was opened by the Lord (v. 14).

4. She was baptized (v. 15). Everyone whose heart the Lord opens desires to confess him in baptism.

5. Her household believed (v. 15), and immediately proffered hospitality to those who had brought blessing to them.

V. Preaching the Gospel Where Christ Was Not Named (Rom. 15: 18-21). This was Paul's missionary program. As the apostle to the Gentiles, his work was to be on an independent basis.

Upon Your Knees

A marble cutter, with chisel and hammer, was changing a stone into a statue. A preached looking on, said: "I wish I could deal such clanging blows on stony hearts." The workman made answer: "Maybe you could, if you worked like me, upon your knees."—Contributed by Verta M. Naylor.

Baking Powder Girl Couldn't Cook

By SIDNEY BLAIR

(©) by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service.)

"THE man who said New York's a town of strangers was right," Neal Fuller told himself as he rode down Fifth avenue. "It's the loneliest place in the world—me for San Francisco the minute my work's done."

Neal was hungry, but he hated the thought of another lonely dinner in a strange restaurant. He decided to get something at a delicatessen and take it back to his hotel. That would be better than eating where he could see other people dining with each other.

He turned down a cross street near Washington Square and went to Sixth avenue. Just ahead of him was a girl with a Pekinese puppy. She turned in to a delicatessen store, and he followed.

"Probably going to get some cold ham and potato salad for her husband's supper!" he thought disgustedly.

When the pretty girl with the dog was waited on, she bought—baking powder.

"Great Jerusha, she must be going to bake!" thought Neal, and envied the man she was going to do it for. He was so absorbed in his thoughts that he didn't even notice what was happening till suddenly he realized that the Peke had his leash neatly wound around Neal's legs.

The girl apologized and together they unwound the leash. She dropped the baking powder, too; it hadn't been wrapped yet, and somehow the lid came off, deluging Neal with the white contents of the can.

"Oh, how dreadful!" The girl's lovely face turned pinker than ever. "How terrible! I—oh, can't I do something about it? I live just a few doors from here—if you'd come home with me. I'm sure mother could get it off."

Neal's dark blue trousers were smeared white; it really seemed the only thing to do.

Back to her apartment they went, a charming little place high in a great apartment building. He met Mrs. Lane, the pretty girl's mother, and he and Felicia—the pretty girl—looked out of a big window at the roofs of the city and its curving bridges, while Mrs. Lane got dinner. He shared it with them.

After dinner they went to the "movies." Two days later, Sunday, they picnicked on the Palisades. Neal as a lonely city. Suddenly it had become the friendliest city in the world—except San Francisco, of course. There were many delightful little meals at the Lanes' apartment, many dinners at the big restaurants where Neal entertained them, lonely places no longer.

"I was shocked out of my shoes that day I met you, when you bought baking powder," Neal told Felicia, one afternoon. "I'd been watching the other women who were scrambling dinner together out of the shelves of canned goods, and I'd about decided that there weren't any women in New York who could cook."

A few days late Felicia appeared with a bandaged hand. She'd hit it with a hammer, she said, when she was putting up some pictures. A little later the other hand, showed a long, red scar. Burned, she explained—she'd been using a curling iron, and it had slipped and burned her.

"But I thought your hair was naturally curly," protested Neal.

"It—it is!" stammered Felicia.

She looked unhappy, somehow; her blue eyes, where gaiety usually danced, grew sad. Neal wondered what was the reason. He'd come to feel that he wanted to protect her from the world. He tried hard to find out what was the matter, but Felicia put him off. She said the Peke hadn't been well and she was worried about him.

"I always thought, till I knew you, that a woman who likes little dogs was rather a fool," Neal told her, apologetically. "It seemed so silly for them to waste their time with lap dogs when they might better be taking care of children."

"Wang thinks he a big dog," she answered, with spirit. "And you can't take care of children when you haven't any to take care of!"

"Felicia, will you marry me?" Neal demanded suddenly. "I've loved you ever since that first day, three months ago. Please, Felicia dear, marry me."

"No," said Felicia. And there were tears in her eyes when she said it.

Neal took her by the shoulders and turned her around so that she had to face him. "Why not?" he demanded

"Because I can't cook," she answered, and the tears overflowed. "I've tried my best, since you said a woman ought to know how. I've burned myself terribly. I don't know a thing about cooking, and I don't believe I ever will."

"Great Jerusha!" exclaimed Neal, taking her in his arms. "As if a little thing like that mattered!"

Believed in Preparedness

"This is simply ripping!" she exclaimed as they sped along the road in his new sport model, "but who are those two men following us?"

He—Oh, don't worry; it's only the garage man and the doctor!—Stray Stories.

FROM BALTIMORE, MARYLAND, TO WHEELING, WEST VIRGINIA, ALONG THE HISTORIC NATIONAL HIGHWAY

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This story of the Old National Pike was begun in the issue of [illegible] 30, 1931, of The Republican, [illegible] was interrupted by the printing of the story of the Northwestern Turnpike. The story is here continued as it originally appeared in The Transmitter, official publication of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Comapany).

After crossing Little Sandy you come to a long straightaway [illegible] was called Long Stretch in stagecoach days. Riding over it in an automobile you do not notice it particularly, but if you were driving a horse team you would probably be grateful for it.

It's hard for the automobile passenger to realize—unless he is driving to concentrate on it—just how [illegible] must have been the skill required of stagecoach and wagon drivers in driving six horses down a mile mountain grade covered with ice with a three to five-ton load pushing from behind. Think now of the fact that in the early days of the road there were no wagon brakes; some of the drivers would stick a sapling in a wheel instead, and some managed to get along without it. Think now of how on the road and hairpin curves and coming in the opposite direction. Think now of darkness and a few other things. You may imagine you are quite a good driver, but you can guide a splendid piece of machinery along a splendid road. Tucks, man, you don't know what driving is.

Or think of the same outfit coming up that same grade with the same load. When you see how the long hills take the fighting spirit out of busses and big trucks and make them crawl along, you realize that getting a load to the top by horse power was no child's play.

About a mile beyond the [illegible] of the western slope of Little [illegible] ge is the first stream you cross [illegible] waters of which eventually find their way into the Gulf of Mexico. It flows into the Monongahela, the Monongahela into the Ohio, the Ohio into the Mississippi and the Mississippi into the Gulf.

The waters of the little stream you have left behind flow into the Potomac and into Chesapeake bay.

[illegible] came into being. For instance, the western end of Long Stretch was known as the Shades of Death, because the road went through thick and dark pine woods which shut out nearly all the sunlight. The traveler of today can see the stumps of those pine trees. The settlement of Piney Grove, a little beyond received its name from the same source.

Chestnut Ridge is crossed before descending into the valley of the Castleman River. On the top is what used to be the grave of an unknown soldier of the War Between the States but on a recent visit I noticed that a wooden marker has been set up and the soldier is described as a general. The facts in the ease seem to be that he was an old soldier who had been living in the neighborhood of Washington and who was walking back to Ohio. He died on the mountain and was buried there.

At the foot of the western slope of this mountain is a spot where Washington and Braddock camped—Little Meadows. Here you may see a big house that was built by Jesse Tomlinson in 1815, and which is kept as a tavern. It is said that James K. Polk dined at this tavern on his way to his inauguration in Washington in 1845.

Beyond Little Meadows is Castleman River, which is the Little Crossings mentioned by Washington. If you are interested in historical matters (or in bridge construction) it will pay you to stop here for a few minutes. It is said that the single-span rubble stone bridge was, at the time of its construction, the largest of its kind in the United States. There are two mills, one old and one new. The old one was built about 100 years ago and the new mill is chiefly interesting for a sign to the effect that it produces both buckwheat and maple syrup.

The weather-boarded hotel by the stream is quite modern now, but once it was the Dixie Tavern, built of logs.

Beyond the tavern Braddock's trail once more crosses your path and just below the bridge is the ford where the soldiers crossed the stream. The man at the service station by the hotel will point them out to you. He told us that his people own a farm in the neighborhood through which the old trail can be followed for miles.

In traveling through this country you can be sure of two things: at the foot of each mountain there is a stream, and after you cross each of these streams you start ascending another mountain. After crossing the Castleman you start up Negro Mountain, first passing through Grantsville, founded by one Daniel Grant. Although the population is less than a thousand, it had three hotels in stagecoach days and at least one of them is still doing business.

Negro Mountain, the highest ridge between Baltimore and Wheeling, is said to have received its name from the fact that Negro was killed on this mountain in a fight with an Indian.

You will notice that ears coming down the mountain proceed almost as slowly as those going up. There's a reason. On the top of each mountain there's a sign telling the driver to go in second gear. And usually about half way down the mountain there's a sign which tells him to "Stay in Second Gear."

Of course, there's no law compelling you to obey these suggestions, and probably you could get somebody to help you pick up the pieces.

The next mountain, Keyser's Ridge, is the last one in Maryland on the pike but when we got to th etop of it we decided that we would run along the ridge for a few miles before crossing into Pennsylvania, and accordingly followed a road that was marked for Accident, Oakland, Mountain Lake Park, Deer Park and McHenry, all of which are mountain summer resorts. There's plenty of mountain scenery in every direction.

Returning to the pike and continuing on your way you are almost immediately in Somerset county, Pennsylvania. You have to watch closely along the road or you will fail to see the marker at the state line, which is also the Mason and Dixon line.

Just a little way beyond—a fraction of a mile—is the tablet set into a stone along the road telling the passerby that here Braddock's Trail crosses the highway. But the chances are that by this time you are quite fed up on Mr. Braddock. After all, why make so much fuss about an arrogant British general who penetrated all the way into the wilds of North America with some of the best troops of England in order to get properly beaten up by a handful of French and Indians?

So let's continue up Winding Ridge. I think you will find on the top of this ridge a Dew Drop Inn. There are about 47 of them between Baltimore and Wheeling, and by the time you have seen that name that many times the only thing you feel like dropping is a bomb. Still, I suppose the name is as good as Ducum Inn or Okum Inn or Comrite Inn or Always Inn.

Two miles beyond the state line you will find a toll house—a different kind of toll house from those you have seen in Maryland, for it has six sides. Of course, no toll is collected now, although it is still the property of the State of Pennsylvania. You'll probably want to stop long enough to read the charges that were made for cattle and vehicles passing along the road.

The little town just beyond the toll house is Addison. If you have been examining the mile posts (short iron markers at every mile along the road) you have probably noticed that some of them mentioned that the distance was so many miles to Petersburgh. When those markers were put in place Addison was Petersburgh.

Somerfield is three miles the other side of Addison. Here you cross the Youghiogheny (I dare you to pronounce it) on a stone bridge, near which is a stone building which was the Endsley House long ago and which is still a hotel. The stream was known to those who stopped there as "Big Crossings," and the town was called Smithfield. Perhaps in changing the name the good people felt that there were too many Smiths. There's a tablet on the bridge to the effect that George Washington crossed the stream here with his little army on his expedition against the French in 1754. Both bridge and hotel were built in 1818.

After crossing the bridge beyond the stream (there's always a ridge beyond the stream) you drop down to what was known in other days (and still may be) ns Jockey Hollow. There is a long, level stretch, with pleasant meadows on both sides, over which boys and young men used to race their horses. Thomasdale is next to it, but I saw nothing interesting there except an abandoned mill. Then up to Humbertson and the Humbertson Hotel, which a sign tells you was built in 1826.

More hills and hollows and then a long straightaway into Farmington. I think I shall always remember this town, for on one trip n cyclone swept through the town just a little while before we did.

The brick hotel at Farmington, all dressed up with a modern front, was once the Rush Tavern. It is about 12 miles from Uniontown. The towns on this road usually occur at intervals of about 12 miles, nnd in each town was one or more taverns. The wagon stands were only about n mile apnrt. Stagecoaches stopped at the taverns and the wagon drivers at the wagon stands, which were really taverns catering principally to wagon drivers. And they didn't attempt to put on the airs that the taverns did. For instance, you could get a drink of whiskey at a wagon stand for three cents, but you had to pay five cents for it at a tavern.

Both wagon stands and taverns did a good business, for there was a tremendous traffic on the road.

The next hill, Mount Washington, is the site of something that I read about in history when I was a little boy, and probably you did, too, providing, of course, that you were not a little girl. Fort Necessity is the place. Rememeber how Washington marched against the French and found they were too many for him and how he hurriedly built a rude fort at Great Meadows, because he just naturally had to? That's why he called it Fort Necessity. Well, George—he was only 22 at the time—was obliged to make what proved to be his first and last surrender. After that, he went back to Virginia and returned to fight with General Braddock, but the general made a worse mess of it than did Washington.

You can't see anything of the fort now, but you can see where it stood, and you can trace out a bit of the old Braddock Trail, and you can read all about it on the plate that's set into a boulder by the side of the old tavern. The tavern's real enough, and still doing business at the old stand. But it will probaly never again serve breakfast to 72 people as it did on one occasion when several coaches stopped there at the same time.

Washington afterwards bought the site of the fort and held it until his death. This, however, was probably not for sentimental reasons, as he describes it in one of his writings as a good farm with much grass.

Up the road a piece is Braddock's grave, with a monument over it, erected by some of the local people. I wouldn't mind contributing to a monument to Washington, but I would not be enthusiastic about chipping in for a marker to General Braddock. He really didn't do anything to boast about.

Anyway, the grave is there and the monument is there, and if you want to stop and se it there's no objection on my part.

About four miles beyond the grave the Braddock Trail turns off to the northwest—toward what was Fort Duquesne and is now Pittsburgh—and we are troubled with it no more.

ALL her life Helen Dougherty had craved leisure, modish, up-to-date surroundings, a sure income, freedom from the bickering of a large family of children, and a good husband.

Strangely enough, she achieved them all at a time when, to the casual observer, she was just about to become middle-aged and wedded to the destiny of her position as chief operator in a telephone exchange.

It all happened with the velocity, the glamor and the dramatics of a fairy tale. One evening, walking home from the telephone exchange to the crowded apartment she shared with her parents, two married sisters, a brother or two and some growing, squalling nieces and nephews, she ran into one of her brothers-in-law standing in front of a large commercial hotel talking to a man to whom he had been trying to sell a life insurance policy.

Thnt was how Helen met Fred Sloan. After Fred caught one glimpse of Helen, who hnd reddish hair and reddish eyes nnd a pleasant upturned nose, her brother-in-lnw sold him the life insurance, but only after Fred Sloan had succeeded in getting himself invited to the home of the Doughertys for dinner.

Six weeks later, after a whirlwind courtship, Fred and Helen were married in the pnrlors of the hotel in front of which they had met and in which Fred had lived for the fifteen years of his bachelorhood. In a jiffy, as it were, leaving her friends, her family, the girls at the telephone exchange nstounded, Helen Dougherty, who had worked sinee she was fourteen, found herself with the four requisites of her dreams—leisure, modish, up-to-date surroundings, a sure income, freedom from the bickering of a large family of children, and a good husband.

Fred was not a rich mnn in the modern sense of that word, but he had nn income that would enable them to live as all her life Helen had dreamed of living. They were able to nfford, without eneroaching on their capital, a modern, well-furnished suite of rooms in nn apartment hotel that faced the park. For the first time in her life, Helen Dougherty, who was a tailor-made type of person that hnd alwnys been obliged to wear "ready-mades," blossomed forth in svelte, chic suits designed especially to her figure. The rings on her fingers were good dinmonds mounted in platinum. Her wrist watch was jeweled and her sliver fox the best that money eould buy.

The Sloans could afford to spend three months a yenr at Atlantic City in one of the pretentious hosteiries overlooking the ocean. Fred loved the sea, and the boardwalk gayety of the pleasure resort amused him. He was proud of Helen. He liked to walk with her into the gaudy dining rooms or ride beside her in the wicker rolling chairs up and down the bench. They were a contented pair, living eomfortably on their income, coming and going ns they willed, occasionally willing to take a trip to Niagara Fnils or Chicago, or a boat ride to Boston.

Helen had married well.

It was pleasant to be in a position to help her family. To see to it that a warm new coat replaced her mother's shabby one, that her father, after his long, dull day as watchman in a wnrehouse, could come home to the solid comforts of radio, easy-chair nnd good cigars. The nieces and nephews came in for their share, too. Fred was generous.

It seemed to Hclen thst there was a constant paeon of thanksgiving going on in her heart over this blessed delivery from the wrangling, overcrowded, nicce-and-nephew-cluttered environment of the stuffy little flat she had cnlled home up to the day of that momentous meeting with Fred Sloan in front of the commercial hotel.

It became inevitable, after a while, that Helen snd Fred, living the carefree lives of a pair of carefree nomads, should sink into the pleasant routine of hotel life. More and more, the holiday aspect of Atlantic City attracted the pair. Fred's philosophy of life was an easy-going one. "We're here today, gone tomorrow. Get all you can out of it today."

The Sloan suite in the gaudy hotel overlooking the ocean came to mean home. The gay, transient holiday crowds came and went, but the Sloans remained, meeting a lobby civilization, as it poured in and out. Every evening at eight, Fred climbed into his dinner clothes and Hclen powdered her white neck, dressed herself in modish chiffons or taffetas and descended en decollete to the dining room. It was unbelievably pleasant, eating to the strnins of good music, surrounded by well-dressed people, deferred to by waiters. The Sloans fatiened a little with well-being.

It seemed to Hclen, so quickly does the human mind neenstom itself to new formuln of habit, that the old noise-and-nerve-rncked days belonged to another era of her conselousness. She used to snuggle her hand under her husbnnd's on their twilight chairrides along the boardwalk that ran parallel to the pounding showy ocean, and ask him to give her a good pinch around the wrist.

"That's for reality, Fred. Sometimes it all just doesn't seem real. Life is so pleasant now. So—reinxed."

That pleased Fred more than he could express to her. It gave him enormous sense of the well-being of the producer. He thrilled with the consciousness of being good-provider to this nice dear girl who was his.

"Fred," she asked him once, again on a chair ride, tucked under rugs, along the curving shore, "do you think we are getting smug?"

Smug? Fred was not given to introspection.

"You know, Fred—kind of—fat-minded."

"I like you plump," said the literal Fred and kissed her on the cheek.

"Fred dear! not in public!"

"Why not? Let them know how sweet my gel is. Where will we eat tonight, honey. I could do with one of the Shelbourne's big, juicy sirloins smothered in fried onions."

Little rills alongside—Helen's tongue began to run. After all, it was pleasant just to live, surrendering oneself to creature enjoyments. Life had been a long and arduous affair for her. She had done her share in her time to contribute to the well being of others. She was doing her share now. Part of her placid happiness was the knowledge that her father was no longer obliged to spend the long nights through, dragging his weary old frame through tours of inspection of a warehouse.

Tbanks to Fred, bless him; thanks to her, the old gentleman was free to end his days in leisure and a certain amount of ease.

It was hard not to feel just a little smug with happiness, even if the vagrant thought did stray across her eonsciousness occasionally that she was fnst beeoming of the hotel leisure class of idle women whose major interests are lap dogs and bridge whist.

But so low beneath the surface of her consciousness ran all this, that it scarcely left a consciousness dent.

So that what happened subsequently came as much out of a clear sky to Helen herself as it did to Fred, who had come to realize, after his first year of marriage to this big, amiable womnn, thnt he could refuse her nothing.

One morning they had tnken a motor ride along the beautiful coast line to visit an orphnnn asylnm that was known for its picturesque location and its worthy work. A group of triplets had just been received by the organization, two tow-headed little girls and a red-haired boy. Healthy specimens of youngsters, unique chiefly because of the trilogy.

There was never a moment's doubt in the mind of Helen Sloan, when she looked at these three, that she wanted them. Their appeal to her was swift, sure and devastating. At first, the idea had struck Fred as too grotesque for consideration. But before they left that institution two hours later, he had been won over to the consideration of an idea that up to that day would have appeared fantastic.

Eight weeks later three small children, aged four years, four months and two days, were formally handed over for legal adoption to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sloan.

It is impossible for the Sloans, on the budget of their income, any longer to maintain the suite of expensive rooms in the sumptuous hotel. The Sloans now occupy a pleasant six-room npnrtment on the upper west side of New York. It is a noisy apartment, filled with the din of three children.

Helen's costumes hnve gone off a bit in their tailor-mnde precision. Fred thinks it all a great joke. To his amazement, the former idle days in the sumptuous hotels seem incredibly vapid to him in retrospect.

Faith of the Child

Know you what it is to be a child? It is to be something very different from the man of today. It is to have a spirit yet streaming from the waters of baptism; it is to believe in love, to believe in loveliness, to believe in beliefs; it is to be so little that the elves can reach to whisper in your ear; it is to turn pumpkins into coaches and mice into horses, lowliness into loftiness, and nothing into everything, for each child has its fairy godmother in its own soul; it is to live in a nutshell and count yourself the king of infinite space; it is

To see a world in a grain of sand,
And a heaven in a wild flower;
Hold tnfinity in the palm of your hand
And eternity in an hour.

—Francis Thompson's "Essay on Shelley."

Tells Time by Birds

Clocks are not nccessary to give the time in the morning if one understands the songs of birds, according to a German naturalist who has just completed a schedule of offerings by feathered songsters. He says the chaffinch sings at about one-thirty on summer mornings, aud the blackcap calls an hour later. Between two-thirty and three o'clock the quail give their call, while the hedge sparrows are heard about thirty minutes later. The blackbirds are next, followed by inrks, tho black-hended titmouse, and finnlly the spnrrows start between five and five-thirty.

The Country Newspaper

"Whrr - rr - rr - clack! Whrr - rr - rr - Clack!" The large, black wheels turn slowly at first, but, nevertheless, eventfully. Everyone in town, as well as everyone in the small printing shop, knows that by now. As seconds pass, the wheels turn faster and faster until, with a loud, orderly, competent clatter, they announce that the real business of the week is at last being accomplished.

Such sounds bring to their feet the listeners in the editorial room outside. They rush to the door to look. The product of a week's work—their work—is finally being released. The paper is out.

The Roseboro Tidings is ready now for its readers. In neat rows it lies at the side of the monstrous mechanism that has not only printed all of its six pages, but has folded it and arranged it in convenient piles for distribution. Roseboro folk, one cannot but hope, eagerly await this moment. News from their homes, their shops, their churches is enfolded in these faintly warm sheets with the fresh aroma of ink still upon them. The picnic, the lawn social, the croquet tournament, the miniature sailboat regatta—they will all be mentioned in these cautiously filled columns and mentioned with a certain unction that one might not find except in a home paper. The girl who won a medal for her penmanship, the boy who took "first" at quoits, and Mrs. Hubbard, whose angel-food won a majority of votes at the church sale—they will all appear in this week's issue of the Tidings.

What if everyone, or nearly everyone in town, knows to an alarming nicety every detail of each event therein recorded before he picks up the paper. What if he knows it far more comprehensively than does the busy local reporter who, after all, is an outsider to the experience which happens to be the reader's own? What if all this is true—the reader is not denied his peculiar thrill at this moment. The story is in print!

Thus the Roseboro Tidings goes the rounds, awaiting the verdict. By mail and by boy it goes until, in substance, it has reached almost every door in town.

The housewife sees in its arrival a brief opportunity to lay aside her pots and pans to scan the news of her own street, thereby rediscovering certain announcements with unqualified interest. Her neighbors in the third house from the corner—did they not tell her that they were going on a motor trip? Here it is in The Tidings, only what is this? Was it not to be a ten-day trip instead of "a two-weeks trip"? The housewife looks up from her paper to check up this matter of accuracy. She shakes her head. She is quite certain that her neighbors, when she ran over to say good-by, remarked that they would be away for ten days. But she has thought of something else. Impulsively she turns back to the front page. A good thing she did! There is a piece about a dog, a dog from their own address, her son's dog, and she almost missed it. The dog, she reads with enthusiasm, as if the account were filled with sparkling newness, did a brave thing the other day in pulling that child out of the water. She is pleased with that story. She can hardly wait to tell her boy.

It is a prominent item at that, conspicuously boxed on the front page. Little does the housewife know how nearly it came to be omitted. At the last moment one of those emergencies, indigenous to the life of every newspaper, came up importantly—last-minute news telephoned in. Already the paper had been set up. Every inch of space was filled. The presses were ready for it. And now this! The editor had hastily transferred this last telephoned information to a sheet of copy paper and had rushed with it out to the composing room.

The editor, be it said in his favor, was new. But the make-up man who had fitted "stories" to inches and inches to "stories" for the last twenty-five years, was not new. Neither was the situation.

"Something's got to come out." The editor bends over the "page" of metal type which has been set up for printing. "This is a 'must,'" he says holding up the article which he has just written. "How much space will it take in type?"

The make-up man tells him. The editor measures, compares, discovers where to make the substitution. He is relieved. He has found the exact place. It will fit in perfectly. And the other "story" is not so important. It can come out.

"Important?" The make-up man's face, a little the worse for dust and smears, shows stretches of reproach in his widening blue eyes. "That's a story about Jackie Lee's dog, sir," he begins. Defensively, he continues. He explains why it is on the front page. In the first place, it is strictly home news. So, replies the editor, is the "story" which he has just brought in which pertains to some new county regulations governing the parking of automobiles. The make-up man, it appears, is not so concerned with this last-mentioned. He has been making up the Roseboro Tidings for twenty-five years. He knows what the folks enjoy—fruit of their vine, when possible. Human interest stuff, best of all. For years he has been composing the paper according to this standard: The paper represents a family—everyone in town belongs to that family—whatever vitally affects any member of that family vitally affects the family itself, hence the paper.

The make-up man reflects. "Once, years ago," he remarks, when the editor was very busy, so busy he could not be disturbed, I found the paper was to be too crowded that week with news and I took out an item." He blink significantly at the new editor. "It was not a wise thing to do. It was an item, not quite so important as this one about the dog, but it concerned a gift which the wife of one of our respected citizens received from someone on the other side, a gift of a canary from the Harz Mountains. I took it out, but it was not a wise thing to do," he repats. "In that same issue we quoted the woman's husband on the possible effect which a new property tax would have upon the community.

"There was great dissatisfaction following the publication of the paper that week, particularly in one family. First the wife of our respected citizen, then the citizen himself, offered objections to our last-minute judgment in taking out the canary story. Far better, they said, to have taken out the story on taxes which, they explained, could have been postponed until the week following. The canary, on the other hand, having come all the way from Germany, was spot news. It would bring flocks of visitors to the woman's door. It was the home touch."

The make-up man brushes away a bit of loose dust that has dropped onto his metal "page" which with its reversed rows of type, makes it difficult for the layman to read what is perfectly plain to him after all these years of experience. The make-up man looks critically down at his workmanship, but modestly awaits the answer. He has done his best to preserve the traditions of the Roseboro Tidings. It is up to the editor now. Editors, of course, have the prerogative.

But all editors, it seems, are not so eager to assert this prerogative. This one hesitates. Then he puts a direct question to the make-up man. Respect is in his tones. Could something else on this page be removed to make way for the "parking story?"

"That's just what I was thinkin'," replies the make-up man. "We could take out this story about the new furniture shop opening up. No one in town knows this man as yet, anyway. We could—"

The editor offered a faint veto to this. "Couldn't we shift that to Page Three?" he asks. After all, the opening of a furniture shop is news.

"Sure," says the make-up man at length, "I'll fix it. We'll leave out this about the ball game—it doesn't take place until the twenty-eighth anyway. Next week'll be time enough to run it."

The new editor enjoys a moment of earnest relief. The make-up man has rushed his last bit of ontested copy to the type-setter. In a short time the presses will be going. The paper will be published "as is." There will be no more additions or deletions now. It's too late for any new items. And the reputation of the Roseboro Tidings, onece more—at least with one Roseboro housewife and one juvenile dog-owner—is perfectly safe.—M. K. in the Christian Science Monitor.

"Why
My Next Car will be A FORD"

WHEN you buy a Ford there are two things you never have to worry about. One is reliability. The other is long life.

Here's an interesting letter from a Ford owner in North Carolina:

"My Ford was purchased May 8, 1928, and has been run 121,767 miles. It has never stopped on the road for repairs of any kind whatsoever except punctures.

"The brakes were relined at 101,000 miles. My gas mileage averaged 21 miles to the gallon, and on tires, 19,000 miles per tire. I travel over all kinds of road conditions—mountainous and flat.

"I consider this a wonderful record and I assure you my next car will also be a Ford."

This is just one of many tributes to the reliability and long life of the Ford. A Ford owner in Iowa tells of driving his Ford 73,000 miles in a single year. Another writes of 120,000 miles of good service.

Think ahead when you are considering the purchase of an automobile and consider what it will be like after thousands of miles of driving. Will you still be satisfied? Will you still say "it's a great car"?

If it's a Ford, you know everything will be O. K. It will be taking you there and back in good style, just as it has always done. And you will have saved many important, worth-while dollars in cost of operation and up-keep and low yearly depreciation.

SEPTEMBER

(By J. A. Hall, in the DeKalb (Ga.) New Era)

With deepening leaf tints and increasing haze spread over hill and valley, September draws to a close. September marks a profound change in the life cycle of the year—the change from the glaring heat of summer to the subdued sunlight and increasing mellowness of the autumn. September, with its shortening days and lengthening nights, brings new desires and activities. It calls the loitering vacationist home from his visit to other localities and sets his hand again to the performance of serious tasks. The mellowing sunlight paints a dash of deepening color on the cheek of the apple and sows the landscape with the splendor of the goldenrod and the purpling tints of the ironweed. And the long, drowsy hours invite the bee and the butterfly to lounge on the petals of belated blossoms and gather the concentrated remnants of nature's sweetest nectar.

September, with its changing hues, its lengthening shadows and its hazy hills, brings a softening of emotions and a subduing of desires. September spreads before the observer an enchanting picture and invites to restfulness and peace. Somewhere beyond the edge of autumn lie the days of chilling winds and long hours of dripping rain, and with these will come bare woods, sere fields and drab days wherein all nature seeks a cozy corner and involuntarily falls asleep.

There are not many Septembers in the life span of the average human being and few of us—tragically few can find the time to stroll out into the uncrowded world and pay even a brief visit to Sepetmber at home. It is the supreme tragedy of modern life that most of us race to and fro like so many blind ants, always hurrying to finish a task which is never finished, and we are unable to even become partially acquainted with this glorious and enchanting month as it passes our way in its swift annual pilgrimage. If we had a friend who every year contributed much to our enjoyment by spending a few weeks with us, we would very naturally feel obligated to take a little time from our work and seek to enjoy the presence of our benefactors. What friend could bring to us more restfulness and more beauty of field and woodland than autumn—autumn, introduced by Septemcr and escorted hence by November—autumn, the lavish dispenser of calmness, of delicious smells, drowsy afternoons, floating thistle down,—circling swallows—the supereme season of quietude and repose?

HELPS TO MAKE REDS AND GANGSTERS

(Louisville Courier-Journal, Dem.)

At a critical time in the affairs of our Nation, when every patriotic citizen is doing his best to help his fellow-man, to encourage true patriotism and discourage anarchistic bolshevism, it ill behooves any man or set of men to attack our President in such a manner as to arouse hate and dissatisfaction with all government.

A chain of newspapers recently carried on an absurd campaign demanding that the Federal Government declare martial law and put down gang activities in the various cities of the several States. When the President, burdened by the weight of large national and international affairs, gave no heed to them—if, indeed he was aware of their activity—these newspapers demanded of the Chief Executive of the Nation, in screaming type, "Are you suffering from sleeping sickness?"

This kind of talk breeds Reds. The President is entitled to the respect of every citizen because he is the head of the Nation. Newspapers which have a general circulation among persons of intelligence do not resort to this sort of tirade and abuse. The methods of the yellows, however, are calculated to, and do, have an effect upon the moronic style which reads them. This type of mind reasons, "They oughta do this" and "They oughta do that," when anything is amiss. This mind is a bit vague about who "they" is, but it generally means the President. He is blamed for dull business, low wages, unemployment, crop failure, the price of gasoline, high rent, traffic congestion, indigestion, bad streets and static.

Attorney General Mitchel calmly called attention to the fact that military law cannot step in to take over the police power of a State unless local authorities have been proved helpless and unless the State makes the request. Abusing the President only helps to build up that rebelliousness and hatred and contempt for authority which is responsible for gang activities.

Is This Present-day Journalism? Is a Question Asked by a Correspondent of The Republican, and Then Proceeds To Discuss It.

To the Editor of The Republican.

My attention was attracted on Saturday morning when I received copies of both the county papers and noticed upon reading the printed accounts of the court proceedings that in one of the papers—The Republican—every case brought to the attention of the Court was mentioned along with the sentences imposed, while in the other county paper it was rather odd that several matters, especially those in which Oakland people were involved, were not referred to in any manner whatever.

Is this modern journalism?

The simple fact that Mary Jones or John Smith, living in Oakland, and convicted in open court of a violation of the statutes,should not, in my opinion as a man who believes in upholding the law and that all men are equal before the Court, provide the editor with an excuse not to print the facts, while on the other hand the names of Mary Smith or John Jones or Jim Brown, living in Grantsville or in Deer Park or Kitzmiller are mentioned along with an account of the crime they had committed and their trial, conviction and sentence of the Court given prominence.

This kind of journalism is not fair to the public nor to the people who support the paper with their subscriptions and patronage in other ways.

Oakland violators of the law are no better, nor are they any worse for that matter, than Grantsville violators or Deer Park violators or Kitzmiller violators, and all should receive the same treatment and consideration.

A READER OF BOTH PAPERS.
Grantsville, September 28, 1931.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

On Sunday, September 27, the new Methodist Episcopal church in Oakland was dedicated in the presence of a large number. The sum of $2,100 on the indebtedness for the erection of the structure was contributed upon that day. The following night, at a meeting of the official board of the church "Father" Ralph Thayer was accorded the privilege of naming the church, and he decided that it should be known as "St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church of Oakland, Md."

At the organization meeting of the Junior Order of American Mechanics of Oakland officers were elected and included John T. Bonnett, Edward M. Spedden, James O. Cleveland, John D. Taggart, Charles Newman, Hamill S. Spedden, William Kildow, Charles Glotfelty, Samuel E. Boyer, J. Ed. Kildow, G. C. Little, William Weber and Edward I. West.

Mahlon C. Hinebaugh resigned his position as assistant Baltimore and Ohio agent in Oakland and went to Baltimore to resume his studies in Maryland University.

J. A. Feik, of near Accident, went to Chippewa Lake, Ohio, where he engaged in teaching at a salary of $45 per month.

Ex-Sheriff M. R. Hamill was in Oakland with many other members of the Democratic party where a convention for the purpose of nominating a county ticket was held.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Some person unknown, at a point near Dodge School house, north of Oakland, threw an empty bottle with terrific force at the automobile of S. T. Jones, which was being driven at the time by Mr. Jones' son, Harland L. Jones. Others in the machine at the time were G. A. Fraley and Joseph E. Harned. The missile struck the side of the car a few inches below the top of the door and was evidently thrown at the driver.

Miss Eleanor Hinebaugh was chosen editor-in-chief of the Oakland high school paper for a term of four weeks. Others on the editorial staff were Preston DeBerry, junior class; Morris Sincell, sophomore class; Playford Naylor, freshman class. There were eighty-four pupils enrolled—five seniors; fourteen juniors; eighteen sophomores and thirty-eight freshmen, with twelve commercial students. The faculty was composed of C. E. Bender, principal; Misses May Arnold, Emma Hamill, Elizabeth Leary and Daisy Hanna and Mr. H. A. Loraditch.

Misses Frances Hamill and Douglas Sincell went to Washington, D. C., where they entered a school for girls.

Paul Naylor, Wellington Crane and Ralph Weber returned to Oakland following a water trip via the Youghioghcny River and other water ways to Pittsburgh. The trip was made in a twenty-foot canoe. The party encamped at night on the banks of the river. The starting point was at Friendsville, the river being too rough to admit of canoeing from Oakland to Friendsville.

An Interesting Fact

LORD BALTIMORE LOSES MARYLAND

The Plundering Period

A brief sketch of events leading up to the interesting fact in Maryland history herein recorded is necessary in order that we may have a true perspective of the fast moving drama enacted both in England and in the American Colonies.

In the year 1642 the King and Parliament were engaged in actual warfare, the echo of which was heard in the new world, for the Maryland Colony had been settled a sufficient time for the development of fations, resulting in a sharp division between the "popular" faction on the one hand and a "class," or "governor's" faction on the other. The situation thus presented was not unusual, as this division of sentiment and allegiance is apparent at the present time.

This war in England and Ireland affected the affairs of Lord Baltimore at home and abroad. His estates in Ireland suffered, as well as those in America. His sympathies, like those of his father, were with the royal cause, but no doubt he realized that if he adhered strictly to the Stuart cause and the King should lose, he would be ruined. The conflict between King and Parliament raged until 1649, when the royal cause collapsed and the King was beheaded in London. Oliver Cromwell, after the death of the king, came to the head of the nation as "Lord Protector of the Commonwealth."

Although Lord Baltimore seems to have attempted to prescrve a neutral attitude in the great struggle, there were serious happenings in Maryland, which, togcther with the general restlcssness of the people, for a time threatened to end his rule in the Colony. Governor Leonard Calvert had gone to England in April, 1643, leaving Giles Brent to act as governor during his absence. When he returned to St. Mary's in September, 1644, he found that the activities of Richard Engle had precipitated real trouble in the Colony. Engle was a violent partisan of the Parliament and by reason of his loose talk and his threatening attitude, was arrested by order of acting-Governor Brent on the charge of "high treason to his Majesty." This brought Maryland face to face with the dreaded issue, for if Engle suffered punishment, the province was committed to the cause of the King, while if he were allowed to go free, it was committed to the cause of the Parliament. But it appears that Captain Cornwallis, who was in charge of the prisoner, solved the difficulty by allowing him to sail away in his own ship, for which offense the Captain was simply fined.

William Claiborne was still active in his efforts to stir up the inhabitants of Kent Island, who were inclined towards the cause of the King. Engle joined forces with Claiborne and when Governor Calvert returned in 1644 he found these two gentlemen making ready to invade the province.

Politics does indeed "make strange bedfellows," for Engle had letters from Parliament and Claiborne held an alleged commission from the King. However, whatever the reason for the friendship, it produced desired results, for Engle appeared before St. Mary's with a heavily armed ship and captured the town in February, 1645, while Claiborne recovered Kent Island. Governor Calvert fled to Virginia.

For nearly two years following Maryland was without any responsible governing head. Engle and his men plundered the plantations and carried off corn, tobacco and everything of value. The Great Seal of the colony (made of silver) and all the official records were stolen or destroyed. Governor Calvert, watching the course of events and biding his time, got together an armed force and recovered the province for Lord Baltimore and brought to an end what has been called "the plundering time" in Maryland.

Lutheran Conference Closes

Dr. R. T. Vorberg, Keyser, W. Va., was re-elected president of the conference of the West Virginia Lutheran Synod, which adjourned yesterday at St. Clara, W. Va. Other officers re-elected included Rev. W. E. Waybrigh, Red House, vice-president; Rev. Howard Amick, Whecling, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. John Aberly, of Gettysburg Seminary, preached the closing sermon on "Theological Education." The conferecne next year will be held at Friendsville.

Mr. S. W. Schooley, former county resident, is here today visiting relatives and friends.

STATE HEALTH SERVICE EXTENDED IN COUNTIES

Three State Units Join Those Having Full Time Work

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, announces the recent addition of three counties to the list of those that have full time health service. This makes a total of 17 out of the 23 counties of the State that have such service. The most recent additions to the list are Garrett and Dorchester counties. Worcester county, the third member of the trio, went on a full-time basis in June.

Dr. E. A. Jones, whose appointment as full-time county health officer for Dorchester county, was announced by Dr. Riley, has been deputy State health officer for Caroline and Dorchester counties. The full-time county health officer for Worcester county, Dr. Bradford Massey, was formerly deputy State health officer for Somerset and Worcester counties.

Dr. George E. Clarke, whose appointment as full-time county health officer for Garrett county was also announced by Dr. Riley, entered upon his duties on September 1. Dr. Clarke comes to Maryland from Washington, D. C., where he has been engaged in public health work for the past two years. He had his medical training at the University of Illinois and before going to Washington was connected with the health department of the City of Cleveland where he had special experience in activities for the control of communicable diseases and in prenatal and child hygiene work.

In addition to the seventeen counties that have full-time service, two—Charles and St. Mary's—form a sanitary district and share jointly in the full-time service of a deputy State health officer. The only counties that now have part-time service are Howard, Caroline, Queen Anne's and Somerset.

"Every county in the State," Dr. Riley said, "has its own full-time County Sperintendent of Schools. We hope that the time will come and that it will not be far distant, when every county will have its own full-time county health officer. The total estimated population of the counties is 840,166; the seventeen counties that have full-time service and the two that are combined into a sanitary district, have a total population of 768,000, and constitute 91.5 percent of the total population outside of Baltimore Ctiy, which has its own full-time Department of Health. The counties with part-time service, have a combined total population of over 71,000 and constitute 8.5 per cent of the population outside of Baltimore City.

"The first great advance in full-time health service was made in 1914, when the State was divided into sanitary districts. The next step came in 1922 when Allegany county, the first of the counties to have full-time health service, secured the services of a full-time health officer. Full-time county health service has been extended step by step as the advantages of such service have been realized by the people of the counties. Though great advances have been made, we are not going to be satisfied until the four part-time counties are on the full-time list."

Scouts Pass Merit Badges; To Hold Monthly Inspection.

Three first class Scouts of Oakland Troop, No. 1, passed seven merit badges at the regular monthly meeting of the Court of Honor held Monday night, according to Harland L. Jones, chairman of the court.

Those passing their examinations were John McIntire, swimming, cooking, first aid; Schell Hoye, first aid; James Treacy, swimming, life-saving, cooking. Schell Hoye was made a Life Scout, the last advancement until the scout reaches the goal of Eagle Scout.

Two boys applied for membership in the troop at the regular meeting last Friday, they being Edward Paugh and Laural Whipkey, and these will be enrolled as soon as their Tenderfoot tests have been passed.

The monthly inspection will be held tomorrow evening and the results will count in the selection of officers for the ensuing year, the scoutmaster said.

O. H. S. News

Elsewhere in this paper will be found an article regarding the trip made to the Frederick Fair, by five boys from the Vocational Agriculture Department of O. H. S. So that the students of the school may especially notice, we are tabulating the following record:

Out of twenty-nine teams competing in the judging of corn, Wayne Hamilton and Hagan Frazee, representatives of O. H. S., won first place. From among 18 teams in demonstration work, Wayne Fitzwater, Earl Spoerlein, and Wayne Hamilton won first place. Wayne Hamilton and George Porter were eighth out of the thirty-one teams particlpating in judging of cattle. Wayne Hamilton was elected vice-president of Maryland's Association of Future Farmers.

The first meeting of the Oakland chapter of Future Farmers was called for the purpose of having pictures taken by James Bell.

The first issue of the school paper will be ready for publication soon. So that more interest will be shown by the Freshman class, a prize will be given to the first Freshman Home Room having a hundred per cent subscription. Each person securing five or more subscriptions outside of the school will be given a year's free subscription.

Prespects seem rather bright for our soccer team. The line-up on Tuesday with Kempton High school will probably include Maroney, Wolf, H. Turney, W. Turney, Davis, Peddicord, G. Browning, Rice, Weber, Offutt, and McRobie. A squad of about twenty-five men have been reporting regularly for practice. It is planned to play a practice game with Oakland Independents on either Friday or Monday afternoon. All games will begin at two o'clock. Edwin Elias will referee.

The soccer and field ball schedules are as follows: Oct. 6, Kempton at Oakland; Oct. 9, Oakland at Kitzmiller; Oct. 13, Kitzmiller at Oakland; Oct. 16, Oakland at Kempton. The last three games on twenty-third, twenty seventh, and thirtieth will be played to decide the winner of the two divisions.

Mrs. E. V. Connell and sister, of Clarksburg, were visitors at the home of Mr. E. S. Smith, commercial teacher.

Wednesday afternoon the following were visitors of O. H. S.: W. K. Klingaman, State Supervisor; Mr. Thomas Gibson, State Supervisor of Music; Miss Elizabeth Amery, State Supervisor of Home Economics, and Mr. F. E. Rathbun of the School Board of Garrett county.

GRANTSVILLE

The coaches are Frank Getty and Mrs. Harley Spoerlein. The following officials have been elected: Captain fieldball, Mary Margaret Blocher; managers fieldball, Lena Custer and Pauline Patton; manager soccer, Geo. Murphy.

To Enter College

Clayton Diehl, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Diehl, has gone to Baltimore to resume his studies in the junior class of the Maryland Medical College.

Paul Livengood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Livengood, has enrolled as a student at the Bliss Electrical school at Washington, D. C.

To Attend Forest Festival

Little Miss Betty Beachy will accompany Miss Holmes and Miss Wallace to Elkins, W. Va., where, as Queen Mapleheart of the recent Tableland Festival, she will extend greetings to Queen Sylvia II, whose coronation will take place at the Forest Festival on Friday, October 2. Miss Mary Bevans will also be one of the party.

Returned To Grantsville

Rev. A. C. Bell has returned from the annual Methodist Conference held at Falrmont, W. Va., and has been assigned to the Grantsville charge for the coming year.

Harvest Home Service

The annual Harvest Home service will be held in the Reformed church here Sunday morning, at 10:30 by the pastor, Rev. M. A. Keefer.

RESOLUTIONS IN MEMORY OF G. S. HAMILL PRESENTED

Dean of Local Bar Honored In Death By Living Members

Resolutions memorializing the late Gilmor S. Hamill, at the time of his death dean of the Garrett County bar, were introduced in the Monday afternoon's session of the Circuit Court for Garrett County by Mr. Ernest Ray Jones, a member of the committee having in charge the drafting of the memorial. Attorneys Fred. A. Thayer and W. R. Offutt spoke on behalf of the local bar association and Judge Albert A. Doub responded for the Court, who directed that a copy of the resolutions be written into the court proceedings.

The resolutions as presented by Mr. Jones were as follows:

WHEREAS, On the seventh day of March, 1931, death again entered the ranks of the Garrett County Bar Association and took from our midst our friend and brother, Gilmor S. Hamill; and

WHEREAS, Our deceased brother had been in the active practice of law for more than fifty years and during that time by dint of energy and careful attention to the demands of our profession, had long since established himself in a position of leadership, and throughout the State was looked upon and revered as a lawyer of no mean ability; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Hamill was a leader not only in the legal profession, but also in the banking and other business circles of our county and was an outstanding figure in many other activities affecting the lives and the property of our people, always ready and willing to contribute both time and money to their welfare and advancement and interested vitally in the progress which the county has made in the years since he became an attorney shortly after it became a separate political unit of Maryland; and

WHEREAS, He was always of a friendly disposition, easy of approach and ready to give to those appealing to him the benefit of his years of experience and wisdom to help them in the solution of their problems, and was a friend well worth having; now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, That in the death of our brother Hamill, the dean of our Association, this bar has lost a member who reflected honor upon the profession through his attainments and his fidelity to the interests of his clients and to the many causes to which he gave support, and we have also lost a sincere and true friend whose kindly words and companionship have already been greatly missed and will be missed through the coming years; and be it further

RESOLVED, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Garrett County Bar Association: that the same be prescnted to the Circuit Court for Garrett County at its next term and that a copy of the same be sent to our brother's family.

E. R. JONES,
W. R. OFFUTT,
W. W. DAWSON,
Committee.

Garrett County Prisoner Makes Escape From Prison Farm

Officers have found no trace of I. J. Kelly, 34, of Oakland, first prisoner to escape from the new State prison farm at Roxbury, Washington county, who disappeared last night following a fire in the house where he was quartered.

The men on the prison farm are living in temporary quarters and are engaged in harvesting the crops on the farm. They are on their honor not to attempt to escape. No armed guards are placed over the men, all of whom are first offenders, sent to the camp from the House of Correction and the State Penitentiary.

Kelly, who was missed during a roll call after the fire, was sent to the House of Correction for two years following his conviction in the Circuit Court of Garrett County on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He gave several worthless checks to Oakland merchants under the assumed name of J. Strader.

Prison officials said the escape of Kelly was the first break at the prison farm since the prisoners arrived there more than six months ago, and when apprehended Kelly will be returned to the House of Correction to complete his term of imprisonment.

Miss Elizabeth Amery, State supervisor of vocational home economics, visited the home economics departments of the various schools. She was accompanied by Miss Edna Amidon, Federal agent for vocational home economics.

Mr. Thomas L. Gibson, State supervisor of music, spent several days in the schools of the county, and Miss I. Jewel Simpson, assistant State superintendent of schools, spent several days with the school supervisors, Miss Flossie Skidmore, Miss Gladys Hamill, and Miss Kate Bannatyne.

Boys' Band To Continue Work

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland will continue its activities under the joint directorship of Russell Brown, assistant bandmaster at present, and Julius B. Littman, it has been learned. Mr. Brown will have charge of the meetings and direct the members, while Mr. Littman will be the business manager.

The older band members, Frank Lyon, Hugh Teets and others, will assist Mr. Brown in the practice sessions, which are held every Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

R. R. Gilbert, organizer of the band and its present director, will probably leave for Buckhannon, West Va., early next week to assume his new position there as superintendent for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

Knights of Pythias Fall Program To Get Under Way Friday

Friday, October 2, will be the beginning of a series of programs for the local Knlghts of Pythias lodge which will be held during the fall and winter months, it has been announced. Lodge will open at 7:30 p. m. instead of at 8:00 o'clock, and every member of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, is cordially invited to this meeting which will be a farewell gathering in honor of Roland R. Gilbert, organizer and director of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland.

E. R. Jones will talk on "Community Building and its Enterprises," and W. W. Dawson will be master of ceremonies.

Edward P. Kahl, manager of the K. of P. Labor Day picnic committee, will make a thorough report on "the whys and whcrefores, or where do we come out on the last picnic?"

To Take Up Deaconess Work

Miss Pauline Hauser, a graduate of Oakland High School, class of 1931, of Oakland, and Mlss Virginia Wolfe, of Red House, also a graduate of the local school in 1931, left Oakland this morning with the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Waybright, of Red House, for Baltimore where the two girls will begin their training as Lutheran deaconesses in the Baltimore Lutheran Deaconess mother-house.

30,000 ARE EXPECTED AT ELKINS FOREST FESTIVAL

Festivities of Mountain Forest Fete Will Open Today

Persons from many sections had begun to gather in Elkins as early as last night for the second annual Mountain State Forest festival, an early contingent of Elks being among those to gather for the State convention, which runs concurrently with the festival.

Tours are scheduled for today and the mardi gras and cabaret dance in the evening. Senator Harry B. Martin expects several hundred to line up for the one hundred-mile tour through the Monongahela National Forest and for the two tours starting at 2 p. m.

30,000 Expected at Fete

It is anticipated that 30,000 will flock to Elkins for the festival this year, more than twice the num'er that attended last year's event.

With the old-time riding tournament, the Elkins-Victory football game, the coronation of Queen Silvia II, the music pageant, the reception to Queen Silvia and her court, and the Pan-Hellenic dance scheduled for Friday a maximum of attendance probably will be reached that day.

Program for Saturday

Saturday, however, with the wood-chopping and sawing contest, the parade, the address by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, the Davis and Elkins-South Dakota Wesleyan football game, thirty rounds of boxing, and the Queen's ball, is expected to be a close rival to Friday in attendance. The competition of drum and bugle corps from three States also is a Saturday event.

The streets are decorated to welcome Elks and other visitors, and local windows are showing dozens of forestry scenes and products.

The Crellin Band, the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, and the junior drum and bugle corps, will take part in Saturday's parade.

A Garrett County Girl Teaching at Harrisburg, Pa.

Miss Eula Guthrie has taken up her work as supervisor-teacher of home economics in the Lower Paxton high school at Harrisburg, Pa. Miss Guthrie reeived her degree from Juniata College at Huntingdon, Pa. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Guthrie, of Friendsville.

New Feed Store in Oakland

Arrangements were recently completed and a new feed store was opened in the Dixon building on Liberty street, Oakland, known as Oakland Cash Feed Store, with S. B. Aronhalt, of Oakland in charge.

The Oakland Cash Feed Store is featuring a line of Kasco Poultry, Dairy, Hog and Stock Feeds and will do business on a cash basis, according to the manager in charge.

The store, besides merchandising feeds, will maintain a service to assist poultrymen in culling flocks, showing dairymen how to produce more milk from their cows and prevent a loss through improper feeding.

Entertainment In Honor of Mr.. R. R. Gilbert, Band Director

Following the regular band practice period on Tuesday night, Mr. R. R. Gilbert, retiring director, who is leaving Oakland for Buckhannon, W. Va., was entertained by members of the band and the band auxiliary. On behalf of the band and the auxiliary, Mrs. Ralph Weber, of near Oakland, presented Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert with a set of Community plate silverware in token of their appreciation for the many hours spent in instructing and directing the band. Refreshments were served.

Citizens Asked To Keep Town Clean and Not Scatter Trash

A discussion was held on Tuesday among members of the Oakland Civic Club concerning the dumping of rubbish and refuse on other people's property with the result it blows over the streets of Oakland and gives the town a bad and unsightly appearance.

The members of the organization would like to remind the townspeople of a law passed at the last session of the Legislature governing the dumping or throwing of refuse.

The law states that it shall be unlawful for any person to throw, dump or deposit any trash, junk or other refuse upon the land or property of another without the written consent of the owner; or to throw, dump or deposit any trash, junk or other refuse upon any public highway in the State of Maryland. Violators of this law may be fined from $5 to $50 or be imprisoned not less than 30 days nor more than 90 days, or both.

State Gardeners Complaining Of Blight In Delphinium

Many gardeners of the State are reporting trouble with blight in their Delphinium, which attacks both annual and perennial piants. According to Mr. C. E. Temple, Specialist on Plant Pathology of the Extension Service, University of Maryland, as the spores are readily disseminated on the shoes and tools it is highly important that the soil, which has been infected with diseased plants, be carefully disinfected.

According to Mr. Temple, the disease often forms sclerota at the base of the plant which begin as little club shaped masses of tan-brown or dark red-brown bodies about the size of mustard seed or bird shot when mature.

Mr. Temple recommends formaldehyde 1-240 applied at the rate of ¾ quart per square foot. The ground should first be dug up and the soil thoroughly pulverized. If the treated soil can be kept covered for a time the treatment will be more effective.

CHAPTER LVIII

The Meuse-Argonne offensive opened the morning of September 26. To call it a battle may be a misnomer, yet it was a battle, the greatest, most prolonged in American history. Through 47 days we were engaged in a persistent struggle with the enemy to smash through his defenses.

The attack started on a front of 24 miles, which gradually extended until the enemy was being actively assailed from the Argonne forest to the Moselle river, 90 miles.

In all more than 1,200,000 were employed and the attack was driven 32 miles to the north and 14 miles to the northeast before the armistice terminated hostilities.

The outstanding fact that I desire to emphasize is that, once started, the battle was maintained continuously, aggressively and relentlessly to the end.

All difficulties were overridden in one tremendous sustained effort to terminate the war then and there in a victorious manner.

Battle Opens Favorably.

After three hours' violent artillery preparation the attack began at 5:30 a. m. At the same time, to divert the enemy's attention elsewhere, local raids and demonstrations were made on the Meuse-Moselle front. The French Fourth army (Gouraud), to our left on the west of the Argonne forest, begnn its attack half an hour later.

The battle opened favorably. Our attack at thnt particular place and at that time evidently came ns a surprise to the enemy, and our troops were enabled quickly to overrun his forwnrd positions.

The vast network of undestroyed barbed wire, the decp ravines, dense woods and heavy fog made it difficult to co-ordinate the movements of the assaultiag infantry, especially of some divisions in battle for the first time, yet the advance throughout was extremely vigorous.

Third Corps Reaches Second Line.

The Third corps (Bullard), nearest the Meuse, carried the enemy's second position before dark. The Thirty-third division (Bell), wheeling to tbe right as it advanced, occupied the west bank of the Mense to protect the flank of the army. The Bois de Forges, with its difficult terrain and strong mnchine gun defenses, was carried in splendid fnshion.

The right of the Eightieth division (Cronkite) had by noon cleared the Bois Jure la the face of heavy machine gun fire and established its line north of Dannevoux. On its left, after an nll-day fight, the division forced its way through the strong positions on hill 262 and reached the northern slopes of that hill.

The Fourth division (Hines), on the left of the Eightieth, took Septarges nnd firmly established itself in the woods to the north. It was abreast of Nantillois and its left was more than a mile beyond Montfaucon, but through some misinterpretation of the orders by the Third corps the opportunity to capture Montfancon that day was lost. Three counter-attacks against the division during the afternoon were broken up.

Fifth Corps Falls Short.

In the center the Fifth corps (Cameron), with the exception of the Ninety-first division (Johnston) on its left, fell short of its objectives.

The Seventy-ninth division (Kuhn), on the right of the corps, took Malancourt, but in the open ground beyond encountered considerable opposition, and the ndvanced elements were not in position before Montfaucon until late afternoon. The attack of the division launched against this strong point early in the evening was met by the fire of artillery and machine guns from the southern slopes of the hill, which held up further progress.

The Thirty-seventh division (Farnsworth), in the center of the Fifth corps, after overcoming heavy machine-gun fire, pushed through the the Bois de Montfaucon, and its attacks in the nfternoon carried the line up to and west of Montfaucon. Tlie left of its line, facing stiff opposition, cleaned up the woods in its front and established itself just south of Ivoiry.

The Ninety-first division (Johnston) overcame strong initial resistance and advanced rapidly to Epinonville, which it entered bnt did not hold. Crossing into the sector of the Thirty-fifth division, during the day it occupied Very.

First Corps Makes Progress.

On the left of the army the First corps (Liggett) made excellent progress. The Thirty-fifth division (Traub) cleverly captured the strong position of Vauquois nnd took Cheppy ngainst stubborn opposition. Elements of the division reached the corps objective east of Charpentry, but were soon withdrawn to a line west of Very. On the left the division captured that part of Varennes east of the Aire river, but was held up between Vnrennes and Cheppy. At this time a fresh regiment took the lead, giving a new impetus to the attnck, nnd pushed the line forward to the high ground south of Charpentry.

In the Twenty-eighth division (Muir) the right brignde captured the western limit of Varennes and continued about a mile farther. The left brigade, facing the eastern spurs of the Argonne, which constituted the enemy's chief defense of that forest, was unable to overcome the intense machine-gun fire from the vicinity of Champ Mnhaut. The Seventy-seventh division (Alexander) in the difficult terrnin of the Argonne made some progress.

Advances Continue.

By the evening of September 27 the Fifth corps wns abreast of the First and the Third on its flanks. The Seventy-ninth division captured Montfaucon the morning of September 27 and on the next day Nantillois and the Bois de Beuge were passed despite determined resistance.

In the Third corps the Eightieth division had taken the Bois de la Cote Lamont after hard fighting, but attack after attack made with dogged determination across the open space toward Brieulles-sur-Meuse was rolled back by the gnlling fire of the enemy from the town and its vicinity and by the artillery firing from east of the Meuse.

The Thirty-third division maintained its position September 27 and 28 and on September 29 relieved the Eightieth division by extending its left nlong the northeastern edge of Bois de la Cote Lamont, where it occupied difficult ground under the dominating heights east of the Meuse.

The Fourth division captured Nnntillois September 27, but wns forced hy enemy counter-attneks to retire. The town wns retaken nnd held on the following day by troops of the Fourth and Seventy-ninth divisions. After three days of almost continuous fighting the Fourth had taken the Bois de Brieulles and entered the Bois de Ogous, but could not hold the latter ngainst counter-attncks and the deadly machine-gun and nrtillery fire of the enemy. The fortitude and courage of the Fourth division in these operations were inspiring.

Meet Strong Resistance.

The Thirty-seventh division on September 27 attempted to advance beyond the Ivoiry-Montfaucon road, but each time it reached there was driven back hy heavy shelling. On September 28, however, it pushed forward to a position north of the Clerges-Nantillois road. Clerges was entered, but not held. The following day the division ngain attacked Clerges, bnt the advance was abruptly halted by concentrated artillery fire.

The Ninety-first division on September 27 encountered strong opposition at Epinonville, which was reached, but could not be retained. Eclisfontaine was taken, but was evacuated, as an artillery hnrrage was to he laid on the road through the town the following day.

Epinonville was finally cnptured September 28, and the Bois de Clerges was occupied after hnrd fighting. Two attneks of the division from the Bois de Clerges on September 29 crumbled under fierce artillery and enfilading machine-gun fire, but on the third attack, despite severe losses, Gesnes was taken.

The full advantage of this important gain was lost, however, through the inability of the Thirty-seventh division to advnnce its left. This placed the right flunk on the Ninety-first in a dangerous position, and it had to be withdrawn. During the afternoon the Thirty-fifth division was subjected to a heavy counter-attack, which also involved the left of the Ninety-first, but mnde no progress against it.

Battle Grows More Intensive.

Three new German divisions had appeared by September 30 on the front of the First corps, and the battle continned with increased intensity.

The Thirty-fifth division was stopped by heavy fire soon after its attack opened, September 27, but later in the day it captured Charpentry and advanced to the ridge northeast, though suffering severe casunities. Montrebeau wood was taken September 28, and early next morning a detachment reached Exermont valley, but, being nearly surrounded, withdrew to the starting point. Encountering very heavy artillery fire and an advance of the German Fifty-second and Fifth guard divisions, the Thirty-fifth withdrew from Montrebean wood, which it had taken the day before. The Thirty-fifth suffered heavier casualties than any other division during these four days of continuous fighting.

The Twenty-eighth division, though subjected to strong artillery and machine-gun fire from the bluffs of the Argonne, captured Montblainville September 27. It could make slight headway against firm opposition from positions in the vicinity of Champ Mahnut, but carried them on September 28, and also captured Apremont. On September 29, after repulsing a German counter-attack, a slight advance was made ngainst the defenses of Le Chene Tondu.

The Seventy-seventh encountered stiff resistance in the Argonne September 27, and was held to a small gnin, but moved forward nbout a mile on September 28. Next day its right was advanced with little opposition.

During the first four days of fighting the First nrmy, west of the Meuse, had made a mnximum advance of about eight miles, reaching the Bois de in Cote Lemont-Nantillois-Apremont. The enemy had been struck a blow so powerful that the extreme gravity of his situation in France was obvious to him.

CHAPTER LIX

The second phase of the Meuse-Argonne operation, the period from October 1 to 11, involved the heaviest strain on me and the army.

There was little time to make readjustments among the troops, heavily engnged, without giving tbe enemy a respite in which to strengthen his defenses and bring up reserves.

The general nttack was resnmed at 5 a. m. on October 4, meeting desperate resistance by the enemy. In this nttack, the Fourth division of the Third corps, in three days' bitter fighting, cnptured and held the Bois de Plays, making a gain of over a mile. Advances lato the Bois le Peut de Faux were forced hack by vicious counter-nttncks. In similar hard fighting the Eighteenth division gained a foothold in the Bois des Ogons, against very heavy machine gun fire.

In the nttack of the Fifth corps, the Third division pushed forward in the face of strong resistnnce. During the next two days this division extended its gains, but could make no headway against the Bois de Cunel. The Thirty-second division, which bad taken Clerges October 1, advanced to just south of Gesnes on the fourth despite very severe hostile fire, and next day captured that town.

On the left of the army, the First corps was very successful. The First division in a fine display of power on October 4, drove a deep wedge into the enemy's line. This was of great value in affording space for the attack toward the Argonne to be launched later.

The fightiag here was characterized by the stubborn nature of the German resistance and the offensive spirit of the division.

Case of the "Lost Battalion."

The right of the Twenty-eighth division fought its way down the Aire river in liaison with the First and captured Chehery. The left of the division encountered much opposition and made but slight gains, notwithstanding its repeated attacks. The division was now facing west for nearly three miles along the Aire river. The Seventy-seventh division between September 29 aad October 4 continued its attacks in the Argonne, advancing about a mile over difficult terrain.

In the assault of October 2 a mixed battalion of the division moved forwnrd more rapidly than the troops on its right and left, aad became completely surrounded by the enemy. It became popularly known as the "Lost Battalion."

For four days every effort of the division to relieve this beleaguered force was unsuccessful, nnd every effort of the Germans to force its surrender was without avail.

French Call for Help.

In the meantime the French Fourth army on our left lind been held up at Blanc Moat. As a consequence, Marshal Foch appealed to me for assistance. Although I wns loath to spare any troops from our front, so serious was our own situation, I sent, in accordance with my promise, the Second division (Lejeune), which was followed later by the Thirty-sixth (W. R. Smith).

October 3 the Second division, accompanied by French tanks, in a brilliant maneuver against heavy machiue gun resistance, stormed and captured the dominating German positions on the Medeah Farm-Blanc Mont Ridge, and continued on townrd St. Etienne, which was tnken on October 8 with the nid of one brigade of the Thirty-sixth division. This success carried forwnrd the French divisions on its right nnd left and, as reported by General Gouraud, cnabled the whole Fourth army to advance.

Our Second Army Organized.

The broadening of the front of attack to the enst of the Meuse and the probability that we should soon become engnged along our whole line made it advisable to establish another army. Accordingly, the Second army was formed with its front extending from the Moselle to Fresnes-en-Woevre, and placed under the command of Major General Bullard on the twelfth. The remainder of our front from Fresnes-en-Woevre to the Argonne forest, inclusive, was left under the First army, to which Major General Liggett was assigned. Both commanders were recommended to me for promotion to lieutenant general.

My status now became tbnt of commander of a group of nrmies. Major General Summerall was placed in commaad of the Fifth corps to relieve Major General Cameron, who was given command of the Fourth division. Major General Hines was promoted to the command of the Third corps in place of General Bullard. Major General Dickman, commanding the Fourth corps, was given the First eorps and Major General Muir the Fourth.

These ehaages generally took effect October 12 but I retained direct command of tbe First army until the sixteenth.

CHAPTER LX

The Meuse-Argonne operations carried out between October 7 and 11 consisted of four specific attacks, as follows:

(1) October 7, The First corps, employing the Eighty-second division between the First and Twenty-eighth divisions, attacked the eastern edge of the Argonne forest.

(2) October 8. The French Seventeenth corps, re-enforced by the American Thirty-third and Twenty-ninth divisioas, attacked east of the Meuse on the front Beaumont-Brabant-sur-Meuse, with the object of seizing the heights there.

(3) October 9. The Fifth corps, reenforced by including within its front the First division, to which was attached n brigade from the Ninety-first division, attacked the heights of the Bois de Romagne.

(4) October 10-11. A general attack on the 20-mile front from Beaumont west to the Aire river.

The French Fourth army had not been able to keep abreast of the American First army, nnd it was evident that clearing the Argonne forest would materially aid its advance. The opportunity presented itself jnst at this time. Although on October 6 the enemy continued to hold the heights of Cunel aad Romagne, nevertheless sufficient space had been secured along the Aire river to warrant an attack to the west with the object of striking the rear of the enemy's positions in the Argonne forest.

There was another important factor that entered into the decision to force the withdrawal of the enemy from the Argonne. This was the predicament of the "Lost Battalion," which under Maj. C. W. Whittlesey had been holding out near Binnrville since October 2.

Efforts to relieve the battalion had so far been unsuccessful, and the men had consumed their rations and expended most of their ammunition, although our aviators had tried to drop small amounts to them. The battalion was resisting heroically against great odds, without any thought of surrender.

Pursuant to the plan an attack was mnde by the Twenty-eighth and Eighty-second divisions against the left and rear of the enemy's positions in the region of Chatel-Chehery and Cornay. After a night march of eight miles the Eighty-second division (Duncan) entered the line between the Twenty-eighth (Muir) and the First (Summerall). In a series of daring movements to the west by the Twenty-eighth and Eighty-second divisions, Cornay, Chatel-Chehery and the dominating hills northwest of Apremont were captured.

Although the continued operation of these two divisions was attended by severe fighting the results were immedinte. The enemy was forced to withdraw from that region, the Argonne forest was cleared, and the Seventy-seventh division was enabled to advance to the relief of its "Lost Battalion." It then pushed on to the north in pursuit of the retreating enemy.

East of the Meuse.

General Claudel's French Seventeenth corps, east of the Meuse, attacked October 8 with the object of seizing the heights northwest of Beaumont. At that time it consisted of two French and two American divisions, the Thirty-third and Twenty-ninth, making the corps in numerical strength two-thirds American. Though opposed by strong German resistance the assault was successfully directed hy General Claudel, and our lines were advanced during the next few days to the commanding ground between Beaumont and Richeue Hill.

In a well-conducted operation the Thirty-third division (Bell) crossed the Meuse early October 8 hy bridges constructed during the night, captured Consenvoye, and progressed up the neighboring slopes. The following dny a further advance was made, but heavy fire from the Borne de Cornouiller and the failure of the troops on the right to keep up forced a retirement to the morning line. This ground was retaken despite strong resistance, and by night of the 10th the division had established itself on the west slopes of Richeae Hill.

The Fifty-eighth brigade of the Twenty-ninth division (Morton), under command of the French Eighteenth division, against considerable opposition pushed forward into the woods south of Richene Hill on the 8th, and during the next two days completed the capture of those woods. On the 11th, the Twenty-ninth division took command of its Fifty-eighth brigade. Its Fifty-seventh brigade, still under the French Eighteenth division, on the 12th made important gains in the Bois d'Ormont.

In conjunction with the operations by the French Seventeenth corps, the Fifth corps (Cameron) attacked in force October 9 and continued its efforts the next two days. The Third division (Buck) progressed on the 9th, and after fierce fighting seized Madeleine farm, which had previously proved n stumbling block, nnd partly cleared the Bois de Cunel. The following day it completed the capture of that wood and on the 11th extended its gains to the northwest.

The Thirty-second division (Haan) reached Romagne October 9 and penetrated the enemy trenches on Cote Dame Marie on the 10th, but was driven from the latter and established its lines on the southern slopes of the hill.

Ninety-First Suffers Heavy Casualties.

The Ninety-first division (Johnston), on the left of the Thirty-second division, fought nll day on the 9th for Hill 255, suffering heavy casualties, nnd the following day occupied the position. The advance then continued until stopped on Hill 288 and the Cote Dame Marie. The division was relieved the night of October 11.

The First division. (Summerall), in a resolute attack, captured the difficult enemy positions on nnd near Hill 272 on the 9th, and established its line on the 10th north of the Cote de Maldnh. It also was relieved on the 11th. During the operations of the 9th and 10th, the One Hundred nnd Eighty-first brigade (John B. McDonald) of the Ninety-first division was attached to the First division, being transferred to the Thirty-second division on the night of the 10th.

The advance of the Third corps (Bullard) was bitterly contested by the enemy, but October 10 the Fourth division (Hines) fought its way forward beyond the Cunel-Brieulles road. Two determined assaults against the Bois de Pent de Faux were broken up, but on the third attempt the northern edge of that wood was attained. The division gained the far side of the Bois de Foret on the 11th against severe opposition.

The Eightieth division (Cronkhite), on the 9th, in the face of very heavy fire, pushed forward to a short distance north of the Bois des Ogons. The division's attacks continued, and when relieved two days later it had reached a line slightly south and east of Cunel.

On the front of the First corps (Liggett) the opposition encountered on the 10th was less determined, and the Eighty-second division (Duncan) by midnight had established its line beyond Marcq, while the line of the Seventy-seventh division (Alexander) ran westward from there. On the 11th, however, the fighting was severe, yet the Eighty-second, regardless of heavy casualties, advanced to a position north of Sommerance. This town, though in the sector of the First division, was occupied by the Eighty-second to protect its own flank.

The night of October 11 our line ran from east to west roughly as follows: Molleville farm—Bois de la Cote Lemont—part of Bois de Foret—south of Cote Dame Marie—Sommerance—Grandpre.

While these operations on our First army front were in progress, the Thirtieth division of the Second corps (Read) attacked October 8 as part of the British Fourth army, aiding materially in the general advance of that army. The attack, although meeting considerable opposition, was successful, and the progress continued three days. When relieved the night of the 11th, the Thirtieth division had driven the enemy back seven miles nnd had reached the Selle river.

MARYLAND LICENSE TAGS CHOSEN FROM 17 SAMPLES

Next Year's Plates To Combine Samples of Two Forms

When Maryland automobile owners receive their 1932 license plates they will place on their machines the choice of seventeen samples, subjected to weather tests and other examinations for the quality of enamel and metal by the State Purchasing Bureau.

Next year's tags will be the combination of the background of one sample with numerals of another, Cyril A. Keller, Assistant State Purchasing Agent, said last Saturday.

Printed at Penitentiary.

Four sets of each sample are printed by prisoners at the Penitentiary, Mr. Keller said.

Two sets are immediately sealed in envelopes, while the others are mounted on two wooden frames. One frame is set up on the west side of the institution and one on the east. Then they are exposed to the weather for six or seven months.

Comparison Made

At the end of that time the most weathered frame is sent to the State Purchasing Bureau with the sealed samples for comparison. This year the frame contained samples ranging from comparatively fresh ones to those on which the background had faded and the numerals had disappeared.

The samples of two firms gave the best results this year, Mr. Keller said. They will be combined to form the tags for the coming year.

AVOID COLDS IS ADVISE OF NEW HEALTH OFFICER

Warns Against Exposure During Changing Weather

Colds are spread among individuals through the discharges from the nose and throat. When you do catch cold go to bed and call your physician, is the advise of Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer. One day in bed at the onset of a cold really saves you money. If you try to keep up you lose time, weight, and energy besides putting yourself in condition to contract that dread aftermath of colds—pneumonia. During this changeable weather, avoid over-heating and over-eating, drink plenty of water, dress warmly, sleep plenty with your windows wide open, get plenty of exercise, and above all things shun the individual with a nose cold.

Examinations Continue

The examination of the school children has continued throughout the past week with an ever increasing response to the protection of the children against diphtheria. There are no bad effects from the present method of protection, Dr. Clarke stated. Occasionally children over 12 years of age have a slight fever and are sick for a few hours. This quickly passes away, however, and the protection against such a disastrous disease as diphtheria is worth the illness of the reaction. Children under 12 are as a rule not affected in any way by the administration of toxoid.

Dr. Clarke advises parents to protect the children's health in another way, the proper care of the teeth. Many of the pupils have bad teeth that could easily and inexpensively be corrected before winter sets in. Help your children avoid toothache by having their teeth examined and treated by your dentist. Buy your child a tooth brush and teach him or her the habit of thoroughly cleansing the teeth after each meal. Your druggist or teacher can provide your children with brushes at any price you can pay. Clean teeth are less apt to decay than dirty ones, and properly cleaned teeth can prevent the spread of decay but you must send your child to your dentist to have the old cavities filled.

Monthly Report Made

For the month of September the following diseases were reported for the county:

Whooping cough, 18; pneumonia, 4; typhoid, 1; scarlet fever, 1; chicken pox, 1.

REPORTS AND DISCUSSION FEATURE CIVIC CLUB MEET

Sewing For Needy Children of County to Continue This Year

The regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Civic Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward H. Sincell.

The work of sewing for the needy children of the county will be carried on again this winter by Civic Club members, it was decided at this meeting, and the hope was expressed that the work will be entered upon as enthusiastically as it was last year by the people of Oakland and surrounding communities.

It was reported that during the time of the Garrett County Fair tags and candy were sold which netted the club $43.86, and the members desire to thank every one who contributed to these funds.

A report on the new municipal park showed that the work was going forward, and it was stated that the people of the community are showing a greater interest as they realize just what such a park can mean to the town and its citizens. At the recent corn roast on the park grounds a visitor, Mrs. George Lawton, of Lutherville, Md., made a donation of a rustic bench for the park. A donation of $100 from Mr. Lawson Loar, of Clarksburg, W. Va., has also been made, which will assist materially in making Washington Spring Park ready to be a part of the National celebration of the Washington be-Centennial in 1932.

Word has been received from points in the East and as far West as California of interested folks who are watching the home paper as to the progress being made, Miss Lottie Loar, president of the Oakland Civic Club, who made the report, stated.

"To be accessible to the people of Oakland it is necessary to have a safe approach to the park, and in order to do this a bridge will have to be built across the Little Youghiogheny River," Miss Loar said.

Miss Thekla Fundenberg has started a fund for this purpose by donating $20. With gifts of this kind coming in from interested individuals and organizations, this bridge would soon be a part of the Park.

Following the business meeting of the club, Mrs. Harold H. Harned gave a resume of her recent visit to the Cleveland Flower Show, which was held during the early days of September. The show draws exhibits from the entire United States and Canada, and commercial displays, table decorations, bouquets and corsages as well as the gladioli show, which was of particular interest to Mr. and Mrs. Harned.

MT. LAKE PARK

According to an ordinance passed by the Mayor and Town Council last Saturday evening, it is now unlawful to shoot or otherwise kill and destroy grey squirrel and quail, or bob white, within the limits of the Park. The penalty for violating this ordinance is not less than five dollars, nor more than twenty-five, for the first offense, and not less than twenty-five nor more than fifty dollars for each offense thereafter. This is good news for all who take pleasure in the wild life of the Park.

The streets, alleys and culverts are undergoing repair under the personal supervision of the Mayor.

The joke is on one of our citizens who stood for ten minutes in front of the court house watching an expected cat and dog fight in the rear of the Dr. Selby home. Much to the disgust, after spending some valuable time, the fight did not occur. The animals which appeared to be about engaged in mortal combat, were merely iron images.

We are advised that at the last conference of the M. E. church at Fairmont, Rev. Gregory Blakely was called to the pastorate of the church here to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. L S. Middaugh.

While we are glad to welcome Rev. Blakely as the resident pastor, at the same time the many friends (and they are very many) of Rev. and Mrs. Middaugh will regret to see them depart from the Park. They have indeed won the love and esteem of all with whom they have come in contact.

Personals

Mrs. Elizabeth Talson and guest, Mrs. Robert Hazlett, motored to their home in Wheeling Sunday, after spending the summer here.

Mrs. R. L. Cunningham and son, L. M. Cunningham, were the guests of friends here Sunday.

Mr. Charles A. Oswell has returned from a motor trip to New York. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. McCutcheon, who has been visiting here.

Mrs. Thomas Rodgerson and sister, Mrs. Daisy Hicks, motored to Natural Bridge, Va., this week.

Mr. Rosco Brown, of the New River Gas Company, of Marietta, Ohio, is spending several days at Park View Lodge with Mrs. Brown.

Mr. Ralph Finnell, of the Internal Revenue force, Parkersburg, W. Va., was the guest of his mother, Mrs. Mary Busselle, and sister, Miss Myrtie Finnell, this week.

Mrs. Harry Brann has returned from a trip to New York and is occupying her cottage.

Postmaster and Mrs. Herbert C. Leighton were guests of relatives and friends in Fairmont Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. H. Simpson and guest, Miss Seeds, motored to Cincinnati, O., Monday.

Mrs. William Chesley has closed her cottage and returned to her home in Washington, D. C.

Capt. B. W. Hardesty, who has been confined to his bed for the past few weeks, is much improved in health.

Mr. McCabe and daughter, Mrs. Allie Pitcher, have returned to their home in Wheeling, after spending the summer here.

Division Superintendent Laughlin is a sure-enough booster for the Park. In introducing the writer to some friends in Cumberland the other day he referred to him as "a friend from his home town," We need more like him.

Miss Octavia Hicks, of the Deaconess' Home, left for Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday. From there she will go to Pasadena, California, where she will spend the winter months, returning here in the spring.

Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Carr have returned after a brief visit in Fairmont, West Va.

Mr. Wiley Welling, Jr., wife and child are the guests of the parents of the former, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley W. Welling.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

What's the matter with this county and the farmers in it? I haven't yet received an apple to place upon my desk for exhibition purposes and after all I said about it last week. The desk is still as bare as the streets of Glasgow would be if they had a tag day in Scotland. Lizzie Tish, the girl in the front office, heard me complain about the laxity of the farmers in bringin' in fruit so she brought in some fine grapes from her plantation on the edge of town—and they were good.

I found out that the radio that brot in all the conglomeration last week about the minister, poultry and good roads, was a railroad type of radio—the kind that whistles at every station.

Since the depression party last Friday night at Archibaldson's house, when the guests turned the tables on the host and hostess and brought presents, such as greens, cabbage, carrots, loaf of bread, soap and soap flakes, simlin, can of tomatoes, several potatoes and an unmarked can (contents as yet unknown) we have been having nothing to eat except gifts (soap and soap flakes excepted).

During these hardened times that is the kind of party to have. Archibaldson says they have made out fine this week with no other expense than the water, gas, coal, electric and tax bills, and if the prize winners hadn't been so contrary they would have profited by $11.81. The plan was to present the prizes and then have them for refreshments, but Neil Fraley wouldn't let his bacon go; Mrs. Paul McIntire wouldn't open her box of cakes, and Mrs. Berne Teter wouldn't even open up her box of sugar to sweeten the coffee, so everybody had to take it black and strong. The peach preserves, intended for dessert, stayed in the jar and Mrs. Mit Sincell carried it home where it could be divided into larger portions.

There was nothing left to do then but cut up the apple pies that Mrs. Archie had planned to keep over Sunday, and send Archie for some ice cream. This, of course, cut the profit on the evening's entertainment, and it is doubtful whether they made four per cent on their investment.

With Neil Fraley, Berne Teter, Paul McIntire, Bet Dawson, Cecil Smith, Hugh Teets, Mit Sincell and Archibaldson in one room and (don't forget their wives), it isn't any wonder that I had to wait until today to say what I had to say. You'd never get half a hance with that gang together in telling bed-time stories.

In The Hall of Fame

Now, if that isn't a combination for you. And the poses would knock your eye out.

INSTALL PATROL SYSTEM IN LOCAL GRADE SCHOOL

Supervisor of the Cumberland Branch, Automobile Club of Maryland, Inaugurates System

PROCEDURE IS EXPLAINED

Under the guidance of Mayor Grover C. Stemple and Principal Stier of Oakland Grammar school, in conjunction with the Cumberland branch of the Automobile Club of Maryland and A. A. A., this week the "School Boy Patrol System" has been inaugurated in the school by Supervisor Derrick Swindells.

This system, when properly operating, slowly, gradually and carefully develops in the mind of young children the natural laws of self-preservation, which is vitally important in this modern world of rapid transportation, Mr. Swindells stated. It teaches the children what they should do, how they should do it and what they should avoid doing when crossing streets or traffic.

This system, inaugurated by the National Safety Council and the A. A. A., has already shown that those children who have received and absorbed this course of instruction go through life in a far greater degree of safety than those who have not had this benefit.

Traffic may not be dense or dangerous in Oakland, but a large proportion of the children will, in all probability, later leave their home town for more congested centers.

The system is carried out as follows: Each month of the school year Cumberland Branch of the Automobile Club of Maryland provides for each class room and hall in the school a colored poster illustrating some important and constructive facts to be absorbed by the children. Each month of the school year instruction sheets are provided for the teachers of the different grades, grouped one to three, four to six, seven to nine, and from these instruction sheets a suitable period of teaching is given as frequently as is thought necessary. The officers of the patrol and the patrolmen are selected by the school.

Badges of the various officers: captain, lieutenant, patrolmen, are provided by the Cumberland Branch of the Maryland Club, as well as belts of office. The children are dismissed in files and taught to cross roads at the places designated by the school and officers. The crossings are controlled by the officers and patrolmen.

The cost of everything—posters, instruction sheets, badges and belts, is defrayed by the Cumberland Branch in which jurisdiction Oakland is included. The club does not inject itself into the working out of the system in the school as it is thought best to leave this to the principal, teachers, officers and patrolmen.

There is only one penalty which affects the children. When any child shows consistent unruliness or disobedience to orders, he or she is taken from the rank or file and placed in an "awkward squad," drilled for a suitable period and allowed to retake his or her place in rank or file when a proper spirit has been developed.

Members of the school boy patrol for October include Earl Haenftling, captain; Max Nordeck and Robert Browning, lieutenants; Harold Waingold, Jack Browning, Edward Paugh, Ralph Kahl, Laurel Whipkey, John Baird, Carl Wilson.

Street corners being patroled are Second and Center, Third and Center, Wilson and Center, Liberty and Wilson, Second and Liberty, Second and Alder.

Laymen To Address Lutheran Congregation

Mr John C. Lynch and Mr. Carl Becker, members of the First Lutheran church at Wheeling, West Va., and outstanding laymen in the work of the church, will address St. Mark's Lutheran congregation Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock on the subject of "Stewardship."

The laymen of the Synod of West Virginia have volunteered to address the congregations on Oct. 11. On the following Sunday, October 18, there will be an exchange of pulpits when Rev. W. M. Ehrhard, pastor of St. Mark's church, Clarksburg, will address St. Mark's congregation in Oakland In the morning and at night Rev. A. B. Leamer, of Charleston, W. Va., will bring the evening message.

These two Sundays are designed to stimulate Christian giving and stewardship of life.

Small Boy Painfully Hurt

Clifford, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Tasker, of Oakland, was painfully injured Thursday afternoon of last week when he fell a distance of probably fifteen feet in the First National Bank building.

The boy had been on the second floor of the building and in descending he attempted to slide down the balustrade of the stairway and losing his balance pitched off the railing near the top and fell to the floor in the hallway below. He was picked up by Ralph Thayer and taken to the office of Dr. Hinebaugh where upon examination it was found that he had suffered a painful head and nose injury and a fracture of his left arm.

An older son of Mr. and Mrs. Tasker had his arm broken two or three weeks ago when he fell on a pavement in town.

VICTIM OF HUNTING MISHAP MAY LOSE EYE

Bloomington Man Shot By Uncle While Hunting Squirrels

Accidentally shot by his uncle, while hunting in the woods near Piedmont, W. Va., last Friday, George Fazenbaker, 23, of Bloomington, Garrett county, will likely lose the sight of his left eye. More than a dozen No. 5 shot pierced his face and shoulder.

Fazenbaker and his uncle were gunning for squirrels and the young man was sitting on a rock when his companion fired in his direction. Several of the shot passed through Fazenbaker's cheeks, one of which went thro his nose and another passed thru his left eyeball and lodged in his cheek. Some of the pellets also lodged in his throat and gums.

The wounded man, believed to be the first hunting victim of the season, was attended by Dr. James H. Wolverton at Piedmont and was sent to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he is being treated. His condition was reported as favorable to recovery.

Robberies Are Reported

During the past week two robberies and one theft have been reported to the officials of the county and town, wherein canned fruits and vegetables, groceries, clothing, etc., were stolen from dwellings and the theft of two containers of cider were stolen from a truck parked in the alley by The Republican building were stolen.

Last Friday or Saturday evening during the absence of the family, a thief or thieves entered the home of John Sweeney, corner Third and Center streets, and took groceries, butter, eggs, etc., and other things from the pantry and refrigerator on the first floor and going into the cellar stole approximately forty jars of canned fruits and vegetables. Entrance to the home was made through the front door. No clues as to the identity of the party or parties committing the theft have been discovered.

Clothing and several firearms were stolen one day last week from the J. O. Thayer property, corner Wilson and Pennington streets, several rooms in the building being used by W. D. Casteel wherein he had stored his household effects and other property. Some of the firearms stolen were valuable as antiques and others figured in criminal cases during the administration of the Sheriff's office by Mr. Casteel.

Cider Stolen from Truck

One night this week James Friend, of the Pleasant Valley section, drove into Oakland with a truck carrying two containers filled with sweet cider. He parked his truck in the alleyway alongside The Republican building, and leaving the vehicle standing saw some friends and volunteered the information that he had the cider and would like to dispose of it. When he returned to the truck a five-gallon keg of the juice-of-the-apple had disappeared. Mr. Friend hunted up Officer Nethkin and while he was absent on the quest for the strong arm of the law the other container, with approximately fifty gallons in it went the way of its iittle brother, the keg.

Marriage Announced.

Miss Esperance Ashby, daughter of Mrs. Elsie J. Ashby, and William C. McRoble, son of Mrs. Joseph H. McRobie, were married In New City, New York, on October 6, 1930, it has just been announced. The couple left on Tuesday for a brief honeymoon trip to Baltimore, Washington and other Eastern cities. Upon their return they will reside in their new home on Oak street.

HESEN AGAIN IS CHOSEN LEGION POST COMMANDER

Annual Election of Officers Held Last Monday Evening

Alex. Hesen was re-elected post commander of Proctor Kildow Post, No. 71, American Legion, at the regular meeting of that organization held Monday evening. Other officers elected include the following:

Richard Maroney, vice-commander; Joseph M. Gonder, adjutant; Delbert Davis, historian; Harold Dawson, finance officer; William Ferguson, sergeant-at-arms; Rev. Wm. J. McVeigh, chaplain; Edward P. Kahl, service officer.

At this meeting it was decided to sponsor a benefit picture on October 26 and 27 at the Maryland Theatre. The feature will be "The Front Page," starring Adolphe Menjou. The Legion on Parade, a news reel of the Detroit convention, will be an added attraction.

OCTOBER 15 DATE SET FOR FATHER-SON BANQUET

Frame and Blackwell to Speak at Vo-Ag Dinner in O. H. S.

The Annual Father and Son Banquet will be held in the O. H. S. auditorium beginning at 8 p. m. on Thursday, October 15. This affair is under the management of the Agriculture club. The movement began several years ago in an effort to bring the parents closer to the school life of the child. Since its organization the attendance has been increasing and the banquet last year showed one hundred and ten persons attending.

On the program will be talks by Dr. Nat T. Frame, director of extension work in West Virginia; Dr. J. D. Blackwell, of the Maryland State Department of Education.

An interesting feature of the program this year is the presentation of awards which members of the club won at the Great Frederick Fair.

Also on the program will be selections by the Browning Brothers and the Oakland Quartet.

As usual, William Turney will cook

High School Coaches Announce New Schedule of Games

At a meeting of the coaches of the various high schools, the following revised schedule for high school soccer and fieldball games was arranged:

Northern Division

Oct. 2, ...Friendsville at Accident
Oct. 6, ...Accident at Grantsville
Oct. 9, ..Grantsville at Friendsville
Oct. 13, ..Friendsville at Grantsville
Oct. 16, ...Accident at Friendsville
Oct. 20, ...Grantsville at Accident
Oct. 23, 27 and 30, all play off games.

Southern Division

Oct. 2, ...Kitzmiller at Kempton
Oct. 6, ...Kempton at Oakland
Oct. 9, ...Oakland at Kitzmiller
Oct. 13, ...Kitzmiller at Oakland
Oct. 16, ...Oakland at Kempton
Oct. 20, ...Kempton at Kitzmiller
Oct. 23, 27 and 30, play off games.

The coaches decided on the following: Games start at 2 p. m.; schools not having a fieldball team should notify principal of opposing school; games can be arranged between schools of different divisions, but results will have no bearing on final standing.

A three-game series will be played between the winners of each division, one game each on home ground and the third on a neutral field. The home team is to provide the referee. In case any school is unable to play on date scheduled, the matter is to be arranged by principals and coaches of the two schools concerned.

Amiesite Head Visits Oakland

Oakland was visited last Thursday afternoon by Mr. Donald McK. Hepburn, of Philadelphia, president of the Amiesite Asphalt Co. of America, who came to Oakland in company with Mr. Perry A. Nicklin, of Cumberland, district representative of the Amiesite Company, from Pittsburgh, Pa., Mr. Hepburn having expressed a desire to come to Oakland to inspect the streets following the application of his company's product a year or two ago, and also to see the beauties

Arriving In Oakland over Route 37 from Keyser's Ridge he inspected the streets that have been improved and gave it as his opinion that the town was far ahead of the average community of Oakland's size as to its streets, residences and general appearance. He left In company with Mr. Nicklin later in the day for the return to Pittsburgh where he had a business engagement for Friday. Mr. Hepburn will likely visit Garrett county again in the near future.

INSPECTION OF CARS IN STATE OPENS OCTOBER 15

Maryland to Launch Fourth Annual Save-a-Life Campaign

Maryland's fourth annual Save-a-Life campaign, requiring inspection of all automobiles registered in the state, will be conducted from October 15 to November 30, E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, announced.

Motorists may have their cars examined free at 1,200 inspection stations to be established. Owners will be unable to obtain new license plates until their machines bear the official sticker certifying the inspection has been made.

Salient points of the inspection will be brakes, lights, horns, steering mechanisms, mirrors and license tags. Of the 328,280 automobiles examined last year, 50,000 had unsafe brakes, and 60,000 headlights were adjusted. Applications for the 1932 license plates are now being sent out.

CATHOLIC PRIEST KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Rev. Fr. Patrick Devanney, of Thomas, W. Va., Dead When Extricated From Wreckage

Funeral services were held yesterday at St. Joseph's Cathedral, Wheeling, W. Va., for the Rev. Fr. Patrick Devanney, 45, killed Saturday night in an automobile accident while enroute from his mission chapel at Davis, W. Va., to his church at Thomas, W. Va.

Funeral services were held at Thomas on Tuesday. Bishop Swint, of Wheeling, presided and preached the sermon. Mass was sung by Rev. Daniel Murphy, of Wierton; Father Eagan acted as deacon, and Father O'Reilly, of Rowlesburg, acted as subdeacon. There were fifteen priests in the sanctuary.

The body was brought to Oakland Tuesday afternoon and arrived in Wheeling that evening. Interment was made in Mt. Calvary cemetery, Wheeling. Father Devanney had been connected with the Diocese of Wheeling since his arrival in the United States in 1919. He was born in Ireland and educated and ordained there. In 1928 he succeeded the late Rev. P. M. Schoenen as priest of the Catholic church at Thomas, which has charge of the mission chapel at Davis.

He is survived by his mother, in Ireland; three brothers and one sister, of New York.

Rev. Devanney was killed when a truck driven by Edward Keener, of Douglas, crashed head-on into the car driven by the priest. His head was badly crushed and he was dead when extricated from the wreck.

Keener was taken to a hospital in Elkins with head, face and shoulder injuries, and a possible skull fracture, and is in a serious condition. J. S. Nazelrod, 40, who was riding with Father Devanney, has a broken jaw and other head injuries.

An investigation made following the accident by Sheriff Fred Cooper and Prosecuting Attorney A. G. Bolton, of Tucker county, convinced them that Keener had been racing with another car, driven by Bill Jenkins, of Douglas, they declared.

Father Devanney was well known in Oakland and vicinity, having visited at St. Peter's Catholic church here a number of times.

Regular Meeting of Town Council Is Held Monday

A quiet session of the Mayor and Town Council was held Monday evening at the Council chamber, at which the Mayor and members of the official body were present.

A number of complaints were made concerning the water bills for the last quarter, and it was decided to make readjustments where meters were found to be defective.

Permission was granted to Mr. F. R. Corliss, representative of the Eastern Land Corporation, to remove rails and ties of the railroad, about one mile west of town.

A motion was passed requiring $25 for the privilege of a water tap to persons outside the corporation limits of the town. This motion did not apply to those already having taps.

Permission was granted the Oakland Fire Department to rope off Second street on Friday evening, October 30.

Monthly bills amounting to more than $1,000 were ordered paid. The next meeting will be November 2.

Hudson Car Is Wrecked

Failing to make the curve on route 37, at the intersection of the Mt. Lake road, about one-half mile east of town, Robert Van Deavener, of Franklin, W. Va., wrecked his Hudson sedan last Friday evening when he struck an embankment. Both he and G. Dunkel, also of Franklin, who accompanied him, were bruised but not seriously hurt.

Both front and rear wheel on the right side were broken, the fenders and running board smashed, and the body bent. The car was practically new and the owner had failed to transfer his insurance from his oid car.

ANNUAL FOREST FESTIVAL AT ELKINS, W. VA., ENDS

Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band Wins Third Place in Feature Parade

With a member of President Hoover's Cabinet on the program and witnessing the principal events of the day, the second annual Mountain State Forest Festival, Elkins, W. Va., was brought to a close Saturday evening with boxing contests and a forest ball at Halliehurst, home of Davis and Elkins College, after a day of colorful events. It was estimated that not less than 20,000 people went there to witness the final events of the three-day program.

The attraction on the final morning was the feature parade in which more than twenty bands and Legion drum corps participated. Clarksburg Post of the American Legion won first prize in the competitive drill among drum and bugle corps, with Piedmont corps second. Greenbrier Military Academy was placed first among the bands in the parade; the Handley High School band of Winchester, Va., second, and the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland, third.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, in his address to the members of the Monongahela Forestry Association urged cooperation of farmers in the production and marketing of crops.

Participating in the pageant Friday evening were Queen Mapleheart, of the Alleghany Tableland Association with her members of court from this county, and in the parade on Saturday besides the Boys' Band of Oakland, the Oakland Junior Drum and Bugle corps, and the Crellin Band.

Special Program Presented By Knights of Pythias Lodge

A special program in honor of Mr. R. R. Gilbert, who left here Tuesday for Buckhannon, West Va., to assume his new position in the office of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company in that town, was presented at the regular meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge in Oakland last Friday evening.

Walter W. Dawson presided as the master of ceremonies and Delbert Davis spoke on "Community building and its Enterprises," and praised Mr. Gilbert for his work in Oakland as the organizer and director of the Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band and as a real community builder. The guest of honor was presented with a pen and pencil by the lodge.

Entertainment included a few selections by the Oakland quartet and a number of vocal pieces by the entire group. During the lodge session F. M. Sommerkamp, Washington, D. C., addressed those present.

On Tuesday evening approximately twenty five members of Garrett Lodge attended the sessions of the Keyser lodge at Keyser, West Va.

Scouts To Install Officers

Officers for the ensuing term in Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, will be installed at the regular meeting of the troop tomorrow evening. It is expected that members of the Troop Committee will be present.

A list of the members of the troop who are eligible for promotion has been given to the Troop Committee by the Scoutmaster and those who will receive the honors will not be announced until that evening.

At the last meeting Maurice Treacy enrolled In the troop.

Deer Park Hotel Sold

Announcement was made this morning by Messrs. Jones and Dawson, owners of the Deer Park Hotel and cottages, that they had closed the sale of the property, the buyer being Mrs. Seraphine Kupritz, of Pittsburgh. The property will be used as a home for the aged of the Slovak races.

MT. LAKE INCORPORATION IS HELD CONSTITUTIONAL

Judge D. Lindley Sloan Upholds Act of 1931 in Lengthy Opinion Filed Here Tuesday Morning

BILL ORDER DISMISSED

That the incorporation of Mt. Lake Park, under the provisions of an Act passed at the 1931 session of the General Assembly of Maryland, was a valid exercise of legislative powers and that the bill of complaint filed by certain property owners in the Park attacking the constitutionality of the measure, praying the Circuit Court for Garrett County to declare the Act illegal and void, was passed upon in a lengthy opinion upholding the Legislative Act and dismissing the bill of complaint filed in the local Court Tuesday morning by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan who heard arguments of the points at issue on Saturday, September 5th.

Judge Sloan's decision in the matter was as follows: "I am of the opinion that the Act of 1931, Chapter 570, was the valid exercise of legislative power and the defendants' demurrer will be sustained, the injunction refused and the bill dismissed."

Judge Sloan in his opinion decided favorably for the corporation on all three principal points at issue: the impairment of contracts, qualifications of the voters and the legality of the title of the Act.

The complainants in the bill, the Community of Mountain Lake Park, and Charles W. Baldwin, T. Davis Richards, H. V. Leighton, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Talson, Mrs. Minnie O. Richards, A. D. Naylor and E. L. Davidson, complained that the Act destroyed certain vested rights of the Mountain Lake Park Association in the impairment of certain contracts; contended that the Act was void because the title of the Act included two separate and distinct matters in violation of the Constitution of Maryland, and that the voting qualifications were also unconstitutional as set forth in the Act of the Assembly.

In his opinion Judge Sloan declared that it was not within the power of the Mayor and Councilmen of Mountain Lake Park to interfere with conditions and covenants contained in deeds of lot owners, but that this question had not arisen.

He declared the Legislature had a right to name such qualifications for voting, as had been done, wherein wives or husbands and children of property owners 21 years or over could vote. He also stated that only the subject of the Act must be described in the title of a bill, but that neither the details of legislation nor the means of instrumentalities by which the subject is to be carried into effect constitute the subject of the Act.

According, therefore, to the law as interpreted by Judge Sloan, Mayor MacClellan Clayton, and W. L. Camden, Thomas Schooley, Fioyd R. Utterback, James F. Elliott and Albert F. Schrock, Councilmen, chosen by vote in August as the first officials of the newly incorporated town, are legally entitled to assert the power and authority vested in them by the Act.

Judge Sloan's opinion is of such interest and touches upon the rights of such a large number of people residing in the Park and elsewhere, that The Republican prints it in full.

Under the General Laws of this State the "Mountain Lake Park Association of Garrett County" was incorporated September 28, 1881, the object or purpose of which was "to establish and maintain a mountain religious, literary and musical summer resort," and "to build hotel and stores and to operate the same for the accommodation and convenience of residents and visitors at Mountain Lake Park."

The capital stock was fixed at fifteen thousand dollars, divided into fifteen shares of one thousand dollars each. By Act of Assembly of 1882,

James Beachy Improves

James Beachy, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Beachy, of Grantsville, who was struck by a car Monday afternoon, September 28, regained consciousness last Thursday at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where his condition was reported favorable to recovery.

The boy suffered a fractured skull and broken leg as he ran out into the National Highway in front of his home in Grantsville and was struck by a car being driven by Mr. H. V. Leighton, of Loch Lynn Heights.

PAUL IN PHILIPPI

GOLDEN TEXT—Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice.
LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:16-40; Phil. 4:4-9.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul in Prison.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul in Prison.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Jailer Led Captive.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Initial Victories in Europe.

I. Paul and Silas in Jail (vv. 16-26).

1. The occasion (vv. 16-24). As the missionaries went out from day to day to the place of prayer they were accosted by a young woman possessed by a spirit of divination. She was owned by a syndicate of men who derived large gain from her soothsaying. Her utterances as she followed the missionaries became a great annoyance to Paul who in the name of Jesus Christ commanded the evil spirit to come out of her. The evil spirit immediately obeyed Paul's command. When the demon was cast out the supernatural power of the maid was gone. Therefore, the source of revenue was at an end, and this so exasperated her owners that they brought Paul and Silas before the magistrates on a false charge.

Without any opportunity to defend themselves, Paul and Silas were stripped and beaten by the angry mob and then remanded to jail where they were made fast by stocks.

2. Their behavior in jail (v. 25). They prayed and sang hymns to God. It seems quite unnatural that they should pray under such circumstances, but to sing hymns is astonishing to all who have not come into the possession of the grace of God in Jesus Christ. Even with their backs lacerated and smarting, with their feet fast in the stocks, compelling the most painful attitude in the dungeon darkness of the inner prison with extreme uncertainty before them, their hearts went up to God in gratitude.

3. Their deliverance (v. 26). The Lord wrought deliverance by sending a great earthquakes which opened the prison doors and removed the chains from off their hands. The earthquake cannot be explained on natural grounds. Earthquakes do not throw bolted doors open and unclasp fetters from men's hands.

II. The Conversion of the Jailer (vv. 27-34).

The jailor's sympathy did not go out very far for the prisoners, for as soon as they were made secure he went to sleep. Being suddenly aroused from slumber by the earthquake, he was about to kill himself, whereupon Paul assured him that the prisoners were all safe. What he had heard of their preaching, and now what he experienced caused him to come as a humble inquirer after salvation. He was convicted of sin and felt the need of a Savior. Paul clearly pointed out the way to be saved. He said, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." The word "believe" means "to trust and fully obey." The following facts prove that the jailor was saved:

1. Transformation from brutality to tenderness (v. 33). He who a little while ago could with impunity lay on the cruel lashes is now disposed to dress the wounds of the prisoners.

2. Confession of Christ in baptism (v. 33). Those who have experienced the saving grace of God are willing to confess their faith in Christ under all circumstances.

3. He set meat before them (v. 34).

4. His whole household was baptized (v. 33). When a man's family is willing to follow him, you may be sure that his conversion is genuine.

III. The Magistrates Humbled (vv. 35-40).

1. The prisoners ordered released (vv. 35, 36). The earthquake brought fear upon the magistrates and thus moved them to release the prisoners.

2. Paul's refusal to go (v. 37). The ground of his refusal was that their rights as Roman citizens had been violated. They demanded public vindication. The magistrates were guilty of serious offense. Paul was willing to suffer for Christ's sake, but he used the occasion to show them that persecuting men who preached the gospel was an offense against the law of God and man.

3. Brought out of prison by the officers (vv. 38, 39).

4. Returned to the house of Lydia (v. 40). Upon their public vindication, Paul and Silas left the prison and entered the house of Lydia. After ministering comfort to the brethren, they took their departure.

IV. Always Rejoicing (Phil. 4:4-9). The presence of the Lord Jesus Christ gives such peace that singing God's praises is possible even in prison.

The Pastor Says:

Never tell a young person that anything cannot be done. God may have been waiting for centuries for somebody ignorant enough of the impossible to do that thing.—John Andrew Holmes.

FROM BALTIMORE, MARYLAND, TO WHEELING, WEST VIRGINIA, ALONG THE HISTORIC NATIONAL HIGHWAY

By OLIVER MARTIN
Editor of The Transmitter

(This story of the Old National Pike was begun in the issue of July 30, 1931, of The Republican, and was interrupted by the printing of the story of the Northwestern Turnpike. The story is here continued as it originally appeared in The Transmitter, official publication of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Comapany).

PART III.

In the same general neighborhood as Braddock's Grave you will come to a large, modern-looking hotel by the side of the road. This was built in 1822, and was a tavern. It later became a private residence. It is now a hotel. The building itself is not particularly interesting, but in front of it is the only original stone marker between Cumberland and Wheeling. It bears the inscription: "8 M. to Union.; 53 to Cumb.," which may be translated as 8 miles to Uniontown; 53 miles to Cumberland.

The next ridge crossed is Chalk Hill, named for the white clay found there. There is an old tavern or two on top. In fact, so numerous are these old taverns that practically any house along the road that looks as though it had been constructed before the World War is likely to prove an old tavern.

The next ridge, Laurel Hill, sometimes called Chestnut Ridge, has a long approach, with a big hotel on the top that looks like a country club. This is the Summit Hotel, and you can take it from me that it is not a hot-dog stand. From the hotel grounds and from the hotel itself you can get almost an airplane picture of Uniontown, down in the next valley.

The grade that begins at the hotel and goes down for three miles is one that must be a bit trying to drivers who are accustomed to flat country only. At the bottom of the slope is on old bridge built solidly right down to where the water goes through. It is a massive thing and one wonders why this is necessary. The hollow that it crosses has been known from the early days of the road as The Turkey's Nest.

Having crossed the ridge, the traveler can congratulate himself that he has crossed the backbone of the mountains. The general grade from here on into Wheeling is downward. Of course, there are still hills to be crossed, but they are of the small, everyday, miscellaneous sort.

Just before entering Uniontown you pass through Hopwood. This town probably never had more than 300 inhabitants at one time in its whole existence, but during the early days of the pike, when the town was called Monroe, there were seven hotels and three or four lodging houses. Most of these old brick taverns can still be seen, on both sides of the highway, and several of them are still catering to tourists.

Uniontown is a city. There is scarcely anything about it to bring thoughts of other days, unless it is a particularly ugly statue of Lafayette in front of the court house. A tablet informs the passerby that it stood for years on top of the old court house. One wonders why the people of the town did not find some other building on the top of which they might place it—a taller one, preferably.

There were perhaps half a dozen old taverns in Uniontown, and most of them are still there, and doing business. But the city has grown up around them so, and the fronts have been changed to such an extent, that the casual traveler would have difficulty in locating them.

There was one old log tavern—the White Swan, built in 1805—that remained intact until in recent years, with a big paved yard around it. As I approached Uniontown in June of this year I was hoping that it would still be there, as it was practically the last one of the primitive type. When I arrived at the place where it ought to have been, I found a White Swan Hotel, indeed. But it was so new it glittered, and was about ten stories high, and covered most of a city block, and was all cluttered up with gold-buttoned bell-boys.

But that is to be expected in a city the size of Uniontown, which has a population of 16,000.

Uniontown had close associations with the old road. Its taverns brought to it men of national repute, and it was also the home of several men of influence, including L. W. Stockton, the owner of the Stockton line of stages. In Oak Grove Cemetery, right at the edge adjacent to the highway, is the grave of T. B. Searight, who lived along the old road all his life and in his later years wrote a book about it. He asked that when he died he be buried near the old pike he knew and loved so well. His wish was carried out; his grave is so near the pike that dust from passing automobiles settles on it. The stone house in which he lived, the Searight House, is farther along the road. It was built previous to 1820 and was at various times used as a tavern.

During the Harrison campaign of 1840 a log cabin on wheels was hauled over the old pike from Uniontown to Baltimore.

The highway next passes through Brier Hill, a town of about 1,500 people, where there is a coking plant. Some of the Pennsylvania mining towns are amusing, particularly if they are small enough to be seen in entirety. I remember one that I saw in the distance from the highway. It consists of perhaps 50 houses, all just exactly alike, each built in the same position on the lot, each just so many feet from its neighbor. The conscience of the engineer or expert accountant who designed them probably smote him when they were completed and he decided to introduce a little variation in the painting. So he painted the first house all red, the second all green, and the third all orange, and repeated that scheme all down the line. The result is something to look at.

Brownsville, unlike some of the other towns in this part of the country, does not owe its existence to the old pike. It was there long before the pike was built, and was on a trail from Winchester, Va., through Old Town, Md., to the Ohio, which trail was laid out in 1749.

The Monongahela River flows thru the town and the road crosses it over a new bridge. From the bridge you can see coal barges and other river boats. There is probably some manufacturing going on in the town, for there is plenty of smoke. But it may be from coke ovens.

South Brownsville, across Dunlaps Creek, was laid out in 1794 and was once known as Bridgeport.

On the other side of the river is West Brownsville, where James G. Blaine was born. In the early days there was no bridge across the river; even after the Government built the road the Monongahela was the only stream between Cumberland and Wheeling where the wagoners had to ferry over. A wooden toll bridge, operated by a private company, was built in 1833, and was continued in use until 1910, when it was condemned by the War Department. While the present bridge was being erected, a ferry was again used.

Farther on along the highway is the Malden Inn, a stone building, and a little beyond that a cemetery in which one monument outshines all the others. It is close to the road and its design is such that it seldom fails to attract attention. It was erected by a hermit—one McCutcheon—who probably felt that buying himself a monument was as good a way of spending his money as any other.

There are three small towns along the highway before arriving at Washington, Pa. Beallsville is one of them, Scenery Hill another, and South Strabane another. Scenery Hill was formerly known as Hillsboro. It was not named for the hill but for the Hills. In this general neighborhood we begin to notice oil wells and derricks, and that is a sign that we are approaching West Virginia. Another town through which the road passes is Laboratory. I prefer the old name of Pancake, acquired from George Pancake, who kept a tavern there once upon a time.

Between Centerville and Beallsville is a replica of the Madonna of the Trail statue that you will later see in Wheeling. On the day that we passed by, Madonna was being treated to some sights that must have sorely grieved this hard-working and hardship-enduring woman. Directly across the road at a country club a highly decorated male was swinging at a golf ball and a modern Madonna of the Trail, a female in knickers, was calmly powdering her nose, while she cast a casual glance at the worn features and coarse clothing of the woman on the pedestal.

Just before Washington is reached, you come upon a great pile of refuse from a coal mine at Lincoln Hill. A pile of refuse is no novelty to one who does considerable getting around. But this one is different by reason of the fact that it is perpetually on fire. One of the bystanders there said it had been burning for several years and that he expects it will continue to burn until Gabriel blows his horn.

Washington, Pa., is everything that a modern town should be. It has trolley cars and taxis and electric lights and a seminary and a college, and a court house, and a Beau street and a Malden street, and stores, and fine residences, and a population of 21,000.

The bridges along the route are all substantial and some of them particularly interesting; for instance, the S Bridge over Buffalo Creek, about six miles west of the town.

Just beyond Vienna (Coon Island in the old days) there's another brick toll house. Another form of toll is now collected, as the place is in use as a hot-dog stand.

About a mile beyond is West Alexander, a pleasant looking old town with an old church along the highway and a churchyard in which are some ancient gravestones. The traveler who is familiar with Tidewater Virginia and Eastern and Southern Maryland will immediately notice that Western Maryland and Southwestern Pennsylvania have apparently few ancient and picturesque churches. This is the only one I noticed in 285 miles.

West Alexander was laid out in 1796 and was at various times known as Three Ridges, Hard Scrabble, Gretna Green and Saint's Rest. You understand why it was called Gretna Green when you learn that one justice of the peace there married 1,918 couples from 1862 and 1881, most of whom were elopers.

At the foot of the hill as you leave the town you pass under the B. & O. R. R. tracks and enter West Virginia. Almost immediately you cross a little bridge over Little Wheeling Creek. Before getting into Wheeling you cross that same stream nine times in less than that number of miles. The stream and the road occupy the same narrow valley, and, to make the matter more interesting, there are trolley tracks that constantly cross and recross the stream and highway.

When you are at the state line you are 17 miles from Wheeling. At least, the old milestone under the bridge says so. Wheeling is in Ohio county and in a few minutes you will pass through the only other town in the county, Triadelphia. That means Three Cities, doesn't it? Or maybe it is the City of Three. There was a time when there were several small towns along this road in West Virginia, but they all have been absorbed by Wheeling.

When the old road was put through there was no West Virginia, of course, and you will note on the mile-post at the state line that the West was painted on later. The part of the state that the highway crosses is known as the Panhandle, and is the most narrow part. The whole state, by the way, is probably the most irregular in the country. Somebody has said that it is the most eastern of the western states, the most western of the eastern states, and the most northern of the southern states, and the most southern of the northern states. And if you will look on your map of the United States you will find that he is pretty nearly right.

At Roney's Point the highway passes directly in front of an old stone tavern that was doing business with stage-coaches many years ago and is now doing business with automobile touring parties.

Elm Grove, once a separate village, is now a part of Wheeling, but retains some of its individual characteristics. The town goes back to about the time of the Revolution, and one of the most interesting reminders of the old days is the fine mansion built by Colonel Shepherd. It is now called Monument Place and was recently purchased by the Shriners of Wheeling, to be preserved to posterity. It is one of the best examples of colonial architecture that I have seen and the Shriners have restored it in all its original beauty and simplicity.

In the grounds is a monument erected in 1820 to Henry Clay, who was helpful in getting appropriations for the road through Congress and who made several trips over it, frequently being a guest at the Shepherd Mansion.

Wheeling Park is not far from the old home and in the park along the highway is the original Madonna of the Trail statue. Opposite the park and also adjacent to it are fine residential sections. Then comes Woodsdale, which was a separate town several years ago, and after that there is a long climb over Wheeling Hill and you ride into the old section of the city.

Members of the Zane family settled in the neighborhood in 1769, and the city was laid out by Colonel Ebenezer Zane in 1793 and called Zanesville, the name being changed in 1795. In 1774 Fort Fincastle, afterwards called Fort Henry, in honor of Patrick Henry, was erected to resist Indian attacks.

The town was incorporated in 1806, made a city in 1836, and was the capital of West Virginia from 1863 to 1870 and from 1875 to 1885. It was the first point on the Ohio River reached by the Baltimore and Ohio Railway after it crossed the Allegheny Mountains.

And it happens to be the last point reached on our present journey.

GORTNER

Church services next Sunday morning and evening. You are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gibbs, Kempton, and Mrs. Emma Conneway, Bayard, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Sanders on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Welch and son, and Mrs. W. C. Welch spent Sunday at Mr. Z. L. Mellott's, at Swallow Falls.

Messrs. Sam and Eli Beachy and their families attended the wedding of their brother, Simon Beachy, near Grantsville, on Thursday.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. S. W. Slabach were Miss Bertha Lechnor, Aurora; Mr. and Mrs. Joel Gnegy, Red House; and Walter Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Slabach, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Beachy and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Ward left here on Thursday for Grantsville to visit Mr. Beachy's relatives, and visited Mrs. Slabach's relatives in Ohio Friday, expecting to return to their home at Arthur, Ill on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Gortner entertained on Sunday Mrs. Harry Bear and Mrs. Ruth Dilgard, of Kempton; and Mrs. Harvey Gortner and daughters of Grantsville.

Mr. Roy Lee and family and Miss Florence Deems took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Beckman on Sunday.

Mrs. Jennie Sanders and Miss Anna Virginia Slabach spent Thursday night with the latter's home folk.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Taylor, Clarksburg, visited Mrs. Taylor's sister, Mrs. Elwood Schlossnagle, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Roth and Mrs. Anna Bittinger were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Martin on Sunday.

Mrs. W. C. Welch and Mrs. Paul Welch called on Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins at Fellowsville, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. August Killius, of Loch Lynn, visited Mrs. Albert Sisk on Wednesday.

Miss Nell Alexander, of Accident, spent Saturday with Mrs. Paul Welch.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, of Red House, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Spoerlein.

Mrs. Catherine Frazee, of Sunnyside, was the guest of Mrs. Mary Crowe on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Noah Slabach visited Mr. Lester DeWitt and family, near Oakland, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Taylor, Cumberland, and Mrs. Harry Beeghley and son spent Sunday at Mr. Clarence Taylor's.

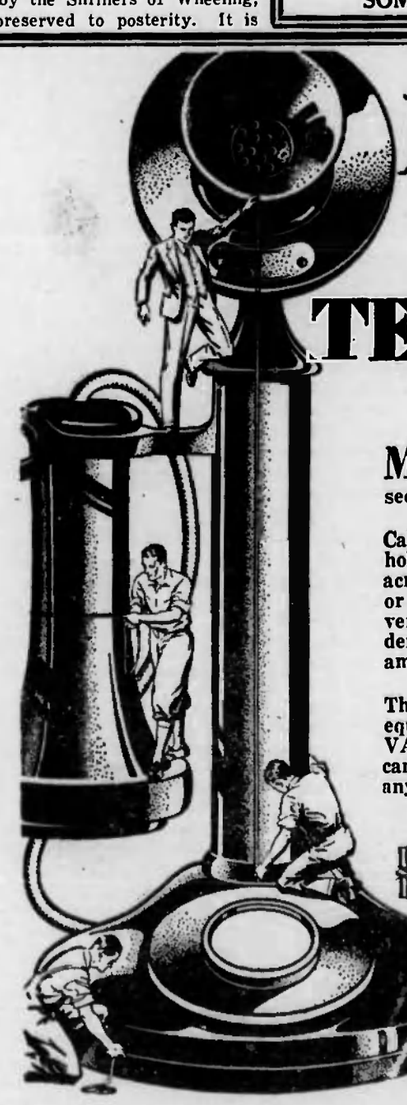
Measure Your TELEPHONE!



MEASURE the value of your telephone—if you can. Apply any standard you like, and see if you can get an answer.

Call the stores, the people who serve your household needs; call an old friend half the continent across; in emergencies call the doctor, the police, or the fire department. Then measure the convenience, pleasure, comfort, and protection derived from these calls against the trifling amount charged for telephone service.

The value of our buildings, wire, apparatus, and equipment—these you CAN measure. But the VALUE OF THE SERVICE rendered by these cannot be measured. It is beyond the range of any standard we know.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Apples

I am almost completely overwhelmed this week, not with joy, gratitude, sympathy, eestacy, delight or sadness, but with APPLES. I am so completely surrounded with them and my desk is so full of them that I have had to move my typewriter over to the reading room, or the library.

Two apples presented by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flanigan, of Deer Park, early—very early—Friday morning, cover up the entire desk and hang over the sides like a fat man's stomach hangs over his belt.

Then in addition, another basket presented by Mr. and Mrs. Flanigan still carries the blue ribbon for Bailey Sweets at the County Fair, which proved to me I was really worth something and that advertising pays, else they wouldn't waste a blue ribbon on me.

Miss Pleasant Reis, of Deer Park, and Charles O. Lohr, of near Oakland, both brought in delightful peace offerings of four apples each, which the boss editor snitched from my window ledge and placed them beside his elephant on top his own desk. He can't get away with that forever.

They Come By Mail

They (apples) even arrived by mail, postage paid. And it's a good thing I don't know the sender, because I would devote the rest of my column to that single person. Here is what the letter accompanying the apples said:

My dear Mr. Scoop:—I read The Republican paper weekly and I always get quite a kick out of Scoop's Column. There is one thing about it in the last two issues. I don't care to having you asking for apples when we have so many of them this year. Enclosed you will find a few prize ones from my tree. Probably sometime someone has given the boss editor a pumpkin, and he might tell you about it. At this you will go begging for a pumpkin to make a pic, so I will get ahead of you this time. Trusting you will enjoy the contents of this box and I beg to remain,

A true friend,

A Reader of The Republican.

Until I opened the package, I still had a wonderfully good opinion of my unknown admirer. But the dirty punk! The contents weren't even as big as crabapples, and a whole lot more useless. And a pumpkin, about four inches in length and the same in circumference. It won't even make a decent jack-o'-lantern for Hallowe'en.

If I ever catch him—(or her)—and it looked like a woman's handwriting, I'm going to put castor oil in his coffee, and it won't be a child's dose, either. The only way he can atone for the great injury to my feelings is to send me some cider before next Thursday.

That isn't a bad idea for some of the other folks who read The Republican. Since they didn't exert themselves by bringing any apples they might send some cider. The boss editor can't eat apples, but he's strong on cider, so come on with it. It's a sure way of getting your name before the public and it will put me in good spirits—if it's strong enough.

Personal Interviews

Scoop, having just loads of time this week to run about the streets on account of the World's Series, held several personal interviews with as many influential business men on the Empress Eugenie hat, and here is what they think about the women wearing them:

"Doc Yak" Yutzy: "It shows that women have slipped a notch or two; they would look good in a parade."

Tom Flanigan: "It's bound to bring horses back in style as a mode of transportation."

Colonel Bell: "They would look swell on a monkey."

Emroy "Firehorse" Bolden: "Women have less on their minds now."

Bet Dawson: "I'm afraid to express an opinion; I've gotten into enough trouble already."

Cot McComas: "I'm not giving anything for publication."

Terrence Tambourini: "They look like H——"

Mr. Harned: "They don't worry me any."

Romanus Rudy: "They may look all right on some people, but I don't know where or who."

Lizzie Tish (the girl in the front office): "I like to see with both eyes, even when wearing a hat."

Carl Frame: "I believe I would look well in one."

The Boss Editor: "You can't quote me on hats, shoes, the price of hogs, grain or farm produce."

Henry and his bride were taken for a ride last Friday evening, but not the kind of rides that a lot of people get in Chicago. This was on Oakland's fire truck, and before it was over Henry promised them $10 to stop the thing and let them off safely.

All of which reminds me that when they took Scoop and Mrs. Seoop a ride on July 3, the department was promised $10, which thus far they have not received. But have patience, firemen. Some day my ship will come in.

From numerous sources comes the information that in the Elkins Forest Festival parade on Saturday morning, no band looked or played any better than the Boys' Band of Oakland, and no drum major performed in finer style than did Bob Hoffman.

The Junior Drum and Bugle corps also came in for its mead of praise. The little tots performed well and were well received and loudly applauded.

And yet some Oakland people knock their own town and its organizations.

Chapter 164, an increase of the capital stock, not to exceed one hundred thousand dollars, was authorized. A reduction to the par value of sharcs from one thousand dollars to one hundred dollars was authorized by the Act of 1884, Chapter 356.

By Article VII of the certificate of incorporation it was provided that "lots shall be sold and conveyed to purchasers to be used for the erection of private residences, but not to be used for business purposes without a permit from the Board of Directors."

In pursuance of its charter the Mountain Lake Park Association acquired about eight hundred acres of land at what has ever since been known as "Mountain Lake Park," in which, according to the bill, the Association has "invested over two hundred thousand dollars in real estate, improvements, roads, streets, alleys (and) public improvements."

By the Act of 1882, Chapter 164, the sale of spirituous and malt liquors was forbidden and certain powers granted with relation to roads, streets and sanitary measures. By the Act of 1884, Chapter 46, the board of directors of the Association was granted the power to appoint such peace officers as may be deemed necessary," and their duties defined.

By the Act of 1888, Chapter 430, "The Community of Mountain Lake Park" was incorporated, the preamble of the Act reading: "Whereas, The said corporation (Mountain Lake Park Association) and certain lot holders to whom it has conveyed land, are desirous of having certain powers conferred upon it and them jointly for the better improvement and preservation of all the land, both that so conveyed and that remaining unsold and belonging to said corporation, and for the fulfillment of the purposes for which said incorporation was incorporated."

Section 2 of the Act of 1888 provides "That the said community is not to have, possess or acquire any political franchises whatsoever, nor any of the powers ordinarily distinguishing public or municipal corporations from corporations merely private; but the sole objects and powers of said community of Mountain Lake Park shall be to exercise those police and sanitary powers the said Mountain Lake Park Association of Garrett County now has by Act of Assembly with greater facility over the entire tract of land now known as Mountain Lake Park in Garrett county," etc. The management of government of the community was vested in a committee of five, two to be elected annually by the lot owners at Mountain Lake Park, two to be elected by the stockholders of the Association, and the fifth to be chosen by the four so selected. If the four should not choose the fifth within thirty days of their election, or if at any time there should be a vacancy in the committee, the places on the committee should be filled by the directors of the Association. Provision was made for an assessment annually against all lots in the community and for the collection of the same. The Act was to "take effect as to the Mountain Lake Park Association of Garrett County and as to such and so many of its lot owners as should agree by deed (and as to the lots and improvements and other property in Mountain Lake Park in Garrett County held or owned by it or them) when and so soon as such deed should be executed and recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County," provided the same be done on or before December 31, 1888. The bill alleges that the Act of 1888, Chapter 430, was accepted and agreed to by agrement of the Association and all of the then lot holders and was recorded among the Land Records of Garrett County, a certified copy being filed as an exhibit with the bill.

The Act of 1896, Chapter 315, repealed and re-enacted with amendments Sections 2, 3 and 9 as enacted by the Act of 1888, Chapter 430, section 2 being again repealed and re-enacted with amendments by the Act of 1914, Chapter 688. It is not necessary to discuss the provisions of Sections 3 and 9, Section 2, by the Act of 1914 (erroneously therein designated as Section 1), in addition to what has already been mentioned, gave to the Community the power "to preserve order and decorum, to regulate the running at large of cattle and other animals and domestic fowls in and upon Mountain Lake Park, and to provide for the extension, making, building, improvement, care and maintenance of the public grounds, commons, roads, drives, bridges, walks, plank ways, drains, sewers, water streams, waterways, and the power to license and regulate all coaches, carriages, carts, drays, omnibuses, wagons, automobiles and other vehicles kept for hire or hired in said town, and shall have the further power and authority to license and regulate all and any of such vehicles kept for such purpose at any place in Garrett county when called or used in said community of Mountain Lake Park to transport a person or persons, goods, wares or other merchandise to any other place in said community of Mountain Lake Park for hire; and the right to license business houses and to enforce the collection of the same by ordinances and impose fines for the violation of said ordinances and also to recover the same by the action of common debt."

The Aet of 1916, Chapter 176, which repealed and re-enacted the 8th section of the Act of 1888, Chapter 430, after providing for the ascertainment of the value of property in Mountain Lake Park and the levy of assessments against it, said: "The lien aforesaid for said taxes shall be enforced against any lot and improvements at any time after the first day of January succeeding the date of such levy, but no such proceedings to enforce such lien shall be taken unless authorized by an ordinance adopted at the previous Annual Meeting of said Community; and the bailiff, or tax collector of said Community or either one of said officers shall have all of the rights and powers for the collection and enforcement of said taxes as are given the County Treasurer of Garrett County under Chapter 566 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, approved on the 8th day of April, 1890, and to the same extent as it the said Act was enacted in this amendment verbatim, unless the proceedings of said Treasurer or collector shall be modified by ordinances passed by the Annual Meeting which body shall have the power at any time to modify or change the method of collection of said taxes."

The Act of 1927, Chapter 160, repealed and re-enacted Sections 5, 7 and 8 as theretofore enacted so as to include "all personal property subject to county assessment and payment of county taxes located in Mountain Lake Park."

Then came the Act of 1931, Chapter 507, incorporating the town of Mountain Lake Park, subject to the result of an election to be held on the second Tuesday of July, 1931, "for the purpose of determining whether the citizens of said Mountain Lake Park desire to incorporate," to be followed, in case of a favorable result, by an election of a Mayor and five Councilmen on the second Tuesday of August, and the Act providing for the repeal of the Act of 1888, incorporating the Community of Mountain Lake Park and all amendments thereto. Incorporation was accepted at the July election and the defendants elected Mayor and Councilmen in August on the day prescribed by the Act. The charter powers are those usually granted to municipalities, describing the territory to be governed, the qualifications of voters, officers to be elected and chosen, the power to levy and collect taxes, the right and duty to abate nuisances, preserve order, license trades, occupations and business, pave, grade and otherwise improve streets and roads, provide for lighting and sewering and to do the things generally provided for in such charters.

The Mountain Lake Park Association of Garrett County, the Community of Mountain Lake Park and seven persons owning lots in Mountain Lake Park seek an injunction to restrain the Mayor and Councilmen of Mountain Lake Park from exercising the duties and performing the functions of their respective offices, and pray that the Act of 1931, Chapter 507, be declared unconstitutional and void and allege several reasons, any one of which would void the Act if their contentions be sound.

1. It is contended that the Act is void because the title includes two separate and distinct matters in violation of Article 3, Section 29, of the Constitution of Maryland, and because it attempts to repeal the charter of one private corporation (the Community of Mountain Lake Park), amend that of another not mentioned (Mountain Lake Park Association of Garrett County), and to create a public or municipal corporation (Mayor and Councilmen of Mountain Lake Park). By the constitutional provision just mentioned it is declared: "Every law enacted by the General Assembly shall embrace but one subject and that shall be described in its title." This declaration of the organic law has been before the Court of Appeals in no fewer than forty-five cases since its incorporation into the Constitution of 1851; and in less than one-fourth of those instances has an Act of the Assembly been stricken down by reason of its being in conflict with that provision. It is only the subject of the Act which must be described in the title, and neither the details of the legislation nor the means of instrumentalities by which the subject is to be carried into effect constitute the subject of the Act.

The title of the Act of 1931, Chapter 507, so severely criticized by the plaintiffs, is: "An Act to incorporate the town of Mountain Lake Park in Garrett County, Maryland, and to repeal Chapter 430 of the Acts of 1888, entitled 'An Act to incorporate the Community of Mountain Lake Park,' and to repeal Chapters 315 of 1896, 688 of 1914, 176 of 1916 and 160 of 1927, amending said Act and providing for a referendum thereon." The plaintiffs contend that if the Act of 1888 and its amendments can be repealed (which they question) it can only be done by a separate Act of Assembly. If the Act of 1931 is inconsistent with that of 1888 and its subject matter not germane to it, the plaintiffs' contention would be sound; and if they are right it might not be possible for the Legislature to incorporate a municipality having jurisdiction over the territory known as Mountain Lake Park, though the Constitution of Maryland, Article 3, Section 48, authorizes the formation by special act of incorporations for "municipal purposes. "The Legislature has the power to create municipal corporations, to amend their charters, enlarge or diminish their powers, extend or limit their boundaries, consolidate two or more into one, overrule their legislative action whenever it is deemed unwise, impolitic or unjust, and even abolish them altogether in the legislative discretion."

In view of the constitutional provision, the power of the Legislature to create a new municipal corporation at Mountain Lake Park cannot be disputed, even if the Community of Mountain Lake Park has not been disturbed.

But are the two acts of incorporation inconsistent? And is the repeal of the Act of 1888 and its amendments the logical sequence of the Act of 1931 creating the municipality? The Acts relating to the Community of Mountain Lake Park, even though Section 2 does say "the said Community is not to have, possess or acquire any political franchises whatsoever, nor any of those powers ordinarily distinguishing public or municipal corporations from corporations or associations merely private," do invest the Community with powers only exercised by municipal corporations, namely: to exercise certain police powers, pass ordinances to enforce sanitary measures, license vehicles, make, improve and care for roads, bridges, etc., and to levy and collect taxes, the officer or person collecting the taxes to have all the powers of the county tax collector in so doing. These are all ordinary powers, in fact are the principal functions of a municipality. The Legislature to avoid double taxation and conflict of authority, could not consistently incorporate the municipality without bringing to an end the Community as created by the Act of 1888 and its amendments.

The Constitution (Article 3, Section 48) provides that "All charters granted or adopted in pursuance of this section * * * * may be altered from time to time or repealed," and unless rights of property have become vested under the charter, which I fail to find from these proceedings, the Legislature which created the Community of Mountain Lake Park could repeal its act of incorporation. Suppose the Legislature had passed the Act of 1931 and had failed to pass an act repealing the Act of 1888 and its amendments, as might readily have happened. There would then be two corporations of substantially the same character exercising municipal authority over a small town. To avoid the possibility of such mischief both acts of Assembly could not be allowed to exist at the same time. In my opinion the two Acts of 1888 and 1931 covered the same subject matter and the enactment of the one and the repeal of the other were properly included in the Act of 1931, Chapter 570.

2. The plaintiffs also allege that the Act of 1931, Chapter 570, is invalid because of its franchise clause providing qualifications of voters. They are probably right when they say they never heard of any qualifications as broad as to permit the "wives and or husbands and children of property owners who are 21 years of age or over" to vote. But whether it is unusual is not the question. The only thing to be decided here is whether the Legislature had the right to name such qualifications. It has been decided by the Court of Appeals that the constitutional provision (Article 1, Section 1,) has no application to municipal corporations other than Baltimore City. In Hanna v. Young, 84 Md. 181, it is said: "Whilst the Constitution, Article 3, Section 48, authorizes and empowers the General Assembly to create corporations for municipal purposes it nowhere prohibits the Legislature from imposing upon the qualified voters residing within the corporate limits of a town any reasonable restrictions it may deem proper when seeking the exercise of the elective franchise in the selection of its officers. In this respect the power of the Legislature is unlimited.

We regard it as an unreasonable inference to suppose that municipal elections held within the State (outside the corporate limits of Baltimore City) can be properly termed elections under the Constitution such as State and county elections; or that the framers of the Constitution ever contemplated that Article I, Section 1, of that instrument was intended to apply to municipal elections such as the one now under consideration, which is the mere creature of statutory enactment.

In the creation of a new municipality the constitution devolves upon the General Assembly the entire duty of giving vitality to and of organizing and fostering the body corporate, without any other constitutional regulation than the mandate to provide for the system itself. It is therefore the mere creature of legislative sanction and the subject of statutory regulation.

A constitution is a limitation upon the power and authority of a legislature, and unless the exercise of power by it be restricted, limited or defined, the courts cannot interfere. In the absence of a provision in the Constitution regarding voting qualifications at municipal elections (outside of Baltimore City) the courts cannot prescribe them. It is a legislative function and the remedy is with the Legislature alone. I am therefore of the opinion that the provision in the Act of 1931 covering the qualifications of voters is not invalid.

3. Complaint is also made that the Act destroys certain vested rights of the Mountain Lake Park Association, the corporation which developed all the property included in the town of Mountain Lake Park, and by implication repeals many provisions of its charter. Many deeds have been filed as exhibits to the bill which contain the restrictions and conditions on which the conveyances were made. It is not within the power of the Legislature to strike down such provisions, nor do I understand that the Act of 1931 pretends to do it. That such conditions and covenants as are contained in these deeds are enforceable has long and frequently been held in this State.

It is not within the power of the Mayor and Councilmen of Mountain Lake Park to interfere with the conditions and covenants contained in the deeds of the lot owners at Mountain Lake Park. That is a judicial question and this court is the place where the property rights of those whose rights might be invaded can be determined. But this question has not arisen, and if the parties respect each other's rights it may never arise.

For the reasons assigned I am of the opinion that the Act of 1931, Chapter 570, was the valid exercise of legislative power and the defendants' demurrer will be sustained, the injunction refused and the bill dismissed.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY IN MISSOURI

The election of Robert D. Johnson, Democrat, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Samuel C. Major, Democrat, in the Seventh Missouri Congressional District, was expected. The district is normally Democratic. Since 1920, when a Republican went in with the Harding landslide, the Republicans have carried it only once—in 1928.

It is the size of the Johnson plurality which must be considered in estimating the political trend. From this viewpoint his 9,000 margin over his Republican opponent, former Representative Palmer, and his carrying Republican counties is unmistakably impressive. It becomes even more so when one considers that there was an independent Democrat in the field. It is, however, not surprising. Every realist, we think, will concede that the trend has been away from the Administrattion, due primarily to the proverbial tendency in times of depression to blame the party in power. It would be a miracle if the tendency were otherwise. A devout prayer that the depression continue until November, 1932, is written on the heart of every Democratic politician.

Mr. Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, is justified in being optimistic. But when he declares that what happened in Missouri is conclusive proof that the Democrats will organize the House in December we are inclined to think him a bit premature. A Democrat succeeds a Democrat in Missouri. There are six other vacancies to be filled before Congress convenes. In the Seventh New York and the First Georgia Democrats will succeed Democrats beyond peradventure. Republicans are likely to succeed Republicans in the Eighth Michigan, the Second Pennsylvania and the First Wisconsin, unless the Democratic trend then is strong enough to overthrow the large Republican pluralities of the past. The Democrats are optimistic about capturing the First and the Twentieth Ohio, the latter being the late Speaker Longworth's old district. If they win both they will have a majority in the House—218 to 216, conceding the Michigan, the Pennsylvania and the Wisconsin districts to the Republicans. If they win only one it will be a tie, with Representative Kvale, Farmer-Laborite from Minnesota, holding the deciding vote. In such a case the Republicans' belief that he will vote with them on organization would be little better than a hope.

That, of course, is just pure mathematics of the situation. It does not tell the whole story. The contest in the Republican ranks for the post of Speaker, with the opposition of the Western members to an Eastern man, might well bring about a split which would lead to the election of Representative Garner, the unopposed choice of the Democrats. The outcome is and will continue to be in the lap of the gods, at least until after all the vacancies are filled, and perhaps until a decisive vote is taken after Congress meets.—New York Herald-Tribune.

An Interesting Fact

IMPORTANT DATES FOR THE SLUGGISH MEMORY

Maryland history is so replete with interesting incidents that to recall at will any but the most important dates on which they occurred would require a memory trained to that exactness possessed by few. Among the many, however, are a number it might be well for us to remember in order that we may visualize the period in which the events happened.

Among them are:

Chesapeake Bay explored by Captain John Smith, 1608.

Kent Island taken possession of by Claiborne as a trading post, July, 1631.

Charter of Maryland granted, June 20, 1632.

Ark and Dove sailed for Maryland, November 22, 1633.

Colonists landed, March 25, 1634.

Assembly of Maryland first met, February 26, 1635.

First step in self-government taken in 1635.

First naval battle between the Long Tail and the St. Margaret and the St. Helen on the Little Pocomoke River, 1635.

William Ingle gets control of Maryland, 1643.

The Toleration Act passed, 1649.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Methodist Episcopal church conference appointments included the following: Deer Park, J. N. Sharp; Oakland, W. J. Sharps; Grantsville, J. H. Enlow; Friendsville, M. Knotts.

The following ticket was named at the Republican county convention held in the Court House in Oakland: For State's Attorney, E. H. Sincell; Sheriff, J. S. Myers; House of Delegates, George L. Michael, T. H. Bittinger; County Commissioners, Jacob Fresh, Edward Margroff, T. W. Casteel; for Judges of the Orphans' Court, Charles Morgan, Henry Kamp, Henry G. Sanders; Surveyor, John Harned. E. E. Sollars, George F. Ault and Charles Wegman were named members of the Republican county committee.

The grist mill owned by Henry A. Rasche and operated by George M. Mason, Water street, Oakland, was discovered to be on fire. The flames were extinguished by a bucket brigade, then composing the only fire fighting unit in the town.

The youngest daughter of Thomas Coddington fell from the back of a horse and broke her right wrist.

The Garrett Guards, with 32 men in line and commanded by Capt. J. Newman, showed life and vigor in their movements and marched and wheeled in fine style at the Cumberland carnival and sham battle staged in that city.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Appointments made at the West Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church included the following stations in Garrett county: Deer Park, J. H. Cuppett; Friendsville, E. P. Idleman; Grantsville, W. W. Morris; Oakland, A. B. Riker.

Edward Rathbun, Mountain Lake Park, was seriously injured when he was caught between a threshing machine engine and a wagon.

Mrs. James Willison was injured in a driving accident which occurred in Allegany county, when she sustained an injury to her ankle by leaping from a vehicle in which she was riding and which collided with a horse being led along the roadway.

Grover Stemple received a scalp wound when a joint of heavy sewer pipe toppled over and struck him, cutting a deep gash in his head.

A story copied from the Wheeling Intelligencer stated that the Youghiogheny River would be dammed so that coal boats would be floated on an artificial flood stage of water in the Ohio following the opening of gates holding the water back in the Youghiogheny to be released as was needful for a boating stage in the Ohio.

Oakland Boys Win Honors In State Judging Contest

Vocational Agriculture boys of Oakland High School won high honors at the Frederick County Fair when Hagan Frazee won individual honors in corn judging, and with Wayne Fitzwater, took first place among twenty-nine teams. George Porter and Wayne Hamilton took eighth in cattle judging, and the demonstration team composed of Wayne Hamilton, Wayne Fitzwater and Earl Spoerleln, took first place. Wayne Hamilton was also elected vice-president of the Maryland Future Farmers of America. In the picture, reading from left to right, are Earl Spoerlein, Wayne Fitzwater, Wayne Hamilton, Hagan Frazee and George Porter.

MT. LAKE PARK

Now that the Court has handed down its opinion in the matter of the new municipal charter, every one should put his shoulder to the wheel and push.

At the last meeting of the Mayor and Council an ordinance was passed regulating the burning of leaves. It provides that all leaves shall be burned or otherwise disposed of by May 1 of each year by the property owner or the tenant, and on failure so to do, it is provided that the town may perform that duty and charge and collect the costs. It is further provided that no leaves shall be burned within twenty feet of any building and that sufficient assistance and supply of water shall be provided to insure safety, and all embers and fire shall be put out before leaving the premises.

The following pupils were perfect in attendance at the Loch Lynn school for September: Henry Gibson, Carl Callis, Glenn Killjus, Robert Simpson, Carl Liller, Ralph Weeks, Ralph Baker, Frank Murphy, Carlton Callis, John Foglepole, Reid Shipley, Jay Bell, Wellington Smouse, Melvin Sisler, Grant White, Harland Paugh, Bettie Martin, Helena Savage, Gladys Swires, Estella Harris, Mary White, Helen Liller, Lorena Baker, Catherine Murphy, Eloise Conner, Katheryne Beckman, Rosemary Simpson, Sue Sweitzer, Evelyn Sloan, Dorothy Kesner, Francis Hogue, Lester Murphy, Alvin Wrightsman, Boyd White, Robert Root, Mayo Sisler, June Harris, Emma Callis, Ethel Murphy, Ruth Shipley, Maud Sisler, Calvin White, Adra Paugh, Leo Callis, Betty Brown, Emma Lee Liller, Ruth Ann Kesner, and Charles Groves.

One afternoon last week, Mrs. Daisy Hicks, performing some household duties on the porch of her cottage facing the old auditorium, heard something strike the floor and on investigation found that a steel-jacketed bullet, apparently fired from a high powered 30-30 rifle, had all but buried itself in a board. Evidently it was about spent. It was a mysterious occurrence, as an examination of the direction from which the bullet must have come makes it seem almost impossible for it to have traveled any distance without striking a house, tree, or other obstruction.

DIED.

EMMA E. WALTER

Emma E. Walter, wife of James W. Walter, born July 7, 1866, in Garrett county, near Gorman, the daughter of Murray and the late Mrs. Eliza White, died October 2, 1931, aged 65 years, 2 months and 25 days.

She was united in marriage with James W. Walter on December 11, 1895, and to this union the following children were born, four of whom survive with the husband: Mrs. Bruce Lohr, Deer Park; Mrs. Russell Corley, Huntington, W. Va.; Miss Alma Walter and Gilmor S. Walter, Fairmont, W. Va.; Alta Florence and Jas. Murray, deceased. Her aged father, who is in his 92nd year, three brothers and three sisters, and stepmother, also survive. Her mother departed 28 years ago next November.

Mrs. Walter had been an invalid the past fourteen months and a great sufferer, but always bearing her sufferings in patience and that fortitude characteristic of the true Christian. She joined the M. E. church October 8, 1881, and was always an active member, taking a great interest in church work until her health failed. She frequently expressed her desire to go home as her peace with God was assured. Her only regret was leaving her loved ones behind. Even through her affliction she passed many a happy hour.

Her funeral was conducted by Rev. Archibald Moore on October 4 at 11 o'clock and her remains were laid to rest in the Deer Park cemetery by the side of her children. The funeral was the largest that has been conducted in Deer Park in a number of years and deep sorrow was manifested on all sides. The casket rested at the altar before many beautiful flowers. She was deeply loved and highly respected by all. She was a loving wife and one of the dearest mothers to her children that the writer has ever known. She was exceedingly kind to everyone with whom she came in contact. She will be sadly missed by all, but God's will, not ours, be done. May God in his richest benediction abide in the home of bereavement with all its cherished loved ones.

The pallbearers were Claude Friend, A. W. Thrasher, Alonzo Warnick, Oscar Harvey, Edward Helbig and C. A. Ashby.

OAKLAND HIGH NEWS

The O. H. S. Glee Club will be divided into two sections, Junior and Senior girls and Junior and Senior boys.

Athletic Teams Win

O. H. S. soccer and fieldball teams won their first victories of the season when they met Kempton high on the local field. The girls' score for fieldball was 13-2 and the boys' soccer team entirely shut out the opposing team by a score of 18-0.

Both the boys and the girls team showed an unusual amount of team work, and several spectators stated that never in the history of O. H. S. has such a show of co-operative team work been displayed as was shown by the girls.

Crellin Defeated By Cumberland B. & O. Team

Crellin went down to defeat at the hands of the Cumberland Baltimore and Ohio Railroad team at the Community ball park in Cumberland last Sunday afternoon by the score of 7-3. The Railroaders got the jump on Crellin in the opening frame when they hopped on to Melouse's offerings for four hits, combined with an infield error and a passed ball, which netted the Railroaders five runs. The Crellin team tightened up and Melouse held the Railroaders to five hits the remainder of the game. Crellin tallied three times on five hits off of Corrigan, ex-Middle Atlantic League pitcher, who served two years with the Cumberland Colts. The B. & O. team will play a return game at Crellin next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Don Colaw will be on the mound for Crellin, while Lefty Appell, star southpaw of the B. & O. outfit, will probably be the Railroaders' choice. Score by innings.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN

J. H. CARTER,
Resident County Agent,

Sheep Flocks Infested by Stomach Worms

A number of sheep raisers in Maryland, Virginia and other states have had trouble with stomach worms in their flocks this year, especially during the past month. The abundance of rainfall during the summer has been very favorable for the development of this pest.

The dry year of 1930 more or less prevented the development of stomach worms and as a result sheepmen have become a little negligent in the treatment of their sheep regularly, with the results that serious damage has been done to many flocks.

The regular administration of the copper sulphate treatment once each month during the pasture season, whether the flock seems thrifty or not, is a simple means of cutting down losses in the sheep flock.

In flocks that have not been treated, the late lambs and frequently older sheep, will show symptoms of stomach worm infections through scouring, lack of vigor, loss of condition, pale of skin, pale eyelid lining, dropsical swelling under the jaw and sometimes death will result.

In these days of low prices for market lambs, it is important that all of the lambs be raised and marketed in good condition. Stomach worm control will go far in making this possible.

One ounce of pure copper sulphate which costs about one cent, will be sufficient to treat between 20 and 25 sheep. Directions for treating sheep may be secured from the office of the county agent upon request.

Perennial Weeds In The Lawn

Nothing is more beautiful than a lawn in which there is a purebred stand of some grass such as the Kentucky bluegrass. This is an ideal difficult to attain, however, in a climate with such extremes as occur in Maryland.

One of the pests which must be fought is the perennial weed. Several types may be found, but the dandelion, broad-leaved plantain, narrow-leaved plantain and dock are perhaps the ones most frequently seen. As with all weed pests, it is essential to prevent the formation of seed if effective warfare is to be waged. When these perennial weeds become well established it may be necessary to plow up the lawn and reseed. However, scattering plants are often dug up by hand. This is a laborious task and with such forms as the dandelion the cut off root sprouts up again and nullifies the efforts. Squirting a little coal oil on the cut root makes the digging process more effective.

HEART FAILURE TOPS DEATH LIST IN MARYLAND

Given As Chief Cause of Mortality in State Last Year

Showing a marked change from the beginning of the present century, when tuberculosis headed the list of fatal ailments, heart failure is given as the chief cause of death in Maryland in 1930, in a table issued Saturday by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health.

The table traces the mortality causes from 1901, when the bureau first began functioning, to the beginning of 1931, emphasizing the fall of tuberculosis to sixth place. Heart disease claimed 234 persons out of every 100,000 in the State last year, while tuberculosis was responsible for an average of 66, the table shows.

Homicide Foots List

Homicide foots the list of causes, with a rate of 3 persons per 100,000 population. Accidents come fairly high on the table, accounting for a rate of eighty. Acute and chronic nephritis comes next to heart disease as the second highest cause of death, being followed closely by pneumonia (all forms).

Cancer occupies fourth place on the list, only a few points ahead of cerebral hemorrhage and apoplexy. The death rate for four of the five pricipal diseases in 1930—heart disease, nephritis, cerebral hemorrhage and cancer—has shown an upward trend since 1901, the table shows.

Held First Place

For a number of years tuberculosis held first position on the list, until 1918, when influenza and pneumonia supplanted all diseases. The following year heart disease climbed to first place and has retained its position since. Dr. Robert H. Riley, director of the State Health Department, said:

"The order of importance for the majority of the leading causes of death is the same for both the white and Negro races in Maryland, but it is interesting to note that while heart diseasc has the highest mortality in both, tuberculosis stands second among the Negroes and seventh among the whites.

Negro Rate Higher

"The Negro rate is higher than the white in every case except cancer, diabetes, mellitus, suicide and congenital malformations. This excess is particularly marked in tuberculosis, pneumonia, diarrhea and enteritis, diseases of the early infancy and homicide.

"To me the most striking change in the composition of the group since the beginning of the century is in the declining importance of the infectious diseases, particularly typhoid fever and diphtheria. Apparently deaths from all forms of violence—homicide, suicide and accidents—are becoming of more importance each year. The causes that have reached the head of the list and held their places are chiefly the degenerative diseases."

Third Phase of the Battle.

The third phase of the Meuse-Argonne operations hegnn October 14. Dnring the previous phase, important gains had heen made nlong the whole front against incrensing latensity of resistance. The retirement of the enemy in front of the allies to the west, which was helng accelernted hy our persistent gains in the east, indicated clearly that he was trying to save himself from complete disaster, which it was urgent that we should strive all the more vigorously to hasten.

The enemy's strong defenses in the Bois de Romagne and the Bois de Bantheville had to he reduced before further considerable progress could be made. To the west of Romagne heights we faced the strongly fortified position which included Cote de Chatillon-Landres-St. Georges-St. Juvin-Bois des Loges and Granópre.

Our attacks on the 14th, 15th and 16th in conjunction with Gouraud's French Fourth army met violent opposition, especially at the heginning, and although ground was often taken and retaken several times, our lines were steadily pushed forward.

East of the Meuse, in the French Seventeenth corps the Sixty-fifth brigade (Edward L. King) of the Thirty-third division had made some progress, and the Twenty-ninth division, despite the difficult terrain and severe casualties, had entered woods north of Molleville farm.

The Fifth division, in the face of intense fire on its front nnd flanks, on the 14th reached the top of the slopes northeast of Romagne and cleared the wood north of Cunel. Elements of the division pushed through to the northern edge of the Bois des Rappes, but were withdrawn.

By dint of the superior determination of our troops, the enemy's lines were broken at a vital point by the Fifth corps.

Cote Dame Marie Taken.

Unstinted praise must he given the Thirty-second division, which, notwithstanding heavy losses, October 14 brilliantly captured Cote Dame Marie, perhaps the most important strong point of the Hindenburg line on the western front. The town of Romagne and the eastern half of Bois de Romagne were also taken hy this division on that day, while on the following day its line was ndvanced about a mile to the southern edge of the Bois de Bantheville.

The Forty-second division fought aggressively against the most obstinate defense, forcing its way through the western half of Bois de Romagne, its Eighty-fourth brignde (Douglas MacArthur) scaling the precipitous heights of the Cote de Chatillon and carrying its line on beyond that position. The desperate resistance on the left of the division, south of St. George and Landres-et-St. Georges, however, could not be overcome.

The importance of these operations can hardly be overestimated. The capture of the Romagne heights, especially its dominating feature, Cote Dame Marie, was a decisive blow. We now occupied the enemy's strongest fortified position on that front and flanked his line on the Aisne and the heights of the Meuse. Unless he could recapture the positions we held, our successes would compel the enemy to retrent from his lines to the north, as we were within heavy artillery range of his railroad lines.

CHAPTER LXI

The pressure of the American army in the great Meuse-Argonne offensive had profoundly impressed the enemy. October 3 Marshal Von Hindenburg sent the following letter to the German chancellor:

> The High Command insists on its demand of September 29, for the immediate forwarding of an offer of peace to our enemies . . . There is now no longer any possible hope of forcing peace upon the enemy. . . . The situation grows more desperate every day and may force the High Command to grave decisions. . . ."

The chancellor yielded, and October 5 telegraphed, through the Swiss government, to President Wilson:

> "The Germnn government requests the President of the United States to take in hand the restoration of peace, acquaint all belligerent states with this request, and invite them to send plenipotentiaries for opening negotiations. It accepts the program set forth by the President in his message to congress January 8, and in his later addresses, especially the speech of September 27, as a basis for peace negotiations.
> "With a view to avoiding further bloodshed, the German government requests the immediate conclusion of an armistice on land nnd water and in the air.
> "(Signed) Max, Prince von Bedan, - "Imperial Chancellor."

The President's reply was not satisfactory to the German government and the exchange of notes continued until finally the Germans nccepted tho very frank statement by the President conveyed in a State department message October 23, that "the nations of the world do not and cannot trust the word of those who have hitherto been the masters of German policy," and that "the government of the United States cannot deal with any hnt veritnhle representatives of the German people, who have hren assured of a genuine constitutional standing as the real rulers of Germany.

"If it must deal with the military masters and the monarchial autocrats of Germany now, or if it is likely to have to deal with them later in regard to the international ohligations of the German empire, it must demand, not pence negotiations, hut surrender."

Mennwhile, with these peace negotiations in progress, and with our own and allied offensive continuing to produce favorable results, it became more and more evident that the time soon must come when we should have to consider terms and conditions nnder which hostilities might cease. The discussion of armistice terms in a general way by the allies had in fact begun.

The enemy's most important defensive position on the Romagne heights was in our firm possession, and his final defeat was only a question of time. He had fought desperately to hold his ground, but had been compelled to give way steadily before our effective blows. We could have gone forward without specinl preparation and succeeded in driving the enemy from the field, but the situation led to the conclusion that his defeat could best he accomplished hy one powerful stroke by a well organized offensive.

The difficult and continuous offensive from September 26 had been very trying on our troops and had resulted in a certain loss of cohesion. It was, therefore, deemed advisable to take a few days for the replacement of tired troops, the renewal of supplies, and the improvement of communications.

French Delay Attack.

October 28 was tentntively designated for the beginning of the next general advance, the fourth phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, but the French army, which was to snpport our attack on the left, could not get ready in time, so the nttack of both armies was fixed for November 1.

In accordance with my instructions on October 16, two important preliminary operations were carried ont during this period. (1) operations against the bois des Loges and Bois de Bourgogne to clear the woods east of the Aisne and north of the Aire and thus flank thnt part of the hostile line on the Asine, and (2) local operations to secure a suitable line of departnre for the general attack.

During the Meuse-Argonne battle my personnl quarters were on my train, which lay partially hidden in the woods on a spur near Souilly. While there I spent a portion of each day at official headquarters giving directions regarding operations and deciding other important questions. I nsually occupied the rest of the day at the front in close touch with eorps and divisions. Although I had now relinquished the immediate command of the First army, its activities and those of the Second army, carried out under my direction, required elose snpervision.

Farther west, our Second eorps (Read), with the British Fourth army, was engaged October 17 south of Le Cateau in the Battle of the Selle. This corps, with the Thirtieth (Lewis) and Twenty-seventh (O'Rynn) division in line from right to left, crossed the Selle river and advanced four miles in the face of strong resistance, captnring 1,000 prisoners and 12 guns.

The main objective of our initial attack September 26 had been reached. Failing to capture it in our first attempt we had deliberately, systematically and doggedly stuck to the task in the face of many difficulties and discouragements.

CHAPTER LXII

The demands of incessant battle had compelled our divisions to fight to the limit of their capacity. Troops were held in line and pushed to the attack until deemed incapable of further effort because of casnalties or exhaustion; artillery once engaged was seldom withdrawn. Many hatteries fought until practically all the animals were casualties, leaving the guns to be towed out of line by motor trucks or by hand.

Our men as a whole showed unrivaled fortitude in this continuous fighting during inclement weather and nnder many disadvantages of position.

Consider Armistice Terms.

My diary records:

"Paris, Monday, October 28, 1918. Met Marshal Foch and allied commanders at Senlis Friday to consider terms of armistice. Petain's views were stiffer than Marshal Haig's and mine more stringent than either.

"Have been laid up with grip since Saturday."

At the opening of the conference Marshal Foch said in substance: "Yon are doubtless aware that the Germans are negotiating for an armistice through the intermediary of the American government, and declare themselves ready to accept the fourteen points of President Wilson as a hasis."

He went on to say that he had called us together to obtain our views, and that he thought "the terms should he such as to render Germaay powerless to recommence operations in cnse hostilities are resumed." One of his officers then read aloud from a newspaper the fourteen points.

Defers to British and French.

Foch then asked my opinion as to conditions that should be imposed, and I replied that as it was a matter of greater concern to hoth Great Britain and France than to the United States, and that as their armies had been engaged longer and had suffered more than ours, I thought it appropriate for Sir Douglas Hnig and General Petain to express their views first.

Marshal Haig snid in substance that the German army was far from being disintegrated and was still capable of withdrawing to a shorter front and making a stand against equal or greater forces. On the other hand, the allies were pretty well exhausted. The total shortage of men for the British nnd French armies, he said, was about 250,000 each, with none available to fill the gaps. The American army, he further said, was not yet complete, and some time must elapse hefore it would he lnrge enough to relieve the diminishing allied armies. He thought the terms should he such that the Germans would not hesitate to accept them.

He then proposed immediate nnd complete evacuation of invaded Belgian and French territory; occupation by the allies of Alsace, Lorraine, and the fortresses of Metz and Strasbourg; restitution of all rolling stock seized by the Germans in France and Belgium, or its equivalent, and repatriation of inhabitants of invaded territory.

Marshal Foch then asked my views. I replied, in effect:

"The general view that an armistice should provide guarantees against a resumption of hostilities, give the allies a decided advantage, and be unfavorable to Germany in case hostilities should be resumed, meets with my approval. I think thnt the dnmage done by the war to the interests of the powers with which the United States is associnted against Germnny has been so great thnt there should be no tendency toward leniency.

"The present military situation is very favorable to the allies. The German forces since the heginning of the counter-offensive July 18 hnve been constantly in retrent and have not been able to recover since thnt time. The condition of the French and British armies can best be judged by the fact that they have been continuously on the offensive since then and that they are now attacking with much vigor.

"As to the American army, the part it has taken in the operations since July 18 has not been inconsiderable. It is constantly increasing in strength and training; its staffs, its services and its higher commanders have improved by experience, so there is every reason to suppose that the American army will be ahle to take the pnrt expected of it in the event of resumption of hostilities. I therefore propose:

> "1. Evacuation of Frnnce and Belgium within 30 dnys and of all other foreign territory occupied by Germany without delay.
> "2. Withdrawal of the German armies from Alsace-Lorraine and occupation of those territories hy the allied armies.
> "3. Withdrnwal of German armies to the east of the Rhine and and the possession of such bridgeheads on the eastern side in the Rhine by the allies as may be necessary to insure their control of that river.
> "4. Unrestricted transportation of the American army and its material across the seas.
> "5. Immedinte repatriation of all nationals of foreign territory now or herctofore occupied during the war by Germany.
> "6. Surrender of all U-boats and U-boat bases to the control of a neutral power until their disposition is otherwise determined.
> "7. Return to France and Belgium of all railroad rolling stock that has heen seized by Germany from those countries."

Marshal Foch expressed his thanks for what I had said, and added that while it was true the American army was still young, its spirit was splendid and it was tremendously increasing every day in efficiency and in numbers.

He then asked Marshal Haig whether, in view of what General Petain and I hnd said, he cared to modify his views on the terms of an armistice, to which Haig replied in the negative. The conference ended here with Marshal Foch's request that each of us submit in writing what we had proposed.

CHAPTER LXIII

Returning to Paris from the conference of allied commanders-in-chief at Senlis, October 25, 1918, I cabled a report of the proceedings to Washington, including my proposals in detail as enumerated in the previous chapter.

Marshal Foch did not definitely express his views at the conference, as may be recalled, hut the following day he submitted his report to Prime Minister Clemenceau. Marshal Foch's recommendntions embraced the main points proposed by the commander-in-chief, and were accepted by the supremo war council with practically no change.

In the light of later events we know Germany was more nearly beaten than the allied leaders realized at that time, and was, in fact, in no position to resume the fighting even had her government remained intact. Her last division was in line, her supply system was demornlized, and the congestion behind her lines made it practically impossihle for her to move her armies in the face of the nggressive allies.

Instead of requiring the German forces to retire at once, leaving material, arms and equipment behind, the armistice terms permitted them to march hack to their homeland with colors flying and hands playing, posing as the victims of political conditions.

If unconditional surrender had heen demnnded, the Germans would, without doubt, have been compelled to yield, and their troops would have returned to Germany without arms, virtually as paroled prisoners of war. The surrender of the German armies wonld have hcen an advantage to the allies in the discussion of peace terms and would have greatly facilitated their execution.

In conversation with M. Poincare some time after the war, he told me that, as president of the republic, he was in favor of demanding the surrender of the German armies, hut that M. Clemenceau, his prime minister, insisted npon granting them an armistice.

The last phase of the Meuse-Argonne operations was to begin November 1. The American army was now able for the first time to prepare for an offensive with some deliberation, under reasonably normal conditions and more nearly on an equal footing with the other armies.

We had learned from reports and from photographs taken by our aviators that the enemy had greatly strengthened the most prominent points back of his lines, while captured documents indicated his intention of organizing a position along the west slopes of the Barricourt ridge. The eastern spurs of this ridge commanded all the crossings of the Meuse and formed a connecting link with the high ground east of the river about Cote Saint-Germain.

The infantry advanced to the assault at 5:30 the morning of November 1, following an accurate barrage of artillery and machine-gun fire, which beat down German resistance over a zone of 1,200 yards in depth. Squadrons of swift-flying combat planes drove the enemy planes from the air and fired on the hostile infantry, while the bombing squadrons harassed important points behind the enemy's lines. The attack went forward with precision, gaining momentum with every mile.

MARRIAGE RECORD GOES OVER 1,000 IN NINE MONTHS

One Hundred Seventy Licenses Were Issued in September

With the issuance during the two-weeks period ending Monday afternoon of sixty-six marriage licenses, forty-four of which were granted the last week in September, the all-time September record of 148 was surpassed, the all-time record of 154 for any one month was surpassed, and the total for the first three-quarters of the year reached 1,001. This total for the period is in excess of the total for the same period in the year 1927, in which 1,300 licenses were issued. For the same period last year 943 licenses were issued. One hundred seventy licenses were granted during the month of September just closed.

Nine licenses granted during the two-weeks period were marked "don't publish," while five couples were refused permits on account of the youthfulness of one or more of the parties making application.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, OCTOBER 15, 1931. NUMBER 35.

"SAVE-A-LIFE" CAMPAIGN STARTS TODAY IN STATE

Fourth Annual Free Car Inspection Period in Maryland Will Continue Until November 30

INSPECTION COMPULSORY

Brakes, lights, horns, windshield wipers, steering apparatus, rear view mirrors and license tags will form the salient points of the fourth annual "Save-a-Life campaign," which starts today in Maryland and continues until November 30, according to E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

The campaign is intended to reduce traffic accidents. The free car inspection will be given at 1200 inspection stations, a number of which are in this county.

Every automobile and truck in the State must be inspected by a mechanic in the designated garages and if found to be faulty in any respect must be put in safe condition before the official inspection sticker will be affixed to the windshield. Every motor vehicle owner or operator will have to show evidence that his car has been inspected before he can obtain his license tag for the year 1932.

During the first year of the operation of this law 1,003 cars were inspected in Oakland and vicinity and 63 percent were found to pass inspection without repair work of any kind. Two years ago 1,408 cars were inspected in Oakland and it was estimated that from 60 to 75 per cent were in good road condition when thus inspected. Last year the number in Oakland and vicinity reached more than 1,500. Of the 328,280 automobiles and motor vehicles examined in the State last year, 50,000 had unsafe brakes, and 60,000 headlights were adjusted.

The Inspection is being conducted under the provisions of Chapter 259 of the General Assembly of 1929, which authorizes the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles to require the inspection of the safety factors of all automobiles.

Scout Officers Are Installed At Meeting Friday Evening

Officers of Oakland Troop, No. 1, Boy Scouts of America, were installed at the weekly meeting of the organization held last Friday evening. The officers installed include Elvin Iman and Harley Dawson, junior assistants; Robert Altstetter, senior patrol leader; James Treacy, patrol leader Fox patrol; Lewis Jones, assistant; Schell Hoye, patrol leader Beaver patrol; George Stuck, assistant; Stuart Hamill, patrol leader Crow patrol; Gerald Iman, assistant; Donald Stemple, patrol leader Eagle patrol; Richard Gonder, assistant.

Moving picturs showing methods of tying knots and learning to swim were shown to those present. A meeting of the newly elected offiers will be held and the winter program outlined.

Legion To Install Officers

Installation of officers will be held at the regular meeting of the local American Legion post on Monday evening, when J. R. Tenney, vice-commander for the Western Maryland district will be present and officiate at the ceremonies.

Those to be installed include Alex. Hesen, commander; Richard Maroney, vice-commander; Joseph Gonder, adjutant; Delbert Davis, historian; Harold Dawson, finance officer; E. P. Kahl, service officer; William Ferguson, sergeant-at-arms; Rev. Wm. J. McVeigh, chaplain.

A smoker will be held following the installation of the officers.

MARRIED

Orendorf — Wensell — Miss Ada Wensell became the bride of Mr. Daniel E. Orendorf in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, at 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony. The ring service was used.

Both the bride and groom are from near Oakland. Mrs. Orendorf is the daughter of Mrs. V. B. Wensell, and Mr. Orendorf is a former member of the Board of County Commissioners and a farmer of this community. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for a trip to the Eastern Shore and points in Delaware. Upon their return they will reside in the recently built home of Mr. Orendorf on Route 37, south of town.

TO HOLD ANNUAL FATHER AND SON DINNER TONIGHT

100 Expected at Vo-Ag. Celebration in O. H. S. Auditorium

More than one hundred boys and their fathers are expected at the sixth annual Father and Son banquet, to be held tonight at the Oakland High School auditorium under the management of the vocational agriculture club of the school. Fifty-nine boys are enrolled in agriculture this year, and a full attendance of the boys and their fathers is being urged.

Dr. Nat T. Frame, director of extension work in West Virginia, and Dr. J. D. Blackwell, of the Maryland State Department of Education, will be the principal speakers. Awards which the members of the club won at the Frederick Fair will be presented at this time. Also on the program will be selections by the Browning Brothers and the Oakland Quartet.

William Turney will be the chef. The agriculture club is under the direction of O. T. Graser and is aiming at one hundred per cent membership in the Future Farmers of America.

TABLELAND ASSOCIATION TO HOLD ANNUAL SESSION

Will Meet Tomorrow Evening at Brookside Inn, Near Aurora

The Allegheny Tableland Association will hold its second annual meeting at Brookside Inn, W. Va., near Aurora, on Friday, October 16, beginning at 3:00 o'clock and continuing with an evening session.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the association at one o'clock, followed by reports and group conferences; meeting of county delegations and final adoption of a constitution and by-laws. An election and installation of officers for the year will also occur.

Following the six o'clock dinner, at which the full membership of Oakland Rotary Club will be present, new projects will be discussed, one being the proposed Fort Necessity historical pageant for July 4, 1932, and another being the choosing of the location for the Music Festival for 1932.

About forty residents of Oakland are expected to attend and take part in the afternoon meeting as well as the evening meeting, at which time Rev. C. A. Shilke and Grover C. Stemple, Mayor of Oakland, will officially extend an invitation for the music festival to be held in Garrett county.

Accidentally Drinks Poison Solution at His Home

Accidentally drinking a bichloride solution on Monday morning, John Stevenson, Mountain Lake Park, was seriously ill at his home for several hours, but is now able to be about as usual.

Mrs. Stevenson had obtained some bichloride tablets to prepare a solution in which to wash the dog. She placed the tablets in a glass. Not noticing the tablets, Mr. Stevenson took the glass and used it to get a drink of water and enough of the tablets dissolved in the water to make him seriously ill. Dr. Broadwater was called and administered an emetic, which saved him from any ill effects.

Dwelling Near Deer Park Destroyed By Fire Last Night

The dwelling on the old John O'Brien farm on the Deer Park-Sand Flat highway, near the Frank DeWitt farm, was entirely consumed by flames last night about 12 o'clock. The farm was owned by the Hamill estate, and had been recently rented to Carl Hardesty, of Cassville, W. Va., who moved into the house on Monday.

Homer Hardesty, a brother, was at home at the time, asleep on a lounge in the room. It Is thought the blaze started in the kitchen.

Community Boosters Meet

The Youghlogheny Community Boosters met at the Selbysport school house on Wednesday, October 7, at which time Paul Brown introduced a cooperative marketing plan to those present, which aroused interest among members of the club.

Comments were made by Harley Spoerleln, agriculture instructor at Grantsville high school, and Charles Miller, agriculture instructor at the Friendsville High school. A round table discussion followed. A special meeting will be held on October 20 for further discussion.

MORE THAN SIXTY PRIZES DONATED FOR HALLOWE'EN

Fourth Annual Celebration and Parade To Be Held in Oakland, Friday, October 30

WILL AWARD $50 IN GOLD

More than sixty prizes, in addition to $50 in gold, will be given away at the Fourth Annual Hallowe'en celebration to be held in Oakland on Friday, October 30, under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, it has been stated by A. T. Shaw, member of the committee in charge of the affair.

With awards to be made for almost any kind of costume or attraction, the parade, which begins at 7 o'clock, promises to be an exceptionally large and colorful one. Prizes will be awarded at the scene of the festivities immediately following the parade. The $50 in gold will be given away later in the evening.

Special emphasis is being laid on the dance, to be given in Offutt's Hall, beginning at nine o'clock. Prizes will also be awarded there. At a meeting of Mr. Shaw, Emroy Bolden and Paul McIntire, members of the committee, last night, the prize list was arranged and will be announced in The Republican next Thursday.

The prizes will be given to the comic couples, the most elaborately dressed couples, best costumes, the couples having the fanciest costumes, the one wearing the oldest costume, best clowns, most original costume, the best attraction, and for the short, fat, lean, tall, grotesque, unique and most outstanding.

Other attractions are being provided by the committee. The celebration is being held on Friday, October 30, so that all business men of the community may participate.

Ice Cream Treat Presented

A sample of special maple pecan ice cream, one and one-half quarts to be exact, was received at The Republican office Monday afternoon with the compliments of the Imperial Ice Cream company, through its local manager, George D. Sprague. Paper dishes and spoons were also provided, and we were asked to note its delicious flavor and fine texture and then tell the company what we thought about it.

The entire staff noted that its flavor and texture were exactly as described, and the editor wasted no time in calling 197 and telling them so. The letter concluded with "Here's hoping you enjoy this little treat; we think you will." We did.

Garrett County Council of Religious Education Meets

The executive board of the Garrett County Council of Religious Education held a meeting in St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland Monday evening at which seven members of the body were present.

Rev. A. B. Harper, of Accident, president of the Council, was chosen the representative of the body to attend the State Sunday school convention to be held at Hagerstown this week. Other matters of business were discussed among which were the constitution and by-laws governing the body, but no definite action in relation thereto was taken.

The November meeting of the committee will be held in St. Paul's M. E. church in Oakland.

Mrs. Mitchell, of Harrisburg, Pa., spent Saturday and Sunday in Oakland a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Corliss, returning to her home Monday morning.

HOME DEMONSTRATOR IS NAMED BY MISS KELLAR

State Agent Announces That Miss Margaret Burtis Will Assume Duties After October 15

VACANT SINCE JULY 1ST

That Miss Margaret Burtis had accepted the position as home demonstration agent for Garrett county, was announced by Miss Venia M. Kellar, state home demonstration agent, yesterday. Miss Burtis will assume her duties after the middle of October, Miss Kellar stated.

The position was offered to Miss Burtis following her visit in the county on September 14, when she met members of the Homemakers clubs in the Grantsville and Oakland sections.

Miss Burtis, whose home is in the middle west, has been engaged in New York State for the past several years in social welfare work.

There has been no home demonstration agent in Garrett county since July 1 when the resignation of Miss Elsie Benthien became effective. In spite of this, all homemakers clubs have continued with their regular meetings and 4-H clubs have remained active.

REPUBLICAN ANNOUNCES POTATO CONTEST TODAY

Prizes to be Offered—Credit on Subscription to be Given

With this issue of the paper The Republican is announcing a potato contest, which is open to all Garrett county potato growers.

Three prizes will be offered for the best bushel of potatoes brought to The Republican office. All participants entering a bushel or more of potatoes will receive a credit slip of equal value, to apply on his subscription to The Republican.

The contest is to serve a four-fold purpose: to afford an outlet for potatoes; to promote friendly competition in raising better Garrett county potatoes; to enable the young men of the vo-ag department of Oakland High school to get first hand experience in potato judging; and to allow all the people of the county to read The Republican, thus keeping up with the news of the county without any cash outlay.

The prizes are to be announced in the next issue. Three bushels of potatoes are equal to the price of one year's subscription to The Republican at present market prices, and potato growers are urged to take advantage of this offer and compete for one of the three prizes.

Three Young Men Texas Bound Where Once There Were Four

Claiming that they were going to Texas, four young men left Oakland Wednesday morning about 11 o'clock in a Buick touring car, to be gone an indefinite period. They were Andrew Gonder, Arthur Lawton, Jr., Richard Roy, and Warder Rexrode. Telephoning ahead to Clarksburg, W. Va., Lawton was detained by authorities at the request of his parents, and he returned to Oakland last night. The other three continued their journey.

Stolen Auto Recovered

A Chevrolet coupe, owned by a Mr. Jenkins, of Cumberland, was recovered last night at Thayerville by State officers. The automobile had been missing for about a week.

A daughter of William Thayer, of Thayerville, said she saw a man park the car near their barn on Sunday.

TO ANNOUNCE WINNERS IN CONTEST AT PUBLIC MEET

20 Prizes To Be Awarded Winners of Yard-Garden Contest

Prize winners in the second annual Yard and Garden contest, conducted under the auspices of the Oakland Civic Club, will be announced at a public meeting to be held in the Oakland High School auditorium on Wednesday evening, October 21, at 8:00 o'clock.

A special program will be presented, including moving pictures on the home and its improvement, a short address by a local speaker and other features by local talent.

There will be twenty prizes awarded. The presentations will be made by Mayor Grover C. Stemple. Special invitations will be mailed to contestants, but everyone is invited to attend the meeting. There were 175 persons who entered the contest this year. Mrs. Harold H. Harned, chairman; Mrs. F. E. Rathbun and Mrs. Julius Littman composed the committee having charge of the details of the contest. There will be money awards, as well as bulbs, shrubs, etc.

The Oakland Civic Club will have as its guests at the meeting the Kitzmiller Civic Club members. Following the program a reception will be given for members of the visiting club at the home of Mrs. A. D. Naylor. Mrs. James Willison will be charge.

RAILROAD STREET BLAZE STOPPED AT EARLY HOUR

Old West Property Discovered on Fire at 2:15—Gonder's Jewelry Store Is Robbed

Fire, probably of incendiary origin, was discovered in the old West property on Railroad street about 2:15 this morning, but was extinguished by the fire company a few minutes after the alarm had been turned in.

Two youths, returning to their homes at Davis, W. Va., from Terra Alta, saw the flames from the highway as they were entering town and notified Policeman Nethkin. The fire was in the front part of the building, on the street level floor among a huge pile of short lumber and trash that had been thrown into it. The structure has been unoccupied for a number of years.

Shortly before the fire was discovered one of the Second street windows of Francis E. Gonder's jewelry store was broken probably by a rock or brick, and four wrist watches and several vanity cases stolen from it. Persons living nearby heard the crash about two o'clock and at the same time a freight train was passing, but paid little attention to it.

It is the concensus of opinion that the same person who smashed the jewelry store window is the same who set fire to the West building.

Boys' Band To Give Concert

The Gilbert-Brown Boys' Band of Oakland will give an open air concert on Saturday evening, October 17, beginning at 7:30 o'clock, weather conditions permitting, Russell Brown, director, has announced. This will probably be the last open air concert this season, he added.

The concert will be given in front of the office of the Monongahela System, on Second street. The following is the program to be played:

New White House March.....Taylor
Overture, Panorama.....Barnhouse
Serenade, Night In June.....King
Uncle Tom's Cabin, descriptive.Lampe
Washington Post March.....Sousa

Everyone in the community is requested to be present at this concert and thus encourage the members of the band to further efforts of perfection in rendering their music.

Pythians to Hold District Meeting at Friendsville

A district get-together meeting of Knights of Pythias, will be held at Friendsville on Friday, October 16, at 7:30, to which members of Garrett Lodge No. 113, Knights of Pythias, and members of other lodges are invited to attend.

Members of the local lodge will meet at Castle hall at 6:30 p. m. Those having cars are requested to bring them, and transportation will be furnished those who have no cars.

Grand Lodge officers, including Joseph P. Bowan, Baltimore, grand chancellor; A. Elwood Martak, grand keeper of records and seal; and Nelson W. Russler, of Cumberland, supreme representative, will be guests at the meeting. All members are urged to attend.

POTATO SHOW TO BE HELD HERE OCTOBER 23 AND 24

Many Prizes Have Been Offered to Exhibitors In All Classes, County Agent Carter Says

TO BE CLASSES FOR ALL

When the second annual county-wide potato show is held in Oakland on Friday and Saturday, October 23 and 24, many prizes will be offered to exhibitors in all classes, according to John H. Carter, county agent. Prizes are also to be awarded at the inter-state potato show, to be held in Oakland in conjunction with the county-wide exhibit.

There will be three classes, the certified seed class, 4-H club class and the open class. Any bona fide Garrett county 4-H club member whose potato seed meets the requirements of the Maryland Seed Certification Board, is eligible to compete in the 4-H class.

The certified seed class is open to certified seed growers who have not exhibited in any other certified class in Maryland. Prizes totalling $50 will be given away in these two classes. Five prizes will also be awarded in the open class, a class for anybody in the county who wants to enter an exhibit.

The Baltimore and Ohio will give 10 prizes totalling $45 among the growers in the Oakland Commercial Potato club. Members in the B. and O. potato club for two years may also compete for prizes in a special class.

The Allegany county potato club will show here in conjunction with the county-wide show and will also compete in the inter-state show, which is under the direction of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in cooperation with the extension department of West Virginia, Maryland, and the vocational high schools.

Potato specialists will judge.

OAKLAND AND KITZMILLER TIED FOR DIVISION LEAD

Southern Section Championship Deadlock In Tuesday's Game

Oakland and Kitzmiller High schools are deadlocked for the lead in the soccer championship of the southern division of the county, as a result of Oakland's win at the Fair grounds, Oakland, on Tuesday afternoon. The Oakland booters were unable to score in the first half, but came back strong in the second frame and after some good passwork, Pat Turney kicked the goal.

Kitzmiller had won from Oakland at Kitzmiller last Friday afternoon, 4 to 0, scoring both goals in the final ten minutes of play. Oakland High's fieldball team of girls defeated the Kitzmiller team Friday, 10 to 1, and on Tuesday, 14 to 2, exhibiting a good brand of team work.

Oakland's lineup included Joseph Rice, James Nordeck, George Browning, Humbird Offutt, Fred Peddicord, Logan Weber, Pat Turney, Edward Moraney, Richard Wolfe, L. Lohr, and Will Tillett.

For the first time in the history of the school, a band reported to the field after heading the parade to the Fair grounds, and played several selections throughout the contest and aroused some school spirit.

Those interested in having school news published should see Reginald Ford, school reporter.

Work Started On Ice Skating Pond In New Park Area

Work on the proposed ice skating pond in Washington Spring Park was started on Saturday under the direction of Rev. D. C. Trimble, who is in charge. A number of Boy Scouts of the local troop were present on Saturday afternoon and cut brush and tall weeds in the extreme southern section of the Park where the pond is to be made.

After being surveyed the space allotted for the pond will be leveled and dug to a depth of about one and one-half feet. This will be flooded from the Little Youghlogheny so that when freezing weather arrives it will be covered with Ice. There will be a regulation size hockey court available for those who ice skate.

"Later on," Rev. Trimble said, "we might be able to persuade the town to furnish a flood light over there for night skating, and it is possible that an ice carnival will be held there during the Christmas holidays."

MAN SHOWS HIS APPRECIATION OF ASSISTANCE BY RED CROSS AND WELFARE WORKERS LAST WINTER

Last year, in the many cries of distress that came into the local Red Cross chapter, the health nurse, and welfare workers, from about five miles west of town was one which occasioned no more than the usual amount of notice.

The man had no money with which to buy food for his large family; his health was not of the best; he had moved to a farm too late to raise a crop and assistance was needed badly.

Assistance was given, the same as in many other cases, and the incident was practically forgotten. But this week, that particular case stands out far above the rest.

The man to whom aid was given, harnessed his horse one day this week, hauled 25 bushels of apples he had raised on his farm to a point beyond Gortner, a distance of ten miles or more, had the apples made into apple butter, and brought it to Oakland where he presented it to the Red Cross to distribute among the needy. He also stated that he was storing many more apples in his barn and would give the Red Cross a lot more at Christmas time when boxes would be distributed.

PAUL IN THESSALONICA AND BEREA

GOLDEN TEXT—Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:1-15; I Thess. 2:1-12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How We Ought to Hear.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Kinds of Hearers.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Two Kinds of Hearers.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Winning through Love.

I. Paul Preaching in Thessalonica (17:1-10).

1. His method (vv. 1, 2). He observed the divine order, to the Jew first, and was exceedingly anxious for his kinsmen in the flesh, but when they proved themselves unworthy, he turned to the Gentiles.

2. His message (v. 3). It was that Jesus is the Christ. In order to prove that Jesus is the Christ, he expounded unto them the Scriptures. Concerning Christ he set forth three propositions:

a. That Christ must needs have suffered (v. 3). The suffering Christ was not welcomed by the Jews. They had explained away such positive assertions as are set forth in Isaiah 53. They were looking for a Messiah of a different type. This is common today in our churches and Sunday schools. The cross is an offense.

b. "Risen again from the dead" (v. 3). This he also proved by the Scriptures.

c. "That this Jesus whom I preach unto you is Christ" (v. 3). He declared that the historic Jesus whom he had proclaimed had suffered and risen from the dead. Therefore, he is the predicted Messiah.

3. The attitude of the Jews toward his preaching (vv. 4-10). While some Jews believed and many Greeks, the envy of certain Jews was so aroused at Paul's success that they gathered together the worthless fellows of the town and set on foot a riot. They said, "These have turned the world upside down." It is true that the gospel is revolutionary, but not treason to right government. They turned the preaching of Paul into a specious lie. He preached the kingship of Jesus (v. 7). Jesus is most assuredly coming to reign on this earth.

II. The Character of Paul's Ministry at Thessalonica (I Thess. 2:1-12).

In this section we have exhibited the temper of the apostolic ministry. It becomes an ideal for such as would follow in his wake.

1. It was courageous (vv. 1, 2). In spite of shameful persecution, Paul persisted in his ministry, demonstrating his devotion to the Lord.

2. Honest and guileless (vv. 3, 4). He had no ulterior motive. As one sent of God, he faithfully ministered unto them.

3. Without flattering words (v. 5). Regardless of the difficulty of his positions, the prominence of the persons faced, he never resorted to flattery.

4. Without a cloak of covetousness (v. 5). The impelling force of his life was devotion to God and interest in lost men. Opportunity for personal gain he waived aside.

5. He did not seek glory from man (v. 6), his supreme aim being to honor God.

6. He was gentle and affectionate (vv. 7, 8). So vitally did he enter into the lives of the people that he displayed gentleness, even as a nursing mother with her children.

7. Unselfish (v. 9). In order that his motive be not questioned he labored night and day for his support.

8. Irreproachable and blameless (v. 10). He did not claim to be faultless, but he boldly challenged them as to his blamelessness.

9. His lofty aim (vv. 11, 12). It was that they would walk worthy of God in keeping with their high calling.

III. Paul Preaching in Berea (Acts 17:10-15).

1. His method (v. 10). He entered the Jewish synagogue and preached Christ unto them.

2. The reception of the gospel by the Bereans (vv. 11, 12). It was with gladness of heart. The message was just as new to these Jews and just as counter to their way of thinking as it was to the Thessalonian Jews, but they had a more noble disposition. Two things are said of them:

a. They received the message gladly.

b. They searched the Scriptures daily for the truthfulness of the message which they had heard.

3. The wicked action of the Jews (vv. 13-15). Wicked Jews from Thessalonica followed the missionaries and stirred up the people against them, making it necessary for them again to flee.

Sin

Sin sprang into life, and I saw myself a dead man. It is remarkable that Christianity is the only religion that produces this effect There is no word in any non Christian language for sin as moral evil.—D. M. Panton.

HISTORIC COVERED BRIDGE ON THE NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE TO BE ABANDONED FOR A NEW STRUCTURE

Famous Old Structure Crossing Cheat River Will Not Be Torn Down, It Is Understood

STRUCTURE IS UNSAFE

(By Mrs. Lee Sanders, in the Preston County (W. Va.) Journal

Writing in the Preston County (W. Va.) Journal at Kingwood from Rowlesburg under date of September 30, Mrs. Lee Sanders contributed the following concerning the old covered wooden bridge on Route 50, south of Oakland. The bridge was built a little less than 100 years ago by William Wheeler, of Rowlesburg, grandfather of Mr. Harry Loar, of Oakland.

Through late plans of the West Virginia State Roads Commission, the historical covered wooden bridge at Macomber, five miles east of here, will within the next few months, be abandoned as a crossing place on Cheat River, for a newer and more modern and up-to-date concrete structure. And with the abandonment of this bridge, although it is understood that it will not be torn down at this time, one of the most scenic spots on Route 50, now the Northwestern Turnpike, will pass from easy view of the motorist.

Labeled Unsafe

Notices have been placed on the old bridge by commission employes stating that the bridge is unsafe and that it has been condemned by the Commission for heavy loads. Quite recently a group of state engineers conducted a preliminary survey of the spot with an eye to the location of the new span, which will be about 100 yards farther down the river than the present bridge and that will eliminate the sharp curves that are now necessary to be made in passing on to the bridge at either end.

The newer structure will pass over the river at a gradual angle, it is understood and on that will make the curve onto the bridge unnecessary.

In its day, Cheat Bridge, as the span has been called, was one of the best pieces of bridge engineering and construction that it was possible to find in the country and it is with despair that many of the residents of the county will see the abandonment of the span that has stood for more than one hundred years of faithful service to all manner of highway transportation.

The bridge, until 1931, was always painted red, but this year was painted slate gray color and has taken on a wholly different prospective as old residents view it. A partition runs the entire length of the bridge with one-way traffic being in force in the two runways, one located on each side of the partition.

Constructed of white pine timbers that were cut in the vicinity of St. George, several miles up the river from Rowlesburg, the bridge has in it some of the finest and most seasoned timber to be found. While the timbers originally intended for the structure were piled up alongside the river at the bridge site and just a few days prior to the time that the work of construction was to have been started, heavy rains caused a rapid rise in the water and the timbers were washed away and workmen had to return to St. George and cut more. Poplar timber used in the bridge was cut at various places up the stream.

Money Raised by Lottery

According to Wiley's history of Preston county, Josiah Kidwell was the contractor. Money was raised for road and bridge construction by means of lottery or selling shares, and a revenue came from tolls after the work was completed. According to Whetsell's history of Preston county, the bridge was constructed in the year 1833 by William Wheeler, of Rowlesburg, whose records showed that it was finished in 1834. A man named Wotring was the foreman and he became ill and died two weeks after the work was started at which time William Wheeler, grandfather of our townsman Charles W. Wheeler, was assistant foreman, and he conducted the work of completing the bridge.

Jones's Army Passes

On April 27, 1863, Jones's army of more than 2000 men passed over the bridge and en route they tore up the flooring of one side of the span and nearly two years elapsed, during which time one-way traffic was maintained on the bridge, before the flooring was replaced.

There are nearly thirty miles of the Northwestern Turnpike, now Route 50, in Preston county, and this important highway was the main thoroughfare between the east and west for many years, or, in fact, until the advent of the railroad in 1852, which was the downfall of the Turnpike. During this time Cheat Bridge was a toll bridge and among the persons that kept toll were James J. Hollis, from 1840 until 1855. Other tollkeepers were Dr. Call and Kate Bishop, the daughter of Christopher Bishop. We have been unable to learn just when toll was discontinued.

Romance Recorded

Romance has been recorded in connection with the old bridge as the years passed, and if the old boy could talk, the stories he would tell would be most interesting.

Many initials and dates are carved in the wood of the structure, many of which are easily decipherable, and many others that are not. Among some of those that are most readily read and located on different points on the bridge are "T. M., 1851"; "M. M., 1851". "E. R. P." and "T. K. F." carved their letters in a circle in 1877. "O. O. M." and "E. L. T." in 1864". "M. E. R." and "C. E. L." in 1862, and many mote of more recent date left their marks. Some few persons placed their home state after their names and they indicate states north, south, east and west.

Indian Mounds

On the Goff bottom near the bridge are the ruins of three Indian mounds evidently the burial places of Indians, and near the old bridge is a trail, known in the Eighteenth century as the Indian Trail and Ford, and which showed the natural instinct of the Indians in selecting a trail to cross the Alleghenies, which possibly lent a helping hand to General Crozet when he surveyed the turnpike.

L. J. Stemple, of Aurora, relates the story of when his father, Major David Stemple, was driving a drove of cattle over the old bridge there was one very wild animal in the herd. At a point near the center of the bridge there was an open space in the side of the structure (the remainder was closed in up to about two feet from the roof), and the wild and frightened animal jumped over the siderail and landed on a portion of the abutment at the water's edge, some twenty feet below, and broke its neck. Stemple, with the aid of his drovers, hauled the carcass up and butchered it at once that the meat would not be wasted.

Stemple at that time was operating a tavern known as the Rising Sun Tavern at Aurora that catered to the stage coach travelers. Many other taverns were located along the turnpike in Preston county, and a few of the old structures are still standing.

Much sentiment prevails for the old bridge, and should a new and modern structure be erected, the old bridge might well be preserved for many years for pedestrians' use, of which there are many at this point on the highway.

At the left top is a profile view of the old covered bridge at Macomber, on Route 50 that will within the next few months become a memory to traffic, as it is to be replaced by a new concrete structure. At the top to the right we have a view of the entrance to the bridge on the west end. The white spots in the distance show the length of the span. Below, a picture of one of the scenic curves on the Northwestrn Turnpike (Route 50), since its paving.

All this talk of debt cancellation is beside the point. If the international financiers and European politicians want real relief from present intolerable conditions let them pay less attention to debt cancellation and more attention to bringing about real peace between France and Germany. This accomplished, the rest will be easy. Until it is accomplished, there will be no real stability in Europe.

Telephone Directories Being Delivered to Oakland Users

Oakland's latest telephone directory, just off the press, is now being delivered to the users of the 468 telephones in the town and its suburbs. Directories are also being delivered to telephone subscribers in Cumberland, Frostburg, Lonaconing, Mt. Savage, Kitzmiller, McCoole and Westernport, as well as Blaine, Keyser and Piedmont, West Va.

Printing telephone directories is a specialized job. Accuracy in printing the names, addresses and telephone numbers in the directories makes it necessary to "check and double check" a voluminous amount of information in the preparation of these books. About thirty-five per cent of the listings in the telephone directory change with each issue.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

With financial difficulties in Europe seemingly multiplying, we will doubtless hear a great deal more during the next few months about debt cancellation and the wiping out of reparations payments. There will be a vertiable flood of propaganda in the United States and we will be told once again that Uncle Sam is the world's greatest Shylock, if he does not cancel these debt and let Mr. American Taxpayer foot the bill. We will be informed that Europe is about to totter over the abyss and that only the cancellation of the debts will save her.

Well, how about it anyhow? Do the international debts form the one big obstacle to recovery from the depression? There is room for more than serious doubt on the subject. It is not to be forgotten that England, France and Italy have collected from Germany all the money they have paid on the debts they have discharged to the United States. And in the case of France and Italy, these two nations have collected much more than enough; France something like ninety millions more a year. So it is difficult to see where these countries have been drained to pay their honest obligations to Uncle Sam.

Just what is the matter, then, aside from the general deflation following the World War? The matter has to do in part with armaments. In spite of the terrible sufferings encountered in the World War, Europe is not yet satisfied to take the road to peace. The victorious nations having imposed on the defeated ones a peace which is burdensome and in some instances unjust, are fearful lest the peace cannot be maintained, and are arming to the limit, while the defeated nations are only waiting for the opportuiity to revise the peace treaties. Everywhere there is talk of peace, but nowhere among the former enemies, any real desire for peace. As the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel recently put it:

"Nearly thirteen years have gone by since the armistice was signed. That should have afforded the wrangling nations of the Old World ample time to adjust their disputes and to establish cooperation and mutual confidence. They have had the League, to which they have invited us to adhere as a member. But what have they done with the League? They have made the Locarno and Kellogg-Briand treaties and a network of pacts one with another, 'to prevent war.' Yet their aggregate armament exceeds that of 1914 (the year in which the World War broke out) and the war feeling still prevails.

"By their continuance of the pre-war philosophy as the motivation of their political behavior, the European nations have depressed industry and commerce the world around, and they have seriously impaired their own credit. Among the chief advocates of war debt cancellation just now are certain prominent bankers. It is fair, therefore, to strees this point: No wise banker would grant more time, much less grant more credit, to an indivldual debtor who has thus wasted his substance. And nations are but groups of individuals."

Measured with the money which is spent for armament, the part of the budget devoted by European nations to debt payment is small indeed in comparison. What is needed therefore, is real arms revision, if this can be brought about. It cannot, of course, be brought about until there is a genuine desire for peace in Europe. The biggest step in this direction would be an economic and political agreement between France and Germany. Whether this can be brot about is indeed doubtful, but until it is brot about, there is little chance for real peace and real arms reduction in Europe. A genuine agreement between France and Germany would immediately stabilize the continent, because it would dominate the continent for years to come.

HOOVER AND COWARDLY GUNMEN

President Hoover, in his radio greetlng to the International Association of Chiefs of Police, delivered himself of a sentiment which will have the unanimous approval of good citizens in every section of the United States. After calling attention to the tendency to criticism of the police, he declared that for the most part the officers of the law are brave men who deserve applause instead of condemnation. Then he added these makes popular heroes out of criminals needs replacement by a sentimentalism that makes a popular hero of the policeman for the courage and devotion he shows in protection of our citizens. Instead of the glorification of cowardly gangsters we need the glorification of policemen who do their duty and give their lives in public protection."

These words are words of truth and wisdom. Coming from such a high source, they should make a deep impression upon the people. The fact that a comparatively small number of policemen have been weak and dishonest should not be a reason for thoughtlessly condeming the entire force. These men take their lives in their hands every time they go on duty, and they deserve and should have the support of all good citizens. On the other hand, the crooks and the gunmen, who are cowards of heart, deserve only contempt and the full punishment of the law. Unthinking denunciation of the police encourages criminals because they feel that it helps them to defeat the law. Every time a popular hero is made out of a thief or a murdeder it increases the disadvantage under which the police constantly labor. Motion pictures have much to account for in this respect.

President Hoover has done well to call this fact to the attention of the American people. It is to be hoped that his clear-cut words will play a part in wiping out the dispute which unpunished crime has brought about in many of our large cities.

CHILDREN AND PATRIOTISM

Communists have been carrying on a campaign to destroy the patriotism of American school children, realizing that one of the surest ways of speading their pernicious doctrines is by the cultivation of immature and impressionable minds. Such a policy is carried on in Russia where children are early taught the principles of sovietism and provided with misinformation about other peoples and their countries.

Public school authorities in Boston, aware of the activities of those who would destroy this country's form of government, are prepared to combat this program by laying great stress on reverence for the American flag and all that it signifies. When the school term began a new exercise, raising and lowering of the flag, was given its part in the daily schedule.

Patriotism does not necessarily mean narrow nationalism. It does mean love of country, familiarity with its history and traditions, and respect for its institutions. Patriotic citizens are needed today. It is patriotism that will not sanction corruption in government, that will insist that the courts and all American institutions be maintained as they were intended by those who founded them. A public, truly instilled with patriotism, would not long suffer the menace of lawlessness, undermining the structure of our nation. A patriotic electorate would not neglect or abuse the franchise, but would use it to place in office those who are capable of honestly and efficiently administering the affairs of government.

More attention should be paid in the public schools to teaching youth the duties of citizenship, in impressing upon children the responsibilities which will be theirs when they attain manhood and womanhood. The neglect in that respect is reflected today in the men and women who disregard those responsibilities, who not only countenance but take part in the contempt for law, the character of some of those entrusted with high office, and in the general attitude of the people toward this government and its administration.

Regardless of whether communists are trying to instill their doctrines into our school children, public schools should accept the task of teaching those in their care how to be good citizens. For a country can only be what its sons and daughters are.

NEED OF BEING CONSIDERATE

President Hoover comes in for a vast amount of fault-finding these days. Part of it is deserved. A long series of forecasts by him, taken and intended as promises of better times coming speedily, have been ludicrously falsified by the event. Some of the statistics and official estimates which he has given out, or caused to be given out, have been rudely challenged as misleading, with proof furnished that they were. This is particularly the case with inaccurate and inflated claims by the Department of Labor, in the matter of finding employment through Federal agencies for men out of work. Other points in the armor of the President might be mentioned which are notoriously vulnerable. But fair-minded people will ask whether too much has not been demanded of him, whether he has not been severely held accountable for things quite beyond his responsibility; and whether, in effect and on balance, he does not deserve more sympathy than blame.

The pressure put upon the Presidency in normal times is heavy, but it is redoubled in a period like the present. Every man with a grievance or request, or a freakish-political or social scheme, desires to run with it at once to the White House. One has only to glance at the daily lists of Mr. Hoover's callers to see what a variety and urgency of problems are continually being forced upon his attention. Besides the men with whom he makes appointments for the sake of consultation, there are the throngs of Congressmen and or groups from every State in the Union besieging the doors of his office. It all shows how the people of the United States are disposed to place upon the shoulders of their President a burden of work fairly to be called—as even that man of dynamic energy, President Roosevelt, once called it—"infamous."

A part of the infamy consists in asking for the impossible. Because the American President has a very great responsibility, it is too hastily assumed that he has unlimited power. Because he feels it his duty to listen patiently to complaints, people go away thinking that he ought at once to furnish the remedy. It is even argued that, without Congress "on his hands" just now, Mr. Hoover ought to be doing everything that is needful. But the American President is not a dictator. He cannot, like Mussolini, on his own motion. set aside funds for public works or apportion money for the relief of the unemployed. Even President Hindenburg, with the Reichstag not in session, has greater power to govern by decree than has the President of the United States with Congress not sitting. Some of these necessary limitations of the functions and ability of any American President ought to be kept in mind by those who keep on clamoring over what they call Mr. Hoover's do-nothing-policy. He is, in fact, doing all that he can—and angels could do no more.

Among the victims of our prevailing misfortunes, President Hoover must be reckoned as most to be pitied. Suddenly he was thrust into the greatest public calamity of our recent history. Personal chagrin and party mortification were added to his discomfiture. Yet through all this trying time he has borne himself as becometh a President. To whatever sense of exasperation he may have given vent in private, his public bearing has been that of a hard-working and hopeful man doing his very best. Even under successive disappointments, with his heart made sick by deferred hope, his spirit has not been broken. Criticism he knows that he cannot escape. Querulous reproaches will be addressed to him. All this is inevitable. But inevitable also ought to be at least an occasional manifestation of kindly and sympathetic feeling by the American people for a President taxed almost beyond his strength.—New York Times (Dem).

Buying At Home and From Home Merchants Should Be Encouraged —Too Much Money Is Being Sent Away, Which Seldom, If Ever, Returns.

To the Editor of The Republican.

During recent months Oakland has been visited daily by grocery, bread and provision trucks, the majority of them bearing licenses issued in other States. These trucks, heavily laden, do not contribuate a penny to the upkeep of Maryland's expensive system of highways and the goods they unload at various business places are paid for with money contributed by Oakland and Garrett county people. This money, thousands of dollars in the aggregate, is taken out of the community and does not return to us, hence Oakland is aiding in maintaining stores and bakeries, laundries and wholesale groceries in other states, while at the same time Oakland has its bakery which is operated by a resident and heavy taxpayer; Oakland has its laundries which employ Oakland residents who in turn spend their money with the Oakland merchants and the Oakland bakery; Oakland has its wholesale grocery operated by an Oakland resident and employs exclusively Oakland labor in its operations.

Hence, everything that is trucked in from outside sources can be purchased right at home, at the same price paid the outside baker, laundryman or wholesale grocer, the money kept at home and in circulation, which in turn may find its way back to the baker, the laundry or the wholesaler and then begin its rounds again with a like result.

Now, why buy away from home when as good bread (and very often better bread) can be bought right at your doorway; why send your laundry and clothing to be cleaned to an out of-town cleaner or laundryman, and you, Mr. Merchant, who should be the last to buy groceries away from Oakland, why not patronize the Oakland wholesaler with delivery within an hour or less after your order is placed and at the same price as that charged by the outside wholesaler?

I am a firm beliver in home economy and a patron of home Institutions and believe I can purchase goods in Oakland just as cheaply as I can at any other point in this section of the country.

AN OAKLAND RESIDENT.

An Interesting Fact

INDIAN CONFLICTS WITH THE MARYLAND COLONISTS

It would seem that undue emphasis has been placed by some writers on the more or less frequent conflicts between the Indians and our Colonists. Perchance had it not been for the deception practiced by John Penn, whereby he tricked the Indians in granting him title to seven million acres of valuable land which he desired to consummate the "Western Purchase," for the paltry sum of $750, which act influenced the Indians to join the French in the French and Indian War, for the purpose of recovering their land by force, our impressions of the Indian-Colonists' attitude might have been somewhat different.

While it is true that the Susquehannocks(whose chief hunting ground was the territory now comprising the counties of Cecil, Harford, Baltimore, Howard, Carroll, Frederick and Montgomery), and the Nanticokes (whose home was the Eastern Shore) were continuously threatening and dangerous, while numerous murders were committed and homes were burned by them, yet the policy of the early settlers of Maryland was to treat the Indians with justice and to buy their land rather than to take it from them by force.

As an illustration, it will be recalled that St. Mary's (then the Indian village of Yowaccomoco) was purchased by Leonard Calvert for a quantity of axes, hoes and broadcloth, articles of real value to the Indians.

It is likewise true that although throughout the early period of Maryland history sporadic Indian outrages occurred, yet from the clash on Kent Island (then Monopsonson) in 1634 by the Susquehannocks and Wicomesses, which resulted in the killing of three of Claiborne's men and a few Indians, to the beginning of the French and Indian War, no conflict took place that could be dignified by the name of battle.

Frequent attacks by the Indians of the Eastern Shore on the settlers of Kent Island occurred, as well as attacks by the Susquehannocks. The latter, however, aimed chiefly at the Patuxents and Pascataways, who were friendly to the whites. These forays finally led Governor Calvert, in 1641, to declare martial law on the Island and to direct the Colonists to shoot all Susquehannocks, Wicomesses and Nanticokes on sight.

The major and last conflict occurred about 1673, when the Susquehannocks (the most war-like tribe and greatest enemy of the whites) had been badly defeated by the Senecas and permission had been given by the Assembly to the Senecas to move from the head of the Chesapeake to the northern bank of the Potomac.

This Susquehannock-Seneca difficulty resulted in the first extended rebellion in America against constituted authority, known as Bacon's Rebellion, directed by Nathaniel Bacon against Governor Berkeley (of Virginia) which ended when Bacon died from an attack of fever.

Soon after this event a treaty was made by Maryland and Virginia with the tribes of Indians known as the Five Nations at a conference held in Albany, N. Y.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Westbound express train No. 47, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, collided with a runaway car on the Seventeen Mile Grade six or eight miles east of Swanton. The train was composed of several express cars and two engines. Fireman Kildow, of Piedmont, was severely scalded about the head and face, but all the other members of the train crew escaped with a few bruises. From what could be learned a construction train was at work on the main track about four miles west of where the wreck occurred. A gondola car had been cut off from the engine and when the trainmen attempted to couple it to the engine they failed to make the connection. The jar then started the car down grade. A brakeman tried to set a brake on it, but the chain broke and thus freed the car which ran down the grade a distance of about four miles before it met the westbound express. The first engine of the train was completely demolished while the second was badly damaged.

Walter Cockfell, of Preston county, West Va., 13 years old, was in charge of the Western Union telegraph office in Oakland. At the time he was the youngest operator in the service of the Western Union Company, and probably in the entire United States.

A note was made that Justice Gonder was improving his residence property on Second street.

The old Methodist Episcopal church was torn down and removed by Spedden and Bolden, who had the contract for building the new church, to their lot on Wilson street where it was re-erected and used as a carpenter shop.

S. T. Davis had one of Edison's "talking machines" on exhibition at his store in Oakland. The Republican files of that date revealed the fact that "crowds are gathered from early morning until late at night." The machine reproduced music by the Marine band, singing, solos, etc.

R. S. Jamison, R. T. Browning and son Dick, of Oakland, and Nathan C. Browning, of Sang Run, went to Meadow Mountain to camp and hunt. They expected to bag some big game.

Dr. J. Lee McComas and Dr. H. W. McComas successfully performed a delicate surgical operation on Mrs. J. D. Miller, of Texas, Preston county, West Va., when they removed a large tumor from the side of her face with which she had been afflicted for a number of years.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

At a booster dinner served by the women of the Lutheran church to business men of Oakland, Mountain Lake Park and Loch Lynn and the members of the Oakland Civic Club, Gilmor S. Hamill, W. R. Offutt, Rev. J. M. Davis and Dr. Charles Shelton spoke. Lieut. E. S. West was toastmaster. Miss Thekla Fundenberg represented the Civic Club and outlined the proposed work of the organization.

In the Oakland High school notes it was stated that Frank Smouse, of Deer Park, was a new scholar and that Frederick Thayer had returned from a trip to New York.

Miss Zaidee Browning, ill of typhoid fever, whose condition was very precarious for several days, was improved and her recovery was looked for.

The Deer Park Village Improvement Society was arranging for fall work at that town. W. W. Hennen was president; Wm. Miller, vice-president; C. A. Ashby, treasurer; Jack Grimes, secretary.

Crellin Nine Wins Three Games Over the Week-end

Crellin won three games over the week-end, two in the Preston County League and one against Cumberland B. & O. By defeating Borgman at the Dixie Camp, near Kingwood, W. Va., on Saturday, 4 to 1, the Crellin team won the right to play Kingwood in the series for the Preston county championship. Shaffer pitched for Crellin and did not allow a hit until the eigth inning.

Crellin played two games on Sunday. The team met Cumberland B. & O. at Crellin, and with Colaw on the mound, let the railroaders down with three hits. He held them hitless until the eighth inning, and Crellin won, 5 to 3.

Immediately after the Cumberland game the Crellin team drove to Kingwood and got the jump on the Kingwood team in the Preston county championship series by winning 4 to 3. Malouse was pitching for Crellin, allowing eight hits, but striking out 12 Kingwood batters.

STATE FORESTERS READY FOR AUTUMN FIRE SEASON

Fire Towers Open Yesterday—Department Better Equipped

The forest fire lookout towers throughout Maryland were opened yesterday in readiness for the prompt detection of fall forest fires. Included in this number were the four Garrett county towers, Meadow Mountain, Bittinger, Thayerville and Snaggy Mountain. At the direction of the State Forester's office, the 18 lookout watchmen prepared their observation stations for activity. Recent cool weather has started the usual seasonal fall of leaves which will create the autumn period of forest fire hazard annually experienced in the Eastern States. Accumulating leaves, coupled with the proverbial Indian summer, produce a real hazard to Maryland's forested acres.

State Forester F. W. Besley remarked that Maryland is entering the fall fire season better prepared for promptly detecting fires than was true last spring. He says this is due to four splendid new forest fire towers of all steel construction which have been built during the summer. Three of these are 100 feet high and are located in Caroline, Prince George's and Wicomico counties.

The Department of Forestry has announced a considerable economy effected in the erection of the new towers due to the use of a specially trained construction crew of department employees which was able to erect the new structures in a more efficient manner than towers erected in previous years. Gratifying contributions from woodland owners, civic organizations and county commissioners have also been helpful in extending the construction funds so as to protect effectively greater areas of woodland than would have otherwise been possible this fall.

Mountain Top Ministers To Meet

The first fall meeting of the Mountain Top Ministers' Association will be held Monday, October 19, at 10:30 a. m., in the Masonic Club room, First National Bank building. Rev. D. C. Trimble, president, has prepared a program of vacation experiences. An election of officers for the year will be held and other business matters discussed.

To Exchange Pulpits

In the exchange of pulpits among the pastors of the West Virginia Synod of the Lutheran church, Rev. William Ehrhard, pastor of St. Mark's church, Clarksburg, will preach in the local Lutheran church on Sunday morning, and Dr. A. B. Leamer, of Charleston, will preach in the evening.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, local Lutheran pastor, will preach in Trinity Lutheran church at Wheeling in the morning and in the First Lutheran church of that city in the evening.

This general exchange is brought about by the Synod through the Stewardship Committee, and is for the purpose of stimulating the interest in benevolence and stewardship in the church preparatory to the annual every member canvass.

Schools to Get Portraits of Gen. George Washington.

Every schoolroom of every school in the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland will, within a few weeks, receive a beautiful poster of George Washington, executed in colors, which are being distributed by Congressional direction. The portrait to be used in these posters is a reproduction of the famous Gilbert Stuart Athenaeum painting and will be 22 inches by 28 inches in size.

The poster-pictures featuring Gen. Washington are being distributed by Congressman Lewis in cooperation with the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission of Washington, D. C., in order to stimulate interest among the thousands of school children of this district in the coming nine-months celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of the Father of Our Country.

Joseph Glotfelty, Jr., Accepted In Washington Boys' Band

Joseph Glotfelty, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Glotfelty, of near town, has been accepted as a member of the Washington (D. C.) Boys' Independent Band. The band is composed of nearly one hundred members and is under the direction of Major Brown.

The organization is nationally known and practice for the current year was resumed last Tuesday at the new Eastern High School auditorium in Washington. The first public appearance of the organization will be at the Hallowe'en celebration in the city, and the year's work will be climaxed by participation in the Winchester Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester next spring. Young Glotfelty expects to remain a member of the band throughout his stay in Washington where he is attending Strayer's Business college.

Engagement Announced

The engagement of Miss Lillian Julia Ashby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Ashby, of Crellin, to Mr. Elmer Leo Mersing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mersing, also of Crellin, has been announced. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Ashby is a student of Oakland High School.

COLUMBUS DAY CELEBRATED THROUGHOUT THE LAND

By Ima Lyre

"WHAT, HO! LAND AHEAD!" cried the lookout on the Santa Maria. "Looks like India to me!"

"It has the outline of America and those birds look like escaped American seagulls from the Washington zoo," rambled Christopher Columbus in broken New York East Side lingo, who was advertised in the Daily Mirror as a navigator deluxe and the side kick of Queen Isabella.

Still the lookout was unconvinced and pointed to carved sticks floating on the water, made without a doubt by Indians, as proof that it was neither America nor the West Indies.

Presently, though, a rum runner named Alca Pony, hove in sight and as they attempted to land their stuff, a revenue cutter, flying the red, white and blue, went by with the lookout asleep.

The Spanish lookout was convinced. "America it is," he agreed, "and now we'll have to land and claim this for Donna Isabella."

And because all this happened on October 12, that date was declared a holiday in some States. That is why the postoffice and banks remained open in Oakland on Monday and closed in Cumberland, both in memory of Columbus' ingenuity in discovering what the Indians had already known about since the age of brass coils and copper stills.

Leaving Garrett county Mr. Cook went to Cumberland where he apent two or three days with the education heada of that section of the State.

Mr. Walter W. Dawson went to Baltimore on professional business Friday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. Cecil Smith, who visited friends in that city. Saturday afternoon as a representative of the local lodge of Masons, Mr. Dawson attended the ceremonies incident to the laying of the corner stone of the new Masonic Home near Baltimore at which more than one hundred subordinate lodges of the State were represented.

Fifty years ago this week the old Garrett Guards, crack military company of Western Maryland, went to Yorktown, Va., to participate in the celebration of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis and his British Army thus ending the War of the Revolution. As a drummer boy, Dr. Henry W. McComas accompanied the Garrett county troops. This morning, fifty years later, Dr. McComas left Oakland again for Yorktown to participate, not as a drummer boy but as a spectator of the pageants depicting the surrender of the warlord a hundred and fifty years ago. Dr. McComas was accompanied by Arthur Hinebaugh, the trip being made by automobile.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN CLINIC TO BE HELD OCTOBER 31

Parents Are Urged To Bring those Afflicted for Examination

On October 31, the Maryland League for Crippled Children will send its staff of physicians and assistants to Oakland to examine and advise treatment for all those individuals in the county who are crippled in any way, is the statement of Dr. George E. Clarke, Health Officer for Garrett county, who is now located permanently in Oakland.

During the month of October the health officer and nurses of the county are interviewing as many of these children and adults as possible and urging them to attend the clinic. It is impossible for them to see all the cases, stated the physician, and added, "If you know of any crippled child in your neighborhood who has not been examined, please urge its parents to bring it to Oakland, Saturday, October 31. If you have a car, bring some one who is not so fortunate. Many citizens over the county have volunteered the use of their cars for this purpose.

"There are few conditions more appealing than the sight of a child with wasted, crooked arms or legs or bent spine. That child has a right to be examined to determine whether or not that condition can be corrected," continued Dr. Clarks. "Many of these children can be greatly benefitted. These poor unfortunate children, with their twisted bodies and bent legs and arms are tremendously interested in getting these conditions corrected."

The Health Officer found one child in a country school who had not been to any of the clinics held in the county. He has a condition that can be corrected to the extent that he will be almost normal. When discussing the case in the school with the teacher, the little fellow listened to every word and when he heard that he could be benefitted, his face broke into a smile from ear to ear. "Wouldn't you feel better," the doctor said, "if you had helped, even in a small way, such a child to overcome his handicap and be a useful citizen? Many of these cases have to be sent to Baltimore to the Children's Hospital School for treatment. The wards in the hospitals where these children are treated are the happiest in the hospital. The children are not sick and are able to play and take part in games with each other. The attendants in these wards are especially chosen to care for crippled children.

"Do your share in aiding these children. Help bring them to the clinic. Help send them to Baltimore for treatment by joining the local Crippled Children's Society, Mrs. Paul Naylor, secretary. The dues are only $1.00. We can send a child to the hospital for less than $10.00."

The clinic will be held in the Court House at Oakland, October 31, at 9:00 o'clock a. m. The Oakland Civic Club has again come to the front by sponsoring this clinic and by aiding in its management.

Local Clinics To Be Held

Dr. Sehaffer, of the Maryland Tuberculosis Sanitarium, will be at Grantsville on October 30 to hold a clinic for the examination of the tuberculosis cases in that area. The clinic will be held at 9:00 a. m. An announcement will be made next Thursday as to the place. Physicians are invited to attend or refer their private cases for Dr. Sehaffer's examination.

The Health Officer will conduct a clinic at Kitzmiller on October 23 for the examination of babiea and preschool children. He urges all mothers to have their children from nine months to five years protected against diphtheria at that time.

Typhoid Fever Cases

Two new cases of typhoid fever have been reported in the area between the Combination and Bethlehem schools. In order to prevent any further spread of this disease in this area the health officer will give typhoid vaccine to all who wish to take it, Saturday, afternoon, October 17, at the Bethlehem school. The administration of typhoid vaccine is one of the surest ways of stopping the spread of this disease. All are urged to come to this clinic for treatment.

Relief Measures To Be Planned

Plans are being formulated to hold a mass meeting at the Court House in Oakland on Thursday evening, October 29, at 7:30 o'clock, to organize a county-wide relief organization. At this meeting committees will be formed and plans discussed to care for the needy this winter. Everyone interested in relief work should attend this meeting.

The Rest, corner of Seventh and Alder streets, is being painted and other improvements are being made to the property.

Daniel Edward 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Edward Offutt, was christened on Wednesday evening. Rev. C. A. Stenholm, father of Mrs. Offutt, officiated. The godmother of the child is Mrs. Elizabeth Offutt Polk.

Mrs. J. C. Renninger is spending several weeks with Mrs. James Willison, Mt. Lake road.

Mrs. Walter Janoski entertained eight ladies at nine o'clock breakfast last Friday morning at her home on Third street.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Shaffer, Crellin, were guests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Winters at their home in Oakland.

William Eggers, Richard Glotfelty, James Nordeck, James Lee and Edward Hinebaugh spent the week-end in Waahington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Helbig and little daughter, Joan, of Richmond, Va., arrived yesterday and will spend a week or more here guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Helbig.

Ward Hinebaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hinebaugh, of Oakland, while engaged in wrestling with another youth at the soccer game at the Fair Grounds on Tuesday afternoon, fell and broke his left shoulder blade. He is being attended by Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh.

GLADES

A social will be held at the Beachy school house on Saturday evening, October 17. All are invited.

Mr. Friend and family spent Sunday at the William Glotfelty home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Burkholder and family and Mrs. Minerva Burkholder, of Summit Mills, Pa., and Mr. R. E. Alexander and family spent Sunday at the Simon Beachy home.

Simon Opel and Kenneth Younkin were shopping in Oakland on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Glotfelty and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Brenneman.

Samuel Handwerk, of Rockwood, Pa., is spending some time here with his daughter, Mrs. Mahlon Bender.

Mesars. Perry and Chauncey Broadwater and two children, of Bittinger, spent a few hours at the R. E. Alexander home on Friday evening.

Daphne Tried Peeling Potatoes

By JANE OSBORN

(©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

"I SHALL certainly have a fit," Daphne Bronson had announced to her father as she stood before him in the big timbered living room in their mountain home. "I mean it—I shall have a perfect fit," and she stamped her foot and shook her close-cropped curls at him. But the obdurate father—who looked absurdly young and decidedly good-natured under the circumstances—told her that he wouldn't change his mind.

Perhaps Daphne was justified in feeling as angry as she did. Perhaps her father was behaving in a brutal, uncivilized way, as she said. As a matter of fact he refused point-blank to give Daphne enough money to buy a railroad ticket back to the city and saw to it that none of her friends who were returning by motor should give her a lift. It was a matter of twelve hours by rail. And Daphne had only a few dollars in her purse and never had possessed such a thing as a bank account. Mr. Bronson knew, of course, why Daphne wanted to go back to the city. She wanted to see George Fisher—a young man whom she had promised to marry—and whom Mr. Bronson regarded with complete and almost violent dislike. Mr. Bronson might have told Daphne a few things about her dear George that would have cured her infatuation quite promptly.

So Daphne kept her promise and proceeded to "have fits"—which process consisted of going one day to the hotel in the mountains and without announcing or trying specially to hide her identity asking the chef for work. She could work for several hours every morning or every afternoon she told him and she accepted a position as a sort of extra vegetable peeler.

For a while at least no one did suspect that the pretty young girl who came every morning to the kitchen entrance—clad in a neat but inexpensive gingham frock—was the daughter of Mr. Bronson, who was one of the richest and most distinguished of all the city folk who frequented the mountains.

It was in the pantry one day where Daphne had gone with a bowl of sliced cucumbers that she almost ran into Tom Cramer—carrying a pile of dishes from the dining room.

They narrowly missed letting dishes and cucumbers fall crashing and slipping to the floor. Matters must be explained, but that had to be postponed. So Daphne arranged to meet Tom that evening after dinner, after his duties as waiter were over.

"Daphne, Daphne," said Tom eagerly when he joined the girl in the dusk there by the kitchen lane.

And as Daphne explained that she was peeling vegetables because she wanted to get some money that her hard hearted father would not give her, she really did not notice that Tom was holding her discolored little hand very tenderly in his.

"And how does it happen that you are working as a waiter?" asked Daphne eagerly. "Why, Tom, your father's got all kinds of money—more than mine—I guess."

"Yes," agreed Tom, "but my father's pretty obstinate, though I admire him for it. I'm twenty-one, but he won't give me any money till I leave college next spring—and well, Daphne—" and there the girl felt a curious thrill as Tom drew her close to his side and she felt his strong hand trembling against hers. "Daphne, I love you. I told father and asked him to give me enough to spend a month or so up here in the mountains so I could see you—and try to make you care for me. And—well, father said that if I cared enough for the girl, I'd manage without his help. And if I didn't care that much for the girl, why then it was better off not to be wasting my summer vacation playing around with her. And you see, Daphne, I cared so much that I got the only available job in all these parts."

A week later Mr. Bronson called his daughter to him. He said he had heard that she was working in the hotel kitchen.

"I admire your pluck, my girl," he said, "though it has put your father in a rather contemptible light. You've set your heart on seeing this young man. Well, Daphne, here's the money. You may go if you want, but Daphne—promise not to—not to marry him until you find out more about him."

"Him—him—you mean George?" asked Daphne. "Oh, daddy, I don't believe it's going to be George. You see Tom Chamer—son of an old friend of yours—is working over at the hotel too—and, well, if you've no objections to Tom, I think we'll be engaged."

And Mr. Bronson came as near weeping for joy as he ever had done in his not very long life.

Appropriately Named

Prof. M. J. Elrod of the Montana university, tells how it came about that the name "Garden Wall" was given to that great stretch of the hump of the Continental divide so attractive to summer tourists who visit Glacier National park.

In the early '90s, he says, Dr. George Bird Grinnell and party were camped at Grinnell lake, then not named. Members of the party were singing one of the popular songs of that time, "Over the Garden Wall." Well, said one of the party, here is one wall we cannot get over. It was then and there called "The Garden Wall."

If the Eugenie hat styles for women keep up very long the men could follow the Gandhi fashions for the well-dressed man. But from an article sent me by the Mayoress of Oakland it looks like the hats have had their day. The letter follows:

Dear Scoop:—Having read and recently heard your comments on the Eugenies, I am sure you will hail with delight the enclosed clipping. Suppose this will hardly be called "fan" mail. However, I want to say I read constantly and thoroughly enjoy "Scoop's Column."

Signed: THE MAYORESS.

The article:

Eugenies Going?

Word from Paris is that the Empress Eugenie hat, after a brief day of popularity, has practically disappeared and that its place has been taken by the large floppish hat. The stylists explain that the smallness of the Eugenie hat makes it impractical to wear with coats and winter clothing in general.

They now say that Empress Eugenie was slightly cuckoo and that she didn't create or wear such a hat. It would be more like it if she was slightly cuckoo and had worn them.

Moral: Advertise

A story being related tells how an old bachelor found attached to a pair of socks a note from a factory girl pining for a soul mate. He responded and after waiting with high hopes for some days, received this:

Dear Sir:—Your note addressed to my mamma pleases me very much. I am now eighteen years old. It's odd you should have been all this time getting her note, but I suppose the merchant from whom you bought the socks did not advertise.

After a gentleman's agreement involving fifty cents Saturday that Pitt wouldn't beat West Virginia by more than 13 points, he had the nerve to send my boss the following note early Monday morning, even before business hours:

B. H. Sincell,

Dear Sir:—Kindly hold 50 cents from salary of one George Hanst, as that amount is due me from his bad judgment.

And then on top of that after I had secured fifty bright and shining pennies from my friend Delbert Davis at the First National Bank with which to pay him, he had the nerve to telephone Archibaldson at the office asking him to examine his son's bank and see if it had not been tampered with.

So it is evident that the foresight of the genial manager was appreciated.

The State of Maryland requires a yearly automobile inspection. It requires every garage owner who signs up for the work of inspecting to pay $2.50 for the privilege of going over the cars of the public, free of charge.

The law concerning this annual inspection clearly states that the examination will not cost the State any money, nor will it cost the car owner any of his cash.

Now, isn't that some legislation for you? Looks like somebody is the goat, and that somebody is the man who operates the garage where you stop to have your car inspected.

NEW GERMANY

Sunday school this Sunday at the Reformed church at 9:30 a. m., followed by church services in the M. E. church at 10:30, with Rev. A. C. Bell in charge, You are cordially invited to come and bring a friend.

BITTINGER

The first noticeable frost of the season was spread over all of the out-of-doors in this community last Saturday morning, but only in low places was any damage done.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Beitzell, of the Amish Settlement, near here, entertained friends at an old fashioned husking bee last Friday evening, but no one has told us who found the red ear of corn.

A very pleasant and successful social was held by the teacher and pupils of the Beachy public school, near here, last Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stewart, of Akron, O., motored to Bittinger early last week and are now guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Beitzell.

Messrs. Simon and Lawrence Brenneman and Charles H. Wiley are engaged in building a garage for Stewart Stahl, near Cleveland City, on the Casselman River.

County Commissioner George D. Browning and Game Warden Richard Browning, of Oakland, passed through this village one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Buckle and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle motored to Cumberland last Sunday for a visit of a couple of hours in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gardner returned to their home at Bucyrus, O., last Monday after a few days' visit with Rev. and Mrs. Campbell at the Lutheran parsonage.

Enemy Badly Beaten Everywhere.

For the first time the enemy's lines were completely broken through. Although he had been badly beaten on all parts of the front he had hitherto been able to avoid this disaster. By the magnificent dash of our First army, however, the enemy now found himself in the same situation that had confronted the allies earlier in the war.

The Fifth corps in the center drove a wedge into the German defenses, swept through the zone of their artillery, and by night had reached the heights of Barricourt, five miles from the front of departure. The enemy's lines had been decisively crushed, thanks to the splendid performances of the Eighty-ninth and Second divisions.

The Third corps had strongly supported the Fifth corps, the Ninetieth division carrying all its objectives without a reverse, and the Fifth division on its right reaching the Meuse, north of Brieulles, and capturing Clery-le-Grand.

On the left of the army in the First corps the Eightieth division co-operated with the Second division in the capture of Imecourt and reached the corps objective north of Sivry. The remainder of the corps was unable, in spite of great efforts, to make much headway against the Bois des Loges, although the Seventy-eighth division did gain a foothold in that wood.

By the evening of November 1 the situation of the enemy was so serious that he had either to deliver a strong counter-attack or to withdraw from all territory south of Buzancy-Boult-aux-Bois. The blow struck by the First army had, however, given him such a shock that he was unable to take strong offensive action, although he still offered serious resistance.

Germans Hurled Beyond Meuse.

The attack continued with vigor November 2 and 3, the Third corps hurling the enemy beyond the Meuse near Dun-sur-Meuse and Stenay. The Fifth division on the 2nd captured Doulcon and the Ninetieth took Villers-devant-Dun. The following day the Ninetieth pushed through the woods on its front and established its line along the heights overlooking the river in the neighborhood of Villefranche.

In the Fifth corps the Eighty-ninth division November 2 captured Tailly in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, and the following day seized Barricourt and drove the enemy backward to Beaucuir. The Second division made a slight advance on this date, resuming the attack the 3rd.

That night the Third brigade (Col. James C. Rhea), by a perilous night march through the extensive Foret de Dieulet passed completely beyond the enemy's lines and captured German troops in their billets. By midnight the head of the column was in firm possession of la Tuilerie farm, just south of Beaumont.

The success of the attack in the center, November 1, compelled the retirement of the enemy on the entire front of the First corps. The Eightieth division on the 2nd reached the new German defensive position, broke through it and took Buzancy. The following day, against heavy fire, the Eightieth established its line along the road running southeast from St. Pierremont.

The Seventy-seventh division now succeeded in passing Champigneulles, and by the night of the 2nd had reached Harricourt. The following morning it drove the enemy to the hill north of St. Pierremont, where it was held up by heavy machine-gun fire.

Pershing Spends Day at Front.

The Seventy-eighth division captured the Bois des Loges the 2nd, and established its line along the eastern edge of the Bois de Bourgogne north to Briquenny, and continuing on the 3rd, captured Germont and Verrieres.

My diary notes:

"Souilly, Thursday, November 7, 1918. Had long talk with Stettinius about ordnance on Monday. Visited Second army headquarters and found indications of withdrawal on that front.

"Spent the day at front. Went through Grandpre, overtaking Dickman's First corps headquarters at Harricourt; he was pushing troops toward Sedan. Returned through St. Juvin and found traffic in difficulties, many trucks having run off the road in the darkness. Gave directions to use lights on all motor transport.

"Received letter from Marshal Foch today asking for six American divisions for new offensive south of Metz. Our advance has been continuous. Recommended Harbord and McAndrews for promotion to grade of lieutenant general."

By November 4, the enemy, greatly disorganized, was retiring before the vigorous pursuit of our troops on the entire front of the First army. His withdrawal was strongly protected by cleverly placed machine guns and well-organized delaying operations.

The following telegram came to me on the afternoon of the 5th:

"The operations begun November 1 by the First American army, due to the valor of the command and to the energy and bravery of the troops, have already assured results of great importance. I am happy to send you my congratulations,

"FOCH."

CHAPTER LXIV

Our success had been so striking since the beginning of the November 1 attack that I felt full advantage should be taken of the possibility of destroying the armies on our front and seizing the region upon which Germany largely depended for her supply of iron and coal. In accordance with these views the following order was issued to the First and Second armies:

"The energetic action of the First army should completely expel the enemy from the region between the Meuse and the Bar within the next few days. The results obtained by this army have been felt on the entire front from the Moselle to Holland. . . .

"It is desired that, in carrying out the directions that are outlined herein, corps and division commanders push troops forward wherever resistance is broken, without regard for fixed objectives and without fear for their flanks. Special attention will be given to impress upon all officers and soldiers that energy, boldness and open warfare methods are demanded by the present situation.

"2. The First and Second armies will at once prepare to undertake operations with the ultimate purpose of destroying the enemy's organization and driving him beyond the existing frontier in the region of Briey and Longwy. . . ."

Between the Meuse and Chiers rivers, north and northeast of Stenay, there was a very strong position which commanded the crossings in that vicinity. I believed that if we should cross the river south of Stenay and move in the direction of Montmedy we could turn this position and have an excellent opportunity to capture large numbers of German troops driven back on the line Sedan-Montmedy. By this maneuver we would also be in an advantageous position to advance on the important supply areas of Longwy and Briey.

An attack by the Third corps to the east across the Meuse, south of Dun-sur Meuse, in conjunction with the northward movement by the French Seventeenth corps, was prepared as a preliminary to a new line of advance to the east.

November 3, 4 and 5, the Fifth division of the Third corps in a brilliant maneuver on a wide front effected crossings of the Meuse and established bridgeheads south of Dun-sur-Meuse. The heights of the Meuse were gradually cleared by the Third corps and the French Second Colonial corps, which had relieved the French Seventeenth corps. Now for the first time since 1914, the French positions around Verdun were completely free from the menace of these heights.

In these operations the Fifth division, assisted by a regiment of the Thirty-second, on November 5 had captured Milly and established its line from there south to the Bois de Chatillon. By night of the 9th it had advanced to Remolville and north of Mouzay.

Our front was also extended to the south, and by November 10 an excellent line of departure was secured for an offensive in the direction of Montmedy. The Seventy-ninth division (Kuhn), in the French Second Colonial corps, met decided opposition in its attacks of the 4th, 5th and 6th against the Borne de Cornouiller, and this strong point was finally taken on the 7th. On the following day the Seventy-ninth, with units of the Twenty-sixth division (Bamford) attached, advanced on its entire front, and on the 9th took Wavrille.

American Troops Moving to the Front.

Between November 3 and 7 the Twenty-sixth division, on the right of the Seventy-ninth, made no attack. On the 8th it took up the pursuit of the retiring enemy, and by night of the 9th occupied a line which included Ville-devant-Chaumont.

The Eighty-first division (Bailey) entered the line as the right division of the French Second Colonial corps, November 7, relieving the Thirty-fifth division (Traub). Attacking on the 9th against stiff defense, it captured Manheulles and Moranville.

Reaching the Meuse.

The Eighty-ninth division, Fifth corps, overcoming stubborn opposition, captured Beaufort on the 4th and reached the Meuse. The Foret de Jaulny was cleaned up the following day, and Cesse was occupied. The Second division in its attack of the 4th suffered heavy losses and made slight headway, but during the next two days it continued rapidly, and by night of the 6th reached the Meuse south of Villemontry.

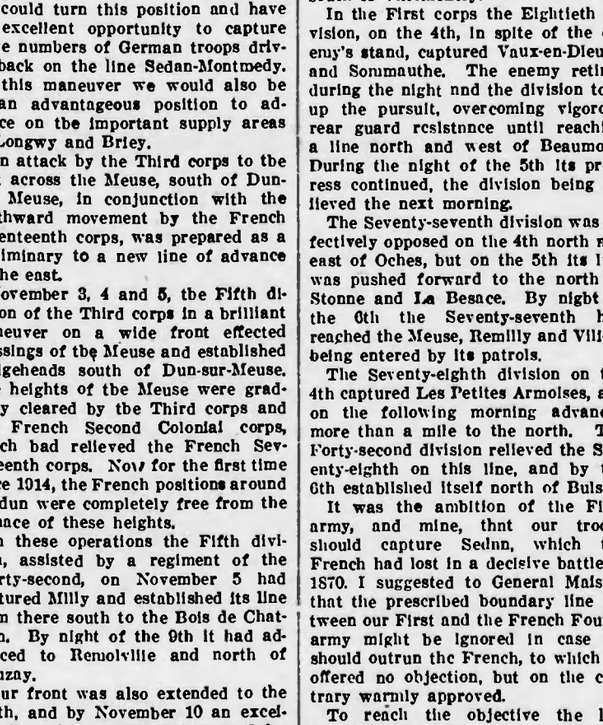
In the First corps the Eightieth division, on the 4th, in spite of the enemy's stand, captured Vaux-en-Dieulet and Sommauthe. The enemy retired during the night and the division took up the pursuit, overcoming vigorous rear guard resistance until reaching a line north and west of Beaumont. During the night of the 5th its progress continued, the division being relieved the next morning.

The Seventy-seventh division was effectively opposed on the 4th north and east of Oches, but on the 5th its line was pushed forward to the north of Stonne and La Besace. By night of the 6th the Seventy-seventh had reached the Meuse, Remilly and Villers being entered by its patrols.

The Seventy-eighth division on the 4th captured Les Petites Armoises, and on the following morning advanced more than a mile to the north. The Forty-second division relieved the Seventy-eighth on this line, and by the 6th established itself north of Buison.

It was the ambition of the First army, and mine, that our troops should capture Sedan, which the French had lost in a decisive battle in 1870. I suggested to General Maistre that the prescribed boundary line between our First and the French Fourth army might be ignored in case we should outrun the French, to which he offered no objection, but on the contrary warmly approved.

To reach the objective the left boundary of the First army would have to be ignored, as Sedan lay to the northwest beyond that limit. The afternoon of November 5, the First corps was directed to bend its energies to capture Sedan "assisted on its right by the Fifth corps."



A misconception in the Fifth corps of the exact intent of my orders resulted in the First division erroneously going beyond the left boundary of the Fifth corps and marching directly across the sector of the First corps during the late afternoon of the 6th and throughout the night. The troops of the First division carried out this unnecessary forced march in fine spirit, despite their tired condition.

Considerable confusion resulted in the Forty-second and Seventy-seventh divisions, and their advance was delayed as roads became blocked by the columns of the First division. The Forty-second and the First then began a race for the honor of capturing Sedan. Part of these divisions had entered the zone of the French Fourth army and were waging a fight with the enemy for the possession of the heights south and west of Sedan.

The morning of November 7 found men of the Forty-second and the First divisions on the heights overlooking the city. Under normal conditions the action of the officer or officers responsible for this movement of the First division directly across the sectors of two other divisions would not have been overlooked, but the splendid record of that unit and the approach of the end of hostilities suggested leniency.

The enemy's main line of communications was now within range of the machine guns of the First army, which had driven him 24 miles since November 1. His position on the western front was no longer tenable and he urged immediate consideration of an armistice.

Late on November 9 Marshal Foch, then in conference with German representatives regarding the terms of the armistice, sent telegraphic instructions to all allied commanders in chief from which it might be inferred that he was uncertain regarding the outcome of negotiations and wished to let the enemy know that there would be no further delay. The following was the message received:

"The enemy, disorganized by our repeated attacks, retreats along the entire front.

"It is important to co-ordinate and expedite our movements.

"I appeal to the energy and the initiative of the commanders in chief of their armies to make decisive the results obtained."

No Respite for Enemy.

Orders in response to this appeal were immediately issued and their execution by the First army was under way November 10 and 11. Yet here again no sort of urging was necessary. Our troops were determined not to give the enemy any respite. Already the crossing of the Meuse had been planned for the whole army, and the Fifth corpse got over during the night of the 10th-11th. Part of the Eighty-ninth division crossed on rafts just west of Pouilly, and others in the rear of the Ninetieth division (Allen).

The Second division was unable to force a crossing at Mouzon, as planned, but about a mile south of Villemontry the engineers of the division, with exceptional rapidity and skill, threw two bridges across, over which one regiment passed. The Seventy-seventh division, now on the left of the Fifth corps, only sent over patrols on the 10th and 11th, the low ground north of the river opposite its front being flooded by heavy rains and damming operations by the Germans.

The First corps from November 6 to 10 was withdrawing its divisions to points on the Meuse between Dun-sur-Meuse and Verdun, preparatory to a general attack which would have as its object the turning of the enemy's strong position in front of the Fifth corps.

East of the Meuse the First army advanced in conjunction with the Second army, which had been earnestly preparing for this moment ever since its organization.

Under the instructions issued by me November 5 for the advance of the First and Second armies, which received approval of Marshal Foch in a personal note of November 8, the Second army made advances along its entire front in the direction of the Briey iron basin during the last three days of hostilities.

Attacking on the 10th, the Thirty-third division reached the Bois d'Harville and captured Marcheville, but was forced to retire. The Twenty-eighth division occupied a part of the Bois des Hindronvilles, as well as Marimbois farm. The Seventh division took and held against counter-attack Hill 323. The Ninety-second division captured the Bois Frehaut.

On the front of the First army, the Ninetieth division, on the left of the Third corps (Illines), had crossed the Meuse on the 9th and attacked on the 10th, meeting decided opposition throughout the day. Elements of the division entered Stenay but were unable to clean up the town, while others, after hard fighting in the nearby wood, reached but could not take Banion.

The Fifth division (Ely) captured Jametz and cleared the Foret de Woevre. The Thirty-second division (Haan) re-entered the line on the 9th, as the right division of the Third corps, and made substantial progress. On the 10th the division moved forward until stopped by heavy fire from east of the Thinte river.

DEER PARK AT ONE TIME VISITED BY PRESIDENTS

Famous Hotel Sold Last Week as Home for Aged Slovaks

Deer Park Hotel and cottages, six miles east of Oakland, where Presidents William McKinley and Benjamin Harrison visited and where Grover Cleveland and his bride spent their honeymoon, which was purchased at a tax sale in October, 1929, by Messrs. Ray Jones and Walter W. Dawson, will be used as a home for the aged of the Slovak races, the negotiations for the sale of the property having been closed last Thursday morning. The buyer was Mrs. Seraphine Kupritz, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

John W. Garrett, a former president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and for whom Garrett county is named, was instrumental in constructing the hotel early in the seventies, it being built and owned by the railway company until 1924 when it was sold to a hotel syndicate for $100,000.

At the tax sale in 1929, the hotel, with approximately 400 rooms, several cottages and 200 acres of land, went in three lots for a total of $8,530. One hundred acres of the land on which the famous Boiling Springs are located and from which the dining cars of the B. and O. railroad secure water for table consumption, went to the railroad company for $3,200. Seventy-five aeres went to Blaek and Frazee Lumber company, of Friendsville, for $330.

The twenty-five acres upon which stands the large hotel, 10 cottages, chapel, and other buildings, was purchased by Messrs. Jones and Dawson for $5,000.

There are 160,000 Slovaks in the United States at present, it was learned, and the former hotel will be used as a home for the aged members of that race.

LITTLE RED CABOOSE IS NOW GREATLY MODERNIZED

At the Mount Clare shops of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Baltimore, the company has turned out a new model caboose, all stell with bay-windows on the side instead of cupola or "dog house" on the roof. It has other safe, comfortable and swanky arrangements on the interior. It has made a hit with all train crews that have inspected the new Mount Clare product, Model 1931.

C-2500, the new type, is described as being designed and built in Baltimore. It is equipped with Duryea underframe of the cushion type, and is so designed that the center sill is subjected to end load or buffing shocks only, and it is not used as part of the car structure in any way.

The car is not designed for handling loads the same as freight cars. One end is equipped with a spring having a travel of ten and one-half inches with a supplementary travel of one inch at the small buffing spring behind the coupler, so that there is a total draft gear travel of eleven and onehalf inches. The other end of the car is equipped with a snubber arrangement which makes for easy riding, and it is believed will, to a very great extent, eliminate end shocks and injury to trainmen. The body of the car is steel. The interior is wood lined and the arrangement and equipment is similar to the ordinary caboose, containing bunks, seats, cupboards, a stove and washstand.

The bay-window seats can be converted into bunks by simply removing the seat backs and arranging them in a spacc between the seats, similar to the method used in making up a lower berth in a Pullman sleeper. A model has been in service since in January, and all trainmen who have ridden in it, like it.

There is a catch to it, however, since not all the states through which the B. & O. operates permits the use of a caboose without the ancient and honorable cupola, but it is believed the observation from the bay windows of the new model is better than that afforded by the cupola and the men are better protected and more comfortable.

In addition to the steel safety ladder to the roof, there is a raised handrail extending above the running board. The Interior is cleverly arranged for convenience and a wider appearance with the bay-windows.

STATE HEALTH PHYSICIAN DEFINES DENTAL DECAY

Is A Disease And Most Prevalent Of All Human Ailments

Dental decay is a disease. It is the most prevalent of all human ailments. It Is caused by the action of certain germs just as are most other diseases. It results in the destruction of tooth structure. From 90 to 95 per cent of all people at sometime In their lives suffer from some degree of dental decay.

These facts apparently are not appreciated by many persons, according to Dr. Riehard C. Leonard, Chief of the Division of Oral Hygiene of the Maryland State Department of Health. He said: "Instead of being considered a disease, dental or tooth decay is looked upon as a mere 'condition,' relatively unimportant and, because of its prevalence, scarcely worth worrying about. This is wrong. Dental decay is an important factor in health. It is worthy of careful consideration—both in order that It may be prevented and to limit the harm it may do.

"Dental decay cannot be cured. It may be prevented, or if it has started, it may be corrected or eliminted. Its prevention depends mainly upon two things. First upon the resistance of the teeth to the germs of decay; second, upon proper cleanliness of the teeth. Resistant strength is derived from what one eats—for food is the source of the materials from which teeth are formed. Milk, green leafy vegetables and fresh fruits are valuable sources of good tooth building substances.

"Clean mouths make it difficult for decay germs to get a start. Dirty mouths afford the most favorable lodging places in which such germs live, multiply and accomplish their work of destruction.

"Eliminating tooth decay in its early stages is almost as important as prevcnting it. Your family dentist is a specialist who is trained to recognize tooth decay at its very beginning. Regular visits to him will give him an opportunity to remove the decayed portion before it becomes extensive and to restore the tooth to its normal function.

"Dental decay is a destroyer. It destroys tooth structure; it destroys the function of the teeth (the chewing of food), and it destroys the beauty of the teeth and mouth. If allowed to progress it may affect the general health of the individual. A diseasc capable of such devastation should be brought under control. This can be done if you will—

"1. Eat proper food;

"2. Go to your dentist at least twice a year;

"3. Clean you teeth thoroughly at least twice each day."

Three County Men May Attend Marketing Tour in New York

Three men from Garrett county will be eligible to take the New York cooperative marketing tour, to be given under the auspices of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, on October 25, 26 and 27, John H. Carter, county agent, has announced.

Each county through which the Baltimore and Ohio railroad runs, may participate to the extent of three delegates. Special rates are offered, and those interested are asked to get in touch with the county agent.

Two years ago the same tour was open to men from this county and William Miller, Accident; Perry Umbel, Friendsville; and Harry Paugh, Oakland; took the trip.

CROWDS VISIT JOLLIFFE'S LARGE SALE AT GRAFTON

Closing Out Sale Bargains Attract Many People

(Advertisement)

Circus crowds packed and jammed every available inch of floor space at Jolliffe's Closing Out Sale from the opening hour until the last closing bell last evening, turning the sale into the biggest merchandising event in the 37 years' history of the store.

The event demonstrated clearly that the power of advertising will pull tremendous crowds from great distances. Fully 75 per cent of the trade is coming by train, auto and bus.

Crowds Gather Early

Long before the doors opened seemingly hundreds swarmed in front of the store and blocked pedestrian traffic on Main street. With opening time they crowded into the gaily decorated store and seemed to enjoy moving in and out among the many tables and counters piled hlgs with merchandise.

The Closing Out Sale will continue until every item is sold. Only the bare walls can remain. The store hours during the event are arranged so that busy men and women may make their purchases after regular hours. The store will open during the opening days—Thursday, Friday and Saturday—at 8:30 and close at 9:00. During the following weeks the store will remain open every Wednesday and Saturday evenings until 9:00 o'clock.

Nautical Instruction For Boys Between the Ages of 10 and 20

In order to interest the boys and young men of America in the advantages offered by the United States Merchant Marine as a career, the first twenty-five boys of Maryland between the ages of 10 and 20 years who send in their application to the American Nautical Academy, South Boston, Massachusetts, will be given a course in nautical instruction in their own home by mail.

There is no tuition charge for the instruction, which includes, in so far as it is possible to teach them by mail, the following subjects: General characteristics of ships; daily routine and duties in connection with life on board ship; use of life buoys; first aid; signale (International and Morse code); the compass; log and lead; ground tackle and deck seamanship; the duties of lookouts; the watch in port and at sea; marlinspike seamanship; cordage; boats, types, nomenclature, gear; duties of a boatkeeper.

Examinations will be held at stated intervals and boys receiving a certain grade are eligible to compete for the annual awards offered by the Academy. Students who pass their first examinations are enrolled on the records of the Academy as "apprentice nautical cadets" and many wear the uniform and insignia of the Academy. Cadets who complete the course with a passing grade are awarded an Academy certificate.

ANNOUNCE 75 PRIZES FOR HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION

Committee Perfecting Plans For Entertainment of People; Dance Scheduled For 9:00 P. M.

PARADE WILL START AT 7

Seventy-five prizes, to be awarded at the mummers parade and dance during the fourth annual Hallowe'en celebration, to be held in Oakland on Friday, October 30, have been announced by A. T. Shaw, Emroy Bolden and Paul McIntire, the committee in charge. A number of the prizes are now on display in the window of the Coffman-Fisher Company store on Second street.

Prizes are being offered for every type of costume imaginable, and it is expected that the parade this year will join in the parade and also the previous one.

Fire departments from Thomas, Grantsville, Piedmont and Terra Alta will join in the parade and also the Piedmont drum and bugle corps.

Other entertainment is being provided on Second street between Liberty and Alder streets, which will be roped off for the occasion.

Following the parade and awarding of prizes, a dance will be held in Offutt's Hall, beginning at nine o'clock, and more prizes will be awarded here.

The prize list follows:

Believe Deer To Have Been Killed By Panther

Three deer were found mysteriously slain on the State forest reserve at Herrington Manor, near the manor house, last Sunday morning. One, an eight-point buck, had been dead about a month, it was believed by James H. Painter, who in company with Elwood Cooper, found the remains. A short distance further away from the house the carcasses of two young does were found, which in Mr. Painter's opinion had been dead but a few days.

Marks on the necks and throats of each of the animals found indicated that they had been killed in the same manner and evidently by a member of the cat family, presumably a panther or mountain lion. Deep gashes had been made in the necks and on other portions of the animals, but evidences of a struggle were not to be seen. The location of the remains of the animals were indicated by the circling of a number of buzzards over the spots. Mr. Painter is of the opinion that bodies of other deer are to be found in the neighborhood and he and Mr. Cooper will endeavor to locate them and then determine what course to pursue in tracking down and slaying the killer.

Marriage Announced

The marriage of Miss Sara Hayes, Oakland, daughter of Mrs. Idie T. Hayes, and Mr. Calvin S. Warner, of Bel Alr, Md., instructor in Oakland High School, has been announced. The ceremony was performed in Cumberland on Saturday, October 10. The bride is a graduate of the Colonial School for Girls, Washington, D. C., class of 1923, and also a graduate of Strayer's Business College, Baltimore. Mrs. Warner is at present employed as stenographer in the office of the county health officer, Oakland. Mr. Warner is a graduate of Western Maryland College, 1930, and is in his second year of teaching at Oakland High School. The couple will reside in Oakland.

SEVEN PERSONS HURT AS AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNS

Corbin DeBerry, Deer Park, Receives Fracture of Skull

Corbin DeBerry, aged 22 years, of near Deer Park, is in the New Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., in a serious condition, suffering from a fractured skull and lacerations about the head and face sustained when the automobile in which he was riding with R. L. Sebold and family, of Deer Park, left the highway near Keyser and overturned in New Creek, several miles south of Keyser about 2:00 o'clock Monday morning.

The injured were R. L. Sebold and Mrs. Sebold, their daughter Mary and three sons, Edward, Lee and Ralph Sebold, all of whom were cut about their faces and heads. Mrs. Sebold and daughter were unable to leave the hospital immediately.

The party was returning from an outing in the vicinity of Frederick when the car left the highway when rounding a curve. It plunged over an embankment and overturned in the water, pinning the occupants beneath it. Passing motorists extricated the men, woman and children and took them into Keyser.

ACCIDENT HIGH FUTURE FARMERS HOLD BANQUET

Ninth Annual Father and Son Dinner Held Friday—U. of M. Professor Is Main Speaker

110 PRESENT AT MEETING

The Accident chapter of Future Farmers of America held its Ninth annual Father and Son banquet in the High school auditorium on Friday evening, October 16. This is the largest banquet ever held at Accident, 110 attending.

The meeting was formally opened by Rodger Bond, president of the local F. F. A. chapter, who welcomed the guests. Harry W. Beggs, adviser, was toastmaster.

Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer for Garrett county outlined the work to be carried on this year by the county health unit.

F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, gave an account of the progress of education.

H. M. Speicher, chairman of the local board of school trustees, presented the loving cup to the Accident school cattle judging team for winning the County Cattle Judging Contest, and individual cash awards to William Harman and Randall Sebold who were successful in winning places in the county and state contests.

B. O. Aiken, principal, gave a short talk in which he congratulated the boys for their splendid work.

Dr. J. D. Blackwell, state supervisor of agricultural education, presented the state objectives for the Future Farmers of America. He referred to the places won by Accident boys in State contests, and complimented them for their work.

C. W. Seabold, the main speaker of the evening, took his subject from the following lines:

One ship sails east another sails west
On the very same wind that blows;
It is the set of the sails not the set of the gale
That determines the way she goes.

Professor Seabold compared people to ships in that we do opposite things under the same situation. He showed how it is the use we make of our opportunities and not the opportunities that make our lives worth living.

Other guests present were Charlie Miller, agriculture teacher, Friendsville; Harley Spoerlein, agriculture teacher, Grantsville; Harvey Stanton, agriculture teacher, Aurora, W. Va.; Adam Richter, school trustee, Arthur Scrogum and J. D. Anderson, teachers at Accident High school and the fathers of the members of the association.

The banquet was prepared and served by the Home Economics department under the direction of Miss Onie Lou McAlpin.

A meeting of the Oakland Community Council of Religious Education, consisting of the pastors, Sunday school superintendents and two delegates elected from each Sunday school is called by Delbert Davis, president, for Monday evening, October 26, at 7:30 o'clock in the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church. The purpose of the meeting is to confirm dates and set up a program for the fourth annual standard Teacher Training school proposed to be held during November.

TABLELAND GROUP ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR 1932

J. B. Watson, Confluence, Again Chosen President; Oakland Bids For Music Festival

TO COPYRIGHT SLOGAN

Reorganization of the Alleghany Tableland Association, and plans for an ambitious program for 1932 were the frults of the second annual meeting of the Association at Brookside Inn, near Aurora, last Friday evening.

J. B. Watson, of Confluence, Pa., was elected president of the Tableland group, after having acted as president for nearly a year. Nat T. Frame, of Morgantown, W. Va., was named vice-president, and Mrs. Ruby Ward, of Masontown, W. Va., was chosen secretary. Delbert Davis, of Oakland, was elected treasurer. Bushrod Grimes, of Mountain Lake Park, organizer of the association, had been the secretary-treasurer during the past year.

A board of directors composed of two members from each of the three states of the Tableland was elected by each state acting separately, and the board selected the officers. The Pennsylvania members are W. Guy Critchfield, of Somerset, and Mr. Watson, of Confluence; from Maryland, Delbert Davis, Oakland, and Charles W. Ream, Crellin, were chosen; West Virginia members are Mrs. Ward and Fred Stemple, of Eglon. Two members from the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce's Tableland Council were named, Joseph T. Miller and Joseph P. Taggart, both of Pittsburgh.

Oakland and Somerset, Pa., both made bids for the second annual Tableland Music Festival next year, but action on this question was referred to the board of directors, to be decided within one month.

To Copyright Slogan

A committee was named to obtain a copyright for the name and slogan of the Tableland Association, the same to be used in marketing standardized high quality Tableland products, consisting mainly of maple products, potatoes and buckwheat. This was the first move on the part of the Tableland to act as an agency encouraging the commercial development of the eight counties in the three States.

Another committee was selected to attend the annual meeting of the Garrett County Maple Products Association, to confer with that organization and to make arrangements for cooperation with it.

Dr. W. B. Hindman, chairman of the Fort Necessity Memorial Association at Uniontown, Pa., extended an invitation for the Tableland group to present a pageant on Monday, July 4, 1932, in connection with the three-day dedication of the reconstructed Fort Necessity. This matter was referred to a special committee.

The Alleghany Tableland area, a part of the Greater Pittsburgh region, occupies the highland portions of Fayetts and Somerset counties, Pa.; Garrett county, Md.; Preston, Monongalia, Tucker, Mineral and Grant counties, West Virginia.

Quite a number of persons from Oakland and vicinity attended the Brookside meeting, including almost the entire membership of the local Rotary Club, some of whom were accompanied by their wives, and a number of others.

Miss Sara B. Huff, whose work as the director of the Somerset Music Festival is well remembered and appreciated, was one of the guests at the dinner following the afternoon's meeting of the Tableland Association.

Promised Land Leads School Attendance For September

Promised Land, with 100 percent, led all other schools of the county in attendance for the month of September, according to a bulletin just issued by John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer. Loch Lynn, with 97.6, led the two-teacher schools; Shallmar, with 98.8, headed the graded schools; while Kempton, with 97.6, led all the high schools.

133 ATTEND 6TH ANNUAL FATHER AND SON BANQUET

Nat T. Frame, West Virginia Extension Director, Gives Main Address of the Evening

OTHER TALKS ALSO MADE

With 133 present, the largest number ever to attend, the Sixth annual Father and Son banquet, given by the Oakland chpater F. F. A., of the vocationel agricultural department of Oakland High school, was held last Thursday evening in the school auditorium.

The main address of the evening was given by Nat T. Frame, Morgantown, W. Va., director of the extension service of West Virginia, and he challenged the farmers to make a business partner, and a recreational partner of their sons. He urged the farmers to take enough time to become better acquainted with their boys, and expressed the possibility of building up a recreational center in this section of the tableland area.

Other talks were made by James Sebold, president of the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America; H. A. Loraditch, president of the Board of Education of Garrett county; Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer; F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent; and Dr. J. D. Blackwell, director of agricultural education, University of Maryland. Awards were presented by Mr. F. D. Bittle, principal of the school, to the winners at the Frederick Fair, and congratulations were extended to the boys by Mr. Bittle and Mr. Blackwell for their splendid showing.

The invocation was given by Rev. C. A. Shilke, and entertainment was presented by the Browning Brothers, Oakland quartet, Wayne Wolfe, and William Gibson. O. T. Graser, agriculture instructor, acted as toastmaster and introduced the county agent John H. Carter, and the agriculture instructors of the county high schools. Gerald Biggs, now county agent in the State and formerly of Oakland High, was called upon for a few words.

William Turney officiated as cook, and the dinner was served by 20 boys of the agriculture department. Members of the Home Economics department assisted in the work.

Mr. Blackwell, who spoke of the F. F. A. organization in the State of Maryland, complimented Oakland High on having the first 100 percent membership of its vocational agriculture students in the local chapter. Sixty members are enrolled, which is the second largest group in the State.

Legion Officers Are Installed

With John R. Tenney, vice-commander of the Western Maryland district in charge, installation of officers of Proctor Kildow Post No. 71, American Legion, was held on Monday evening. George R. Henderson, past state commander, who is also chairman of the membership committee for the Western Maryland district, was also present.

Drive for Members

That a membership campaign would be launched by the post on November 1, was decided at the meeting. Post Commander A. G. Hesen suggested that the post be divided into two sections, with C. M. Sincell and Joseph Gonder captains of the two divisions.

At the conclusion of the membership drive on January 1, a turkey and bean banquet will be held, the winning side getting the turkey and the losing side, the beans. Drawings of the two sides were made on Tuesday night.

Billboard posters and large window cards in connection with the membership drive will be received by the post within the next few days.

Misses Mary Harsch and Julia Rowan spent Sunday with relatives and friends in Baltimore and Washington.

GIRL SCOUTS TO OBSERVE THEIR ANNIVERSARY WEEK

October 25 to 31 Has Been Set Aside Throughout Country

October 25 to 31 will be observed as Girl Scout week throughout the entire country, and the Oakland Girl Scout troop will take an active part in the program. The week is set aside so that the public may become familiar with the activities of the organization.

Troop No. 1, Oakland, will have a display in the window of the Oakland Hardware and Furniture store, emphasizing outdoor life at Camp Minnetoska, where the scouts camped for ten days during the summer.

The troop has arranged a program and during the week all scouts are urged to think more about their scout laws and promise, and to live the life of a real Girl Scout. The program follows; Sunday, each scout attends her own church; Monday, help others; on Tuesday, homemaking, scouts prepare evening meal; Wednesday, thrift; on Thursday, troop day; Friday, community day; Saturday, health, hike and cook dinner out of doors.

WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED IN YARD-GARDEN CONTEST

Prizes Are Presented At Public Meeting In High School Building Wednesday Evening

PROGRAM IS CARRIED OUT

Prizes in the second annual yard and garden contest, conducted by the Oakland Civic club, were awarded at a public meeting last night in the Oakland High school auditorium. The awards were made by Grover C. Stemple, mayor of Oakland. The prize winners are:

Class 1. (work done by themselves) Mrs. Lora Markley, 1st, $5; Harry Davis, 2nd, $2.50; Mrs. May Shaffer, 3rd, magazine; Mr. John Faherty, 4th, shrubbery; Mrs. Hervey Smouse, Mrs. Sarah Ashby, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. G. D. McRobie, Alice and Mary E. Butt, and Mr. Michael Boyle, all of whom were presented with bulbs.

Class II. (work partly done by hired help) Mrs. June B. Broadwater, 1st; E. R. Jones, 2nd; Mrs. N. C. Fraley, 3rd; Mrs. Byron Besse, 4th; Mrs. A. D. Naylor, Mrs. Townshend Naylor, Mrs. Lawrence Fraley, Mrs. D. Edward Offutt, Max Jarboe, and Harold M. Dawson.

V. C. Shaffer, Rosedale, was presented $2.50 for best garden in outlying district, and Mrs. Joe Ross, east Oakland, $2.50 for best garden in entire contest.

Mrs. Harold Harned acted as chairman, and the program last night included the following: Vocal solo, "Trees," Mrs. Frederick Thayer, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. James Treacy; dancing, Delores Yutzy, 5, and Estelle and Mamie Treacy; moving pictures, "Home Making," shown by John H. Carter, county agent. Mary Welton Shearer, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Shearer, former pastor of the Episcopal church here, took the leading part in the picture.

Delbert Davis gave a talk on nature, and Mayor Stemple spoke of the work and success of the Civic club, calling it the auxiliary of the town Council, in cooperating in all the town's improvements. He then presented the prizes.

Twelve ladies of the Civic club of Klitzmiller were guests of the Oakland Civic club at the meeting, and at the conclusion of the program they were entertained at the home of Mrs. A. D. Naylor where refreshments were served.

The Civic club, at the next meeting on Tuesday afternoon, will discuss "Peace vs. Disarmament," as held by the different councils and federations.

Preliminary Plans Made for Armistice Day Program

Preliminary plans for an Armistice program in Oakland on Wednesday, November 11, call for a parade of the local drum corps, band and school children in the morning, with a service at the grave of the unknown soldier.

The drum and bugle corps will go to Keyser, West Va., for a parade at 1 o'clock, and to Grafton, West Va., for a parade at 7:30 o'clock. The corps will also go to Piedmont, W. Va., on Monday evening, October 26.

OVER $200.00 IN PRIZES IS OFFERED IN POTATO SHOW

Everything In Readiness For Second Annual Countywide Exhibit Friday and Saturday

B. AND O. IS ASSISTING

Everything is in readiness for the second annual countywide potato show to be held in Oakland on Friday and Saturday of this week, according to John H. Carter, County Agent. The show will be held in the Naylor builing on Alder street, formerly the A. & P. storeroom, and R. T. Grant, County Agent at Snow Hill, who has had wide experience in the business, will be the judge in charge of the show.

Over two hundred dollars will be offered in all classes by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, the State Horticultural Socitey, the University of Maryland Extension Service and Garrett County.

The inter-state potato show, under the direction of L. S. Hartley, agriculturc agent for thc B. and O. Railroad, will be held in conjunction with the county-wide show, and members of the Allegany county certified seed class will also show in the same exhibit building.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is offering prizes in class one, open to members from Garrett county, Md.; Preston and Ritchie counties, West Va.; class two, open to club members from Allegany county Md. and Preston and Barbour counties, W. Va., and class three, open to advanced or second year members of Garertt county. Members of the first year Garrett county commercial potato club may also compete for prizes in a special class.

Prizes are also offered in the certified seed class, open to certified seed growers in Garrett and Allegany counties; in an open class, open to any resident of Garrett county, and in a 4-H certified seed class, open to all 4-H club boys regularly enrolled in 4-H clubs in the county whose potatoes have passed certification requirements.

The purpose of the show, Mr. Carter stated, is to sponsor and encourage potato production on a more economical basis, thereby netting the producer a higher price for his product.

EXAMINATIONS AT RURAL SCHOOLS COMPLETED

Less Than One Percent of Children Have Defects

Dr. George E. Clarke, County Health Officer, reports that he and the public health nurses have completed their examination of the pupils in the remote rural schools and are returning to administer the second dose of toxoid to those pupils treated on their first visit.

Forty-two schools were visited and over a thousand pupils examined. Of this large group of children less than one percent had defects which should be corrected this fall. Notices of the defects of these one percent are being sent to the parents. These notices advise the parents to take the children to their family physician for treatment.

"Such a low percentage," Dr. Clarke said, "speaks well for the general health of the student body in Garrett county."

Dr. Clarke also advises that many have volunteered the use of their cars to bring the crippled children of the county to the clinic at Oakland on Saturday, October 31. He estimates, however, that more cars will be needed and asks everyone who can spare the time to bring some child to the clinic.

Notices will be sent out next week for the County-wide relief organization meeting to be held in the Court House at Oakland on Thursday night, October 29, at 7:30 o'clock. If anyone interested does not receive a notice, come to the meeting anyway and lend your assistance.

Demands for assistance are increasing rapidly and every interested citizen of this county should help devise some organized plan to care for these men, women and children who need clothing, shoes and food.

Mr. James Willison, who was in Cumberland last week where he is engaged with the Orrick Grocery Co., spent the week-end at his home near the Park.

Mayor Issues Hallowe'en Proclamation

Whereas, Friday October 30th, has been designated at Hallowe'en and whereas, the above date will be celebrated as such, sponsored by the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, and whereas Second street from Green street to Alder street is to be used for this celebration.

BE IT KNOWN, no destruction of property, either public or private will be permitted. Any person or persons found guilty of taking away benches, chairs, flower boxes or in any way destroying property will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

GROVER C. STEMPLE, Mayor.

Lesson for October 25

PAUL IN CORINTH

GOLDEN TEXT—And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:1-17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Working for Jesus in a Great City.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Working and Preaching in a Great City.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working for Christ in a Great City.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity in a Cosmopolitan City.

The establishment of the church at Corinth is an example of missionary endeavor for all ages.

I. The True Missionary Method (vv. 1-3).

Paul came to Corinth a stranger. He did not have an advance agent to do his advertising, neither did he have his photograph put in the daily paper with a sensational announcement upon his arrival at Corinth. His method of gaining a foothold in Corinth was:

1. Finding a home (v. 2). This he found with Aquila and Priscilla, Jews who were recently expelled from Rome by the cruel edict of Claudius.

2. He toiled for his daily bread (v. 3). He was of the same craft with his hosts, who were tent makers. Every child among the Jews was taught some trade by means of which he could gain a livelihood should occasion require.

II. Preaching in the Synagogue at Corinth (vv. 4-8).

1. Though compelled to toil for a living while getting a foothold in Corinth, he did not lose sight of his main work (v. 4). He reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, persuading the Jews and the Greeks.

2. His activity was increased when Silas and Timothy came (v. 5), which resulted from three causes:

a. They brought good news from the church at Thessalonica (I Thess. 3:6). To hear of the steadfastness of those who had confessed Christ under his ministry put new vigor into his labors.

b. They brought pecuniary gifts from the Macedonian church (Phil. 4:15; II Cor. 11:9). Being relieved from the necessity of toiling for a living, he could now devote more time to the preaching of the gospel.

c. Silas and Timothy became assistants to Paul in the work.

3. Paul opposed (v. 6). His increased activity was met with increased opposition. As the Lord's ministers become more aggressive in their work, the ministers of Satan put forth corresponding efforts in opposition.

4. Paul announces his purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6), because of the blasphemy and opposition of the Jews.

5. He did not go far away (v. 7). He remained sufficiently near those whose hearts God had touched so that they could easily find him.

6. His success (v. 8). Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted. Perhaps Paul's severity in turning away from them moved Crispus to act. Pressure to an immediate decision is helpful to some. They realize that it is now or never. Many others followed the example of Crispus. Paul varied from his usual custom and baptized Crispus, who was an important man (I Cor. 1:14).

III. Paul's Vision (vv. 9-11).

His experiences since coming to Europe were very trying. He needed encouragement at this time. It is just like the Lord to come at the time of the servant's greatest need. Note the Lord's words to him:

1. "Be not afraid." When one is executing the commission of the Lord he need not be afraid.

2. "Speak and hold not thy pence." The one who has heard the voice of God cannot refrain from speaking.

3. "I am with thee." The Lord is with everyone who faithfully carries out his command.

4. "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee." The one sent by the Lord to do a work is immune from harm until his work is done.

5. "I have much people in this city." It is most encouraging to know that in the great cities the Lord has his own people and that the one who goes in his name shall have fruit for his service.

IV. Paul Before Gallio (vv. 12-17).

1. The charge against him (v. 13). They accused him of persuading men to worship God contrary to the law.

2. Gallio's decision (vv. 14-16). He decided that it was not his concern to settle disputes concerning matters of the Jewish law.

3. Sosthenes beaten (v. 17). In all probability he was leading the attack upon Paul. The Greeks seemed to have sympathized with Paul. Therefore, they turned against his enemy.

The Will of Christ

If, then, the will of Christ is not being fulfilled through us, if there is good that it belongs to us to do, but which remains undone, then the point of juncture with Christ is the point that needs looking to . . . the reason of our fruitlessness is the simple one, that we are not closely enough attached to Christ.—Marcus Dodds.

Results From Prayer

More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of.—Tennyson.

Colonel Tench Tilghman, Soldier of Maryland

HIS WAS THE GRUELING RIDE TO TELL OF CORNWALLIS' CAPTURE

By BEN H. MILLER in the Baltimore Sunday Sun, Oct. 11

When Yorktown a few days ago looked backward a hundred and fifty years to commemorate the final battle of the Revolution, Maryland's part in the epic conflict was recalled by a number of incidents, but perhaps none more picturesque than the ride of Lieut.-Col. Tench Tilghman when officially bringing north the word that Washington and the French troops, with the indispesable cooperation of the French fleet, had struck the blow which terminated King George's influence in the colonies and foreran the birth of a new nation.

Even as the flying feet of Paul Revere's horse traditionally set off the sparks which flamed into the War for Independence, the hoof beats of Tilghman's galloping mount sounded the knell of British rule and brought relief to the harried nerves of an expectant but irresolute countryside. Acquaintance with the state of the colonies' confederation demonstrates that the ride was something more than a merely spectacular feat.

In this day of rapid communication, when the radio links continnents instantaneously and hourly editions of the newspapers are commonplace, it is difficult to picture the suspense of the sparsely settled seaboard while Washington's too-often defeated forces laid siege to Yorktown. Yet one can readily understand the excitement which must have followed in the wake of Tilghman, Washington's aide, as he whipped his horse through the dark night of October 23, 1781, ending the uncertainty at those sleeping hamlets where he paused to rouse the inmates with the shout: "A fresh horse for Congress! Cornwallis is taken!"

Colonel Tilghman was not the only Marylander on the field when Lord Cornwallis laid down his arms, but he became one of the most noted. And his claim to distinction in the annals of Maryland's participation in the war arises not only from his famous ride, which after all took place actually when the serious fighting was over, but from his service throughout the conflict.

That he occupied an important place in Washington's immediate circle, which the general had found difficulty in filling, is borne out by Washington's letters evidencing the high regard in which the commander-in-chief held him both during and after the war. It is useless to speculate on what civil recognition Washington, as President, might have given Tilghman had not the latter died prior to the beginning of constitutional government in the United States.

Tilghman's fame is not well known except in Maryland, and it is only since the beginning of the present century that the story of his feat has received general circulation here. Paul Revere fared better, thanks to Longfellow, but his companion (who actually completed the ride which Revere failed to complete!) remained unsung and hence unknown until late years, when his descendant, Charles G. Dawes, brought him to attention.

Tilghman was born on Christmas Day of 1744 at Faulsey, his father's plantation on the Miles River, not far from Canterbury Manor, where some seventy-five years previous the English surgeon, Richard Tilghman, had established the family seat in this country. Tench's father, James Tilghman, was a barrister who moved from Talbot county to Chestertown, and thence to Philadelphia, where he became secretary of the Proprietary Land Office and enjoyed other high and confidential commissions under the Penns. Tench's mother was the daughter of Tench Francis, an Irish emigrant to Talbot, who also later moved to Philadelphia and gained renown as a lawyer, subsequently becoming attorney general of the province.

In the schools of Easton, Tench, the eldest of six brothers and six sisters, acquired the rudiments of an education which later was completed under the supervision of his maternal grandfather, who saw to it that his protege received the best in tutoring that the facilities of the era supplied. His studies ended, young Tilghman joined his uncle, Tench Francis, in business in Philadelphia. The business thrived and he pursued an even existence until the turbulent pre-Revolutionary period caused a breakdown in commerce and widespread uneasiness.

As the war clouds darkened over the colonies, Tilghman allied himself more and more with the embryonic American cause despite the fact that his father remained a confirmed Royalist, and a younger brother, Philemon, was already in service with the British Navy. While Tench deplored his father's stand, he was greatly grieved when the elder Tilghman's outspoken Toryism forced him to resign his colonial honors and retire in the face of the patriotic indignation of other Pennsylvania leaders. Despite their divergent views, no open breach between Tench and his father resulted, although their disagreement was so great that at one time Tench wrote his parent that as he found himself "unable to agree with you in sentiment upon present measures . . . I will say nothing upon the score of politics. I wish it might be dropped in all future letters between us."

As the war spirit gained momentum, Tilghman prepared to dissolve his business and entered a military role with enlistment in what, to our unromantic natures, seems oddly named, the "Ladies' Light Infantry," a voluntary unit drawn from the highest Philadelphia circles and sometimes called "The Silk Stockings." Sharpe Dulaney, also a Marylander, orginally, captained the outfit and Tilghman was commissioned a lieutenant.

Before Tilghman saw active duty under arms, however, he was called to serve the colonies in a civil and diplomatic capacity as secretary to a commission named to treat with the Six Nations. This commission was headed by Maj.-Gen. Philip Schuyler and its purpose was to persuade the Iroquois to ally themselves with the Continentals, or at least to remain neutral in the conflict. Turbutt Francis, Tilghman's uncle, was a member of the commission, and it was doubtless due to his influence that Tilghman was given the triple post of secretary, treasurer and paymaster of the body. Tilghman went to Albany with the commission and followed its deliberations so closely and so amicably with the Indians that the Onondaga tribe adopted him into its ranks at a ceremony at which Teahoga, the Onondaga chief, stood his sponsor. At the conclusion of the parleys, the Congressional report on which is believed to have been written by Tilghman, he returned to Pennsylvania and plunged into the war as captain of a new company, drawn largely from the membership of the Ladies' Light Infantry. The exact date on which this outfit was mustered is not known, but it appears early in the fighting as a unit of General Washington's army and a member of the "Flying Camp." In August of 1776, Tilghman joined Colonels Harrison, Meade and Webb in what Washington termed his "military family."

Thenceforward Tilghman participated in most of the major engagements of the conflict. He was among the vanquished at White Plains, saw the fall of Forts Lee and Washington, retreated with the army through New Jersey and crossed the Delaware. At Manhattanville he "joined in the action to animate the troops, who charged with great intrepidity." In the victories at Trenton and Princeton he played a part and went through the dismal winter at Valley Forge with the suffering troops. In fact, his service was continuous until the day when Washington resigned his command in the State House at Annapolis.

Despite the continuity and importance of his prior duties, however, it was undoubtedly at and after Yorktown that he achieved the distinction that brought his service before the public eye. Washington, all too well aware of the instability of the decentralized government under the administration of the Continental Congress, fully realized the danger of uncertainty even on the eve of victory. As a result, second only to Cornwallis' definite surrender he held it vital that news of the triumph be officially and promptly dispatched to Philadelphia. No sooner, then, was the British capitulation an accomplished fact than he commissioned Tilghman to bear the tidings northward.

Travel between Philadelphia and the South was at that time a tedious and often hazardous undertaking, with the primitive trails by land and water presenting many obstacles. It was customary for voyagers from Philadelphia to travel by stage, foot or horse to the mouth of Elk River or on to Kent Island, and thence be ferried across the Chesapeake to Annapolis, resuming the overland march at that point. It was roughly the reverse of this route that Tilghman planned to follow after reaching the conclusion that the first leg of his excursion—from Yorktown to Annapolis—would be expedited by the use of a boat.

What Colonel Tilghman failed to take into account, however, was the capriciousness of the Chesapeake. Soon after his commandeered sloop had weighed anchor a heavy storm broke over the water and for hours the little ship wallowed helplessly in the waves, with all hands more active in keeping her afloat than to her course. Blown off her course during the night she grounded on the shoals off Tangier Sound, whence she was floated only after more hours of delay. When Tilghman finally reached Annapolis he had lost a full day in elapsed time from the moment of leaving Yorktown harbor.

In the Maryland capital Tilghman learned that a courier from Comte de Grasse, commander of the French fleet allied with the Continental Army in the siege of Yorktown, had preceded him by a day, bearing word that the siege would surely succeed. Confident that such incomplete dispatches would only add to the confusion and unrest in Philadelphia, Washington's messenger resumed his trip without pausing, reembarking for Rock Hall, on Kent Island, a point more than eighty miles from the Quaker City.

Annapolis harbor had barely been cleared before the elements again played Tilghman false, and the gales which had driven him astray the previous day gave place to a death-like calm. For a full day the Tilghman boat idled on the glassy surface of the Chesapeake with limp sails, drifting without headway until a faint land breeze wafted it onward to its destination.

Tilghman's irritation at the delay well may be imagined, and on disembarking he lost no time in making preparations for continuing his journey. The islanders, all of whom were known to Tilghman, greeted the news joyfully, for the meager information they had gained from De Grasse's courier (who had passed over the same route the day before) had left them only hopeful. Tilghman requisitioned a mount and carried on. Over the old post road through Forktown (later Edesville) he spurred into Chestertown, shouting his message to those he passed on the way. Beyond Chestertown, he swerved toward Georgetown and Fredericktown, forded the Sassafras river and bore northward up the peninsula. Through the entire night of October 22 he drove forward, stopping only to exchange horses, and in the dark early-morning hours of the 23rd he cantered into the outskirts of Philadelphia.

Once the city proper was attained, Tilghman guided his tiring mount through its hushed streets until he came to a halt before the home of Thomas McKean, president of the Continental Congress.

McKean, it appears, was a difficult man to arouse despite the troubled times, and Tilghman's hammering upon his door with the hilt of his sword served only to stir the ire of the night watch, who, ironically enough, mistook the travel-stained harbinger of good tidings for a drunken roysterer. The misunderstanding was dispelled by the belated appearance of McKean, who lost no time in acquainting himself with the news of the victory. The rest of the night—or rather morning—Philadelphia celebrated, and as the watchman cried each hour they supplemented their customary "All's well" with a new and ringing phrase: "Cornwallis is taken."

Tilghman's mission, while executed successfully, was at grave cost to himself, as the exposure and fatigue resulting from the journey forced him to lie ill in Philadelphia for several days, later recuperating still further at Bay Side, the Talbot county home of his uncle, Matthew Tilghman. While at Bay Side, Tilghman cultivated a romance with his cousin, Anna Maria Tilghman, which had budded when he had been on one of his infrequent furloughs three years previously.

During the next two years the colonel spent a great part of the time with his relatives on the Eastern Shore. On June 9, 1783, he married his cousin, but because of the recent death of Charles Carroll, the barrister, and Tilghman's brother-in-law, the ceremony was very quiet. So quiet indeed, that Tilghman some time later received a letter from General Washington as follows:

"Why have you been so niggardly in communicating your change of condition to us, or to the world? By dint of enquiries we have heard of your marriage, but have scarcely got confirmation of it yet. On the presumption, however, that it is so, I offer you my warmest congratulations and best wishes for the enjoyment of many happy years, in both of which Mrs. Washington joins me very cordially."

After his marriage and during the hiatus following the cessation of hostilities, Tilghman was drawn to the relatively small city of Baltimore, where he entered the mercantile business, first on his own account and later with Robert Morris, of Oxford and Philadelphia, as partner under the firm name of Tench Tilghman and Company. Morris, upon whom had fallen no small part of the burden of financing the revolution, kept his Philadelphia interests as separate concerns, however, and superivised their management until a number of years later when he went bankrupt and ended in a debtors' prison.

Colonel Tilghman's closing years found him pursuing an easy existence at his home on Lombard street, near Howard, situated opposite the Old Friends' Meeting House. His political inactivity may have been in part due to his contempt for the post-war Government under the Articles of Confederation, as shown in a letter written to his father-in-law early in 1786:

"It is a melancholy truth, but so it is that we are at this time the most contemptible and abject nation on the face of the earth. We have neither reputation abroad nor union at home. We hang together merely because it is not the interest of any other power to shake us to pieces, and not from any well-cemented bond of our own. How should it be otherwise? The best men we have are all basking at home in lucrative posts, and we send the scum to represent us in the grand national council. France has met us there on equal terms. Instead of keeping a man of rank as minister at our court she sends a person in quality of charge d'affaires who was but a degree above a domestic in the family of our late minister. All joking apart, I view our Federal affairs as in most desperate straits. I have long been convinced that we cannot exist as republics. We have too great a contrariety of interests ever to draw together. It will be a long time before any one man will be hardy enough to undertake the task of uniting under one head. I do not wish to see the time."

He did not. His health, undermined by the hardships and privations of war, was failing rapidly even at the time the letter was written. In February he recuperated slightly after a severe attack of hepatic abscess, but on April 18, 1786, he died at the age of 41. He was interred in the old burial ground of St. Paul's, the body later being removed to the cemetery on Lombard street.

One sidelight on Tilghman's career which perhaps has escaped general recognition is the intimacy with which he was associated with General Washington, both officially and personally, and the high regard in which the commander-in-chief held his young aide. There are many instances of this on record, for the most part cropping up in Washingthon's correspondence.

In May of 1781, for instance, at a time when Congress was embroiled with disputes over army commissions and promotions, the general wrote to a delegate as follows:

". . . I also wish, though it is more a matter of private than of public consideration, that the business could be taken up on account of Mr. Tilghman, whose appointment seems to depend on it; for if there are men in the army deserving of the commissions proposed for them, he is one of them. This gentleman came out a captain of one of the light infantry companies of Philadelphia, and served in the Flying Camp in 1776. In August of the same year he joined my family and has been in every action in which the main army was concerned. He has been a zealous servant and slave of the public and faithful assistant to me for nearly five years, a great part of which time he refused to receive pay. Honor and gratitude interest me in his favor and make me solicitous to obtain his commission."

Incidentally, Tilghman showed a "modesty and love concord" (the words are Washington's) on this very matter, by requesting that his commission be post-dated April 1, 1777, some nine months, actually, after he had taken office. This unusual request was predicated on a disaffection for outranking Hamilton and Meade, who had been declared aides in order, even though he may have deserved a higher status.

In a letter to Thomas Jefferson in August of the year of Tilghman's death, General Washington said: "Colonel Tilghman, who was formerly of my family, died lately, and left as fair a reputation as ever belonged to a human character."

The introduction to the very dispatches to deliver which Tilghman braved the elements in the race to Philadelphia also bears witness to Washington's respect for the Tilghman qualities. Addressed to McKean, it said:

"Sir: . . . Colonel Tilghman, one of my aides-de-camp, will have the honor to deliver these dispatches to your Excellency. He will be able to inform you of every minute circumstance which is not particularly mentioned in my letter. His merits, which are too well known to need my observations at this time, have gained my particular attention and I could wish that they may be honored by the notice of your Excellency and Congress."

Congress took the notice recommended by Washington and voted Tilghman a horse with its caparisons and a sword—but Tilghman, unfortunately, was never able to mount the horse, for, because of Congressional red tape, he did not get it until the period of his final illness. He died without seeing the sword, which was wrought in France with like delay, but it has long been cherished by his descendants.

Tilghman was survived by two daughters, one born posthumously. The eldest married another Tench Tilghman, son of Col. Peregrine Tilghman, of Hope, and the youngest married Col. Nicholas Goldsborough, of Ottwell. A great-grandson, Col. Oswald Tilghman, who was Secretary of State under Governor Warfield in 1904-07, still lives at Easton.

BITTINGER

As a reminder that winter is not far away, we had a slight fall of snow in this section last Thursday night. Following the snow storm the skies continued overcast and a drizzling rain continued until Sunday, when the skies cleared and the temperature moderated somewhat.

Attorney E. Ray Jones, with Mrs. Jones and their children, of Oakland, were brief but very pleasant callers in this village one afternoon last week.

Game Warden Richard Browning, of Oakland, passed through this village one day early last week.

Constables Andrew Shartzer, Oakland, and Samuel Cole, Mountain Lake Park, visited the Bear Hill region one morning last week and arrested Delbert Wilt on a criminal charge and took their prisoner to the Oakland Jail.

Mrs. Frances Bittinger and son Asa entertained a number of relatives at their home in this village on last Sunday, among whom were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Frye and family, of Turtle Creek, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Powell, of Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sechler, of St. Paul, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Bittinger, of this community.

Henry Yommer, of Jennings, was a visitor at the Lutheran parsonage in town one day last week.

Messrs. Lester Green and John Murphy, of Dry Run, were business callers here last Saturday afternoon.

Jervis Resh, of near Jennings, was a pleasant caller here on Wednesday morning of last week.

Illness prevented Rev. Dise, of Aurora, W. Va., from preaching in the Lutheran church in this village last Sunday morning, as had been announced.

Merchant C. E. Ellithorp made a business trip to Meyersdale, Pa., on Monday of last week.

The local Homemakers Club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Buckle Thursday.

THE PERIOD OF SEASONAL SICKNESS HAS RECORD

Summer With Long Continued Heat Was Responsible

The summer of 1931, with its long-contiued heat, its humidity and its sudden storms, will go down in history with a less favorable showing, so far as sickness from communicable diseases is concerned, than the summer of 1930 with its widespread, unbroken drought and excessive heat, according to the records of the State Department of Health.

Comparing the figures for the last three years, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Department, pointed out that 11,150 cases of notifiable diseases were reported to the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, from all parts of the State, including Baltimore City, from the first of June to the end of September of the current year; that 7,335 cases were reported during the same four months of 1930, and 8,818 from June to September inclusive, in 1929.

The decreases that were responsible for the more favorable showing last year, occurred mainly, Dr. Riley said, in the so-called children's diseases, notably in whooping cough, scarlet fever and diphtheria. The opposite was true this year. Whooping cough increased from month to month and reached a total of 1,757 during the four months in comparison with a total of 657 cases during the summer of 1930; measles, with 1,868 cases reported in June, declined sharply during the rest of the summer, but reached a total of 2,235 cases during the four months, in contrast with the 223 cases that were reported during the summer of 1930; scarlet fever was responsible for 384 cases in comparison with 338 during the corresponding period of 1930; mumps with 296 cases reported showed an increase of 164 cases over the number reported during the summer of 1930. An outbreak of impetigo—an inflammatory skin disease—among children, with 148 cases reported against 19 for the same period of last year, added to the general increase.

Typhoid fever, on the other hand, showed a decrease of 185 cases during the four months. There were 369 cases reported from June to September inclusive, of the current year, and 554 during the corresponding period of 1930.

During the nine months which ended on September 30, 56,726 cases of communicable diseases were reported in comparison with 25,077 during the first nine months of 1930; 53,630 in 1929; 41,679 of 1928, and 27,069 during the corresponding period of 1927. Measles of which 20,596 cases were reported, and influenza of which 9,141 cases were reported, with the increases in the pneumonias which are inevitable accompaniments of an influenza outbreak, were responsible for the general increase of the totals for the first nine months of 1930.

Of the nine months during the current year, January with 9,498 cases of notifiable diseases reported had the least favorable record, and August, with 2,097 cases reported, the best score.

GORTNER

Services will be conducted by the Brethren next Sunday morning in the Union chapel. All are invited to attend.

Harry Beeghley and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sisler at Red House on Sunday.

Miss Anna Georg, of Accident, who was at Elwood Schlossnagle's for a short time, has returned to her home.

Miss Alma White, Revy Beckman and Mrs. Russell Shaffer, of Fairmont, spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk at their home here.

Miss Anna Virginia Slabach, accompanied Mrs. Ruhl, of Mountain Lake Park, to Clarksburg, W. Va., where she will spend several weeks.

Forrest Gortner and Gladstone Morris spent several days recently in Pittsburgh. While enroute to that city, on account of slippery roads, Mr. Gortner wrecked his car and received some painful injuries about his face. Mr. Morris escaped without injury.

Mr. and Mrs. Hervey Roth visited Mr. and Mrs. Otis Riley in Pleasant Valley on Sunday.

Miss Rosalie Click spent Saturday night and Sunday at Mrs. C. W. Slabach's.

Members of the Welch family were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Delpha Matheney at Terra Alta on Sunday.

John Wilson and members of the Wolf family, of Oakland, left on Friday for Pittsburgh to visit the latter's relatives.

James Lichty and Billy Garletts, of Salisbury, Pa., were guests of Mr. Roy Lichty on Sunday.

Mrs. Hervey Roth, Mrs. Anna Bittinger and Mrs. Paul Welch attended the Orendorf serenade and reception on last Friday evening at the home of the newlyweds on Route 37 near Oakland.

S. W. Slabach and Miss Lena Slabach, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sisk called on Mrs. Matilda Fike at Eglon and Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Beckman at Lynndale on Sunday afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Donathan, of Silver Knob, have moved into Mr. Noah Beachy's house on what is known as the Robert Gauer place.

Mr. Beachy and the Misses Beachy, of Aurora; Noah Lichty, Mrs. D. J. Swartzentruber, Henry Yoder and family, D. L. and Jacob Swartzentruber and their families and members of the Lichty family spent Monday at Seneca Caverns, W. Va.

Mr. Charles H. Shaffer, of Washington, D. C., was the guest of his brother and sisters near Mason a few days last week.

OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

This period through which the world is struggling is more than an economic crisis. It involves more than a study of strategic plans to ambuscade the dollars which fled.

Humainity itself is on trial. The civilization which we have evolved is undergoing the supreme test.

If there is such a thing as brotherhood among men, now is the time to show It.

Drunk with wealth, we have strayed a long way from the fundamental and eternal truth. We have been living in a house stuck upon golden stilts. And it has crashed.

In our agony and suffering we have discovered that Jesus Christ meant what he said. The Golden Rule was not a pleasant homily intended for reward-of-merit cards with silk fringe on the edges and diamond dust shining on the snow scenes. It was a simple statement of the eternal law, the same law that keeps the stars in the skies and the world turning on its axis.

We speak of breaking the law and commandments. You can break them; but they break you. "Love one another" was more than an admonition to light the path of virtue. It was a statement of an eternal principle upon which all law, all philosophy, all business, all ethics, all civilization rests. Like all the doctrines left by the Christ, this was the sublimity of common sense—the finality of praticality—the only sure foundation upon which civilzation can rest.

During these money-glutted years we have tried to go our way alone. Years of greed and money lust have ended with this terrible lesson: That wealth evaporates and leaves men stark and with naked hearts.

It is for us to see that this terrible rebuke has not been in vain. For us to see that we rebuild the fallen structure on the foundation rock of brotherhood.

This winter will be a period that calls for all men to have fortitude, strength and sympathy. It is, for once, clear to the dullest mind that we can only help ourselves by helping others.

Out of this period of re-adjustment we can regain our souls. It can be a better world because of this period of hunger and sorrow; a stronger America and a sounder civilization if it brings to us a realization we are given the privilege of being our brother's keeper.

The remedy for our financial crisis lies not in laws, federal commissions, in panacea or financial errors.

The sound and practical answer was told two thousand years ago in a sermon spoken on a mountain in Palestine.

An Interesting Fact

SOME OUTSTANDING MARYLANDERS

We can not here undertake to record the achievements of all who stand out prominently In the history of Maryland. Our State has produced men and women, some yet living, many dead, whose place is in the galary of the great of the nation.

Among those patriots who contributed to the greatness of the Republic and aided in laylng the foundation of this government, in addition to those to whom reference has already been made in former Interesting Facts, the student will do well to study the lives of many others.

John Hanson was not yet seventy years of age when he died. Born in 1715, he stands out in bold relief as one of that group who aided In forming the colonies into a confederation and the confederation Into a Unlon.

He comes down in history as the first President of the "United States of America In Congress Assembled," that Is, the first President under the Articles of Confederation. It will be remembered that Maryland was the only state which had refused to join the Union at the outbreak of the Revolution. Maryland, under the leadershlp of Hanson finally joined hands with the other colonies, but not until the fight had been won against the design of other colonies to hold forever the great Northwest. John Hanson and Daniel Carroll, on March 1, 1781, affixed their signatures to the Articles as the representatives of Maryland. He died November 22, 1783. His statue is in Statuary Hall at the National Capitol in Washington.

We associate Charles Carroll of Carrôllton, with the signing of the Declaration of Independence; Colonel Tench Tilghman, John Eger Howard, Baron DeKalb, Gen. William Smallwood and others as Revolutionary heroes; Samuel Chase, delegate in the Continental Congres, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court; Reverdy Johnson, Attorney General, U. S. Senator, defender of Andrew Johnson and Minister to the Court of St. James; Henry Winter Davis, founder of the American party, member of Congress, opponent of Lincoln, and one of the greatest orators of his time; Roger B. Taney, Attorney General and Secretary of the Treasury under President Jackson, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, author of the Dred Scott decision; Montgomery Blair, organizer of the Republican party, Postmaster General in Lincoln's Cabinet; James McHenry, Secretary to General Washington, Secretary of War under Washington and Adams.

Thus we might continue down to the present period, through the long line of Governors from Johnson the first, adding the names of men who have been prominent in the arts, in letters, in politics, in social and civic affairs and in the law. In short, the names of Marylanders are honorably associated with every period and with every crisis through which this country has passed.

In the Revolutionary War, in the War of 1812, in the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, in the World War, Marylanders have achieved honor and fame, and the names of her patriots, statesmen, diplomats and jurists will ever live as signposts pointing the way to future greatness of the stability and greatness of our Nation and State.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Just enough snow fell the early part of the week to remind one that winter had not deserted this community and that it will be on its usual rounds in the very near future.

Punishment for wife beating was admlnistered by Sheriff Casteel by direction of the court when the officer administered fifteen lashes on the back of an offender at the Garrett County Jail whipping post.

Henry Schlossnagle, Accident, had two apples from his orchard which weighed 24 and 23 ounces and measured 14¾ inches, each, in circumference.

J. Alvin Friend, merchant and postmaster at Sang Run, was in Oakland on business.

Republican meetings were scheduled for the entire week at Bloomington, Firm Rock, Sang Run, Accident, Friendsville, Selbysport, Bittinger, Grantsville, McHenry. No more than two meetings were held in any one day.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Oakland merchants and dealers in grain were offering 55 cents a bushel for good, dry buckwheat.

Commissioner W. McCulloh Brown, Maryland's reprcsentative in the boundary line survey between Maryland and West Virginia, was engaged in the preparation for submission to the United States Supreme Court a minorlty report on the work of the commission as he objected to the report prepared and submitted by the other two members of the commission.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Wilheim, near Cranesville, fell into the mill race of her father's mill and was drowned.

Members of the Knights of Pythias lodge of Oakland were preparing to conduct a fair in the new K. of P. building on Third street during holiday week.

Ag Class Goes 100 Per Cent For Future Farmers Association

Harmonica Recital To Be Presented at St. Peter's School

At half past seven on Friday night of this week, one of the first juvenile harmonica ensembles to be organized in Garrett county will give a recital at St. Peter's School hall in Oakland. A play produced by the school children and Sister Augustine's piano class will also be included in the program.

In establishing a children's harmonica orchestra, or ensemble in Oakland, Sister Mary Loyola, the director of the ensemble, is participating in a nation-wide movement for encouragement of such musical expression among children. Peter W. Dykema, professor of musical education at Columbia University, says, "No instrument is better adapted to universal use than the harmonica. May the time soon come when every man, woman and child will feel it is an important part of his equipment." Great numbers of schools, private and public, are including as a part of the regular school program work with the harmonica. This is on every public and parochial school schedule in Chicago and Philadelphia, as well as in many smaller cities and towns. The most noted harmonica band is the Philadelphia Band, in which are gathered children selected from bands over the city. The Philadelphia Band is entirely supported by public funds.

It is interesting to note that Mr. F. E. Rathbun, supcrintendent of Garrett couny public schools, has recognized the important place group playing of the harmonica takes in musical education. With his encouragement, Miss Karin Stenholm, now Mrs. Edward Offutt, Jr., organized boys of the Freshman class in Oakland High school into a harmonica band when she was on the high school faculty. This organization, it is believed, was the first of its kind to make a public appearance in Garrett county.

There are many reasons why educators have come to look upon harmonica playing as an important step in musical expression. In his first lessons, a child may use a very simple instrument and be almost immediately repaid for his effort by producing an effect tuneful and pleasing. He progresses from one type of instrument to another until finally—after less than a year's practice, perhaps—he is ready to use the superchromatic harmonica, on which may be played any musical classic. This natural progress from very simple to more complex instruments, awakens desire to use other instruments more difficult to play. During the process a child also undergoes an unconscious grounding in fundamental musical principles.

Not only for its cultural influence, but also for its effects upon health, harmonica playing is recommended by physicians. A program of regular practice on this Instrument develops the chest and respiratory organs and results In better general condition of the body.

Before she came to Oakland as a teacher, Sister Loyola was highly successfull as director of the Harmonica Band in St. Vincent's Orphanage, Baltimore. Three years ago this group of boys won first prize In a contest sponsorcd by the "Evening Sun," and participated in by bands from many public and parochial schools of Baltimore. After the success in Its own city, St. Vincent's Band was entitled to take part In the national hormonica band contest in Philadelphia. There, competing with the bcst bands in the country, It won second prize.

Next Friday night—after about a month's practice under Sister Loyola's direction—St. Peter's Harmonica Ensemble will give its first public program. Tickets for this recital and the Mother Goose piay to be given as an added feature, are twenty-five cents for adults and fifteen cents for children.

STATE COAL OPERATORS FORM PROTECTIVE BODY

Association Urges Use of Maryland Mined Coal in Maryland

The Maryland coal operators realizing that cooperative effort was necessary to bring the production of Maryland coal back to its former heighth, formed the Maryland Coal Aid Association. One of the purposes of the Association is to encourage residents, corporations, industries, and institutions located in the State to use Maryland coal.

The first step in the Association's program is to secure 100% of the institutions and municipal governments to use Maryland coal. Encouraging results have been obtained in this effort of the Association toward the increase in purchase and use of Maryland coal with the institutions thruout the State, and some industries have swung into line with the campaign.

For the first time all State institutions will use Maryland coal. One hundred percent of their consumption will be supplied from Maryland mines. This represents a tonnage of 43,955 tons.

The authorities of Baltimore City have contracted for 43,700 tons of Maryland coal to be used by the various departments and institutions of the city government, which is 83% of their total requirements.

Just what the purchasing of 87,655 tons of Maryland mined coal, by Maryland institutions means to the general prosperity of Maryland citizens, corporations, and especially to Western Maryland, is as follows:

1. The employment of 125 men for one working year.
2. support for their families, which will total approximately 600 individuals.
3. Place in circulation within the confines of our own State the total amount of $413,731.

In addition to the city and State awards Maryland operators have received contracts from the National department (government) representing additional tonnage of 55,148 tons, making a grand total of 142,803 tons of Maryland coal, 65% of which had been awarded to other coals last year.

Translating this total tonnage into terms of "man power" and "monetary power", gives the following:

1. A total of 204 men employed for one working year.
2. Support for their families, will total approximately 1000 individuals.
3. Place into circulation in the mining section of Maryland the amount of $280,000.
4. Place into circulation within the confines of our own State the total amount of $670,000. This amount includes transportation charges.

A decided Increase in the employment of men will take place, as a result of this campaign for greater use of Maryland coal. For example, in the production of only 142,803 tons of Maryland coal 204 men will be assured employment at the mines and in addition to these that are required to mine the coal there will be another 100 men employed to move that coal within the immediate mining section as well as an additional 300, required to transport it from Cumberland to its destination, this makes a grand total of 604 men assured employment, through these new contracts secured for Maryland coal.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

I ask for the cider and they send it to the boss editor's house. That's appreciation for you, but anyway, I got a tumblerful or so as a sample, and for your privatc information, Mr. W. A. Custer, of Hoyes, I havc never tasted better.

Somebody calling at The Republican offices yesterday noticed that big pumpkin on the boss editor's desk, that my unknown friend sent me in a shoe box, and asked when the pies were to be made.

Also another caller from Deer Park way, wanted to know if Scoop had received any cider in response to his plea.

If yesterday's brand of weather continues I'll get the goin' fever again and get out among the squirrels, nuts, and dry leaves, and see nature in all its glory.

Thoughts at the front window: I'm glad I'm in Garrett county. Hallowe'en on the wing and no thought yet as to how I'm going to get one of those seventy-five prizes. Whatever happens, I hope I don't win the calling cards. That would be as bad as Wade Hinebaugh winning a leather belt, or Bill Butt winning some hair tonic. There goes a victrola securely wrapped up to prevent scratching. Quite a delegation emerging from Justice Teats' headquarters. Patches on heads. Personally I think Tommy Graser makes a fine toastmaster and that the agriculture boys of Oakland High can throw a good banquet. Maybe they will let me be one of the judges on Hallowe'en to determine who is wearing the shortest dress.

I didn't make any bets last weekend, and my football team won. A big improvement at the Gortner's building. The relief clerk in the West Penn wanted to know why I didn't like brunettes (I guess that's the way to spell it). I told her I had nothing against them. The latest thing is entertaining at breakfast, or maybe I should say the earliest thing.

Early Prospects

"I reckon," said Ern Gortner, "that I get up earlier than anybody else in Gortner. I am always up at three o'clock in the morning."

Bill Welch said he was up before then and had part of the chores done.

Ern thought he was a liar and decided to find out. A few mornings after, he got up at 2 o'clock and went to Bill's house.

Mrs. Bill opened the kitchen door in answer to Ern's knock.

"Where's your husband?" asked Ern, expecting to find his neighbor in bed.

"He was around here early in the morning," answered Mrs. Bill, "but I don't know where he is now."

Ern went back home and turned in.

Ray Jones, seeing the bulbs all tied up "nursery style" at the presentation of prizes to yard and garden contest winners last night, remarked to Mayor Stemple, "I see they are giving away large sacks of peanuts. I hope I win one of them." (This isn't a slam on the size of the bulbs.)

Funeral For Harry Idleman, 32, Found Dead in Automobile, Held at Terra Alta

Funeral services for Harry Idleman 32, Terra Alta, W. Va., who was discovered dead in his automobile early Monday morning with a bullet wound in his head, were held yesterday afternoon from the M. E. church, Terra Alta.

The deceased was born in Grantsville, and is a son of Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Idleman, formerly of this county. He entered high school in Terra Alta, shortly after he moved there in 1915, and was graduated in 1919.

Idleman left the home of an intimate friend about midnight Sunday and his body was found about 7:00 o'clock Monday morning slumped over the wheel of his automobile which was parked near the right entrance to the Terra Alta High school building. The motor of the machine was still running.

Home Economics Girls Get Practical Training

The Senior home economics girls of Oakland High school entertained some of the pre-school children of the town last Friday as a main project in their study of child care and development. They were entertained with songs, games and stories, and were then given a lunch. Those attending were Rita Bittle, Johnny Browning, Betty Shirer, Joan Smith, Buddy Friend, Donna Littman, Betty Speicher, Mary Blake, Karl Kahl, Ann Naylor and Totsy Teeter.

On Tuesday all the home economics girls walked to the home of Miss Eva Falkenstein, their teacher, where they were given a demonstration on how to bathe a baby. The demonstration was given by Mrs. Samuel Cole, county health nurse.

Waive Hearing on Assault and Battery Charge

Eugene Carney and James L. Pollock waived a hearing yesterday morning before Justice A. S. Teats, and are being held under $100 bond for their appearance at the March term of the Circuit court on the charge of assault and battery.

The warrant was issued at the order of John Sweeney, who claimed he had been assaulted with intent to kill. At the preliminary hearing before Justice Teats, it was agreed that the phrase "with intent to kill," be taken out of the charge. The case was removed from E. A. Browning, justice.

SENIOR GIRLS' GLEE CLUB ORGANIZED AT HI SCHOOL

Address Made Before Class In Democracy Monday Afternoon

The Glee Club of Oakland High School is divided into three distinct sections. They include senior girls, junior girls and junior and senior boys.

Officers were elected by the Senior Girls' Glee Club recently. They are: President, Marylin McIntire; vice-president, Mona O'Brien; secretary and treasurer, Adeline Stuck; librarian, Alice Butt; reporter, Maxine Martin. The pianists are Sue Anderson and Betty Broadwater.

Mr. B. H. Sincell, publisher of The Republican, gave a short and very interesting talk to Mr. Bittle's class in American Democracy, on Monday afternoon. Mr. Sincell used as his subject, "Old and new methods of gathering news." The class appreciated his visit and thanked him for the ideas given the class in their study of the influence of the press on public opinion.

On Tuesday of this week Miss Hamilton's geometry class organized a Surveying Club to be carried on in connection with the regular class work. Officers of the club are: President, Lindsay Gonder; vice-president, Edwin Michael; secretary Kathryn Woddell; treasurer, Robert Lohr.

Teams are Victorious

O. H. S. soccer and fieldball teams scored another victory when they met Kempton on the Kempton field. The girls won by a score of 6-2, while the boys won 10-0.

Mr. C. S. Warner was showered with rice, corn, gifts, and congratulations when the school learned of his recent marriage. Mr. Warner is a teacher of science in O. H. S.

Several teachers of the High school are attending the teachers' convention being held today and tomorrow in Baltimore. Among them are Miss Eva Falkenstein, Miss Catherine Schnebly, Mr. E. C. Willis, Mr. O. T. Graser, Miss Edmee Smith, Miss Mary Thomas, Mr. Calvin S. Warner and Miss Margaret Hamilton.

Mr. Graser and a class of agriculture boys spent Tuesday at Boyd Hardesty's home judging potatoes and watching the digging process. Several boys of this department are entering The Republican potato contest. These boys will also take part in the inter-State potato show held by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

Division Championship Game

On Friday afternoon the O. H. S. soccer team will meet with the Kitzmiller team in a game which will decide the winner of this division. This game will be played at Accident.

Striving to learn of the school activities, the reporter is ofttimes reminded of a self-composed verse:

CO. abbreviates company
Without any alteration,
But the successful company, you find,
Joins CO. with its OPERATION.

It has been suggested that a reporter be appointed from each home room and each organization in the school. Let's work together for the good of the school and cooperate.

REGINALD FORD, Reporter.

State Teachers' Group Plans Annual Meeting

The Maryland State Teachers' Association will hold its sixty-fourth annual meeting in Baltimore Friday and Saturday. More than 5,000 teachers from all over the State are expected to attend.

The morning of the first day will be devoted to three special meetings. The primary-kindergarten teachers will meet at the Clifton Park Junior High School, the intermediate-grade teachers at the Polytechnic Institute and the secondary and special class teachers at the Baltimore City College. Sectional meetings will be held in the afternoon. A social program has been arranged for the members of the organization Friday night at the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

The second day will be devoted to the regular business meeting and election of officers. Many Garrett county teachers will attend the sessions.

Elementary Teachers To Meet

All elementary school principals and assistant teachers will attend a meeting, either in the Oakland Grammar school buliding on Tuesday, October 27, or Grantsville school building on Wednesday, October 28, according to an announcement made by County Superintendent Rathbun at his office in Oakland yesterday.

The meeting will be utilized by the teachers for work of scoring. The State-wide tests, which were given in all elementary schools last week, were as follows: Green-Noar reading, 3d to 7th grades, inclusive; Wisconsin Inventory Arithmetic XI, grades 3 to 4, inclusive; Clapp-Young Arithmetic, grades 5 to 7, inclusive; Clapp Correct English, grades 5 to 7, inclusive.

The Republican Commercial Printing Department is the best equipped printery you could care to inspect.

80,246 EVERGREEN TREES BEING SHIPPED BY STATE

State Forest Nursery In Midst of Fall Distributing Season

The State Forestry Nursery at College Park, is now in the midst of its fall shipping season, having completed shipment of all evergreen trees prior to the arrival of frost. More than 80,000, to be exact, 80,246 prospective forest trees have been distributed to the citzens of Maryland this fall at the actual cost of production. Trees have been sold as low as a quarter of a cent each, ranging upward in price according to size. Deciduous trees, those that shed their leaves each winter, are not dug for shipment until after the leaves begin to fall, as the trees stand the shock of transplanting much better after their growth for the season has stopped. Recent frosts have brought down many leaves, causing Nursery Superintendent Silas Sines to turn his attention to shipment of the broad leaved species.

The State Department of Forestry has announced that fall shipment from the nursery will probably result in the planting of 100,000 young trees throughout the State as forest and windbreak plantations. Every effort is being made by the State Forester's office at Baltimore, as well as the extension forester's office at College Park, to insure the success of the plantations regardless of whether the trees are planted on private property or State forest areas. Purchasers of young forest trees are carefully instructed in approved planting methonds and where large plantations are established, supervision at the time of the planting is frequently given by State Forestry officials.

Card of Thanks

We wish in this manner to extend our thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted us during the illness and after the death of our daughter, Doris Louise Roy, aged 1 year and 6 days. Also to those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral and for the flowers. May the Lord reward them bountifully.

MR. and MRS. D. J. ROY, Crellin.

Sue and Her Needed Sun Bath

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(©) by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

SUE stepped into the torrid air of the big greenhouse that nurtured the tropical plants of the park, with the air of one who performs an act that could be held as suspicious. In other words, Sue sneaked in.

She found a spot where the sun beat mercilessly down from its great blue dome of mid-July, and sat down on her small camp stool. She then fumbled in a bag for a tidy package of sandwiches and a sketch book and pencil. She managed the lunch quite naturally but the sketch book and pencil seemed unfamiliar tools in her slender hands.

In removing her blue and gold hat, Sue released a mass of curls that a baby might envy, so soft and silky they were.

Sue began idly sketching a tropical tree. She selected it because there were clumps of fruit hanging about and very large leaves. It looked fairly easy to draw.

The only other occupant of the grilling hothouse was a young man who had crept into the coolest fern corner he could find and was mopping his brow and longing for the refreshing sensation of an iced shower bath. He was sketching, however, some details of tropical plants with the fineness and the gifted touch of an artist.

Sue had crept in so quietly that Pen, as he was called in artistic circles, did not know of her arrival. It was a disagreeable, hacking little cough, reaching his ears from time to time that told him that another soul was sharing his enforced roasting in the tropical plant house.

Then he peered from among the ferns and saw what he supposed to be a child of fifteen or so. Sue didn't look a day older. Sue was, however, twenty-one.

Had Pen realized that Sue had reached that advanced age, he would not have approached her so carelessly to have a chat.

Sue looked up with great blue eyes as he stood beside her, and would have hidden her sketch had he permitted it.

"I'd like to see it," said Pen, much as if he were talking to a very young child.

"It's not very good," she said, and handed him the drawing.

Sue had never spoken a truer word. Pen bit his lip in an effort not to smile outright.

"I think you have made the figs a bit too big—"

"They happen to be bananas," explained Sue with dignity and turned her back completely on Pen.

And poor Pen felt keenly the fact that he had hurt the child beyond forgiveness. He cast a hopeless glance at the edge of a pink cheek and slightly heaving shoulders and patted the same shoulders very gently.

She turned on him and then instead of anger her eyes were full of laughter. The nasty little cough, however, came between smiles.

"I know I don't know the first thing about sketching," she told him shyly, "but in order to get in this sunny hothouse, I had to get a permit to sketch."

"But why sit in this boiling sun, child? Aren't you afraid of sunstroke or heartache or something like that?"

"In the first place," said Sue, "you may as well be put straight as to my age. I am twenty-one."

"What? Great Scott! You look like a child! You must think me frightfully rude."

"Well—I don't think it was exactly polite to take my good bananas for figs." She looked swiftly at her watch. "Oh, I must hurry. I have to be back at the office."

"Are you coming again?" he questioned swiftly.

"I have to come every noon hour," said Sue. "The doctor told me I must get away into the sunshine and bake this cough out of my system. But since that is quite impossible, I am doing the best I can." She looked so wistfully up at Pen, that, big man though he was, he positively quaked in his boots. He had a most awful desire to pick Sue up bodily and carry her off to the sunshine of California and to health. However, if she intended coming each noon hour there would be time to work up gradually to this pirate business.

"It's a fine idea, sunning yourself here," Pen told Sue. "I must be here, too, to get details for a big frieze I'm working on for Mrs. Goldchuak's dining room. I suppose," he looked straight into Sue's blue eyes, "I—hope you won't mind my speaking to you tomorrow?"

Sue looked up at Pen's nice honest eyes and smiled.

"I think my art really does need some helpful criticism," she admitted as Pen knew that the hottest hothouse in the world was going to be a place of refreshing loveliness when Sue was in it.

Old Shipyard Passes

One of the oldest shipyards in Europe, the Cantiere Navale Odero della Foce in Genoa, Italy, is soon to be scrapped. It was established in 1407 and in it were built the famous war galleys which were used by the republic against the Turkish corsairs. When Italy was overrun by the French a number of fighting ships were constructed here for Napoleon. Genoa has grown around the shipyard, which is now in the center of an industrial district. New houses will be erected on the site.

Treasurer's Tax Sale

—OF—

Valuable Real Estate

IN GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND.

Under and by virtue of the power vested in the Treasurer of Garrett County, Maryland, by Section 52 of Chapted 566 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland for the year 1890, title "Garrett County," sub-title "County Treasurer," and the several amendments thereto, the undersigned Late Treasurer of said County will, on at the hour of ten o'clock A. M., at the front door of the Court House, in the Town of Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland, offer and sell at public auction to the highest bidder, all of the following described pieces and parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Garrett County aforesaid, to-wit:

No. 1. All that piece or parcel of land located in the village of Finzel, in Election District No. 9, Garrett County, Maryland, containing about one-fourth of an acre, and being a part of Military Lot No. 514, and also being the same lot of ground which was conveyed to Carl G. Mullin by Charles Charuhas and wife by deed dated November 14, 1928, and recorded in Liber No. 99, folio 67, one of the Land Records of Garrett county. Said lot will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of said Garrett County in the name of Carl G. Mullin.

No. 2. About twenty-five acres of land, more or less, situate, lying and being in Election District No. 6, Garrett County, Maryland, being a part of "FRIEND'S DELIGHT," and being the same property which was conveyed to Martha A. Cuppett by two deeds, the first from Nancy DeWitt and husband, bearing date November 7, 1901, and recorded in Liber No. 40, folio 422; the second from Matthew H. DeWitt and wife, bearing date December 31, 1903, and recorded in Liber No. 46, folio 393. Said property will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as asssessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Martha A. Cuppett.

No. 3. A portion of Lot No. 15, on the plat of Pennington's Addition to the town of Oakland as recorded in Liber No. 2, folio 517, Land Records of Garrett County, situate, lying and being in Election District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland, and containing about 7500 square feet, this being the same land which was conveyed by Fred. A. Thayer, Attorney, to William H. Smouse by deed dated August 1, 1924, and recorded in Liber No. 88, folio 237, Garrett County Land Records, and afterward conveyed, together with other lands, to Arthur Gorman Thayer by the said William H. Smouse by deed dated August 1, 1924, and recorded in Liber No. 88, folio 238. Said land will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrears as charged on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of Arthur Gorman Thayer for the years 1929 and 1930.

No. 4. All that piece or parcel of land, situated in Election District No. 14, Garrett County, Maryland, being an undivided one-half interest in the tract of land known as "THE LAND OF NOD," and containing the quantity of 303½ acres, more or less. This being the same land which was conveyed to The Sullivan Brothers Coal Company by Robert R. Henderson and wife by deed dated October 18, 1918, and recorded in Liber No. 74, folio 390, one of the Garrett County Land Records. Said land, or so much thereof as may be necessary, will be sold to satisfy and pay the State and County taxes due and in arrear thereon for the years 1929 and 1930, as assessed on the Assessment Books of Garrett County in the name of The Sullivan Brothers Coal Company.

No. 5. All that piece or parcel of land situated in Election District No. 15, Garrett County, Maryland, containing the quantity of 314 acres, more or less, and being the same land which was conveyed to Edward L. Crowe by Emilie Helber et al. by deed dated September 30, 1924, and recorded in Liber No. 89, folio 459, Land Records of Garrett County. On Other Fronts.

Meanwhile other of our divisions were engnged on distnnt fronts. In Flnnders our Thirty-seventh nnd Ninety-first divisions, which hnd been sent to the French Sixth nrmy nt Mnrshal Foch's request, entered the battle October 31. The Cruyshautem ridge was taken by the Thirty-seventh division (Frnnsworth) on the first dny, while the Ninety-first (Johnston), ndvnncing ngainst intense fire, seized the strongly defended wooded nren in its front. Both divisions moved forward rapidly to the Escnut river on the following day in pursuit of the enemy. Despite resistnnce, crossings of the river were effected by the Thirty-seventh, November 2 nnd 3, the division being relieved the following day. Audenarde was occupied by the Ninety-first division on the 2nd, nnd the division was relieved on the 3rd by the French.

Both divisions re-entered the line for the general nttack of the French Sixth nrmy November 10. The Thirty-seventh division was directed to relieve two French divisions east of the Escaut the morning of the 10th, but these divisions had been unable to cross, and were relieved on the west bank. Despite severe losses the Thirty-seventh succeeded in ngain crossing the river and moved forward the following dny, advancing two and a half miles eastward. The Ninety-first division met slight opposition on the 10th and none on the morning of the 11th, reaching a line enst of Boucle-Snint-Blnise.

In the First army the Fifth corps advanced rapidly the morning of the 11th. Elements of the Eighty-ninth division occupied Stenay and established a line on the hill to the north. Pouilly-sur-Meuse was mopped up enrly in the morning and Autreville occupied. The Second division advanced to the ridge west of Moulins, while the Seventy-seventh division held its line of the 10th.

In the Third corps, the morning of the 11th, the Nineteenth division entered Baalon, and the Fifth and Thirty-second divisions were prepnring to attack. The Seventy-ninth division of the French Second Colonial corps attacked against the Cote de Romagne and advanced a short distance, the Twenty-sixth division made slight gains, and the Eighty-first division again took Grimoucourt.

On the front of the Second army the attack of the Thirty-third division on the 11th was held up. The Twenty-eighth division carried its line forward north of Mnrimbois farm, the Seventh division made no attack, and the Ninety-sceond division attacked but did not hold all its gains.

The line of the First army, November 11, extended from Fresnes-en-Woevre to Pont-Maugis. The Second army line ran from Port-sur-Seille to Fresnes-en-Woevre. Thus both American armies were now in position to carry out the offensive as directed by my orders November 5, which was what I had planned and advocated when Marshal Foch insisted that there should be a coverging movement of all the armies west of the Meuse, with Mezieres-Sedan as the objective of the American First army.

CHAPTER LXV

As the conference between Mnrshal Foch nnd the German delegates proceeded, and in anticipation of advices regarding the armistice, telephone lines were kept constantly open between my headquarters and those of the First nnd Second armies.

When word came to me at 6 a. m., November 11, that hostilities would cease at 11 a. m., directions to that effect were sent to our nrmies immedintely. Our troops had been ndvnncing rapidly during the preceding two dnys, nnd nithough every effort was made to rench them promptly n few could not be overtnken before the prescribed hour.

A brief account of the conference with the German delegates was given to me a few dnys later by General Weygand. He said the Germans came across the line by automobile the nfternoon of November 7 nnd boarded a special railway eoach sent by the French to meet them. During the night this car and the marshal's were pinced side by side in the forest between Compiegne and Soissons.

The emissnries were ushered into the marshnl's presence, and after producing their credentials were asked the object of their visit. They replied that they had come to discuss the terms of an armistice. The mnrshal then made it clear tbat he himself was not requesting an nrmistice and did not care to have one.

When asked if they wished an armistice they replied that they did. The mnrshnl said tbnt if that wns the case, here were the terms, a copy of which he handed them. The severity of the demnnds seemed to surprise them and they appeared very much depressed. They hnd no power to sign an armistice they said, without the consent of the chancellor, and after some little discussion they started an officer to the German capital with the terms.

They did not seem to object to turning over 5,000 cannon, but deplored the condition which required them to surrender 30,000 machine guns. They finally succeeded in having this reduced to 25,000 machine guns on the ground that they might have some left for riot duty. In speaking of the danger of riots, the delegates were asked why they did not send some of their reserve divisions to maintain order in the interior.

Their reply was tbnt they had no divisions in reserve, as every division that they bad was actually in line. Then they complained about the short time allowed for evacuation, stating that the German nrmy was in no condition to move, either forward or backward.

What America Had Done.

Between September 26 nnd November 11, twenty-two American and six French divisions, with an nppronimate fighting strength of 500,000 men, on a front extending from southenst of Verdun to the Argonne forest, had engaged and decisively beaten forty-three different German divisions, with nn estimated fighting strength of 470,000. Of the twenty-two American divisions, four had at different times during this period been in action on fronts other than our own.

The enemy suffered an estimated loss of over 100,000 casualties in this battle, and our First army lost about 117,000. The total strength of the First army, including 135,000 French troops, reached 1,031,000 men. It captured 26,000 prisoners, 874 cannon, 3,000 machine guns and large quantities of material.

The transportation and supply of divisions to and from our front during this battle was a gigantic tnsk. There were 26 American nnd seven French divisions, besides hundreds of thousands of corps and army troops, moved in and out of the American zone. A total of 173,000 men were evacuated to the rear and more than 100,000 replacements were received.

It need hardly be restated that onr entry into the war gave the allies the preponderance of force vitnlly necessary to outweigh the tremendous increase in the strength of the Germans on the western front, due to tbe collapse of Russia and the consequent release of German divisions employed against her. From the military point of view we began to nid the allies early in 1918, when our divisions, with insufficient training to take nctive part in bnttle, were sent to the inactive front to relieve French divisions, that they might be used in the fighting line.

Field Kitchen of the A. E. F.

The assistance we gave the allies in combat began in May, with the successful attack of one of our divisions at Cnntigny. This wns followed early in June by the entrance into bnttle of the two divisions tbnt stopped the Germnn advnnce on Paris, near Clnteau-Thierry, nnd hy three others that were put in the defensive line.

In July two American divisions, with one Moroccan division, formed tbe spearhead of the counter-nttack agninst the Chateau-Thierry salient, in which nine of our divisions participated. There was a totnl of approximately 300,000 American troops engaged in this Second Battle of the Marne, which involved very severe fighting, and wns not completed until the Germans were driven beyond tbe Vesle in August.

In the middle of September an army of 550,000 Americans reduced the St. Mihiel salient. The latter part of September our great bnttle of the Meuse-Argonne was begun, lasting through 47 days of intense fighting nnd ending briiiinntly for our First and Second armies, November 11, after more than 1,200,000 American soldiers had participated.

A Time to Forget Hardships.

It wns a time to forget the hnrdships nnd difficulties, except to record them with tbe glorious history of our achievements. In praise and thanks for the decisive victories of our armies nnd in guidance for the future, the following order was issued:

"G. H. Q.

"American Expeditionnry Forces.

"Generni Orders No. 203

"France, Nov. 12, 1918.

"The enemy has capitulated. It is fitting that I nddress myself in thanks directly to tbe officers and soldiers of the American expeditionary forces who by their heroic efforts have mnde possible this glorious result. Our armies, hurriedly raised and hastily trained, met a veternn enemy, nnd by courage, discipline and skill niways defeated him. Without compinint you have endured incessant toil, privation and danger. You have seen many of your comrades make the supreme sacrifice that freedom may live. I thank you for the patience and courage with which you have endured. I congrntulate you upon the splendid fruits of victory which your heroism and the blood of our gallant dead nre now presenting to our nation. Your deeds will live forever on the most glorious pages of America's history.

"These things you have done. There remains now a harder task which will test your soldierly qnalities to the utmost. Succeed in this and little note will be tnken and few praises will be snng; fail, and the light of your glorious achievements of the past will sndly be dimmed.

"But yon will not fnil. Every natural tendency may urge toward relaxation in discipline, in conduct, in appearance, in everything that marks the soldier. Yet you will remember that each officer and each soldier is the representative in Europe of his people, and that his hrilliant deeds of yesterday permit no action of today to pass unnoticed by friend or by foe.

"You will meet this test as gallnntly ns you have met the tests of the battlefield. Sustained by your high ideals nnd inspired by the heroic part you have played, you will carry back to our people the proud consciousness of a new Americanism born of sacrifice.

"Whether you stnnd on hostile territory or on the friendly soil of France, you will so bear yourself in discipline, appearance nnd respect for all civil rights that you will confirm for all time the pride and love which every American feels for your uniform nnd for you.

"JOHN J. PERSHING,
"Generni, Commander in Chief.
"Official:
"ROBERT C. DAVIS.
"Adjutant General."

The experience of the World war only confirmed the lessons of the past. Tha divisions with little training, while aggressive and courageous, were lacking in the ready skill of habit. They were cnpnble of powerful blows, but their blows were apt to be awkward—teamwork was often not well understood. Flexible nnd resourceful divisions cannot be crented by a few mancuvers or by a few months' association of their 'elements. On the other hand, without the keen intelligence, the endurance, the willingness, and the enthusiasm displnyed in the training nrens and on the battlefields, the decisive results obtnined would have been impossible.

There is little to add in prnise of tbe spirit of determination thnt stimulated each individual soldier to overcome the hardships nnd difficulties that fell to his lot. With fortitude and perseverance he gave his every energy to the nccomplishment of his task, whether it required him to charge the enemy's guns or play the less conspicuous role of forwarding supplies. In their devotion, their valor and the loyal fulfillment of their obligations, the officers and men of the American expeditionary forces have left a heritage of which those who follow after may ever be proud.

At Little or No Cost
Avoid the Cold Winter—
Fun for Fish in Florida

Weather prophets say this year will be the longest and most severe Winter in 47 years. Why chance even a normal Winter cold, with its 6 to 10 tons of coal shoveling, heavy clothing and extra woes, all additional costs over that required in a mild and Summer-like climate. The depression is signs enough to consider shelling up shop, targetting business cares and going on a health envigorating tour and change for five months. Average family savings on coal, clothing and food is easily $200.00 in five months, and a moderate house (furnished) for five months will cost in Florida $200.00. Decreasing possibility of earning here makes things about equal with living there those five months, if the travel could be made at little cost, and if there be a possibility of earning something at light fascinating outdoor work. That is how 30,000 members of THE ORDER OF HERMAN, a fishermen's organization, have worked out the problem, and have organized the—

Florida Fishing Pilgrimage

A trip to Florida for five months, sight-seeing, fun-making, fishing and living moderately and plainly in the actinic sunrays, bathing in the ocean water of the Gulf Stream, with enough work to keep active and solid cash, seeing all there is to be seen in Florida. They have made arrangements to stay January and February in Miami the Southern part at Florida and March, April and May in DeLand in the Northern part of Florida taking advantage of knowledge of experts as to climatic and other conditions. Through the number going they have been able to get a wholesale price upon the fare, affording an average savings of about $75.00 a person on a return trip. So that they can announce that for every person who cares to join with them in their plan a coach fare on their special trains at—

The Order of Herman and Its Camp
Employment for Everyone

The ORDER OF HERMAN is a National organization of sportsmen, now has over 47,000 members, ($1.00 per year dues) and promotes comradeship in good sports—As described above they will promote fishing trips this pilgrimage. They furnish to our tourist members an this pilgrimage ... age free medical and legal ... services, picnics, and meeting grounds once a week, lectures, plays, and recreations free during the pilgrimage and convenient stations where food, laundry and other necessities and supplies may be had at cost. This pilgrimage and the travel and tours are for members only; every person on these trains must be a member. Membership ... open to any white person, man or woman, no age or other restrictions. Applications ... must be made on organization blanks and $1.00 membership dues must be paid in advance with application. Every member on this pilgrimage will be given a special badge and other identification upon purchase of tickets.

The ORDER OF HERMAN at these times needs all kinds of help, particularly persons to man boats, trains, work and transport fish. The surplus fish that sportsmen cater are donated by them to The ORDER, and as well The ORDER buys at prevailing rate all the fish caught by members, and also pays members to go fishing taking their catch. We will provide members with employment, we prefer that members shall have three to four days employment each week and aim to so arrange matters. From $2.00 to $4.00 a day is the average compensation—the aim is to provide ordinary sustenance. Nothing more. It is not an attempt to give employment where a big profit may be had for going.

If You Want to Go With Us on This Pilgrimage; Do This—

Send us 25 cents in silver to help pay the printing and postage necessary to send you details, instructions, about the trips and copy of the By-Laws of the ORDER OF HERMAN and an official application blank or blanks necessary for you, your family and ... also write us fully, your name, address, age, date and place of birth, citizenship and race, and the same about each of your party going along. Be sure to inform us if any of them are infirm, crippled or sick, and just what they can do if they require employment. Also give us the nearest railroad station to you and when you want to leave and when you will expect to return. Be sure to write plainly. Also write us name of paper you saw this advertisement in, and be sure to date your letter and give the time of the day you wrote it.

INJUNCTION ORDER ISSUED BY CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE

Vance H. Burtner Cites He and Brother-Partner Separated Following Dispute

WRIT PREVENTS SALE

A petiton in equity has been filed in the Circuit Court for Garrett County by Vance H. Burtner and his wife, Esther Burtner, against the Independence Fire Insurance Security Company, a corporation; Penn-Mar Realty Company; Hugh H. Hotchkiss, the Sheriff of Allegany county; Walter H. Haenftling, Sheriff of Garrett county; and others, as joint defendants, asking for an injunction to prevent the sale under judgments in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Several weeks ago certain coal land and other property lying along the borderline between Garrett and Allegany counties, was taken under execution by Sheriff Haenftling, which property, under the execution, was to have been sold at public auction at the Garrett County Court House on next Tuesday morning, after having been duly advertised in The Republican.

Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan has signed an order of Court, granting the writ of injunction prayed for by the defendants, hence the sale will not occur at the time advertised.

The plaintiffs, through their attorneys, Horace P. Whitworth and Geo. Henderson, in their bill of particulars recited that Vauce H. Burtner and wife and Clair P. Burtner and wife were associated in business. They owned controlling interest in several corporations, including the Penn-Mar Realty Company (the Garrett county property), but a dispute arose and the parties agreed to separate. Under the agreement it was alleged in the bill, Vance Burtner and wife were to make certain transfers of stock to Clair P. Burtner and wife in consideration of $50,000. It is contended they complied with the conditions of the agreement, but Clair P. Burtner and wife have failed to do so. As a result litigation has arisen with subsequent claims, it is said.

"More genuine satisfaction than any car I ever owned"

THE FORD is good-looking. It is safe. Comfortable. Speedy. Reliable. Long-lived. Economical. Everything a good car should be.

There is, too, an added something about it that brings enthusiastic comments from every one who has ever driven a Ford . . . the joy it puts in motoring.

"I have been a car owner continuously for nearly 20 years," writes a motorist connected with a leading university. "During this period I have bought eleven new automobiles. Eight of the eleven were in the middle-price field, one cost three thousand dollars, and the last is a Ford I purchased thirteen months ago.

"In the light of this experience I can say in all sincerity that I have derived more genuine satisfaction from the Ford than any car I ever owned. In saying this, I am thinking in terms of comfort, safety, driving pleasure, ease of control and economy. My next car will also be a Ford because it will give me what I want at a price I can afford to pay."

When you get behind the wheel of the Ford and drive it yourself you will know it is a truly remarkable car at a low price. You will like it when you first buy it. You will become more and more enthusiastic the longer you drive it.

After thousands of miles of driving you will say "it's a great car." Its economy will save you many dollars.

VOLUME 55. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, OCTOBER 29, 1931. NUMBER 37.

ANNUAL RED CROSS ROLL CALL BEGINS ON NOV. 11

Membership Drive to Continue Until Thanksgiving; Community Chairmen Are Named

COUNTY'S QUOTA IS 600

That the annual Red Cross roll call in Garrett county would begin on Armistice Day and continue until November 26, Thanksgiving Day, was announced yesterday by Mrs. E. Z. Tower, county chairman. Along with the announcement comes an appeal for those who are able to contribute to join heart and soul in the work and to give relief to the increased number who will need it this winter.

Garrett county's quota was increased from $400 to $600 this year on account of the great need all over the country, and efforts to raise this quota are to be redoubled this year among the community chairmen. Last year all but $11 of the quota was raised.

District chairmen who have been named include Rev. Charles Kupfer, Kitzmiller; Mrs. A.B. Mason, Friendsville; Miss Nina B. Peck, Accident; Mrs. H. V. Leighton, Loch Lynn; Mrs. S. B. Falkenstine, Mt. Lake Park; Miss Nezzie Friend, Selbysport; Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Crellin; Miss Christena Winterberg, Grantsville; Mrs. Edward Helbig, Deer Park. Oakland solicitors have not been named yet. The ministers of the county will also be asked to help so that all rural people can be reached.

"Last year the American Red Cross did a noble and indispensable work throughout a large section of rural America which suffered acutely from a drought so severe as to be a National calamity," Mrs. Tower stated. "Right now the organization is on the firing line in distressed areas, and help is neded. Its nursing reserve, disaster personnel, and health services save countless lives, prevent accidents and stem the course of disease. Right here in Garrett county many things are done which are not made public, glasses fitted for children, clothing given, aid obtained for the sick, etc."

Fifty percent of the money obtained through the roll call will remain in the treasury of the local chapter, while the other fifty percent goes to National headquarters for relief. Those who contributed will be given a button, a receipt, and a Red Cross sign for their window.

President Hover has described the Red Cross organization as "belonging to the people themselves, a living embodiment of their heart and soul."

Paul Naylor's Car Stolen From In Front of M. E. Church Sunday Morning

While attending services in St. Paul's M. E. church on Sunday morning, Paul Naylor had his Chevrolet coupe stolen from in front of the church on Oak street, and thus far no clue as to the identity of the thief has been discovered, nor has the automobile been found.

A small boy says he saw a strange man getting into Mr. Naylor's car, but did not think to notify anyone about the matter. The man was tall, the boy said, and turned the machine and headed for Mountain Lake Park.

As soon as the discovery was made that the car had disappeared, Mr. Naylor notified Officer Currie and a search was instituted but without success.

The same car was stolen from Mr. Naylor about eighteen months ago and was recovered by Uniontown officers some time afterward parked on one of the streets of that town.

Mountain Top Ministers Hold Monthly Meeting

At the October meeting of the Mountain Top Ministers' Association, which was held Monday morning in Oakland, Rev. W. B. Brock was elected president of the group; Rev. J. A. Jesse, Loch Lynn, vice-president, and Rev. W. E. Waybright, Red House, secretary-treasurer. These officers will serve for one year.

A number of matters were discussed. The members present voted to cooperate with the Red Cross campaign soon to be inaugurated by taking charge of the securing of subscriptions in the rural church communities.

Attend the mass meeting tonight.

MAN WHO SHOT SELF IN HEAD DIES IN HOSPITAL

Lawrence Michaels, Former Garrett Countian, Takes Life

Lawrence Michael, 68, a retired farmer and miner, of Lonaconing died in Miner's Hospital, Frostburg, on last Thursday night of a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head. He was taken to the hospital after being found in his room of the family home by his wife and daughter, Louise, with whom he had eaten breakfast earlier. Despondency and ill health are blamed for his act.

Michaels was found in his bed, fully clothed with a .38 calibre revolver clutched in his right hand when his wife and daughter reached him after hearing the shot fired.

The bullet entered the center of his forehead, splintering the skull and causing a fracture in three places. The leaden pellet was not removed from his head after a consultation of physicians due to the seriousness of the wound.

The elderly man had been a resident of Lonaconing for a number of years, having moved to that town from his farm located in Garrett county, where he was engaged in farming. He did some work in the mines at Lonaconing, but a decline in health forced him to retire. He had undergone a major operation March 7, which caused him considerable anxiety, it was learned from members of his family, which consists of his wife and two daughters.

SERIOUS MOTOR ACCIDENT ON BIG SAVAGE MOUNTAIN

Three Young People of Garrett County In Serious Condition In Miners Hospital, Frostburg

SUFFER HEAD INJURIES

Three young people of Garrett county, Richard A. McKenzie, aged 24; his cousin, Fred. McKenzie, aged 19, and Miss Agnes Rosenberger, aged 18, are patient in the Miners Hospital, Frostburg, suffering with serious head injuries, the result of an automobile accident which occurred about 11:30 Tuesday night on the National Highway about one mile west of Frostburg.

The three young people, together with Miss Ethel Walsh, had attended a box social at the Johnson school, which is located a short distance north of the highway, and after leaving the achool they started for Frostburg when the Ford coupe, which was being driven by Richard A. McKenzie, ran off the road and was completely demolished after turining over several times as it rolled from the roadway.

Miss Walsh, the least serious injured, stated that Mr. McKenzie was attempting to pass another car going down the mountain and the soft gravel outside the shoulder of the road caused his car to skid and get beyond control.

The injured were picked up by Charles Kalbaugh, Melvin Lammert, Percy Race and Carl Spitznas and taken to the Frostburg hospitl in passing machines. After receiving treatment Miss Walsh, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walsh, was sent to her home on the west slope of Big Savage Mountain. The three other accident victims, all suffering with fractured skulls and broken bones are said to be in serious straits.

Richard McKenzie is a son of Richard McKenzie, Sr.; Fred. McKenzie is a son of Noah McKenzie and Miss Rosenberger is a daughter of the late Harry Rosenberger. They all reside in the vicinity of Johnson's, several miles east of Grantsville, in Garrett county.

New Home Demonstration Agent Assumes Duties Last Saturday

Miss Margaret Burtis, recently appointed as home demonstration agent for Garrett county by Miss Venia M. Kellar, State agent, came to Oakland last Saturday, and began assuming her new duties the same day.

Miss Burtis spent several daya in the office of the State agent before coming to Oakland where she will occupy the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Elsie Benthien on July 31.

Miss Burtis is a graduate of Kansas State college, and for the past several years has been engaged in social welfare work in New York State.

FARMER INJURED BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER ON PIKE

Grantsville District Farmer In Serious Condition After Being Knocked Unconscious

WAS ON WAY TO HIS HOME

Edward Beachy, 58-year-old farmer of near Grantsville, was struck by a hit-and-run motorist Saturday evening about 8:30 o'clock on the National Highway a few miles west of Grantsville.

It is said that Mr. Beachy was walking along the highway along, returning to his home from High Point Camp, at the top of Negro Mountain, when he was knocked down and painfully injured.

The actual time the occurrence took place is not known, but Fred. Dunn, a farmer living near Mr. Beachy, found his neighbor lying alongside the road in an unconscious condition about 9:00 o'clock. Mr. Beachy had left High Point Camp about eight o'clock.

In Cumberland Hospital

Mr. Dunn hurried the injured man to Grantsville where he was examined by a local physician, who immediately procured an ambulance and had him taken on to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland. Beachy regained consciousness shortly after reaching the hospital and was attended by Dr. Frank Wilson and Dr. W. A. Gracie. His injuries consist of a fractured right leg, a crushed ankle and sevcre cuts and abrasions about his head, face and body. His condition was considered very critical at the time of his admittance to the hospital, but since that time he has improved and no immediate fears are entertained that his injuries will prove fatal.

Immediately after the report of the occurrence had been made to the substation of the State police near Cumberland an investigation was set on foot, but so far no one has been apprehended and there seems to be no clue as to the identity of the driver of the machine that struck Mr. Beachy.

The unfortunate man is a brother of Joel A. Beachy and Christian A. Beachy, of the Grantsville community, the latter being a former county treasurer, while the former is a very prosperous farmer whose home is near that of his injured brother.

Marriage Announced

Announcement was made Saturday of the marriage of Miss Kathryn Miller, of Terra Alta, West Va., to Mr. Ernest Townshend, Jr., of Oakland. The wedding took place in the Lutheran church at Ellicott City on Sunday, September 27.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Miller, of Limestone, Tucker county, W. Va., and attended the Terra Alta High School, graduating with the class of 1929, during which time she made her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Wotring. She later attended West Virginia Business College at Fairmont.

Mr. Townshend is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Townshend, Sr., of Oakland, and is employed by the Sharps Motor Company on Third street. He was graduated from the Oakland High school, class of 1926, of which he was president. The couple will reside in Oakland.

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION TO GET STARTED AT 7:00

Everything Is In Readiness For Fourth Annual Event and Big Mummers' Parade Friday Eve

MANY PRIZES ON DISPLAY

With several new attractions to offer and several new prizes, everything is now in readiness for the fourth annual Hallowe'en celebration, which will get under way tomorrow evening at seven o'clock with a mammoth mummers' parade, after which there will be amusements of all kinds, the awarding of prizes, dancing and merrymaking.

Mayor Warns Not To Burn Leaves On Amiesite Pavements

A warning was issued yesterday by Mayor Grover C. Stemple, for people to be careful in the burning of leaves. "There should be no burning of leaves on the amiesite pavements," the mayor said, "as the heat melts the tar and leaves the base without anything to hold it together. Those who have no place to burn leaves, may have them hauled away by the town."

RECORD BELIEVED ESTABLISHED BY BOYD HARDESTY WHO GETS YIELD OF 440 BUSHELS POTATOES TO ACRE

Student in Vocational Agriculture, Oakland High School, Gets Returns From Modern Methods

What is believed to be a record for Garrett county is claimed by Boyd Hardesty, 16, of Hutton, who has obtained a yield of 440 bushels of certified seed potatoes from one acre of ground. The digging and weighing of the potatoes has just been completed, and the report was made to O. T. Graser, instructor in vocational agriculture, Oakland High school.

Boyd is in his third year of agriculture work in the Oakland High school, and he has taken potatoes as his project work during these three years. During the present year he was a member of the Oakland Commercial Potato club, and had part interest in a sprayer which he used throughout the season. He raises potatoes according to modern methods taught in the agriculture class. He was also a member of the advanced B. and O. potato club, and the 4-H certified seed potato club of Garrett county. The variety grown was Rural Russett.

At the County Fair during September the yield from one hill of Boyd's potatoes was shown, and a knife was offered to the one guessing the number of bushels yield to the acre. There were 110 guesses, ranging from 15 to 989, and the closest was 450, entered by both Harrison Thrasher, of Deer Park, and Benson T. Lambert, Parsons, W. Va.

Guesses came from people of Cumberland, Oakland, Friendsville, Accident, Mt. Lake, Kitzmiller, Swanton, Hoyes; Somerfield, Pa.; Terra Alta, Parsons, and Hendricks, W. Va.; and Johnstown, Pa.

Although it is not claimed that it takes a big fellow to raise a big potato crop, yet there may be something to it after all, as Boyd tips the scales at 288 pounds.

LEGION AUXILIARY HOLDS INSTALLATION ON MONDAY

Mrs. Evelyn Teets Is Made President of Local Organization

With Mrs. Susan Remsburg, district director, of Frederick, Md., in charge, installation of officers of the American Legion Auxiliary was held on Monday evening. The ceremonies took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Teets, at the north edge of Oakland.

Those inducted into office were Mrs. Evelyn Teets, president; Mrs. Susan Dawson, first vice-president; Mrs. Dellah Kildow, second vice-president; Mra. Elizabeth Williams, secretary; Mrs. Lois Smouse, treasurer; Mrs. Elizabeth Naylor, historian; Mrs. A. D. Naylor, chaplain; Mrs. Carrie Kahl, sergeant-at-arms.

Following the installation a social hour was spent at which Mrs. Blanche Conrad, State president, spoke of the work being done by the auxiliary organization. Mrs. Hilda Paupe, State treasurer, and several other guests were present.

Casper Smith, Aged 53, Fixes Gun On Ladder In Barn and Pulls Trigger With String

HAD BEEN MELANCHOLY

Casper Smith, 53, farmer, residing about four miles north of Oakland on the Broadford road between Route 37 and the Deer Park-Sand Flat road, committed suicide early Monday morning by firing a charge of shot from a shotgun into his breast. The gun had been arranged on a ladder leading from the threshing floor of the barn to the mow, with a string attached to the trigger. While standing immediately in front of the firearm he pulled the cord attached, the entire charge entering his breast just to the right and only a very slight distance below his heart. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Smith was a progressive farmer of his community and until recently had seemingly enjoyed good health, but several weeks ago he became melancholy, according to members of his family and his neighbors. In recent days members of the family discovered that he was arming himself with knives and guns, but these were taken from him before he could do himself or others injury. Early Monday morning, however, he arose and finding a shotgun he went to his barn and carried out the intention of what had been on his mind for some time.

Mr. Smith is survived by his widow and five children, three of whom are married, one residing at Akron, O.; one at Charleston, W. Va., and Ward, Nannie and Minnie, at home, the latter two being less than thirteen years old. Also surviving are four brothers and three sisters: Henry Smith, Youngwood, Pa.; Ward Smith, Deer Park; George Smith, Fairmont; Levi Smith, Oakland; Mrs. Hattie Cuppett, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Mary Nair, Oakland, and Mrs. Bertha Hogue, Akron.

He was born at McHenry and spent almost his entire life in this county.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from Ferndale church, Rev. W. D. Burns, Mountain Lake Park, officiating. Interment was made in the Ferndale cemetery. The male quartet from Mountain Lake Park assisted in the service.

Fire Department Answers Two Calls During Week

One slight blaze was extinguished and one false alarm was answered by the Oakland Volunteer Fire department during the past week.

A painter, doing some work for Mr. Hall, Fairmont, W. Va., owner of the house, corner of Fourth and Alder streets, built a fire in the furnace last Friday morning. The furnace was not in condition to heat the house as some of the necessary parts were missing, and a fire alarm was sent in. The department answered the alarm.

Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock, a false alarm was sent in. A tar barrel in rear of the Frantz hotel was on fire, and had been burning for some time. It is supposed somebody saw the reflection of the flames upon the building and thought it time to call the department.

TO PRESENT PROGRAM OF RELIEF AT MASS MEETING

Plan for Taking Care of Needy To Be Discussed at the Court House This Evening at 7:30

PLAN TO BE OUTLINED

A plan for organized relief in Garrett county will be discussed at a mass meeting, to be held this evening at the Court House, Oakland, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

At this meeting a plan will be suggested to organize a County-wide relief committee for the care of the needy during the ensuing year. The County Commissioners will act as the chairmen of this meeting, with George D. Browning presiding.

The outline of the relief plan will be given by Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, and will be discussed by anyone in the county interested in this plan.

Miss Katharine Kirwan, executive secretary of the Maryland Children's Aid society, will be present to aid in the organization.

A recent survey of the county indicates that there will be an increase of at least 10 percent in the relief given to families throughout the county over that given last year.

Although letters have been sent to a great many individuals over the county, everyone interested in relief work is urged to attend and take part in the discussion.

Relief work heretofore was taken care of through the Red Cross, Civic clubs, service organizations, health nurses, and other societies.

KITZMILLER AND OAKLAND STILL IN SOCCER TANGLE

Score Was 0-0 In Playoff For Championship Last Friday

A hard-faught battle with a score of 0-0 was the result of Friday's playoff soccer game between Oakland and Kitzmiller on the Accident field to decide the championship of the southern division. Logan Weber played the best all-around game for Oakland. Another game is scheduled for this afternoon.

On Monday evening a pep meeting was held on the Oakland fair grounds. Several yells never before used were introduced.

Other O. H. S. News

The F. F. A. of O. H. S. has elected officers for the year. They are as follows: President, J. Sebold; vice-president, Harold Hauser; treasurer, Earl Spoerlein; secretary, Lenwood Bittinger; reporter, Glenn Schell. The membership of this organization includes sixty boys. It is the second largest F. F. A. chapter in the State of Maryland and it is the first chapter to become 100 per cent in membership.

Outstanding winners in connection with potato contests are Willard Hauser, who won first place in the B. & O. interstate contest, with a yield of 375 bushels per acre.

Boyd Hardesty won first in Oakland Boys' Commercial Potato Club and second in county certified group. His yield for one-half acre was at the rate of 440 bushels per acre. This is the largest weighed yield ever known in Oakland projects.

REGINALD FORD, Reporter.

Three Acres of Garrett County Land Planted In Carrots Yielded 45 Tons

With the thought of harvesting a carload (15 tons) three acres of the Weber farm, just east of Oakland, was planted in carrots last spring by Mr. J. F. Reinhardt, of the Mount Airy Canning Company. The crop was harvested during the past week and forty-five tons (three carloads) of the vegetable were shipped out to the canning companys plant at Mount Airy where they are being canned for the market.

The carrots, Mr. Reinhardt stated, were all first-class in quality and the yield per acre was surprising.

County to Have Standard Teacher Training School

The Oakland Community Council of Religious Education, at a regularly called meeting in Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church last Monday evening, accepted the dates and plan for the next regular Standard Teacher Training school, to be held consecutively in Oakland, Friendsville, and Grantsville.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1931, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for November 1

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

GOLDEN TEXT—And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit.

LESSON TEXT—Gal. 5:13-26.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Danger of Strong Drink.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Peril of Strong Drink.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Reasons for Total Abstinence.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Progress of Temperance Reform.

This lesson is taken from the portion of the Epistle to the Galatians which has to do with the application of the doctrine of justification by faith. By faith the believer is linked to Jesus Christ. As a result of this union with Christ, the believer experiences a new birth, and thereafter lives a new life. The divine way of freeing the world from the curse of intemperance is to secure the regeneration of the individual.

I. Christian Freedom (vv. 13-15).

1. It is not an occasion to the flesh (v. 13). Liberty is not license. The notion that when one is free from the law he is free from restraint is wickedly erroneous. License of the flesh means not merely the indulgence of the flesh in actual material sins, but in the expression of a self-centered life in bickerings, etc. (v. 15).

2. It is by love serving one another (v. 13). Freedom from the Mosaic law means submission to the law of love. Love thus becomes the fulfillment of the law, (v. 14).

II. Walking in the Spirit (vv. 16-18).

This discloses the secret of how a life of love and service to another can be lived. Walking in the Spirit results in victory over the flesh (vv. 16, 17). By "the flesh" is meant the corrupt nature of man expressing itself in the realm of sense and self. When the Christian chooses the evil, the Holy Spirit opposes and when he chooses the good, the flesh opposes.

III. The Works of the Flesh (vv. 19-21).

The one who chooses to live according to the desires of his natural heart will be practicing the following sins:

1. Sensuality (v. 19). The sins enumerated here are practiced in the sphere of the body and are:

a. Fornication (the word "adultery" is omitted from the best manuscripts). Fornication includes all sexual sins in the married and unmarried state.

b. Uncleanness, which includes all sensual sins, open or secret, in thought or deed.

c. Lasciviousness — wanton indulgences in the shameful practices of the flesh.

2. Irreligion (v. 20). These acts take place in the realm of the spirit and are:

a. Idolatry, which means the worshiping of idols.

b. Witchcraft or sorcery—all dealing with the occult such as magical arts, spiritism, necromancy, etc.

3. Sins of temper (vv. 20, 21). These ake place in the sphere of the mind and are:

a. Hatred. b. Variance, which means strife and contention. c. Emulations, which expresses itself in jealousy. d. Wrath—bursts of passion. e. Seditions—factions in the state. f. Heresies—factions in the church. g. Envyings. h. Murders.

4. Sins of excess (v. 21).

a. Drunkenness—indulgence in intoxicating liquors.

b. Revelings—acts of dissipation, under the influence of intoxicants.

Those who are under the sway of the flesh, who practice such sins, shall be excluded from the kingdom of God (1 Cor. 6:10).

IV. The Fruit of the Spirit (vv. 22-24).

The Holy Spirit, who is the source of all life indwelling the believer, will bear the following fruits:

1. Love to God and men.
2. Joy—glad-heartedness because of what God has done.
3. Peace with God and men.
4. Long suffering—taking insult and injury without murmur.
5. Gentleness—kindness to others.
6. Goodness—being good and doing good to others.
7. Faith—believing God and committing all things to him.
8. Meekness—submission to God, the spirit of humility before him.
9. Temperance—self-control in all things. The one who is thus ruled by the Holy Spirit will totally abstain from all intoxicants and do his best to keep his fellows from its destructive power.

THIRTY-SEVEN LICENSES ARE ISSUED DURING WEEK

Total Number of Marriages for October Thus Far Is 112

Thirty-seven marriage licenses were issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland during the week ending Monday, bringing the total for the month to 112. This is only five less than the number for the entire month of last year, but still quite a number short of the all-time record of 143.

One-third of the number granted during the week were marked "don't publish," while two applicants were refused licenses. Saturday lost out last week as the most popular day for marriage couples at the Court House, nine being issued on Thursday While only eight were issued on Wednesday and Snturday.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

By Scoop Himself

Two killed, one ends life in prison break at Trenton, New Jersey. Wooden piers in Baltimore are a fire hazard. Japan and China may come to blows any minute. Mrs. Judd admits slaying two women and shipping their bodies in trunks from Arizona to California. Heavy snowfall halts traffic in Denver, Colorado. Eskimos will have to live on fish and whale blubber this winter, it is feared, while natives in New Zealand are without clothes.

But in Garrett county we have good weather, good crops and good people. Try boosting your county for a little while instead of crabbing and see how much better you will feel. If you can't smile, send for an automatic smiler which you can hook up into the sides of your mouth and fasten over your ears. Scoop, sole agent. You can't feel good when you don't feel good, and the only way to feel good is to make yourself believe you feel good, and other people will feel good over it. This, in turn, makes everybody feel good, and anyway, what this country needs is more good feelers.

"For he's a jolly good feeler" may yet be said about you.

We must now interrupt this train of thought to tell you the correct time through the courtesy of Archibaldson and his Ingersoll. It isn't very long until tomorrow evening when we are going to have a big Hallowe'en parade.

It isn't every day that one gets a chance to see H. C. Sincell in short dresses; Charley Sprague or Guy Yutzy as the fattest woman; I. Romanus Rudy as Simple Simon; Poky Shaw as Little Red Riding Hood; Jim Kerins as the Irish washerwoman; Bet Dawson as "The Silent One"; Berne Teter as "ye olde devil"; all the bootleggers as "the spirits of civilization," and Mayor Monk Stemple riding six white horses.

I repeat, it isn't every day one gets a chance to see such sights. Of course, this may or may not be their day, but anyway, I advise one and all to get at least an eyeful of the big parade.

The ayes have it. All right, we'll be expecting you.

Following the parade there will be a dance.

"It isn't sanitary," protested Dr. Clarke, in his recent county inspection, "to have the house built over the hog pen that way."

"Well, I dunno," replied the one visited. "We ain't lost a hog in fifteen years."

Wife (with new fur coat): You know, Betty, one really can't help feeling sorry for the poor thing that was skinned for this.

Bet Dawson (looking at his empty pocketbook): I appreciate your sympathy, dear.

PURELY PERSONAL

See Walter Hardesty if you want hot air furnaces installed anywhere from 10:00 p. m. until 1:00 a. m.

Jim Kerins had to go to work last Friday morning unexpectedly when the fire whistle called his brother to duty as Fire Chief, and he did hate to get up!

A fellow requested two licenses from the Clerk of the Circuit Court on Monday—a marriage license and a hunting license. He won't need the latter. His hunting days are over, at least his dear hunting.

It's safer to guess it is the approaching driver's headlight nearest you that is out.

Ray Jones thanked me yesterday morning for mentioning his name in this column last week. Now, there's appreciation for you.

It is now with great expectation that I await thanks from Doc Grant, Wally Dawson, Sheriff Haenftling, Heinrich Lauer, Joe Harned, Frankie Rathbun, Delby Davis, Artie Fraley, Willie Sturgiss, Webbsy Ravenscroft and E. Z. Tower, just for merely mentioning their names.

The Boss Editor and Web Ravenscroft made a hurried trip to Friendsville early last Monday morning, taking with them bundles of sunshine.

Somebody tried to ream me out of a good supper Tuesday evening. At 6 o'clock, just as Mayor Stemple, Rus Brown, Rev. Shilke and I were about to sit down to the offerings of Mrs. Mayor, the fire whistle blew, and the Mayor had to fly. It was a delightful false alarm, however, and we wasted no time in returning. Appreciation and applause don't seem to mix anymore. Hundreds of people will stand around and listen to the Boys' Band music until the last horn blows, but less than ten of the hundred will applaud. Not only paralysis of the hands, I call it, but paralysis of part of the brain. Don Stemple and Bill Naylor returned Tuesday evening from Grantsville where they hitch-hiked to see the soccer game, scheduled for Thursday.

I've got to see about my Hallowe'en costume, and as Lowell Thomas says every night, "So long until next week."

Band Concert

The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland are bringing the Oakland band to Accident on Wednesday evening, November 4, where a free concert will be given in the open air if weather conditions permit. Otherwise the concert will be played in the high school auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Corn Husking

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Humberson entertained the following guests at a corn husking on Tuesday: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Humberson, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Humberson and daughter Emma, Mr. and Mrs. Claud Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fike, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Humberson, all of Friendsville, and N. M. Humberson, of Accident. The day was pleasantly spent and a fine dinner was served at noon.

Local School Notes

Plan now to attend the operetta, "The Sunbonnet Girl," which will be presented by students of A. H. S. in the school auditorium on the nights of November 6 and 7. Admission will be 25 and 35 cents.

All the members of the high school faculty and Misses Grace Speicher and Hildegarde Miller, of the grammar school faculty, motored to Baltimore last week where they attended a teachers' conference two or three days.

The fieldball teams from Friendsville and Accident played a game in Accident on Monday to determine the county championship. As a result of the game Grantsville won with a score of 8 to 4.

The Home Economics room has been made very attractive by having a fresh coat of paint applied to the walls. New shades have been purchased and the tables are being painted in bright colors.

GENERAL BURGOYNE'S SURRENDER AT SARATOGA

Occurred On October 17th, One Hundred Fifty-four Years Ago

One hundred and fifty-four years ago, on October 17th, occurred the surrender of General Burgoyne and his British army at Saratoga, New York. It happened in the year 1777, before our present national Government was formally established. As it was one of the critieal turning points that deeided the suceess of the Revolution, it is worth thinking about in any year. Next year it will be doubly worth recalling, in honor of the man we celebrate in 1932, on the two hundredth anniversary of his birth—George Washington.

As to the signifieance of the surrender and the battle of Saratoga, the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge has put the case in a single striking line: "The Revolution had been saved at Trenton; it was established at Saratoga."

Every good Americen remembers something of what the school history books taught him about Burgoyne and Saratoga, but it takes the careful searehings of more recent historians to see that event as the great hinge on which our entire national history turned. It has been left for such authorities as Lodge, for example, to make clear George Washington's part in the winning of that pivotal victory.

Our textbooks taught us that Saratoga was fought in the heart of New York State, while Washington was watching Howe at Philadelphia, the assumption being that Saratoga was a stroke of good fortune by which he benefitted but in whieh he played no personal part.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission points out that Washington saw in a flash the danger of Burgoyne's thrust toward the Hudson River, and did his utmost to block it. Washington knew that once the British eommand of the Hudson, they would cut the Revolutionary States in two. In that case the war might be lost. Like a hawk he watched the army of Howe at the southern end of the Hudson, and must have been overjoyed when he saw it strike for Philadelphia, instead of moving up the river to connect with Burgoyne. It was Washington's part to pin Howe where he was in Philadelphia. But it was not Washington's part to allow Burgoyne to capture the north without resistance.

The labor that brought the downfall of Burgoyne was accomplished by General Washington. He carried on a furious correspondeneo with the Governors of the New England and the Northern States, with an appeal for militia. His letters to General Schuyler, than in command of the northern Continental troops, disclose the same shrewd plans on Washington's part. At the critical moment, Congress decided to place General Gates in command, in place of General Sehuyler, but the ground for success had already been prepared by Washington. Besides, General Washington sent some of his own mueh needed troops under Arnold and Morgan to assist in stopping the British.

Precisely as the Commander-in-Chief had reckoned, the people of the northern wilderness arose against the British invader, and at Saratoga General Gates had for once sufficient forees animated by a determined spirit. We know the result. Burgoyne hemmed in, was taken with his entire army. The victory heartened the Americans to renewed efforts, dismayed the British, and led to political effects that pointed straight to Yorktown and the surrender of another and the most important of the British armies.

For Saratoge proved to the world the fighting spirit of the Americans, their ability to win. It was Saratoga and the surrender of Burgoyne that brought in France on the American side, with just the support that was needed. It is true that four more years of discouragement and fighting and delay lay between Saratoga and the successful stroke at Yorktown; but, had there been no Saratoga, there might have been no Yorktown, no victory there, and no United States.

That is the importance of the surrender at Saratoga in American history, and why we should give it grateful thought on October 17, the anniversary of the day on which it occurred. Next year we doubly owe it commemoration when the entire nation devotes itself to a nine months celebration in Washington's honor. As a victory of his own planning and preparation, it plays its part among his achievements in the founding of our country and merits our gratitude and thanksgiving.

BOYS AND GIRLS GOING TO SCHOOL MUST BE WELL FED

A Good Breakfast Is Advised By State Board of Health

"Youngsters who are just starting in to school are under very great strain, physically and mentally, in the transition from the little boy and girl stage to the school girl and school boy age, and they should be safeguarded in every way so that they can come through the ordeal happily and in good health," Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said, in outlining some of the needs of the newly enrolled first-graders.

"In the exeitement of getting off in the morning," he said, "breakfast gets scant attention from most children. But this is really a very important meal for young, growing children and it is worth making an effort to get them up and dressed in time for the meal to be eaten quietly and with enjoyment.

"For a young child, breakfast should consist of fresh fruit or a helping of stewed fruit, bread and butter, or buttered toast, with an egg, soft boiled, poached or scrambled, or a slice of bacon, or a simple relish, such as creamed chipped beef, with milk or cocoa to drink.

"Dinner should consist of soup, vegetables, bread and butter, a simple dessert, with milk to drink, and if possible, this meal should be eaten in the middle of the day. If the ehild has to earry his lunch to school, be sure to see that his lunch kit has room for a small bottle of milk, or a small thermos bottle of hot soup or hot stew—wide mouthed bottles of that sort can be bought for a small amount and the hot food adds much to the child's enjoyment of that meal and also to the benefit he derives from it. An appetizing sandwich, with an apple or other fruit, with some eookies or gingerbread, will form a satisfying meal when eaten with the milk or hot soup. If a warm lunch cannot be supplied at noon, soup and vegetables should be included in the evening meal.

"As long as the weather is favorable, children should have some playtime out of doors, but they need rest as well as play and if possible the child from five to seven years old should have a resting time after the midday meal—it need not be longer than twenty or thirty minutes. The child of that age should also have from ten to twelve hours sleep at night.

"Of the children from five to seven years old, examined at the child health conferences held in connection with the visit of the Healthmobile to Southern Maryland and the Eastern Shore last summer, one out of every five was underweight. Many children were underweight, not from lack of food, but because they do not have the right sort of food, and because they do not have enough rest or sleep.

"The State Department of Health has published a booklet entitled 'Diet for the Young Child,' which gives suggestions as to the sort of foods that form what we call a 'balanced meal.' Mothers who are interested in finding out about these things, may obtain a copy by writing to the headquarters of the Department at 2411 N. Charles street, Baltimore."

NOTICE!

On account of ill health, and in order to serve my customers better and make prices lower, I am making a change in my business methods. Therefore, beginning my business will be conducted on a CASH basis.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1931,

Produce will be considered cash.

All outstanding accounts will be due on or before December 31st, 1931.

This also gives notice to the public that I will not be responsible for any debts or bills contracted for in my name without my consent.

This also gives notice that on and after January 1st, 1932, I will not sign any more notes.

All merchandise held over from spring, I am pricing at the lowest figure on the market for goods of this kind. Shoes, for instance, are greatly reduced. You will see for yourself, because the old price has been left on the box along with the new price.

I thank you for your past patronage and also will appreciate a continuance of your patronage under my cash plan.

I feel through this depression that it will save you money by making my store your headquarters to buy your needs as this will be the means of reducing overhead and losses in a credit business.

Again I thank you, and again I will ask you to make my store your headquarters when in town.

LIVE AND HELP LIVE—

Organization of a county-wide relief committee, to aid those in distress, is something in which every citizen should be interested. Plans for such an organization will be discussed this evening in the Court House and attendance is imperative.

In the distant past it was kill in order to live. Later, it was live and let live, and finally it is live and help live. Many of the people of the county will be in dire need this winter, and it is the spirit of live and help live that will pull them through. Your assistance is asked.

WHEN Boyd Hardesty, 16 years old, a 4-H Club member and a student in the vocational agriculture class of Oakland High School, realized a yield of 440 bushels of certified seed potatoes from one acre, he set a record that will be hard to beat.

He did more than set a record. He showed what can be done if anyone cares to take seriously the raising of potatoes. He showed what the adoption of modern methods means in raising any crop. He showed the value of starting with good seed. He showed that with real and earnest work he could and did obtain results.

PARENTS should feel proud and extremely happy over the report recently made by Dr. George E. Clarke, county health officer, to the effect that less than one per cent of school children examined to date had physical defects which should be corrected this fall. Such a low percentage among the one thousand school children already examined may be taken as an indication of what the result would be among all of the school children of the county.

To be healthy, wealthy and wise, it is necessary, usually, to be healthy before the other two will follow. With good health it is much easier to learn, statistics have shown, and with good health and knowledge the chances are better for the third desire.

Good health is a wonderful asset, and Garrett county is full of good health.

THE age is past when it is necessary to destroy personal property in order to enjoy Hallowe'en. Mayor Stemple has warned that anyone found guilty of misdemeanors will be punished to the full extent of the law. Have a good time, boys and girls, but don't be guilty of destroying or marring property of any description.

EVERY CITIZEN SHOULD TAKE LEADERSHIP

Governor Cross, of Connecticut, calls attention to the fact that while in the present confused condition of national affairs, the cry goes up for leadership it should not be forgotten that leadership is not enough. It is contemplated by our governmental scheme that the people generally must assume responsibility for the conduct of public affairs, and assert their own leadership, rather than blindly follow any leader.

It is the disposition on the part of the American people to shift their responsibility as citizens on the shoulders of others, and "let George do it" that has had so much to do with the creation of the present chaotic condition. Indifference to civic responsibility has been the rule rather than the exception. All too little thought has been given by the citizen to public questions. He has turned over the duty of running the government to politicians. After turning that duty over he has been content to let the officeholders do as they please. In fact most citizens have been ready and willing to bring pressure upon officials to do things they should not do, in cases where such a course of action would advance the citizen's own selfish interests.

The popular primary has helped bring about this condition. Under the convention system, in harmony with the representative system of government, those who took a special interest in public affairs did the choosing of nominees for office. Because they took some interest, they made it their business to know about the men who became candidates. This responsibility is now diffused among many people who give no thought or study to public affairs. They are only aroused when a campaign comes on and candidates present their claims for consideration. Then they are dependent on the professional politicians, or what they read in the newspapers.

Under the convention system, too, political parties were compelled to shoulder responsibility in the selection of candidates. Weak or dishonest nominees meant that the voters would probably punish the party which chose them, either in the following election or after these officials had discredited the organization which chose them. Today it is realized that political parties cannot be held responsible for their nominees. Voters without regard to party take part in the primaries, and feel no responsibility afterward for what has been done. In many instances the nominees represent only a minority sentiment sufficiently strong to roll up a plurality in a large field of candidates.

No system of government will ever be invented that will work well if those who are supposed to operate it, neglect it or misuse it. Very few of those who loudly complain about the evils and abuses which arise under our system of government, have done anything much to make it work better. They must not be surprised if their indifference, inaction and selfishness brings its natural result in unsatisfactory government. Usually, however, the less a given citizen has bestirred himself to improve conditions, the louder he cries out when things go wrong.

We need more of the sense of personal responsibility in the individual citizen. If each citizen would do his full duty, the system of government we have makes it certain that there would be no fall-down in government. For every legislative and executive official we have is the choice of the people. If they choose wrong, they have only themselves to blame, especially if they have carried into their political conduct prejudice and passion, rather than reason and patriotism.

An Interesting Fact

BALTIMORE CITY

The Colonists, apparently, were determined to found a Baltimore town that would endure for ages. Prior to the founding of the present city of Baltimore, a number of other settlements had been designated by the name, but they soon ceased to exist.

The first was in Baltimore (now Cecil) county, settled in 1659, which lasted but a few years. Then came the Bush river Baltimore, which flourished from about 1674 to about 1700. The settlement on Foster's Neck then tried to perpetuate the name, but it also ceased to exist, passing into history in 1712, and then Joppa Court House, on the Gunpowder river, bore the name and flourished for 50 years.

Baltimore City, as we now know it, was born of necessity and has fully justified its continued existence. The planters living about the Patapsco, having prospered and expended, were in need of a port, and in 1729 secured the passage of an Act by the Assembly authorizeing the purchase of the necessary land for the founding of a town. Commissioners were appointed for the purpose and these met in December of that year and selected a tract of land—Cole's Harbor—in Baltimore county, owned by Daniel and Charles Carroll, comprising 60 acres, on which John Fleming, a tenant of the Carrolls lived, in a house situated not far from the present intersection of Charles and Lombard streets. This tract was purchased and plotted into 60 lots, which were sold at the rate of 40 shillings an acre, the purchase price being payable either in currency or tobacco. In the same year (1729) the town was laid out and named in honor of Cecelius, Lord Baltimore. In 1730 it was "erected" by Act of the Assembly.

In 1732, Jones Town, east of Jones Falls, was laid out and later (1745) was consolidated with its sister village, and the two incorporated under the name of Baltimore Town, which was made the county-seat in 1768, and a court house erected where the Battle Monument now stands.

Baltimore City was incorporated in 1796, the Act going into effect in 1797.

In 1851, the city was separated from the adjoining counties and made a political unit, just one hundred years after the town had grown from a population of two hundred.

From 1752 to 1775, the town must have felt the "growing pains" of youth, as we find that in the latter year it had approximately 565 houses and a population of 5,934. During the next thirty years, Baltimore grew by leaps and bounds and in 1808, 35,000 inhabitants were reported, outstripping Annapolis, Bladensburg, Chestertown and Oxford, early important shipping points, and justifying the confidence and hopes of its founders.

Today (1931) Baltimore has grown from a mere hamlet to a city of 806,607 population (of which 663,000 are white), and her taxable wealth from a few acres of land valued at forty shillings an acre, to an assessed valuation for taxable purposes of $2,225,091,796, and is ranked by the United States Government as the second foreign trade tonnage port of the United States.

On the morning of February 7, 1904, Baltimore was visited by a destructive fire which raged for two days and two nights, devastating approximately 140 acres in the heart of the business section of the city and destroying 2,400 places of business.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Garrett county public schools opened on the 15th of Ocotober for a session of less than six months.

The flouring mill on Water street, operated by George M. Mason was set on fire by a spark from the boiler used to drive the machinery in the mill. A crowd of people assembled at the mill and extinguished the blaze. The roof of the building was considerably damaged.

While engaged in felling a tree on a farm near Selbysport the trunk of the tree split off and in falling struck William Friend, son of Isaiah Friend, near Selbysport, and killed him instantly.

Grover Cleveland Mosser, 5 year-old son of Daniel Mosser, Swanton, wandered away from his home. Many people of the district where the Mosser family resided scoured the woods in every direction but the child could not be found.

An unusual occurrence for the season of year was witnessed Monday evening when a rain storm accompanied by vivid lightning and loud peals of thunder visited this community.

William Liller, employed at a stone crushing plant located near Oakland, was injured severely when a tram car loaded with stone ran over his foot.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The State Forester arranged to inaugurate a forest patrol. The patrolmen were to be mounted, the personnel of which included Taylor Sines, Swallow Falls district; Milton Wiley, Meadow and Negro Mountains; Fransic Turner, Altamont and Backbone Mountain, and G. M. Mayer, Big Savage Mountain.

The first snow of the season fell in Oakland on November 2nd. The fall was light and melted as soon as it touched the earth.

A new board of editors for the Oakland High school notes was appointed consisting of Frederick Thayer, Proctor Kildow, Percy Thayer and Frank Smouse.

As a result of continued wet and unseasonable weather, farmers were greatly disappointed in their potato crops in this community, many of the tubers rotting before they could be taken from the ground.

A Hungarian, convicted before Justice Teats upon the charge of stabbing a fellow-countryman at a camp on the Seventeen-mile Grade, where a free-for-all occurred among the workmen, was sentenced to serve a year in the Maryland House of Correction, to which institution he was taken by Sheriff Andrew Shartzer.

Kitzmiller W. C. T. U. Meets

The W. C. T. U. of Kitzmiller held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. E. J. Hamill on Friday evening, October 8. Mrs. Charles Kupfer was in charge of the devotional part of the program, reading and explaining a chapter from Ephesus and afterwards leading in prayer. Following the regular business meeting a delegate, Mrs. C. Ney Smith, was elected to go with the president, Mrs. O. P. Jones, to the convention to be held in Frostburg during the month. Garrett and Allegany counties are combined in W. C. T. U. work.

Discussion of current articles of interest on temperance workers followed and was entered into by all members present. Law enforcement was stressed.

Roll call next month will be the reading or reviewing by each member of a short news item relating to temperance.

Mrs. O. P. Jones presented the petition to be signed for world peace to the club and gave a talk on the importance of the coming conference for world disarmament at Geneva.

The club has divided into groups of two for the work of presenting the petitions to Kitzmiller, Shallmar and Vindex and next month will put on a campaign, going from house to house to obtain signatures to the petitions. These petitions will be collected from all over the United States. Miss Jane Addams, the noted social worker, will present them to President Hoover. He in turn will take them to the Geneva Conference. It is an opportunity for each of us to do our bit for world peace.

The next meeting of the club will be held on November 13th.

ANNUAL POTATO SHOW HAS EIGHTY EXHIBITORS

Large Number Attending Prove That Greater Interest Is Being Taken By People of County

PRIZE WINNERS NAMED

With eighty exhibitors in the second annual Garrett county potato show, held Friday and Saturday, an increase of thirty over the number for last year, the exhibit was considered a great success by John H. Carter, county agent, and those who attended the show.

Greater interest was shown in the exhibit by the people of the county as the building where the potatoes were being exhibited had many visitors during the two days, Mr. Carter said. He also stated that the quality of the exhibits had been improved and that the exhibitors had used better judgment in selecting the exhibits.

The show was held in the Naylor building on Alder street, under the supervision of the county agent and in cooperation with the vocational agriculture divisions of the high schools of the county. The inter-State potato show was also held in connection with the county-wide exhibit and was under the supervision of L. S. Hartley, agriculture agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Over two hundred dollars in prize money was awarded by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, the State Horticultural Society, the University of Maryland Extension Service and Garrett county. The building for the show was loaned free of charge by Arthur Naylor.

The winners as announced by the judges were as follows:

Progress Made on Construction of Skating Pond

Progress on the construction of the skating pond in Washington Spring Park has been made during the past week, and the ground is now ready for rolling, preparatory to turning the water into it.

The pond, approximately 85 by 185 feet in size, has been leveled so that at no place will it be more than one and one-half feet in depth, and an embankment has been built on all four sides.

The pond will be flooded either by the use of a pipe line from the breast of the mill dam, or by the use of an automatic pump. It will be put to use as soon as good freezing weather arrives.

The Republican Commercial Printing Department is the best equipped printery you could care to inspect.

Disarmament Versus Peace Is Discussed By Civic Club

At the regular meeting of the Oakland Civic club on Tuesday, October 27, "Disarmament versus Peace" was discussed and papers on the subject were read by Mrs. W. W. Grant, Mrs. H. H. Harned, Mrs. George Sprague, and Miss Grace Jones.

During the business meeting the progress of the work at Washington Spring Park was reported. There is a marked improvement there and the work is still going forward.

It was brought before the club that the sewing for the needy children of the county would not be adequate to take care of the calls for clothing. Anyone having such clothing is asked to aid this cause by sending it to the Grand Jury room in the Court House where it will be taken care of by members of the Civic club.

At the conclusion of the business meeting tea was served by Mrs. Arthur Naylor, hostess.

Turkeys To Be Plentiful For the Holiday Season

The turkey crop in Maryland is estimated to be about two percent larger than in 1930, according to reports of turkey growers throughout the State. These reports also indicate that of the turkeys to be sold this year about 43 percent will be ready for the Thanksgiving market, about 48 percent for the Christmas market, and the remaining 9 percent for later marketing. Last year at this time reports indicated that about 48 percent would be ready for marketing at Thanksgiving, 44 percent at Christmas, and 8 percent after Christmas.

Turkey raisers have labored under handicaps this year, having sustained heavier than usual mortality of young birds due to unfavorable weather conditions. The increased supply of turkeys this year is being grown largely by commercial growers who will produce 200 and more birds per flock. Holdings in the smaller farm flocks are probably smaller this year than a year ago.

Prompt Action of Foresters Results In Small Blazes

Bright, sunshiny fall days and continued absence of rain have resulted in numerous small forest fires thruout Maryland during the present week. Forest fire lookout towers have been especially active in reporting "smokes", and the prompt response of forest wardens and "smokechasers" has held all fires to small size. The new 100 foot tower at Hillmeade, Prince George's county, has been particularly active in spotting incipient blazes.

The Dans Rock and Warrior Mountains in Alleganw county have been particularly vigilant, detecting fires of considerable size beyond the Maryland boundary. A fire of approximately 100 acres was detected in Pennsylvania, and four major conflagrations were reported to West Virginia officials. Maryland towers are rendering every possible assistance in reporting fires in neighboring states to the proper officials.

State Forester F. W. Besley, at Baltimore, announced that fires have not been as serious during October as is usually the case, probably due to the slow falling of leaves. Forests are quite dry, according to Mr. Besley, but frosts have not been sufficiently severe to bring down the usual deluge of autumn foliage. The State Forester was careful to add that grass and weed growth was particularly heavy during 1931 which adds tremendously to the fire hazard. He warned that November is usually a severe fire month, and that the opening of hunting season will add to the danger of forest fires.

DIED.

JERRY BABB JUNKINS

Jerry Babb Junkins, aged 10 years, 11 months and 3 days, died in the Morgantown hospital, Morgantown, W. Va., on Wednesday, October 21. Death resulted from blood poisoning.

The deceased was the only son of Okey and Bertha Junkins, of Jere, W. Va., formerly of Deer Park.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Tabernacle at Sand Flat, Rev. Vale, of Morgantown, officiating. Prof. Grove, Morgantown, sang several selections. Interment was made in Deer Park cemetery, beside his brother, Ashby O'Neil, who died about four years ago.

Besides his parents, the deceased is survived by five sisters, Mrs. Clarence Shriver, Osage, W. Va.; Grace, Vernie, Pearl, and Bessie, at home.

Before leaving Deer Park three years ago, Mr. Junkins was employed on the C. A. Ashby farm and was riding master at the Deer Park hotel. His son was his constant companion, and a marked fellowship between father and son was always noticeable. The funeral was one of the largest for a youth ever held from the Tabernacle there being more than 70 carloads of people.

MARRIED

Cragen — Carney — Miss Loretta Marie Carney, well known young woman of Clarksburg, became the bride of Bernard Martin Cragen, of Long Island City, N. Y., at 8:45 o'clock last Wednesday morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in the presence of relatives and friends.

The Very Rev. Father P. H. McDermott, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, read the marriage service and offered a nuptial mass. Miss Regina Caulfield played the wedding march and Mrs. John Foley sang the "Ave Marie."

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Helen Carney, of Washington, D. C., formerly of Clarksburg, as maid of honor, and John P. Flynn, brother-in-law of the bride served Mr. Cragen as best man. The bride wore a blue chiffon velvet dress, made with ankle-length skirt featuring flounces and the waist was completed with a graceful shawl-collar. With this gown the bride wore a blue chenille hat in the same shade of blue. Her accessories and slippers were also blue and she carried an arm bouquet of bronze chysanthemums.

Immediately after the mass a wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Flynn, St. Clair street, which included the wedding party, the immediate family and out-of-town guests.

Mr. Cragen and his bride left the same afternoon for a Southern honeymoon, taking a boat at Washington, D. C., for Norfolk where they remained a few days, their trip terminating at Long Island City, N. Y., where they will make their home. The bride traveled in a Spanish tile gown with which she wore a brown wrap, smart turban in the latter shade and all her accessories featured the brown note.

The marriage removed a popular young woman from Clarksburg, who had made the city her home for thirteen years. She is a daughter of John Carney of Oakland, and since going to Clarksburg had been tonnage clerk for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Mr. Cragen is a son of Mrs. Catherine DeLeon, of Long Island. He is also well known in Clarksburg, being connected with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad as an investigator in the police department.

Among those who attended the marriage were John Carney, Bernadette Bergen and Miss Mary Carney, of Oakland, father and sisters of the bride; Mrs. DeLeon, mother of the bridegroom; Miss Helen Carney, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Welsh, of Cumberland.

Special Stamps Issued By Postoffice at Oakland

Commemorating the Yorktown Sesquicentennial at Yorktown, Va., 1,000 special two-cent stamps were on sale at the local postoffice part of last week. These stamps, it was announced by the Postoffice Department, will never be made again, and the 5,000,000-issue by the government were distributed over the whole United States.

The new stamps are in three colors, carmen, black and white, and were the size of the regular special delivery stamps. The pictures of Washington, Rochambeau and DeGrasse, the three commanders of American and French troops who forced the surrender of Cornwallis, were artistically arranged and printed on the face of the stamps.

It did not take long for the 1,000 stamps to disappear at the Oakland postoffice, according to Fred. C. Peddicord, assistant postmaster. No large number was given any one person, the stamps going out in lots of five to ten.

Since only a limited number of the stamps were made it is believed by officials that they may some day be of considerable value.

FARMERS DUE TO MEET FEDERAL LOAN NOV. 30

Total of $6,233 Loaned To Garrett County Farmers During Year—48 Receive Assistance

RANGE FROM $25 TO $315

Garrett county farmers who borrowed money from the Federal Government through the Secretary of Agriculture under a special drought relief plan last spring, are due to meet their obligations on November 30, according to information received by John H. Carter, local county agent.

According to records in Mr. Carter's office, a total of $6,233 was loaned county farmers this year, a promissory note secured by a mortgage on live stock and farm crops in the making being taken from each borrower to secure payment.

In case crops are not sold to meet the obligation it is specified that they may be stored in a bonded Federal warehouse.

There were forty-eight loans made in Garrett county during the year there being fifty-five applications for loans being filed with the board, the amounts loaned ranging from $25 to $315. Requests for loans ranged from $25 to $315.

The attitude of the Federal Government, according to Mr. Carter, is that the government loans must be repaid by the proceeds derived from the sale of the first crop this year. The loans will not be paid to the local county agent, but must be paid to the Farmers' Seed Loan office, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Carter stated that he would be glad to aid any of the farmers in preparing the necessary papers relative to the payment of these loans, if they have not already done so, but that no payments would be accepted by him.

Taken to the Maryland House of Correction

Delbert Wilt, aged 28 years, was sentenced to serve one year in the House of Correction by Justice W. A. Gonder at a hearing accorded him on Thursday afternoon.

Wilt, who was before the Circuit Court several months ago where he was convicted with others for stealing a hog and was paroled for three years by the Court, was arrested at his home in the Bear Hill section of the county early last week upon the complaint of his parents, who charged him with having assaulted them and also with having maliciously broken up the household furniture while under the influence of intoxicants. His father and mother both appeared at the hearing in the justice's court on Thursday where it was brought out that the traverser in the case was one of fourteen children of the couple and that when intoxicated he was extremely quarrelsome and created trouble in the home.

Wilt was taken to the institution on Friday by Deputy Sheriff Spear, who was accompanied by the committing justice.

TWO STATE OFFICERS ARE NOW IN GARRETT COUNTY

Corporal J. W. Kries, of the State Police, has been transferred from a point further east in Maryland to the LaVale sub-station and assigned to Grantsville for duty.

This order gives Garrett county two State Police officers, Corporal Thomas E. Currie being stationed at Oakland.

Oakland Tire Dealer Awarded Beautiful Art Photograph

Word has been received by Auto Electric Service, Ray Teets Goodyear dealer at Oakland, of the award of a beautiful art photograph of the U. S. S. Akron, world's largest airship, framed in duralumin, the material used in the framework structure of this leviathan of the air. Mr. Teets wins the picture, which is to be displayed in his service station window as soon as it is received, for making his sales quota in the July-August sales contest for Goodyear dealers, known as the Dealers Annual Zeppelin sales race.

"I have seen pictures showing this award," Mr. Teets said, "and it is one of the most worthwhile trophies of such a race, besides being a memento of this giant airship that will become increasingly valuable as time goes on, as an historical feature.

"I certainly am going to prize the picture a great deal. The sales contest was of great value in helping us get the maximum amount of business this summer, and it put Goodyear tires on the cars of many people who did not know before what our service could do for them."

DEATH OF AN INFANT

Glenna Jacquelline Paugh, born April 1, 1931, died October 21, aged six months and 21 days. Returning Prodigal Gets Cold Shoulder

By JACK WOODFORD

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

PAUL MARTIN found the cement highway pretty hard going on the feet; he was sorry that the road into town wasn't still the old dirt road he remembered when, at eighteen, he had run away from home. Now, at thirty-six, he was coming home again. His father had died the ignoble death of a drunkard. His mother, too, had died; but she had died in the city with him, for he had sent for her after his father's death. None of his family remained in town; but he had, nevertheless, a desire to see the old place, and the many friends he had once had there.

When he came into town, carrying a small, dilapidated bag containing the few things he had brought with him, he made straight for the place where once had stood the town pump. Now there was an ornate cement contraption where the pump had stood. No longer the old wooden pump, with its large, cool dipper; but just a thin jet of water coming up from a pipe. Paul put his mouth over it and drank long and deeply. While he was drinking a man walked up and clapped a hand on his shoulder:

"On your way, bum," the stranger said. "I'm the sheriff; we don't allow you bos to hang around town."

Paul looked up at the man.

"You're a stranger to me," he said pleasantly. "My name's Paul Martin. I was born and reared here. I know I look like a bum; but I've got a few dollars to put me up decently at a cheap hotel for a few days; so you can't really pick me up for vagrancy."

"You by any chance Duffy Martin's son?" the sheriff wanted to know.

"Yep. Duffy Martin was my father." Paul told him. The sheriff shook his head sadly.

"Well, considerin' you had a paw like that I guess it ain't your fault you're on the bum. You can stay. You can get a room at the Waller house for a dollar a day, and meals there is pretty cheap. I'll look around and see if I can find you a job.

"Don't do that—though thanks just the same," Paul told him. "I'll only be a few days in town."

Despite his very poor looking clothes, girls on Main street turned to stare after Paul and giggle, for he was erect and his strong masculine figure was symmetrical, just as he was extremely good looking of face.

At the drug store Paul decided to get a glass of something cool to drink; the water from the town pump had not drowned his thirst or stopped the aching in his parched throat. In the store a grave, beautiful, slim girl waited upon him.

"You look familiar," Paul told her. "I used to live here years ago; tell me, what's your name?"

"Marion Kinsey," she told him.

"What!" Paul exploded. "Not little Marion Kinsey who used to hang around when I called on your sister Martha, so I'd have to bribe you with a nickel for a soda to get rid of you. Why, you were only a kid then; that's nineteen years ago. You must be about twenty-five now."

"Twenty-six," she corrected him. "You're not Paul Martin, are you!"

"None other than," Paul grinned. She looked sadly at his bedraggled clothing.

"Martha married and went away," she informed him.

"Yes, so I heard," Paul answered. "What time are you off, Marion?" he asked. "Couldn't you and I take a walk around town together? You could show me the old landmarks I've forgotten." She looked dubiously at his clothing and he was sure that she was going to refuse. But to his amazement she said: "I'd be glad to."

That afternoon's walk was the beginning. There were other walks. But Marion was the only one in town who was even civil to Paul. The rest of his old acquaintances, when they were introduced and remembered him, gave him the cold shoulder. The "success" bug was on the old town like a plague, and anything that savored of unsuccess was anathema to them. It was on a hill back of town one afternoon that Paul proposed to Marion.

"You're the loveliest thing God ever made," he told her; "and I want you to come away from this dreadful narrow little town with me. I love you. I'll always love you and want to make you happy, if you'll trust me."

"I love you and I do trust you," she told him gravely. "I'll help you to get along better than you have; we'll both work until you get on your feet. We'll have to marry secretly and leave town at once because my folks have forbidden me even to see you."

But they did not marry secretly or leave town hurriedly. They had the biggest church wedding ever known in town; and Paul's former acquaintances all came, though they looked pretty sheepish, after reading in the local paper the fact that Paul Martin, millionaire air transportation magnate, had chosen to visit his old home town disguised as a tramp; instead of, in the usual manner, blowing in as a wealthy returned local son—so that he could really see who his friends were, and find out if any valued him as Paul Martin, instead of only as Mr. Martin, millionaire.

They Must Have Some Fun

What we want to know is why, if ants are such tireless toilers, they always have time to go to picnics?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FIRST PRESIDENT'S PAY WAS $25,000 PER ANNUM

At Which Sum It Remained Until 1873; Now $75,000 a Year

Moralists in George Washington's day were not embarrassed by the fact that there were corporation executives, movie stars, baseball pitchers, home-run clouters and others who received a higher salary than that of the President. There were no large corporations, no prizefights, no baseball heroes, no movie stars and while business men of the time may have had higher commercial incomes, probably no man received a higher actual salary than that of the President.

The Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission reminds us that Washington's salary was fixed by the First Congress of the United States at $25,000, which was by far higher than any other Government salary of the time. Just to give us a line on the difference, the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission has taken the trouble to learn the precise salaries they paid all Government officials. Evidently, to judge by this difference, Congress thought Washington well worth whatever the Government could afford to pay him.

This $25,000 was made the fixed salary of President Washington by the Act of September 4, 1789, later confirmed as permanent legislation by and Act of February 18, 1793, and for eighty years $25,000 remained the fixed salary of the Presidents. At the end of that time, in 1873, Presidents of the United States received something of a salary boost when the Act of March 3, doubled their pay to $50,000 a year. There was no delay about it, either. The raise was made effective on the following day, March 4.

The next pay increase was a little less long in coming. After thirty-six years Congress lifted the President's salary to its present status at $75,000, with the Act of March 4, 1909, making William Howard Taft the first President to benefit by the timely aid.

Curiously, the office of Vice-President seems always to have appeared worth to Congress about one-fifth that of the Presidency, from a salary standpoint. The same Act of Congress that fixed George Washington's salary at $25,000, made that of John Adams, as Vice-President, $5,000. Today the Vice-President receives $15,000 a year, against the President's $75,000—still the one-fifth ratio.

In 1853, however, Congress became generous and raised the Vice-President's salary to $8,000, while still leaving the Presidential salary at $25,000. In 1873, when the President's pay was doubled to $50,000, the Vice President was raised to $10,000, the old ratio of one-fifth again. But in 1907 the Vice President beat his chief to the next and last salary-raise when Congress awarded him $12,000. The Presidential raise to $75,000, in 1909, left the Vice President at a pay ratio of less than one-sixth, but in 1925 Congress corrected this and inereased the Vice President to his present rate of $15,000.

Cabinet officers were, from the beginning, let in on the ground floor. It seems odd to look back and learn that a Secretary of State of the United States once received a salary that in these days might be sniffed at by the sub-assistant to the creditor manager of a department store. Yet Thomas Jefferson, our first Secretary of State, was paid precisely $3,500. So was the first man to hold the office now filled by Andrew W. Mellon. The great Alexander Hamilton drew down his $3,500, and no more. As for Washington's Secretary of War, General Knox, he was let down with a mere $3,000. During Washington's Administrations, the United States Attorney Genarel had so little to do that it was a part-time job, and its holder had to rely on other sources of income.

The Cabinet which consisted of these four original members in 1789 had become a Cabinet of six in 1799. By then the Secretaries of State and the Treasury were raised to $5,000 a year. The Secretaries of War and the Navy got $4,500, and the Attorney General and the Postmaster General drew $3,000. In 1819 the Secretaries of State, the Treasury, War and the Navy were given $6,000. The Postmaster General got a lift to $4,000. But the Attorney General still was the poor member of the family, on a salary of $3,500.

In 1853 Congress placed the entire Cabinet on an even basis at $8,000 a year, and by then there was a seventh member—the Secretary of the Interior. In 1873, the year when the President's salary went up to $50,000, a generous Congress raised Cabinet salaries to $10,000 each. In 1907 the salary was made $12,000, and in 1925, the year when Congress raised its own salary, the present Cabinet wage of $15,000 yearly was established.

As for the members of Congress. The story of their struggles for a living wage is even more full of incident. When the United States Government came into being, as established by the Constitution, under the Presidency of George Washington, the members of Congress were treated, from a salary standpoint, as day laborers, and their endeavors in statesmanship seem to have been regarded as piecework. At any rate they were paid a daily wage of $6.00 and that only while attending sessions of Congress and paying strict attention to business.

The Speaker of the House alone fared better. He received a daily pay of $6.00 for being Speaker, in addition to his regular $6.00 as a representative from his district.

In 1816 the Senators, Representatives, and Delegates from the Territories voted to pay themselves a yearly salary of $1,500, with $3,000 to the Speaker and $3,000 to the President pro tempore of the Senate when there was no Vice-President. But the next year this act was repealed and the Senators and Representatives went back to a wage of $8.00 for each day of attendance at sessions. The two exceptions were the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker, who got $8.00 a day extra.

It was nearly fifty years until Congress fixed the compensation of its members at the annual salary of $3,000 in the Act of August 16, 1856. But this time the President pro tempore of the Senate was given $8,000 a year, and the Speaker $6,000.

At the next raise in 1866, we hear nothing more of the President pro tempore of the Senate, but Senators, Representatives and Delegates were raised to $5,000 a year, and the Speaker to $8,000. In 1873 these salaries were again raised 7,500 and $10,000 respectively. In 1907 the Speaker was given $12,000, while the salaries of Representatives and Senators remained the same. Since the Act of March 4, 1925, Senators, Representatives and Delegates have received the present salary of $10,000 annually, with the Speaker raised to the Cabinet wage of $15,000.

In thus increasing its own pay, Congress came in for some good-natured banter, but after all it had been generous to others and modest toward itself. It did raise its members from $6.00 a day for an honest day's work to $10,000 a year, but it allowed 136 years to pass before doing it.

New Market for Maryland Coal

THE COLLIER SEES A CHANCE

By MARK S. WATSON
In the Baltimore Sun, October 18.

The steelmaker is not the only industrialist in the land who, in Andy Carnegie's phrasing, is "either prince or pauper." Much the same thing could be said now of the coal miner, and is being said by him today, but with the explanation that lately he has been more often pauper than prince. This is particularly the case with the miner of Western Maryland, who has had the troubles of industry in general and a few of his own in particular, developing long before the 1929 unpleasantness.

From these troubles the collier of that magnificent mountain country of Allegany and Garrett counties is now working valiantly to escape and quite candidly telling his fellow-Marylanders that he expects them to help him out. This was the purpose of the recent inquiry of both State and City purchasing departments as to why they felt constrained to buy outside coal for the use of State and City institutions when they could get coal from Maryland miners eager to supply it. The result of the inquiry was the assurance that hereafter both agencies would do their buying within the State.

The coal operators figure that the purchase of 700 tons of coal will keep one miner working for 200 days a year, and that each miner is the support of a family of five. So that even the smallest amount of coal which State and City institutions burn, plus that which the county institutions burn (and the coal operators are going after the county purchasers, too) would take care of the maintenance of a moderate-sized little mining community. But this is, of course, only the spectacle phase of the operators' main program. They are after the private user rather than the public institution alone; they want to convince the factories, the heating plants, the domestic furnace stokers, that they can do better with Maryland coal than with any other.

Does even this seem small pickings for a great industry? Hardly, for Maryland uses about 8,000,000 tone of coal a year. If even half of it came from Maryland mines that would mean 4,000,000 tons, and that would come pretty near making the Maryland coal pauper back into a prince once more. For the mines think they are pretty smart if they can get rid of 2,500,000 tons a year these days; the biggest year in history was 1907, when 5,532,000 tons were mined.

Now there is a great deal of present consumption that the Maryland mines make no effort to supply, and will not. This is the gas-coal consumption. Maryland coal is not high volatile coal at all, but low-volatile coking coal. The two are quite different in structure and in utility, and each excels in its own field. Maryland coal, in fact, is so different from most soft coals that it is referred to as "semi-bituminous," classifying midway between the hard coal of the Pennsylvania anthracite country and the soft coal of West Virginia. This endows it with certain obvious virtucs and—so far as the gas-coal user is concerned—certain defects, for neither of which is the present generation exactly responsible. The variation occurred in the Carboniferous Era, several hundred thousand years ago. The Maryland coal operator's claim for his semi-bituminous is that it produces more heat and less smoke than softer coals.

There is special pertinence in this claim, too, for cities are beginning to realize that excessive smoke is a bad thing for the community. Even Baltimore is stirring faintly. The hint that an anti-smoke ordinance may be really enforced has stirred Allegany county to demonstrations that Maryland coal, properly stoked, will meet the demands of a Baltimore smoke inspector better than will soft coals. It was largely through the operators' tests, professedly showing a maximum of heat units produced per dollar's worth of coal, that the city and State purchasing departments were lately converted into promises to use Maryland coal. The job now is to convince the private user.

There was a time when the mines of Allegany and Garrett were working furiously, but that was before the arrival of two disasters. One was the sympathetic strike of 1921, when the Maryland miners had nothing to gain for themselves, and sought nothing save victory for their fellow-miners in the other bituminous fields; the lost their pay for a year and a half, they failed in their objective, and when settlement came the Maryland mines discovered that certain old customers had begun buying from other States and were going to keep it up. Some of those markets have never been regained.

The other disaster, from the Maryland mines' viewpoint, was the freight schedule which aims to equalize the opportunity of the various mining areas. It costs $2.84 a ton to ship coal from Allegany county to Baltimore; it costs no more to ship it from the Clearfield coal basin of Western Pennsylvania, despite the greater distance, or from the Fairmont basin of West Virginia, which is very much farther. By the same token Cumberland basin coal gets to New York as cheaply as does Western Pennsylvania coal.

This would seem to be a stand-off, but the Cumberland miner does not see it that way, for the reason that he does not see much chance to break into New York anyway; what he wants is a little better chance in Baltimore and Washington, for if he can get the edge there he can operate at a profit. Right now he would be charmed by the assurance of even a very small profit. He has not seen one for years.

Why, then, are there 3,000 men at work in the mines just west of Cumberland? This to be sure is a reduction from the 5,000 who work there in the boom times, and the present army is working not over four days a week and usually less. But why work at all if there is no profit? The answer is that the mines cannot be shut down. It is better to lose a little in operations than to lose a vast amount through idleness. A mine is not like a piano, which can be opened for use and promptly (and sometimes mercifully) closed when not in use. If the mine is closed down water accumulates, ventilation ends, the timbering weakens, the moisture and gas soaking into it until it gives way and allows the slate roof or the "rashen" to tumble into the carefully cleared headings.

Reopening a mine is usually far more expensive than opening an entirely new mine, and at all cost the operator must keep the picks moving. This is true even of small one-man mines, which abound in all mining communities. One poor fellow who had left his little heading idle during the bad market, went in to look at it last month; while he was there the deteriorated timbering gave way and he became one of the few mining casualties of a dull year.

Different as Maryland coal is from the softer coals to north and south, it is all part of the great Appalachian deposit, stretching some 800 miles from Pennsylvania to Alabama. There are many veins, the best of them the "Big Vein" or "Pittsburgh Vein" as it is called locally; this is remarkably pure, with less than one per cent sulphur, and in its triple formation of top coal, bottom coal and the thick middle "breast coal," has a total depth of some fourteen feet. There are many others, ranging down to eighteen inches, which is narrow as most operators find it profitable to mine, and many very shallow veins which no one bothers about. The whole deposit underlies a territory of about 500 square miles of Garrett county and the extreme west edge of Allegany, compared with Pennsylvania's 15,000 square-mile area, West Virginia's 17,000 and Virginia's 1,800. Quantity is small relatively, but cokink quality is very high.

When mining began in America is uncertain, as are many other specific dates of Coloniial history. The first authentic date which the late William Bullock Clark could establish in what is now the United States was 1769, when a smith is known to have used coal in his forge at Wilkes-Barre. Not until 1807 did anthracite begin moving down the Susquehanna to market, and so incredulous were the prospective customers that the pioneer coal dealers carried portable grates into the cities with them, set them up in the tavern fireplaces and by this means convinced even the suspicious city folk that the "black stone" would actually burn.

Maryland's coal discoveries did not lag behind the others. Just when the first wondering miner tested his discovery over an open fire in the mountain country can not be determined, but certainly it was In advance of 1782, for in that year was printed a French map, to show Paris just what were the "Treize Etats Unis et Independants," which French arms had lately helped to create. In the delineation of one of the Trleze Etats—Maryland—can be discerned George's Creek, and at the mouth of this creek near what is now Frostburg, is marked a "mine de charbon," already known to mapmakers.

But not until 1820 did much coal come out of those mines, chiefly because of transportation difficulties. The National Pike was beginning to do its best, and it was not before the Chesapeake and Ohio canal (like the pike, urged many years before by George Washington) and the Baltimore and Ohio railway were racing to see which could first get to Cumberland. The railway won the race and in that year, 1842, the real coal mining history of Maryland begun.

Oddly the first mining exploration in those mountains had not been in search of coal at all, but of iron. The mines which old Governor Spottswood had developed in Virginia and his forges in that wilderness had encouraged the adventurers north of the Potomac, and furnaces were springing up along the Chesapeake country. They needed iron ore in greater quantities and, sure enough, Western Maryland's mountains produced it.

At Mount Savage, for example, was produced enough ore to warrant putting up not only a smelting furnace, but a forge, and there was rolled the first steel for Maryland's new railroads. It was no 130-pound rail such as that on which 1931 locomotives thunder along, but a modest, thin iron strap, which was nailed to the wooden stringer as a surfacing for the light railroad vehicles of that day. The next development was to widen this strap and work it downward at both edges into a sort of U-shape, to fit over the edge of the stringer; several ancient segments of this U-rail are still proudly exhibited at Mount Savage.

By 1820 the coal mines of the neighborhood were producing far more fuel than the little smelters and forges needed, and people on the seaboard were asking why they could not get from the Frostburg country some coal like that which was coming down the Susquehanna from the Pennsylvania mines.

Coal was soon forthcoming, but getting it to market was something else. It was hard stuff to handle by long-distance trucking, especially over the poor roads of that day. See how, in this day of hard roads and powerful motors, the heavy trucks still puff laboriously up the long inclines, and imagine, if you can, the adjurations which an 1820 driver must have employed to get his horses up Sideling Hill.

It did not take them long to find an easier way of hauling coal, with the Potomac River right at Cumberland. The canal was nowhere in sight, and through much of the year the Potomac had, and still has, more rocks than water, but in the spring freshets there was plenty of water for light-draft vessels, and of this the thrifty mountaineers were not slow to take advantage. They simply transferred their coal by wagons to Cumberland and through the winter stacked it well up on the shore, near the mouth of Wills Creek. Alongside they hauled timber, and when they had nothing else to do they worked the timber into the right shapes and sizes and put together great flat-bottomed barges.

Everyone in the neighborhood did it. Farmers found plenty of idle time in the winter, and put it in at boat-making, even planning a barge trip In the first freshet, which would allow them time to drift down to tidewater and get back to the farms before the moist soil should be workable. Old fellows too rheumatic to dig coal or to trudge with their teams over the ridges were able to tap with a hammer or even to swing a small adze. Youngsters eager to see tidewater labored gayly at the boats in hope of a reward in the form of a trip to Washington.

Out of all this there developed, as B. S. Randolph points out in his history of Maryland collieries, a standard one-time boat, strong enough to carry its cargo on one voyage to market if the boatman was skillful and cautious, but purposely not much stronger than needed, for the craft was destined to make only that one voyage.

When the rains and thaws had sufficiently raised the surface of the Potomac there was high excitement at the mouth of Wills Creek. The final calking and pitching was attended to, the barges were floated, the coal was loaded, and away sailed the first ships of the fleet. Immediately more construction was started, and more loading, and thus the coal was hurried off to tidewater market as long as the pile remained and as long as the river was navigable. The bargemen found their market, sold the cargo of coal to the best bidder, knocked the frail barges to pieces If desired and sold the wood for fuel, and started back to the mountains.

By 1828 mining had ceased to be wholly an individual enterprise. The Maryland Mining Company was chartered and from its Eckhart mine (which still operates) it began hauling coal eastward until it met the advancing railroad. Here was a milepost in industry.

Another experiment did not work so well; this was the building of a long sluice-box, through which coal was carried in a stream of water. It did not do the coal much good and it was at length abandoned, but it is interesting to observe that one of the latest wrinkles in mining makes use of the same sluice-box idea, to wash the coal and perform the first step in grading it for size. This is now one of the most carefully watched experiments in the Maryland collieries. The success of the trial above Vindex, not far from the mines of Kitzmiller, on the Potomac, may determine the course of the Maryland industry as a whole.

The coal people are beginning to see that the experimentation of one sort or another is essential. The industry cannot stand its present troubles indefinitely, but must begin to find profits. That explains the present vigorous campaign for the Baltimore and Washington markets. It explains the continuing protest against the uniform freight rates which totally bar Maryland mines from the presumed advantage of proximity to their natural market, putting them on the precise basis of mines twice as far away. One of the mine managers the other day dismally exhibited the latest entry in his books—a carload shipped to Pikesville which gave him and his whole mining organization $40.35 and gave $58.51 to the railroad for its haul.)

It explains the determination to demonstrate certain superior qualities of Maryland coal, so that it may regain its markets lost during the 1921-22 strike disaster. And it explains the vigorous new methods of operation seeking to get quality coal to market at the lowest price. The new washing and grading plant, first in the district and already giving its owners cause for satisfaction, is one of the methods. Another, the admiration of old-time miners, in the reclamation work being done here and there, but most strikingly perhaps in the Sonny mine.

To understand the marvel of that job one must first know something of the obstacle it overcame, and for problem which all coal mining faces. The vastness of coal-mine disasters appals the newspapar reader, as it well may, but the difficulty of averting them is the real one. They have been greatly reduced, but it is hard to see how they can ever be elimnated.

(To be concluded next week.)

At Little or No Cost Avoid the Cold Winter—

Fun for Fish in Florida

Weather prophets say this year will be the longest and most severe Winter in 47 years. Why chance even a normal Winter cold, with its 6 to 15 tons of coal shoveling, heavy clothing and extra food, all additional costs over that required in a mild and Summer-like climate. The depression is slight enough to consider shutting up shop, forgetting business cares and going on a health envigorating tour and change for five months. Average family savings on coal, clothing and food is easily $250.00 in five months, and a moderate house (furnished) for five months will rent in Florida $200.00. Deducting possibility of earning here make things about equal with living there these five months, if the travel could be made at little cost, and if there be a possibility of earning something at light fascinating outdoor work. That is how 35,000 members of THE ORDER OF HERMAN, a fishermen's organization, have worked out the problem, and have organized the—

Florida Fishing Pilgrimage

A trip to Florida for five months, sight-seeing, fun-making, fishing and living moderately and plainly in the actinic sunrays, bathing in the ocean water of the Gulf Stream, with enough work to keep active and solid rest, seeing all there is to see in Florida. They have made arrangements to stay January and February in Miami the Southern part of Florida and March, April and May in DeLand in the Northern part of Florida taking advantage of knowledge of experts as to climatic and other conditions. Through the number going they have been able to get a wholesale price upon the fare, effecting an average savings of about $75.00 a person on a return trip. So that they can announce that for every person who cares to join with them in their plan a coach fare on their special trains at—

$34.72 From Chicago To Miami and Return	$27.61 From Cincinnati To Miami and Return	$34.10 From St. Louis To Miami and Return
$26.05 From Washington To Miami and Return	All these tickets are good from Dec. 1, 1931 to June 1, 1932 on special trains going direct returning from Miami to DeLand, and from DeLand, and if travel in Pullman is desired berth included at just double price. No meals included.

Upon any of these above special trains reservations must be made and may be hoarded on notice at any place on the line at the price fixed hereon. To former members about 50% at scriot of ORDER OF HERMAN will be issued for additional coach fares sold. Thus if you paid $22.00 from St. Paul and return to get to Chicago, $11.00 in script will be issued to you. This script is good for meals and supplies at Camp Headquarters in Florida. See your railroad agent and ask him the cost of such a trip to Miami and compare the price. Ask him the fare to one of these central points too, to see how much you would save. Write us right away the information we require below and we may be able to effect a further saving for you by arranging a special train for a crowd from your section so as to meet these special trains.

Our Finest Special Train Trips

We are expecting to make up six to ten special trains embodying these features, starting from the 15th of December, 1931, until the 1st of February, 1932. Those who furnish all the food you want to eat, free. We also issue script upon ORDER OF HERMAN good in Florida for 50% of such additional coach fares you paid railroad from your place to reach the centers from which our special train starts. These script are good for food and supplies at Camp Headquarters. Thus if you paid for food and supplies at Camp Headquarters. Thus if you paid $20.00 each way from Boston to Cincinnati, you get back from us $10.00 in script. That reduces your travel expense. You should write at once, giving us the information we require below and reserving space, etc., and it possible we may save you more travel expense by getting up a special train for a crowd from your section.

$55.00 From Cincinnati to Miami and Return	$65.00 From Chicago to Miami and Return

The trip down takes 10 days from Chicago to Miami, see description below, and when you consider that food is furnished free on trains by or upon the trip and it equals 60% of the entire making the cost to you but half of the above price. Such food is furnished only from Cincinnati as a center. Compare it with the cost by any means of travel and see for yourself the big savings in travel cost. Of course, you may eat in regular Dining Car or Railroad Commissary and pay the regular meal charges, and if you do we shall allow you Script of ORDER OF HERMAN for 50% of such charges, provided you show such checks receipted at our Headquarters in Florida. For exactly double this price ($218.00 from Cincinnati) you may ride in and have berths upon Standard Pullman Sleeping Cars, for the trip.

The first special train at these trips leaves Chicago 3:30 P. M., Dec. 15, 1931, and leaves Cincinnati 11:30 P. M., Dec. 15, 1931, leaves Louisville 2:15 A. M., Dec. 16, 1931, arrives at Nashville, 7:00 A. M., Dec. 16, 1931, where a reception will be held for us by her local people and free sight-seeing buses will show us Nashville, Tenn. The train leaves at 10:30 A. M., and arrives at Birmingham, Ala., at 3:15 P. M., where sight-seeing buses free will show us Birmingham, winding up with a big banquet and reception and train leaves at 6:00 P. M., for New Orleans arriving there at 7:30 A. M., next morning, Dec. 18, 1931, where a whole 24 hours at sight-seeing, banquets, receptions, dinners and excursions have been arranged for with a big ball on Dec. 18, at night. Train leaves 8 A. M., morning of Dec. 19, for Gulfport, Texas, arriving there at 10 A. M., where there will be a big dinner, reception and free sight-seeing around the harbor, etc., and leaves at 5:00 P. M., to Biloxi, Mississippi, where the people of Biloxi want to give us an entertainment, reception and dinner and show us the finest fishing resort in the South. The train leaves 1:00 P. M., Dec. 19, and gets to Mobile, Ala., at 2:30 P. M., where a big banquet will be held. Mobile, Ala., at 2:30 P. M., where a big banquet will be held. An immense reception, a banquet and a ball, and leaves next A. M. at 8:00, for Pensacola, Fla., arriving there at noon P. M., Dec. 20, where Florida will first be under inspection. A big dinner will be given us there and we will leave at 2 P. M. to go to Tallahassee, Fla., the Capital of Florida, where the Governor of the State of Florida will formally welcome us to Florida, and where the capital buildings will be visited. Arriving at Jacksonville, Fla., 8 A. M., on Dec. 21, there will be sight-seeing hours at free to our special tourist parties and arrive at Tampa, Fla., 5 P. M. Dec. 21, where a big ball will be given in our honor, leaving there at midnight we will travel to Sarrasota, where another big ball, dinner and reception and sight-seeing trip will be given us all free and leave Sarrasota at 8 A. M. to see Larkland, 9 A. M. where after a big public dinner we will leave at 2 p. m. to go to Orlando where another big supper and reception will be given us leaving there at 10:30 P. M., to go to Miami Sector which consists of West Palm Beach, Fort Lauderdale and Miami, where at each place Camp Headquarters of the ORDER OF HERMAN will be maintained and the tourists excursions in these three places of easy reach for each other. At all three places night of Dec. 24, Christmas Eve, there will be big banquets and a big ball where all the tourists from our other special trains and earlier arrivals will meet and open up the season. From Christmas to New Year's will be one round of pleasure for all at each of the three places and the welcoming of others upon the following special trains.

Of course, we have described our big time trip and we invite you to be on it. The more the merrier. But it you cannot go at that time, but later there will be six or ten of these special trains and each of them will receive a similar treatment in time. Write us when you can go, and even if earlier, we will try to get together a sufficient number for such a special train.

On March 1st the entire ramp will leave Miami Sector and travel by train to DeLand Sector, consisting of Orlando, New Smyrna, and DeLand, all within easy reach of each other, and until May 1, at DeLand Sector as at Miami there will be all kinds of picnics, balls, receptions, musical entertainments, plays, banquets and fun-making events with fine fishing between.

On the return trip home the citizens of Atlanta, Ga., will hold a reception, ball and banquet, as that will be the only stop on return trip.

The Order of Herman and Its Camp Employment for Everyone

The ORDER OF HERMAN is a National organization of sportsmen, now has over 47,000 members, ($1.00 per year dues) and promotes comradeship in good sports—As described above they will promote fishing upon this pilgrimage. They furnish to our invited members about free medical and first aid service and orders, picnics, and meeting rooms once a week, lectures, plays and recreations free during the pilgrimage and convenient stations where food, laundry and other necessities and supplies may be had at cost. This pilgrimage and the trains and tours are for members only; every person on these trains must be a member. Membership is open to only white persons, male or female, no age or other restrictions. Applications must be made on organization blanks and $1.00 membership dues must be paid in advance with application. Every member on this pilgrimage will be given a special badge and other identification upon purchase of tickets.

The ORDER OF HERMAN at three rooms needs all kinds of help, particularly persons to man boats, trim, pack and transport fish. The surplus fish that sportsmen catch are donated by them to The ORDER, and as well The ORDER buys at prevailing rate all the fish caught by many members, and also pays members to go fishing taking their catch. We will provide members with employment, we prefer that members shall have three to four days remain—at each week and aim to so arrange matters. From $2.00 to $4.00 a day is the average compensation—the aim is to provide ordinary sustenance. Nothing more. It is not an attempt to give employment where a big profit may be had for going.

If You Want to Go With Us on This Pilgrimage; Do This—

Send us 25 cents in silver to help pay the printing and postage necessary to send you details, facts, information, about the trips and copy of the By-Laws of the ORDER OF HERMAN and an official application blank or blanks necessary for you, your family and party, and also write us fully, your name, address, age, date and place of birth, citizenship and race, and the same about each of your party going along. Be sure to inform us if any of them are infirm, crippled or sick, and just what they can do if they require employment. Also give us the nearest railroad station to you and when you want to leave and when you will expect to return. Be sure to write plainly. Also write us name of paper you saw this advertisement in, and be sure to date your letter and give the time of the day you wrote it.

MT. LAKE PARK

The Ananias Club

The Ananias Club, that mysterious association of prevaricators, was delightfully entertained at the home of the President, Mr. Fred C. Fleming, last Thursday evening.

As is the custom, the meeting started at early candlelight, just after the whistle-pigs holed up, and continued until after midnight. At its conclusion delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Fleming, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Comerford.

The members of the club present were Fred. C. Fleming, Lester Yutzy, E. C. Frame, Thomp. Lipscomb, Ben Harvey, Ollie Sweitzer, Joe Sweitzer, Gene Comerford, John O. Morgan, Jim Painter, Tom Schooley, Carroll Elliott and H. L. Bittner.

On the stroke of midnight, the new members, Comerford, Morgan and Painter, were duly initiated into the mysteries of the organization with the full ceremonies of the worm and shell and dubbed Knights of the Smooth-Prevaricators.

Frequent telephone calls came in and when the inquirers were advised the noise was only Lester Yutzy and Thomp Lipscomb laughing, the callers went back to their beds.

During the evening the reputation of the club was seriously threatened when Member Painter told a true (?) story of having killed nineteen (19) ducks with three shots, but when President Fleming followed with a like true (?) story of having chased a three-legged rabbit with a three-legged dog in Coal Run Hollow, Fairmont, the old members breathed a sigh of relief, well knowing that the reputation of the club for truth was in safe hands. Comerford was elected "yes" man to the President.

Each members was advised to read Colossians 3:9.

Mr. and Mrs. Wotring have moved from the Edgar property to the Wildman house for the winter. Mr. Wotring is proprietor of the service station at the junction of Route 37.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Calc, of Terra Alta, were visitors at the Park one day last week.

Mrs. R. E. Sliger was a visitor at Uniontown on Saturday.

Mrs. Daisy Hicks has closed her cottage and returned to her home at Moundsville, W. Va., for the winter.

One night last week a tire and other accessories were stolen from a car parked in the yard at the home of Mrs. T. A. Deveney.

Mrs. James A. Enlow is ill at her home in the Park.

The U. B. church will hold a Hallowe'en social in the Aid Hall in Loch Lynn this (Thursday) evening. The public is invited. Costume prizes will be offered and refreshments will be on sale.

Mayor and Mrs. Clsyton, accompanied by relatives, left for Los Angeles, California, on Monday, going by motor. During the absence of the Mayor Mr. F. R. Utterback will act mayor pro tem.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. C. Fleming and Mrs. Allie Haymond, accompanied by "Laddie," motored to Fairmont Friday to attend the funeral of Allison N. (Kip) Fleming, a veteran of the Spanish-American War.

Miss Vivian Clary is visiting in Clarksburg and Parkersburg, W. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Murphy have returned from a trip to Clarksburg.

KEMPTON

School Forging Ahead

Our high and graded schools are well under way. A rather complete organization has been effected. Enrollment in the graded school is approximately 160 with the following teachers: Mrs. Leon Steyer, first grade; Miss Viola Broadwater, second and third grades; Miss Virginia Kalbaugh, fourth and fifth grades; Miss Blanche Forsythe, sixth and seventh grades.

The graded school is fortunate in having a regular music instructor for the first time this year. Miss Viola Broadwater conducts the classes in music. Our high school has an enrollment of 56. Mr. Asa Lewis, principal; Mr. Walter Reichenbacher and Miss Kathryn Speicher, assistants.

The four year course was introduced this year and our high school is handicapped in not having adequate room. However, our teachers are doing departmental work and are successful. Chemistry and biology are taught by Mr. Reichenbecher, being introduced this year; also music in the freshman and sophomore classes by Miss Broadwater.

The high school is quite proud of the addition of thirty new individual desks and sixteen new fiction books for the library.

Mrs. Leon Steyer, Misses Viola Broadwater, Virginia Kalbaugh and Blanche Forsythe attended a teachers' meeting in Oakland Monday. The object of this meeting was to score test papers of the state-wide tests in reading, english and arithmetic.

Mr. Stewart Visits Here

Mr. Arthur Stewart was the guest of his graddaughter, Mrs. Margaret Stewart King, on last Thursday. Mr. Stewart, now in his eighty-sixth year, is favorably known in this section, also in George's Creek and Elk Garden. He is a native of Scotland and came to America 61 years ago. He has lived in Thomas, W. Va., the past 36 years. He keeps abreast of the times and at his advanced age makes each day count. He was superintendent of the Methodist Sunday school at Thomas a number of years, and has taught the men's Bible class many years, seldom missing a Sunday. He is active and interested in present day movements. At one time he was a member of the Board of Education and was active in the office.

KITZMILLER

HALLOWE'EN CELEBRATION ATTRACTS LARGE CROWD

Estimated That More Than 500 Persons Took Part in Mammoth Mummers' Parade

75 PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Despite the cold and rainy weather prevailing, a crowd estimated at more than 3,000 witnessed the mummers' parade and the annual Hallowe'en celebration in Oakland last Friday evening held under the auspices of the Oakland Volunteer Fire department.

A parade of more than 500 persons got under way shortly after 7 o'clock and marched along Second and Third streets, finally disbanding in the heart of town where the prizes offered by residens and business men of the town were awarded.

The costumes worn by the paraders ran from the grotesque and ridiculous to the elaborate and extremely handsome, and there were several extra attractions in the procession, including fire departments, drum and bugle corps and bands.

From nine until one o'clock a dance was held in Offutt's hall. That more than $100 would be cleared by the fire department was roughly estimated by a member of the organization. Fifty dollars in gold was awarded to Mrs. Allie Jacobs, of Mt. Lake Park.

ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM IS PLANNED FOR SCHOOLS

Drum and Bugle Corps To Be Away; Other Legion Notes

That Armistice Day would be observed in Oakland, only among the schools, was announced yesterday by A. G. Hesen, post commander of the local American Legion. Three addresses are to be made. Delbert Davis will speak at the high school, while Prof. F. D. Bittle will address the advanced grades at the grammar school, and Mrs. William W. Grant the pupils in the primary grades of the elementary school.

There will be no Legion activities, it was announced. The Legion drum and bugle corps will go to Keyser, W. Va., in the afternoon, for special services there, and to Grafton, W. Va., in the evening.

The organization will attend service in a body on Sunday morning, November 8, at St. Mark's Lutheran church. All ex-service men and Legionaires are asked to be at the Legion Hall at 10:15 on Sunday morning. Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the local church, will preach an Armistice Day sermon at 10:45.

To Present Benefit Picture .

A benefit picture will be presented Monday and Tuesday, November 9 and 10, at the Maryland Theatre, for the Legion. The feature is "Honeymoon Lane," and there will be added attractions. The drum and bugle corps will turn out on both evenings.

At the meeting of the post held on Monday evening, it was reported that the membership drive is now on and that both teams are busy, with the result that a number of new members may be added to the post in a very short time.

A check for $52.50 was received from the Grafton drum corps for services there on May 30. A check for $5.00 was also received from the Oakland Fire Department for the part the post took in the parade Hallowe'en.

Glee Clubs to Give Operetta in School Auditorium Nov. 6-7

"The Sunbonnet Girl," a two act operetta, is to be presented by the junior and senior glee club in the Accident High School auditorium, November 6 and 7. The operetta is under the direction of Miss Ruth Conley, music teacher.

The cast has been chosen and the participants are working hard to get their parts as soon as possible.

Between acts the Yoder-Miller quartet, of Springs, Pa., will sing; Kenneth Savage, of Friendsville, will play the guitar, and Clyde Vansickle and Glen Savage, Friendsville, two black faced comedians, will present a dialog.

Stores To Close at Noon on Armistice Day

That the stores of Oakland would close at twelve o'clock noon on Wednesday, November 11 (Armistice Day), was announced this morning by I. R. Rudy, member of the local Legion post.

This is being done so that there might be a proper observance of the signing of the armistice which ended the World War in 1918.

IS FIRST TO ENROLL

George Wagner, Grantsville, is again the first person in Garrett county to send in his Red Cross membership fee, Mrs. E. Z. Tower, local chairman, having received one dollar from Mr. Wagner yesterday afternoon.

This is the third consecutive year that Mr. Wagner has received the distinction of being the first Roll Call member in this section.

APPEAL IS MADE TO JOIN IN RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Membership Drive to Last From Armistice Day to Thanksgiving—County Quota is $600

OAKLAND HELPERS NAMED

"The appeal for members, addressed to our citizens by the American National Red Cross this year in the period from Armistice Day, November 26, has an importance to the welfare of our communities, perhaps only equalled by the great emergency of war," Mrs. E. Z. Tower, local chairman, stated, in urging all to subscribe to the annual roll call. "In 1917 and 1918 the Nation rallied to the support of the banner of the Red Cross and provided it with funds to carry on its great work for our army of four million overseas and at home.

"During the coming year the Red Cross will be called upon to lend its support to a peacetime program of direct relief. I want to impress it on the people that fifty percent of the money obtained through the roll call remains in the treasury of the local chapter.

"During the past year the local Red Cross chapter spent $500 of its fund for food, clothing, shoes, for the needy, besides $1,500 for drought relief, sent here by National headquarters. It also paid for material made into clothes by the Civic club and other organizations. In becoming a member you are helping the needy, right here in your own county, and calls are coming in constantly for assistance."

Roll Call helpers in Oakland were announced yesterday by Mrs. Tower and included Mrs. Stanton Whipkey, Mrs. F. E. Rathbun, Mrs. Ernest Shirer, Mrs. Arthur Naylor, Mrs. Paul Naylor, Mrs. Ernest Liller, Mrs. Delbert Davis, Mrs. Harold Harned. District chairmen, named last week included Rev. Charles Kupfer, Kitzmiller; Mrs. A. B. Mason, Friendsville; Miss Nina B. Peck, Accident; Mrs. H. V. Leighton, Loch Lynn; Mrs. S. B. Falkenstine, Mt. Lake Park; Miss Nezzie Friend, Selbysport; Mrs. Lester Yutzy, Crellin; Miss Christena Winterberg, Grantsville; Mrs. Edw. Helbig, Deer Park.

The county's quota this year is $600, and every effort will be made to raise this amount, the chairman stated. "I believe it is the duty of all Americans who are financially able, to answer 'here' as the roll is being called," Mrs. Tower concluded.

Oakland High Enters Copy of Last Year's Acorn In Contest

The third annual convention of the Maryland Scholastic Press Association will be held at the University of Maryland the latter part of November. Oakland high school will send a copy of last year's Acorn, official high school publication, to the committee, to compete for one of the awards which are offered.

THREE OF FOUR PERSONS IN AUTO WRECK ARE DEAD

Driver of Machine Buried Monday—Two Others Succumb in Miners' Hospital on Tuesday

CRASH WAS ON BIG SAVAGE

Three of the four persons who were injured in an automobile accident on Big Savage Mountain Tuesday evening, October 27, have died in Miners' hospital, Frostburg.

Miss Agnes Rosenberger, aged 18 years, died at 10:30 a. m. November 3. Fred McKenzie, another victim of the same accident, died at 5:30 p. m. the same day.

The driver of the machine, Richard A. McKenzie, aged 24 years, died last Thursday.

Richard McKenzie is survived by his parents, two brothers, Clarence and Corbet, and three sisters, Misses Minnie, Rella and Mabel, at home.

The cause of death was a fracture of the skull and internal injuries suffered by the victim of the accident.

Funeral services were held from St. Anne's Catholic church, Avilton, on Monday morning.

The fourth person in the wreck, Miss Ethel Walsh, who resides near Johnson's farm, in Garrett county, suffered a fractured nose, but was not seriously injured. She crawled to the highway and signaled passing motorists who took the injured to the Frostburg hospital.

The accident, as recounted in The Republican last Thursday, occurred on Big Savage Mountain in front of the home of Harry LaRue, one mile west of Frostburg, Tuesday night, October 27, about 11:30 o'clock. The party which included Miss Agnes Walsh, had attended a box social at the Johnson school and were on their way to Frostburg. Going down the east slope of Big Savage they made an attempt to pass another car and in doing so swerved too far to the left of the road, causing the car to ditch, crashing into huge boulders at the roadside and turning over twice before landing in the LaRue yard.

Richard McKenzie was thrown 35 feet from where the car stopped by the roadside; Fred. McKenzie was pinned beneath the car and Miss Rosenberger was thrown a short distance from the car, while Miss Walsh escaped with slight scratches. The car is a total wreck. Before it could be moved to a garage tires were stolen from it and following an investigation Allegany county officers arrested five young men of Frostburg about 9:00 o'clock Friday night and on Saturday formal charges were preferred against them.

All of the mishap victims resided near Johnson's farm, off the National Highway, in Garrett county. Richard McKenzie was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McKenzie, Sr. Fred McKenzie was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Noah McKenzie, while Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rosenberger are the parents of Miss Rosenberger.

CHAIRMAN OF SEAL SALE COMMITTEE IS SELECTED

Mrs. Milton Sincell to Serve for Garrett County in Campaign

Appointment of the County Christmas Seal Sale Chairman for the twenty-fifth annual Seal Sale for tuberculosis funds in Maryland was announced this week by Mr. William B. Matthews, Managing Director of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

Mr. Matthews stated that the Seal Sale supplies had already been shipped to the county seal sale chairmen and that plans for conducting the campaign throughout the State are well under way. Maryland's allotment of seals this year is thirty-five million.

Mr. Matthews advises that individuals, clubs, and industries are going to assist in giving publicity to the Seal Sale by the distribution of posters, stuffers and the display of large billborad signs. Members of the General Outdoor Advertising Association are displaying 170 large posters throughout the State.

The Seal Sale will begin on Thanksgiving Day and continue until Christmas.

THE REPUBLICAN POTATO CONTEST ENDS ON FRIDAY

Is Open To All County Potato Growers—Three Pizes To Be Given Winners In Event

VO-AG BOYS TO JUDGE

The Republican Potato Contest will close on Friday, November 6, at 10:00 a. m., and it is urged that all entries be in the office by that time. Judging will begin as soon thereafter as the proper arrangement of exhibits can be made.

Judging will continue on Saturday, November 7, and will be conducted by the young men of the vocational agriculture department of Oakland high school under the direction of O. T. Graser, agriculture instructor.

The potato contest is open to all Garrett county potato growers. Three prizes are offered: $7.50 for first; $5.00 for second and $2.50 for third, all to be paid in cash. Other entrants in the contest will receive credit on a subscription account, whether a prize is won or not, the amount of the credit to be given to be governed by the market price.

Any amount of potatoes will be received either on Friday or Saturday and a credit slip will be given, but only the potatoes received by ten o'clock Friday morning will be eligible to compete for the cash awards.

Pythians to Observe "Keyser Night" at Regular Meeting

Keyser Night will be celebrated at the regular weekly meeting of the local Knights of Pythias lodge, when a large delegation from the West Virginia lodge is expected to be present.

A special program has been prepared by Milburn Mann, Arthur Lawton and Jesse J. Ashby, the committee appointed by the lodge, and will include the Marshall Sanders family, of Crellin; piano selection by William Gibson, group singing, etc. Walter W. Dawson will be toastmaster and chairman for the evening.

During the business session nomination of officers for the ensuing term will be made. Refreshments will be served and a large attendance of the local membership is urged. The meeting begins at 7:30.

Large Horse Barn Burns

The large balloon shaped horse barn owned by former Senator Harvey J. Speicher, Accident, and located near his home, was burned to the ground about midnight on Friday. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Speicher were away from home at the time of the fire. The barn was built in 1915 at an approximate cost of $9,000, and was considered one of the best horse barns in the State of Maryland.

The building was partly covered by insurance. The fire occurred on a night when there was little wind and no other buildings were damaged. The Oakland Fire Department was notified, but a second call a few minutes later stated that it would be useless to send out the engines.

RELIEF ORGANIZATION IS FORMED AT MASS MEETING

Central Committee Appointed to be Hub of Wheel in County-Wide Organization

CIARKE OUTLINES PLANS

With approximately 150 representative citizens from all sections of the county at the mass meeting last Thursday evening in the Court House, Oakland, a county-wide relief committee was organized, to provide relief to residents of Garrett county who will not be in a position to care for themselves during the ensuing winter.

In addition to the county-wide committee, there will be fifteen district committees, one in each election district, and these committees will be chosen within their respective areas.

After the tentative plan was explained by Dr. George E. Clarke, health officer for Garrett county, a number of representatives from various sections of the county spoke in behalf of the organization. Mr. Friend, Swanton; James Friend, Friendsville; Harry Edwards, William Winterberg, Rev. A. C. Bell, Grantsville; Henry M. Speicher, B. O. Aiken, William Miller, Accident; N. C. Browning, and Mrs. Friend, Sang Run; Walter W. Dawson and F. E. Rathbun, Oakland; and Rev. Charles E. Kupfer, Kitzmiller.

Rev. Kupfer stated that conditions at Kitzmiller were different from other sections in the county, and that help was needed, although their local committee was functioning effectively.

Nominations for the Central committee were made and were unanimously elected as follows: Harry Edwards, Grantsville; Prof. B. O. Aiken, Accident; John A. Shore, Kitzmiller; Asa Lewis, Kempton;

SISTER JARLATH SUCCUMBS TO INFLUENZA IN INDIA

Was Eldest Daughter of Mrs. J. M. Stanton, of Oakland

Sister Jarlath, known to the world before she took the veil as a Sister of Mercy, as Miss Marie Stanton, daughter of the late Jeremiah Stanton and Mrs. Mary Stanton, of Oakland, died at Dacca, India, on Sunday, November 1, after an illness of only four days of influenza. Sister Jarlath was aged 28 years.

Sister Jarlath was an inmate of the Toomiliah Convent at Dacca where her duties were to teach the native girls to sew and instruct them in religion. She was educated in the high school, going from that school Holy Cross Convent at Washington and later at another school in New York State where she was instructed in the Bengalese language, the native tongue spoken by the children to be under her charge.

Dacca, where Sister Jarlath died, is said to be within six miles of the half-way distance around the world from Oakland. Her funeral occurred at Dacca.

Sister Jarlath will be remembered by the people of Oakland as a most happy and kindly-hearted young girl and woman during her life here and her passing is deeply regretted by all who knew her.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Mary Stanton, and the following brothers and sisters: T. Joseph, Robert and Margaret, of Oakland; Sis. Gilberta, of Mount Washington, and Sister Jane Frances, of Chicago, Ill. She is also survived by two uncles, Rev. Thomas J. Stanton, of Washington, and Mr. John W. Stanton, of Chicago, Ill.

May Locate Golf Course Near Oakland

With the purpose in view of bringing more people to Oakland and to provide recreation for the people already here, a number of business men of Oakland are devising ways and means whereby a golf course may be located along Route 37, about two miles north of Oakland.

Negotiations are under way for obtaining about 60 acres of land for use as a nine-hole course, and indications point to an attraction that may be available next summer, according to one of the interested parties. Definite plans are expected to develop within a short time, it was announced after a meeting held yesterday evening.

PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER PROCLAIMS ANNUAL DAY OF THAKSGIVING, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26

Follows Custom Of Setting Day To Give Thanks for Blessings, Even in Face of Hardships

CALLS ATTENTION TO NEED

Washington, Nov. 3.—President Hoover today proclaimed Thursday, November 26, a day of national thanksgiving for the advantages enjoyed, despitie a "measure of passing adversity."

The presidential proclamation said:

"We approach the season when, according to custom dating from the garnering of the first harvest by our forefathers in the New World, a day is set apart to give thanks, even amid hardships, to Almighty God for our temporal and spiritual blessings. It has become a hallowed tradition for the chief magistrate to proclaim annually a national day of thanksgiving.

"Our country has cause for gratitude to the Almighty. We have been widely blessed with abundant harvests. We have been spared from pestilence and calamities. Our institutions have served the people. Knowledge has multiplied and our lives are enriched with its application. Education has advanced, the health of our people has increased. We have dwelt in peace with men. The measure of passing adversity which has come upon us should deepen the spiritual life of the people, quicken their sympathies and spirit of sacrifice for others and strengthen their courage.

"Many of our neighbors are in need from causes beyond their control and the compassion of the people throughout the nation should so assure their security over this winter that they too may have full cause to participate in this day of gratitude to the Almighty.

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, November 26, 1931, as a national Day of Thanksgiving, and do recommend that our people rest from their daily labors and in their homes and accustomed places of worship give devout thanks for the blessings which a merciful Father has bestowed upon us.

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hercunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this third day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1931, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty-sixth.

"(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER."

Lesson for November 8

PAUL IN EPHESUS

GOLDEN TEXT—And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:1-41. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul in the City of Ephesus. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul in the Key City of Asia. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Bonfire of Bad Books. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gospel Facing Error.

I. John's Disciples Become Christians (vv. 1-7).

These twelve disciples had only been taught the baptism of repentance as preparation for the Kingdom. Paul taught them to believe on Christ; that is, to receive Christ as the one who on the cross provided redemption for them through the shedding of his blood. When they believed and received Christ as their Savior, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus, and Paul laid hands on them and they received the Holy Spirit.

II. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the Jewish synagogue (v. 8). Though the Jews were Paul's enemies, he inflexibly followed his rule to go first to them with the gospel. His preaching was characterized

a. By boldness (v. 8).
b. By reason (v. 8).
c. By persuasion (v. 8).
d. By speaking concerning the Kingdom of God (v. 8). He did not discourse on philosophy, or the latest in literature, but upon the message of salvation through Christ.

2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10). The Jews, being enemies of the gospel, were only hardened by Paul's preaching, and spake openly against this way of salvation in Christ. Paul separated the disciples from them and resorted to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus.

III. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).

Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers. That Paul's ministry might be successful here, God in an extraordinary way put his seal upon the work. Handkerchiefs and aprons that had touched Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits. Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain Jews who went about the country practicing magical arts undertook to use the name of Jesus in their incantations. Knowing that their connection with Christ was not real, the use of his name by them only enraged the evil spirits who sprang upon and overcame them.

IV. A Glorious Awakening (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity.

2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ while not living right lives (v. 18).

3. Many gave up the practice of the black arts (v. 19). Black arts are forms of jugglery by the use of charms and magical words. No one can have fellowship with God and practice such arts. They proved the genuineness of their Christian profession by publicly burning their books, valued at $12,500.

4. Uproar of the silversmith at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).

a. The occasion (vv. 23, 24). The power of the gospel was destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. Their primary interest was its financial effect upon the principal business of the city.

b. The method (vv. 25-29). Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that much people had been turned from idolatry and that the market for their wares was materially weakened. He appealed to his fellows

(1) On the ground of business (v. 25). The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere with its business or way of living.

(2) On the ground of religious prejudice. He said that the temple of the great Goddess Diana would be despised (v. 27). He became religious when he saw that his business was being damaged. His speech gained his end. The crowd in a rage cried, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians." The mob was quieted by the tact, good judgment, and counsel of the town clerk (vv. 37-41).

Obedience

The golden chain of obedience is broken if one link is missing. If you are hanging over a precipice by a chain and one link goes, you are lost.

Difference in Men

One man will make all human nature seem contemptible; another will exalt it to immeasurable heights of beauty and loveliness. So there are men who make it hard, others who make it easy to believe in God.—Jno. W. Chadwick.

Holiness

The holiness taught in the Bible is the same as that lived by the saints of the Bible. The saints of the New Testament showed us how holy people ought to live.

BUILD UP CHILDREN'S POWER OF RESISTANCE

Have Them Examined at Intervals By Your Physician

"Don't neglect the common cold or the digestive upset," is the advice of Dr. R. H. Riley, Dirtetor of the State Department of Health, to mothers of young children. "Mothers can help to safeguard their children from diseases they catch from each other," he said.

"First, by building up the children's power of resistance to disease, by attention to their general health; by seeing that they have balanced meals; that they have some play out of doors on sunshiny days and that they have plenty of sleep.

"Second, by taking the children to your family doctor at regular intervals for inspection and advice.

"Third, by taking your children who have not been protected against diphtheria to your family doctor to be immunized against that disease.

"Fourth, by guarding against colds—keeping the child who is not well, in bed and by having the family doctor come to see him or her.

"Fifth, by keeping the well children away from the sick ones.

"Many of the diseases to which babies and young children are subject start with what seems to be 'only a cold,' as 'just a digestive upset,' and little attention is paid to these warning symptoms until measles, mumps, whooping cough, scarlet fever or one of the other 'catching' diseases has developed.

"Instead of ignoring these symptoms it is safer to regard every slight upset as a signal of possible danger and to act accordingly. Don't let them run on. Watch the child very carefully who develops the sniffles, who has a sore throat, who is dopey or otherwise under the weather. Put him to bed; send for your doctor and follow his advice."

HUGE TASK IN DROUGHT AID MET BY RED GROSS

Relief Given to Distressed Helps in Meeting Serious Situation, Chairman Payne Says.

"The year of the great drought," as these past twelve or more months will be known to future generations, wrought great damage to millions. Not alone did the crops, which were burned in the fields in twenty-three states, in the summer of 1930, deprive several million persons of food, but the drought disaster continued in the summer of 1931 in the northwestern states, and also brought other minor catastrophes in its wake, such as forest fires, and the grasshopper plague.

More than a year has elapsed since the American Red Cross launched, in August, 1930, its first moves for relief of the drought-stricken farmers, and in that time more than 2,750,000 persons were given food, clothing, medical aid, shelter or other type of assistance. At no period during this year were there fewer than 70,000 persons being aided and at the peak of the relief work on March 1, last, more than [illegible] were being helped.

Today, still as a result of the drought, the Red Cross is giving extended relief in parts of North Dakota, Washington and Montana, where resources of hundreds of families were wiped out the past summer, when a second and more severe spell of dry weather was prolonged in that region.

This drought relief presented the greatest task that has ever been undertaken by the Red Cross as a peacetime activity. The Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, while more spectacular, and calling for relief of a costlier type, because homes and possessions were swept away, affected hardly one-fourth the number of people who suffered because of the drought.

In addition to the broad program of drought relief now being carried on, John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, has given the following suggestion to Chapter chairmen, in regard to unemployment relief: "Where there is suffering and want from any cause and the fundamental local needs are not being met, Chapters may participate in the community plans for meeting the need."

Some type of general family relief, whether for the drought victims, the unemployed or the war veteran and his family, were carried on by more than 3,000 Red Cross Chapters last year, Judge Payne said.

"The drought relief work of 1930-31," he added, "the relief now being extended following last summer's drought, principally in Montana and North Dakota; the assistance which is being given to ex-service men and their families; and the part which several hundred Chapters are taking locally in their communities' relief measures are activities of the Red Cross, national and local, which have met and are meeting some of the serious needs of the present situation."

America Revels in Carnival of Hallowe'en—Once Was Holiday of Death

Centuries-old lore shrouded the witches aloft on their broomsticks last week-end as America reveled in the carnival of Hallowe'en, once the holiday of death.

Pagan and Christian combined through the ages to lay at the feet of the modern world this merrymaking and pranks. A custom of barbaric orign, 2,200 years have passed since first the ghosts of fancy danced and druid bonfires in Celtic England. Age has lightened and spread its observance.

Adaptions have been myriad. That America has its share is shown in some of the more than 50 reference books on Hallowe'en in the library of Congress. Among these are:
